BROKEN DAM DESTROYS 200 HOMES

BALDWIN HILLS RESERVOIR IS ALMOST EMPTY AFTER BREAK IN DAM SENT MILLIONS OF TONS OF WATER SMASHING DOWN ON HOMES

2 Bodies Found; Fear More Dead in Baldwin Hills

By ANDY PARK and ROBERT HEARD
I, P-T Staff Reporters

Millions of gallons of muddy water cascaded down the Baldwin Hills Saturday afternoon from a broken dam and swept through an expensive new housing area, destroying approximately 200 homes.

Two bodies were recovered in the Baldwin Hills disaster late Saturday, but unofficial reports early today indicated the death toll could possibly reach six.

Los Angeles Mayor Samuel W. Yorty termed it "a disaster of the first proportion—a major disaster in every sense of the word."

* * * *

EARLY TODAY rescue workers were combing the flattened area in which the Village Green apartment complex was hardest hit. It was feared many residents were trapped in the debris of their demolished homes.

More flood disaster pictures and stories are on Pages A-2, A-3, A-5 and A-9.

One Marine Corps helicopter pilot, recently returned from combat action in Viet Nam, termed the rescue work "more hazardous than in the mud around Saigon."

Capt. Robert Gaunt of the Los Angeles police department, directing rescue activities from a command post hastily set up in Dorsey High School, 3537 Farmdale St., estimated that:

—Two hundred homes were wiped out completely, swept from their foundations.

—Some 1,500-2,000 additional houses were damaged by muddy floodwaters that sometimes poured into second stories.

Gaunt, who had surveyed the area from a helicopter, said water spewed from a crack in the dam minutes before it gave way. Police warnings given from loudspeaker-equipped cars brought about evacuation of the area by thousands of persons.

The human toll would have been much greater without the warning, he said.

* * * *

HE GAVE THIS picture of the area of greatest damage: A pie-shaped section about one square mile, with the 900-acre-foot reservoir in the Baldwin Hills at its apex. Bisecting the piece was a giant furrow carved in minutes by the great surge, which fanned out at the end of its downhill run.

It was a balmy, seemingly peaceful afternoon in the community between downtown Los Angeles and International Airport when, a little after 3 p.m., the sloping 100-foot wall of the bowl-shaped reservoir exploded with a cannon-like roar.

The cause? No one knew.

But the effects were instant and terrifying.

The mud-brown surge raced over the matchsticked houses in the $80,000 to $100,000 class at upper levels, then boomed on to less expensive houses on lower slopes.

Then, on the flat, it smashed into complexes of apartment houses.

Along the way, it rolled cars, both moving and parked, like toys; swept houses off their foundations, then ripped out the foundations. Swimming pools were scoured out, leaving only holes behind.

Within an hour Mayor Yorty declared it an emergency area. Later, Gov. Brown declared it a disaster area.

President Johnson ordered Army engineers to assist victims of the disaster.

* * * *

THE FLOOD SWEPT down into a catch basin at the foot of the reservoir's earthen front. But the catch basin was filled in moments, and the water, spuwing 50 feet in the air, shaking the earth with its fury, leapt out of the catch basin and into a residential section below.

In the area ahead of the water 30 motorcycle policemen were roaring through the streets, warning people from the flood's path. Most people got out in time.

But cars were caught as the water poured three-quarters of a mile down the canyon, spreading through the residential section. Motorists and policemen abandoned their vehicles and climbed to rooftops.

The flood was two massive tides—each 10 feet high—as it spewed across Coliseum Road, at the foot of the Baldwin Hills.

It swept down two north-south streets into the block-square Village Green apartment development.

Whole rows of apartments literally vanished in the flood. Roofs ripped from two-story structures, flipped through the air, and landed crazily in trees hundreds of yards away.

A woman screamed at rescuers from one of the

HELICOPTERS GIVE AID

Reservists View Havoc From Air

By WILLIAM JONES
I, P-T Staff Reporter

The first silent words you breathe when you come upon the scene of disaster are, "My God, what's happened here?"

Five hundred feet beneath the hovering Seahorse helicopter from Los Alamitos Naval Air Station it looks as if some giant has taken a chunk of city and dunked it in a sea of mud.

Through the early night haze, the flashing red lights of police cars on the rim of the muddy bowl shine like Christmas ornaments.

In one large parking lot of a shopping center, some 50 automobiles of shoppers are crazily scattered about in the mud like beans spilled from a bag.

All are abandoned.

* * * *

LESS THAN an hour ago, 16 orange-suited Naval and Marine reservists and I clambered aboard the helicopters at Los Alamitos. The whirlybirds were airborne 20 minutes after the alert.

At top speed, the 'copters flew north, banked left over East Los Angeles, flew over the brightly lit downtown area and then came upon the scene.

* * * *

GROWING darkness, the twirling red lights on the tails of other helicopters and two huge radio towers made the pilots extra alert.

Cmdr. James Mann of Lomita, who commanded the five 'copters from Marine Squadron 764 and Navy Squadron 773, led us around the towers for a view of the scene below.

* * * *

SOME POLICE cars below were attempting to get into the mud bowl. In spots, they looked like boats, making patterns in the swirling mud as they moved forward.

Cmdr. Mann led us over the reservoir, which looked from above like a giant pond perched on a hill.

The break looked as if someone had cut a giant slice of cheese.

First Lt. Paul Bronson brought our own helicopter down toward an area marked off by red lights,

Amputee in Lucky Landfall

By H. E. DULUDE
As Told to I. P-T Reporter Andy Park

I have lived through two Topanga Canyon brush fires but I thought that this was the end of my life today.

I am thankful we all are safe and that General Motors builds their cars so airtight.

We heard helicopters overhead warning everyone to evacuate the area about 2:45 this afternoon (Saturday). My wife, Rosanna, and I were in our home at 5169 Village Green when we heard the warning. My sister, Mrs. O. Giguere, had come to visit us from her apartment next door.

I went out and started the motor on the car and told the girls to hurry up.

Rosanna went back into the house to get a scarf and as she came back out of the house, she looked up the street and screamed, "The water is coming!"

Rosanna got in with us and I tried to outrun the water. I didn't.

The next thing I knew my new white Chevrolet was hurled into the air by a horrible force of water hitting us.

I am an amputee and have special controls on my car, and for some reason, I kept trying to drive while we were bobbing up and down like a cork in that "ocean." We just float-

Sinatra Jr. Assists FBI, All But $6,000 Recovered

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The FBI announced Saturday night it had recovered most of the remaining Sinatra kidnap ransom money and other evidence in its swift smashing of a three-man amateur gang accused of abducting the young singer.

FBI agent in charge William G. Simon said an additional $18,500 of the $240,000 payoff for the safe return of Frank Sinatra Jr. last Wednesday was located, leaving only about $6,000 to be accounted for.

Simon called a press conference in the fast-breaking case a short time after actor Frank Sinatra Sr. revealed his 19-year-old son had furnished a description of the abductors' hideout which figured in the seizure of three suspects Friday and early Saturday.

The star said FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover told him the case "was solved and he is certain all the suspects had been apprehended."

The kidnap victim was taken by FBI agents to county jail where two of the suspects — Barry Worthington Keenan and Joseph Clyde Amsler — were being held in lieu of $50,000 bail. The third suspect—John William Irwin — was expected to be returned this weekend from San Diego where he was captured.

Young Sinatra was also taken to visit the Canoga Park hideout where he was held for most of the 54 hours following his abduction from a motel in the Lake Tahoe resort country last Sunday night.

Simon revealed for the first time that Keenan, son of a wealthy stockbroker, also had some of the ransom. It was found in his white Chevrolet Impala — a key vehicle in the case — and at the homes of his mother and a friend, Simon said.

Keenan also had purchased a station wagon for $1,000 and a motorcycle for $600 and this money has been recovered, Simon added.

FBI agents in Reno, Nev., found a loaded .38-caliber revolver beside U.S. 50 which they believed was tossed out by the kidnapers while transporting Sinatra to Los Angeles.

The latest disclosures fitted the pattern of widely-scattered clues in what law-enforcement officers describe as a bumbling, amateurish abduction.

In a news conference, Frank Sinatra Sr. gave some hitherto undisclosed

CD Unit Link to Refugees

The City of Paramount's Office of Civil Defense has been named the emergency communications center for the Baldwin Hills disaster, it was announced late Saturday by Councilman John R. Waters, Paramount civil defense director.

Waters said civil defense workers will be on duty at the Paramount City Hall 24 hours a day for the duration of emergency conditions. The center will relay messages to persons in the Baldwin Hills area, and from flood refugees to their relatives anywhere in the United States without charge.

* * * *

THE TELEPHONE number at the City Hall is ME 4-2123.

Waters said his office rushed several radio cars into the flood-ravaged area.

Broken Dam Destroys 200 Homes

—Associated Press Wirephoto

WATER RUSHING through break in Baldwin Hills Reservoir Dam (black arrow above) plunges down steep canyon, demolishing homes on stair-step lots (white arrow) on canyon's left side and smashing a triple path of destruction through residential streets. apartment houses: "My husband is gone. He's gone! I saw him get in the car, and he was swept away."

* * * *

AT RODEO ROAD and La Brea, on the edge of Culver City, the great mass of muddy water caught cars on the busy intersection and sent Christmas shoppers running for shelter.

It was at this intersection that a car containing two elderly women was swept into a sewer excavation. One was rescued. The other, as yet unidentified, died in her auto.

The water plunged on—enough of it to fill a 19-acre lake—until it hit Ballona Creek, a mile from the reservoir, and poured west toward the sea.

The water began to subside in the stricken area almost immediately.

What was left behind was a shocking scene.

Whole blocks had been swept bare of homes.

Intersections had disappeared—leaving only a muddy expanse of acreage.

Men searched frantically for lost wives and missing children. Wives pleaded with police to find husbands who had become separated from them.

A small dog ran in and out, whining, at the intersection where one woman was drowned. No one knew to whom he belonged.

* * * *

HELICOPTERS FLEW OVERHEAD, their landing lights shining down into the miles-square area of desolation, seeking survivors on rooftops. Rescue crews began to move in bulldozers and rubber-tired tractors to pry at the sodden wreckage in the hunt for possible victims.

Nearby schools were turned into evacuation centers. Red Cross and Civil Defense workers sought to get separated families back together.

As the water sank cars appeared from the flooded intersections.

One police car came out of the water with its red lights still flashing. Officers said 29 motorcycles were lost when officers jumped off them and fled to rooftops just ahead of the swirling waters.

An investigation was immediately launched into the cause of the disaster.

An official of the Department of Water and Power said there had been no earthquakes recently, and no rains heavy enough to have endangered the 13-year-old reservoir.

One theory under investigation was that subsidence caused by oil well drilling beneath the surface had weakened the earth structure.

A CLOSEUP VIEW

Like a Monster's Abandoned Lair

By ROBERT HEARD

It was as if the top of Mt. Baldy had rolled down the hill.

Damage was heavy on the upper reaches of Cloverdale Street, but when the water from Baldwin Hills Reservoir picked up speed about four blocks and 200 feet down, it struck like a blockbuster.

The intersection of Cloverdale and Sanchez Drive disappeared. In its place was a gulch 25 feet deep and 75 feet wide for two blocks downhill.

Slabs of asphalt were piled 12 feet high in some places on side streets as the waters fanned out.

* * * *

DEEP, sucking mud covered all streets half a mile below the reservoir for a distance of eight blocks.

I wallowed through it in darkness Saturday night. The shin-deep mud in the center of the streets pulled off one of the heels of my shoes, and I had to put some of my notes inside the shoe to keep the nails from driving into my foot.

Policemen swarmed over the area, knocking on doors and warning the few persons they found to turn off their gas.

Broken water mains spewed geysers into the clogged debris and the water rushed on down Cloverdale, aggravating an already pathetic scene.

Weeping men with flashlights roamed the worst-hit areas, trying to find their houses.

Cloverdale was impassable. I circled around to the west, uphill, and found two boys, Dave Burgess, 18, who was visiting Craig Crippen, also 18, at his house at 3941 Ridgeley Drive.

* * * *

WE CUT over backyards and hit Cloverdale again at Stillwater Drive. Policemen stopped me for the third time. Their orders were to arrest anyone in that area.

Finally they let us proceed. We climbed the hill to the west of Cloverdale all the way to the reservoir and looked down at what had been an exclusive housing area.

By the lights of rescue helicopters overhead we could see dimly a scene that sent chills up our backs.

It was as if some supernatural monster had passed this way and left behind a destroyed ghost town.

Water Commission Will Probe Disaster

LOS ANGELES (CNS)—Stunned water and power commissioners met in emergency session Saturday night as the damage toll mounted from the Baldwin Hills dam disaster.

The commissioners, called into session by President Nathan O. Freedman, took immediate steps to set up an expert committee which will inquire into the cause of the break, which sent water pouring down into the residential area.

The commissioners' chief concerns, however, were the victims of the flood and what could be done to aid the homeless.

Nerves were strained as the emergency meeting got under way after 8 p.m. when all five commissioners arrived from the disaster scene.

Commissioner Clifford H. Martha questioned Freedman's decision to call the session, explaining that he was too disturbed to rush into any action.

"It's a monumental catastrophe," he said.

LBJ Order to Open Baker Tax Returns

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson will sign an executive order opening to Senate investigators the federal income tax returns of Robert G. Baker, former secretary to the Senate Democrats.

The Senate Rules Committee has asked for access to the returns to help in its investigations of possible conflict-of-interest activities by present and former Senate employes.

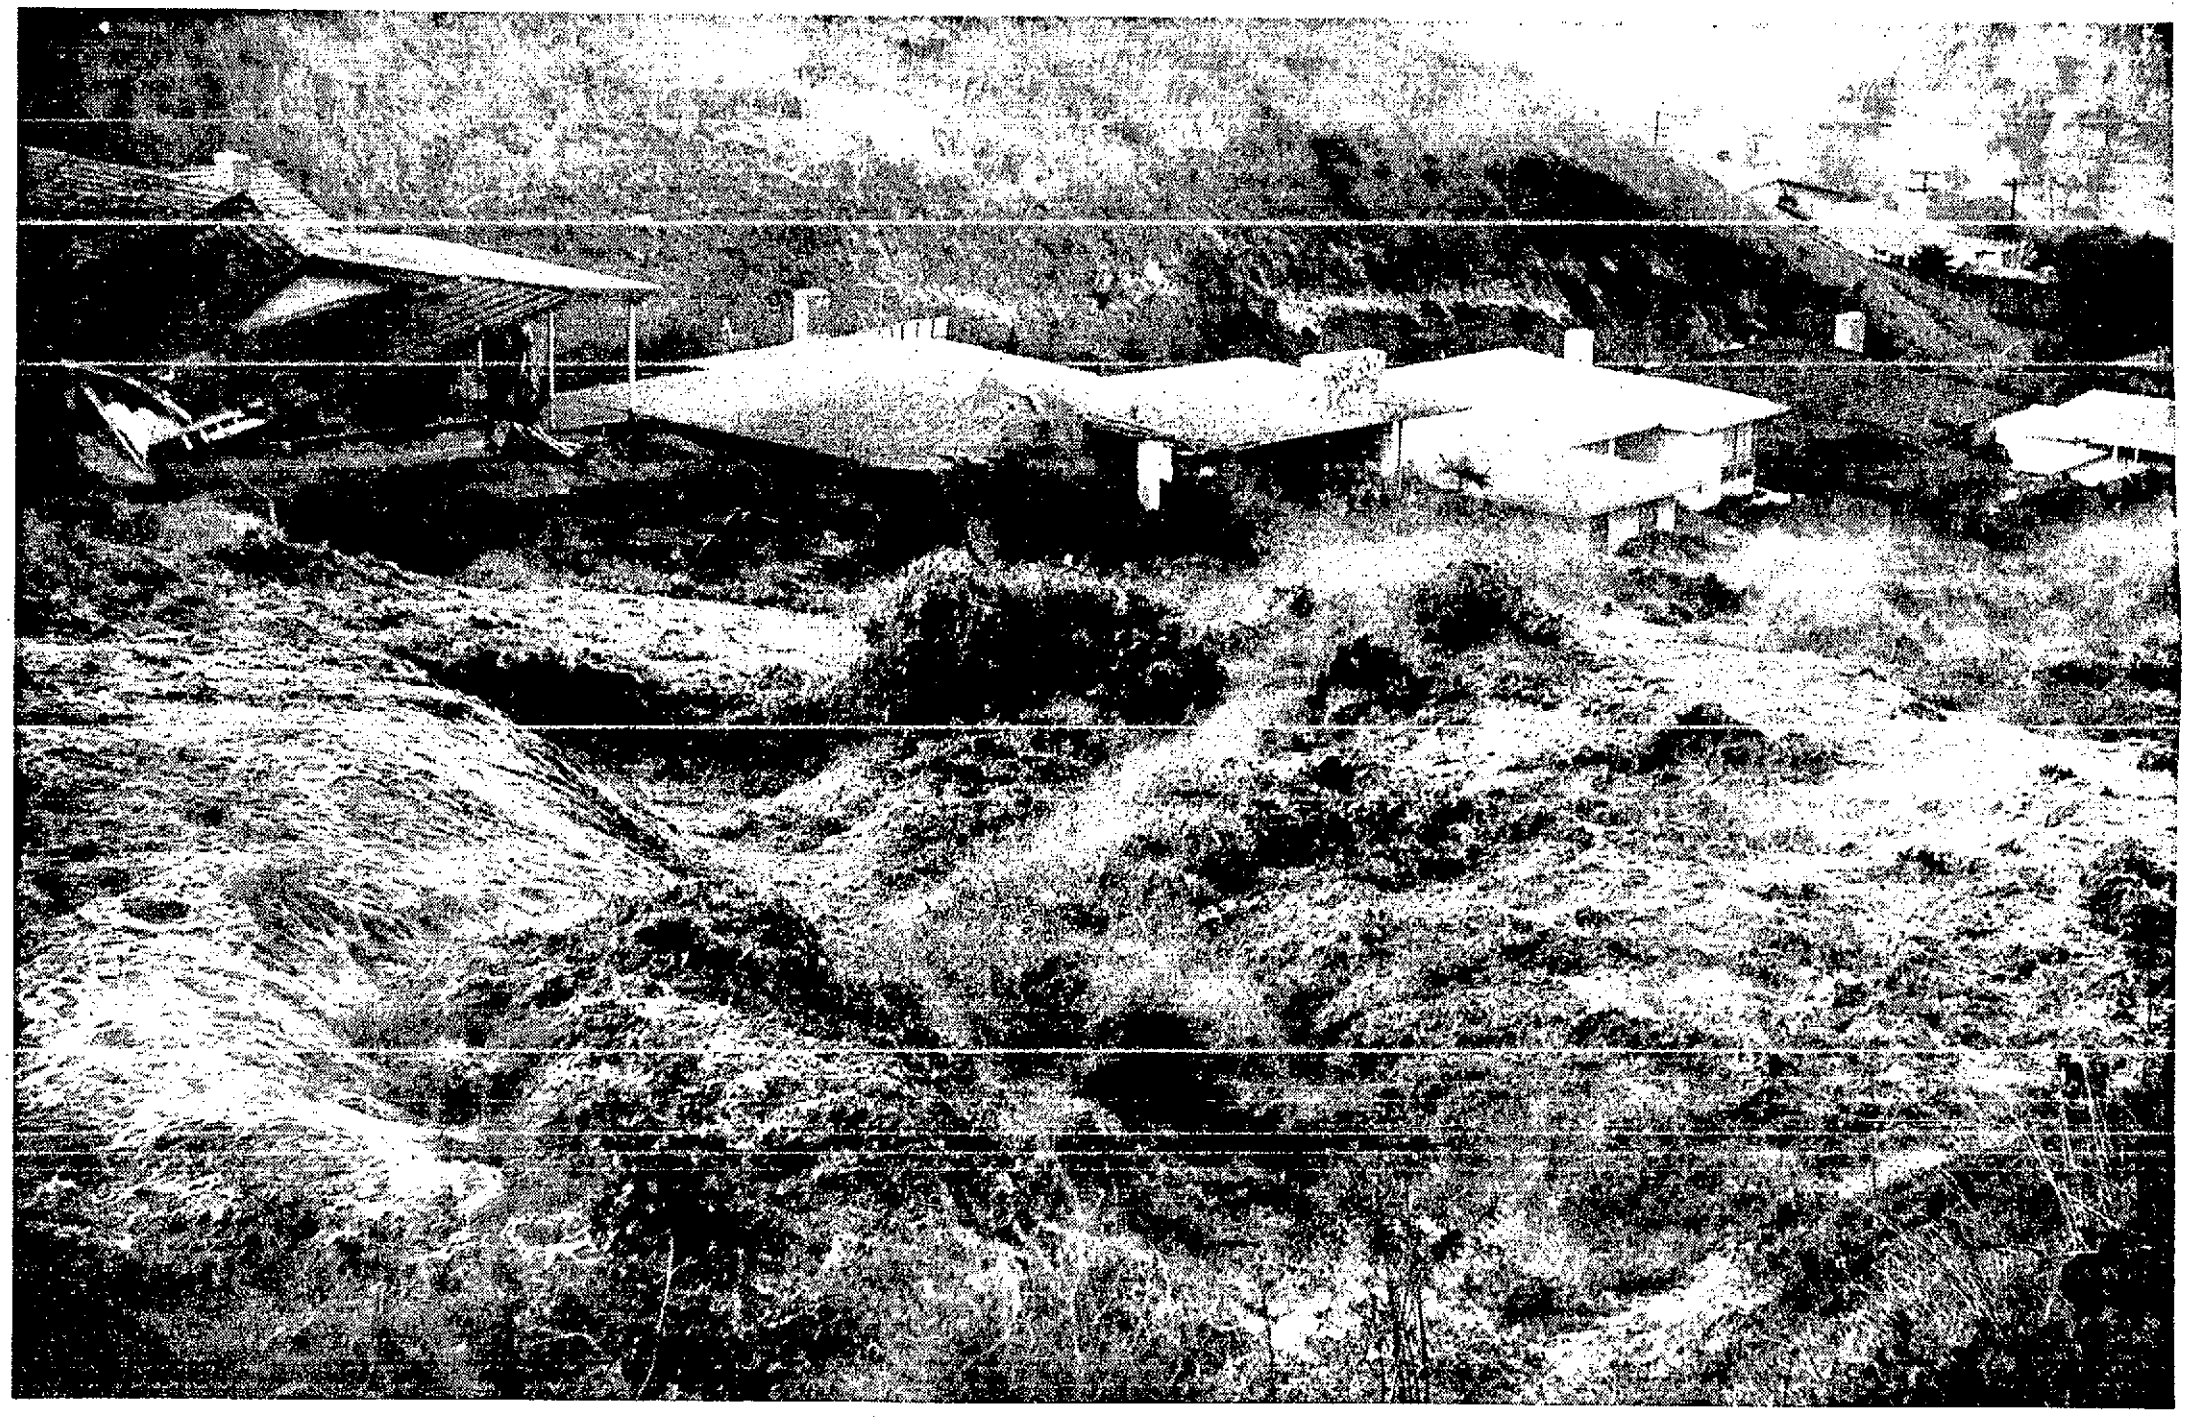

Baker resigned his $19,600-a-year post under fire Oct. 7. A former Senate page boy, he had been given the secretary post while Johnson was the Democratic leader of the Senate.

A Cataract of Destruction

Tremendous power of the water which smashed through the Baldwin Hills Reservoir dam (left) can be seen in the picture below, taken shortly after homes on hillside in foreground were obliterated by the raging torrent. These homes were closest to the catch basin which contained floodwaters for several minutes before it overflowed. At right, water courses down through heavily damaged residential areas. Picture at bottom of page shows the depth of the water after it reached busy streets below. Spectators stand on roof to escape the surging flood.

L.A.C. Says:

Fabulous County Worker Pension Fund

The new county jail is now being occupied. It cost $17 million to build—but county taxpayers will pay almost $36 million, including interest, for it to the County Employe Retirement Association in repayment of the $17 million it advanced to build the project. It will be remembered the voters turned down a bond issue for this purpose—largely because they felt it was too elaborate and costly. But the supervisors went ahead and built it by a financing deal with the association.

In addition to the jail, the retirement association fund has financed for the county the $29-million Hall of Administration, the $5-million Central Heating and Refrigeration plant, the $14.6-million Hall of Records, the $1.5-million Knollwood Golf Course, and now the $17-million jail. These items alone for county financing without a bond issue total over $66 million. But it is only a small part of the $400 million in the fund built up for county employe pensions.

The need for a jail was apparent. It was argued that its cost should have been far less than the $5,000 each for its 3200-occupant capacity. It is probable a less expensive construction would have been used had not the easy financing been available. It raises the question as to public bodies placing such debts on the taxpayer without a vote of the people. This $17-million obligation plus interest is just as costly and definite an obligation as a bond issue, but it was not approved by the taxpayer who must pay the bill.

The fabulous fund also brings out the county employe pension benefits which are so high above those provided for their employers, the taxpayers. Under this system County Manager Hollinger, now 54 years old, could retire on a pension of $15,000 a year. He now makes $32,808 a year. If he continues in his job for another five years, he can retire on a $24,000-a-year pension. He started work for the county at the age of 16 for $90 a month. He is an efficient, valuable executive whose present salary is not high enough. But his pension is high above that provided for all but a few private-industry executives.

This fund is added to annually in the amount of about $52 million, of which the county pays $31 million. The county share is equal to over 10 percent of the county general tax bill for property owners. These contributions are added to by the earnings of the fund from interest on bonds, stocks and such projects as the county buildings.

The employe pensions are based on the last three years' pay they receive. A lifeguard can retire at age 55 and get 20 percent of his pay if he has 10 years service. For 20 years he gets half pay, and 60 percent after 30 years. For regular, non-safety department workers the pensions run from 15 percent of pay for 10 years service up to 51 percent for those with 35 years. If they retire at age 60, the top is 67 percent and at 65 they can retire on up to 75 percent of their best three years pay.

The fund is believed to be one of the best-managed of employe pension plans. While the benefits are in most cases high above Social Security payments, the employes contribute a larger amount—around 7 percent to 10 percent—of their pay. The county pays from 11 percent to 19 percent as its share. It is estimated the county share is about 28 cents on each $100 of assessed valuation.

It is a good plan for the county workers. We are not criticizing it. But we are critical of the use of this or any other form of financing by the county for purposes that should be provided from bond issues voted by the people. Such easy financing is dangerous because it makes it possible to undertake projects which the voters may not approve. There should be safeguards providing that any such indebtedness should be subject to voter approval whether by bond issues or this form of private financing.—L.A.C.

Johnson Chooses Latin-Policy Boss

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson made his first major manpower shift Saturday night, naming fellow-Texan Thomas Mann to guide U.S. policies—economic, political and military—on Latin America.

The White House announced Johnson will send to the Senate Monday his nomination of Mann, who now is ambassador to Mexico, to become assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs. He will succeed Edwin M. Martin.

The announcement capped another busy Saturday for the new President.

* * * *

JOHNSON aimed another message at Capitol Hill — this one sharply protesting "the drastic reduction in foreign-aid funds" voted Saturday by the House Appropriations Committee.

He issued a statement denouncing the slash to a $2.8 billion appropriation as a step toward "weakness and retreat."

The President also acted to widen public and congressional support for the long stalled $11-billion-tax-reduction bill.

And he set as the central object and foremost goal of his administration the achievement of a lasting peace.

THOMAS MANN
Ambassador Steps Up

White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger issued Johnson's foreign-aid protest and announced the appointment of Mann at a hastily summoned news conference.

He read to newsmen a statement saying:

"It is the President's intention to place Ambassador Mann in charge of the overall policy coordination for all aspects of Latin-American policy under the direction of the President and the Secretary of State."

* * * *

MARTIN, Salinger said, "will be appointed to a major ambassadorial post in Latin America as previously planned."

AEC Tests Reactor for Space

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission announced Saturday that a nuclear reactor being developed to generate electricity for spacecraft was operated at full power during a ground test at Santa Susana, Calif., early last week.

The AEC said full power means tests at 450 thermal kilowatts and 1,300 degrees Farenheit.

More tests at power levels up to 600 thermal kilowatts are planned, the announcement said.

* * * *

THE REACTOR is called SNAP 8. It is the first to be built and operated in this particular phase of the AEC's Systems for Nuclear Auxiliary Power from which the program takes its name.

The California tests involved the reactor only, the AEC said. Later tests will involve both the reactor and power conversion components operating together as a unit.

The reactor, being designed and constructed by Atomics International, a division of North American Aviation, is aimed at providing a spacecraft in flight with 35 to 55 kilowatts of electricity.

The AEC said the reactor weighs about 600 pounds and is fueled with highly enriched uranium. Its core is contained in a vessel about the size of a five-gallon can.

United Air Lines and IAM Stand Firm, Tie-up Looms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — United Air Lines said Saturday it will attempt to continue operating if union mechanics go on strike as scheduled at midnight Wednesday.

The move by United and an answering accusation by the Internationla Association of Machinists (IAM), the mechanics union, appeared to lessen hope of avoiding a major airline strike at the height of the Christmas passenger rush. It indicated a "stiffening of attitudes," a government mediator who has been close to the situation said.

The mediator, Howard Gamser of the National Mediation Board, said, however, that both sides still were scheduled to meet again in his office Monday in a continuing attempt to settle the labor dispute. "Bargaining has not been called off," he said.

HER HUSBAND DROWNED

Water Explodes Dam 'Like Giant Cannon'

Associated Press Staffer Robert M. Burnett was within 100 feet of the Baldwin Hills Reservoir when it ruptured, sending water roaring on homes below. Here is his eyewitness account.

By ROBERT M. BURNETT

LOS ANGELES (AP)—It was like an explosion.

One moment the 100-foot-high sloping earth wall was leaking muddy water from a top-to-bottom crack. It gushed in a 10-foot-wide brown muddy stream from a fissure at the bottom.

The next, there was a roar like a great cannon, then a rumbling and shuddering of the ground as the face of the slope erupted.

A mighty jet of water and mud and fragments of earth shot out over a ravine into which the leak had been running, followed by a steady rush of water.

FROM MY backyard vantage point overlooking the ravine and looking up toward the cracking wall, it was terrifying. The explosion-point was at the bottom, opening a huge hole into which upper wall portions fell.

I ran to a phone and when I started talking my voice was trembling.

I remember that a bystander shouted, "There she goes!"

A river of water kept pouring out, but I could not see where it was going.

I DROVE down the hill a few blocks to another vantage point.

From there I could see that the water had spread out over the lowland at the foot of the canyon, over an area of many blocks.

I phoned in the report, then went on down to where the flood poured out of the canyon mouth.

Muddy spray was leaping 35 feet in the air as the rushing torrent carved a gully through what had been the residential area.

DISASTER CHRONOLOGY

Hundreds Flee After Warning

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Here is the chronology of the first harrowing hours of the Baldwin Hills Reservoir disaster. Times were taken from sheriff's and police logs and from Associated Press reporters at the scene.

11:15 a.m.—Leak spotted by caretaker at the reservoir.

11:30 a.m.—Leak verified by sheriff's department helicopter.

Noon—Mudslides reported on Cloverdale Avenue directly below reservoir and water rushing down La Brea Avenue. Crews begin draining reservoir water.

1:45 p.m.—Department of Water and Power engineers and police decide on evacuation. City engineers quoted as saying the reservoir "may go any minute or it might not go at all."

2:00 p.m.—Red Cross and Civil Defense authorities alerted and aid requested.

2:20 p.m.—First Sigalert broadcast on all radio and television stations. Sixty motorcycle officers and patrol cars begin warning occupants of houses below reservoir and helping them out of the area.

3:38 p.m.—Reservoir wall breaks.

3:43 p.m.—Fifteen homes disappear from a terraced canyon slope below the reservoir as a mass of water roars down from the break in the wall.

3:58 p.m.—Water on streets below reported 4 feet deep, current 15 m.p.h.

4:02 p.m.—Water 5 feet deep, current 20 m.p.h. Cars are swept off streets and piled on top of each other. Homes along Cloverdale Avenue, directly below the reservoir, are wiped out.

4:13 p.m.—Water begins to recede slightly.

Iceland Flag on New Isle

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (UPI)—A group of eight men said Saturday they landed on the new volcanic island in the Atlantic to plant the Icelandic flag.

They said they made the expedition Saturday but called it a "dangerous venture" because of new eruptions. One of the group said he was trapped to the waist by a flow of thick, oozy ashes before being pulled out to make an escape.

The month-old island off Iceland's southern coast is the first new one in the Atlantic in more than 100 years. A spokesman for the group said they hoped it would be called "Vesturey," or Western Isle.

Laughter, Tears Mix at Red Cross Center

Angelenos who had just lost their homes in the Baldwin Hills disaster still could laugh at themselves.

For instance, the couple overheard talking at Dorsey High School, one of four hastily-set-up evacuation centers:

Said she, surveying the milling thousands: "I haven't seen so many people since our last party." To which her husband replied, "And there are more policemen here — than at our last party."

But tear-stained cheeks were more the order of the day.

Children separated from parents wailed . . . adults sought out their missing relatives . . . and the Red Cross served supper for the hungry, set up cots, prepared to care for the homeless.

One of the homeless, a man who said he had just finished building his home Friday, noted dryly: "I didn't have flood insurance. Its cost was prohibitive — because of the dam."

Court's Ruling on Czar's Heir Due

HAMBURG, Germany (UPI)—Within a month or two, a Hamburg court is due to give ailing 62-year-old Anna Anderson what may be her last chance to legally prove she is Anastasia, daughter of the last, murdered Czar of Russia.

In January or February the State Court of Appeals is expected to hear her final argument, and if the court turns her down, Miss Anderson may be finally defeated. She could appeal to the West German Supreme Court — but only to complain of a legal error, not to show new evidence.

Thus could end a 25-year court battle that reportedly concerns a fortune of millions in addition to the question of Anna Anderson's true identity.

The late Kurt Vermehren, Miss Anderson's attorney until he died in a car crash last year, said between $58 million and $112 million sit in a London bank, waiting for the heir of Czar Nicholas II.

Gordon Davies, a director of London's Barings Bank where money was deposited by the Czar before he, his wife, his son and daughters fell before a Bolshevik firing squad on July 17, 1918, refused to discuss the amount it holds.

"We will pluck the fruit from the tree when the time comes," says Carl Wollmann, Miss Anderson's current lawyer. "Right now, we are not interested in the money. We are interested in establishing her identity."

Computers to Track Unlicensed Dogs

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—Even the dog catcher is vulnerable to automation.

Milwaukee County Clerk Clemens F. Michalski said an electronic computer will be used next year to track down persons who do not renew their dog owner licenses.

Elia Kazan's Wife Dies

NEW YORK (UP) — Mrs. Molly Kazan, 56, wife of Elia Kazan, motion picture and stage producer, died Saturday.

Mrs. Kazan was taken to Bellevue Hospital from her Central Park West residence Friday night after suffering a cerebral hemorrhage. Her condition remained critical until her death.

The former Molly Day Thatcher, she married Kazan in 1932. They had four children.

Her husband is Yale Wexler, owner of the Wilshire House Hotel here. The boy will be named Jordan. The Wexlers have another son, Gregory.

Legislation Expected in Wake of United States Study of Smoking Habits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A wave of legislative proposals and administrative decrees is expected in the wake of the impending report on the Surgeon General's Committee on Smoking Versus Health.

Although the findings of the special 10-man committee have been a closely guarded secret, it has been almost a foregone conclusion that the committee will report a definite link between smoking and some diseases.

For one thing, Surgeon General Luther M. Terry has announced that a second committee will be formed after the first one reports.

The first committee was named only to assimilate all of the pertinent studies and findings, evaluate them and formulate conclusions.

The second committee, Terry said, will consider recommendations for action. And as one tobacco executive ruefully noted:

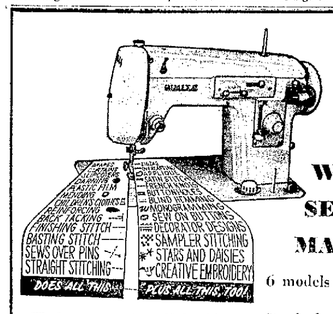

"Presumably the surgeon general wouldn't have anticipated the need for a second committee if he didn't think the first would come up with a report describing some reasons for action."

The studies the committee is using as a basis for its report leave little room for any conclusion other than the one as lung cancer, coronary disease and circulatory anticipated by the surgeon general.

The studies almost unanimously show that there is at least a statistical relationship between smoking and susceptibility to such things earlier this month. It was a ponents of smoking to the

President Sends Warm Message in Hopes of Defrosting De Gaulle

PARIS (UPI) — President Johnson has sent a personal message to French President de Gualle in an apparent new attempt to thaw out frozen relations between the United States and France, U.S. officials disclosed Saturday night.

The message of personal greetings will be given De Gaulle by U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk when he pays a courtesy call on the French president at noon Monday, the officials said.

It was not disclosed whether the message reiterated Johnson's invitation to De Gaulle to visit Washington. French officials have indicated De Gaulle probably would not make such a trip during 1964.

Rusk told Western allied leaders in Paris Saturday that Johnson favors a diplomatic "pause" in the immediate future and has no plans for summit talks with Premier Nikita Khrushchev in 1964.

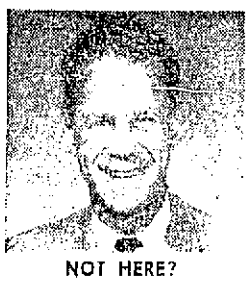

* * * *

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Khrushchev Set to Reduce Arms

MOSCOW (UPI)—Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev in a speech published Saturday announced plans to reduce Soviet military expenditures and cut Soviet armed forces in what appeared to be the first shot of a new offensive for general and complete disarmament.

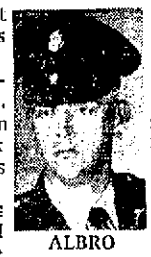

The 17-nation disarmament talks resume next month in Geneva.

The military cuts appeared to be caused by his $46.2-billion, seven-year crash plan to revolutionize the Soviet chemical industry and free Russia of the possibility of new crop failures. This year's agricultural failures led Russia to buy nearly $1 billion of Western wheat.

Khrushchev's announcement Friday to the closing session of a meeting of the full Communist Party Central Committee reflected the Kremlin's confidence the Johnson administration would continue the Kennedy policy of easing international tensions.

Viet War Takes 8 Yank Lives in Week

NEW YORK (AP)—Eight American servicemen were killed or are missing and presumed dead in two air crashes last week in far-off South Viet Nam. That makes 144 Americans dead in that country's civil war in the past two years.

ALBRO

"I knew why he was in Viet Nam—it was for me and the boys," said Mrs. Ronny L. Woodmansee, mother of three, in Austin, Tex., Saturday. "I knew his luck couldn't hold too long. The sadness comes at me in waves."

Her husband, an Army lieutenant, was one of four killed when a helicopter crashed Thursday while trying to remove the wreckage of a plane downed in the guerrilla-infested Mekong delta.

One man aboard the helicopter—Pfc. Charles S. Albro—survived the crash. "I feel so helpless," said Albro's wife, a nurse's aide, at their home in Milton-Freewater, Ore. She said she could not be more thankful that he survived.

In the second crash, four Americans and three Vietnamese were killed in a light Army plane which hit the side of a mountain. There were no survivors.

Pills Kill 'Queen of the Blues'

DETROIT (UPI)—Singer Dinah Washington, 39-year-old "queen of the blues" whose throaty renditions of jazz classics made her a top recording artist, died Saturday of an apparent overdose of pills.

The singer's body was found in bed by her seventh husband, professional football star Dick (Night Train) Lane. Her personal physician, Dr. B. C. Ross, said he believed Miss Washington had "ingested pills of an unknown type."

Homicide Det. William J. Chubb said an unmarked bottle of 50 orange and blue pills was found next to the bed. The contents were not immediately known.

Miss Washington, whose biggest hit was, "What a Difference a Day Makes," had been taking pills for a "nervous condition," according to Mrs. Ethel Harrison, 67, who lived with the Lanes.

Faces Reckoning

NEW YORK (UPI)—Onetime "boy wonder" Earl Belle, whose paper financial empire collapsed in 1958 caused "untold losses" to American investors, returned to the United States Saturday from a five-year exile in Brazil where he got into trouble on bad-check charges. He faces prosecution in the United States on fraud charges.

Belle, now 31, arrived here aboard a jetliner from Rio de Janeiro at 10:40 a.m. EST, accompanied by an agent of the International Police Organization (Interpol).

A police spokesman in Brazil said Belle had written $70,000 worth of rubber checks to exchange houses in transactions involving the purchase of Brazilian cruzeiros. He was given the alternative of facing Brazilian prosecution or returning to the United States, and he chose the latter, the spokesman said.

U.S. Ends Boycotts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States reopened diplomatic relations with the Dominican Republic and Honduras Saturday but kept the pressure on their junta governments by stalling the return of ambassadors and continuing to withhold U.S. aid.

The action ended more than two months of diplomatic boycott policy toward the two countries, instituted after their constitutional governments were overthrown by military uprisings.

Johnson Calls Slashed Aid Bill a Straitjacket

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson said Saturday the $2.8-billion foreign-aid bill drafted by the House Appropriations Committee would put the United States on the path of "weakness and retreat."

"The proposed reductions in foreign-aid funds would put our foreign policy in a straightjacket," Johnson said in a statement.

"I urge the Congress, therefore, to appropriate the funds essential to conduct strong and forward-looking foreign-assistance programs in the U.S. national interest," Johnson said.

* * * *

THE HOUSE committee approved the reduced bill earlier in the day. The $2.8-billion total represents a cut of $1.7 billion below President John F. Kennedy's request.

Johnson's statement was distributed to newsmen who had been recalled to the White House after having been told earlier in the afternoon that there would be no further announcements Saturday.

The President said:

"I cannot believe the Congress intends to require the United States of America to follow policies of weakness and retreat."

Johnson's sharply worded statement recalled that made by President Kennedy last August when the House approved a $3.4-billion authorization for foreign-aid spending. Kennedy called those cuts in the authorization short-sighted, irresponsible, and dangerously partisan.

In his statement, Johnson said, "The drastic reduction in foreign-aid funds proposed in the House, if sustained, would be a sereve setback to American leadership and to U.S. interests in many parts of the world."

* * * *

JOHNSON said the appropriation would curtail sharply the Alliance for Progress program. He said it would mean "the United States would be providing for all of Latin America less than the Soviet Union is putting into Cuba alone. This is no way to combat communism in Latin America."

Johnson said under the committee's bill the United States "could not keep its commitments and pledges" to international organizations.

"This is a startling proposal," he said. "It would undercut our efforts in the United Nations to insure that the Soviet Union and other reluctant nations live up to their pledges to the United Nations."

BUT OTHER helicopters were there. We flew on to a giant, floodlighted field, the baseball diamond of Dorsey High School, and landed.

In another Los Alamitos helicopter, Lt. Edwin Stewart flew off with a doctor and an ambulance attendant in search of a reported heart victim in the area. They returned later, unable to find the cardiac victim, but carrying out to safety an elderly man trapped by the flood.

* * * *

AS WE waited on the baseball diamond, we could see fire trucks and ambulances cruise the nearby muddy streets, their spotlights throwing eerie lights on the abandoned homes as they passed.

Near us were several police cars, transmitting messages to the choppers.

One officer pointed to another helicopter parked by us and said, "That guy brought in a couple of bodies."

No one said a word.

* * * *

COMPLETE darkness had fallen, the sun disappeared behind a flaming ribbon of red on the horizon. It was now impossible for a helicopter to move into the flooded area.

A short while later, we got the word, "Go home." Pilots revved their engines and we flew back, gazing silently out of the craft and staring at the Christmas lights beneath.

At Los Alamitos, each had a steaming cup of black coffee and then the weekend warriors disbanded for the night.

Amputee in 'Amphichev,' Two Women Saved as Car Runs Aground

ed right straight down the street.

The car hit a pole at the intersection of La Brea Avenue and Rodeo Road and it deflected us between two buildings, a grocery store and a restaurant.

The bumpers snagged on another pole and I looked up and saw police officers on the roofs of buildings on either side.

Officer R. J. Holoubek jumped into the water and swam toward us shouting, "Close the windows, close the windows!"

Behind him, on top of the restaurant, other police officers started to form a human chain out to Officer Holoubek.

Holoubek opened the door of the car with one hand and grabbed the hand of an officer reaching out to him from behind. One by one, they pulled us to the roof.

After the water started to recede we were placed in a red-carpeted charter bus.

Owner Darell Harvey told us that the bus was used as a party bus for a cocktail lounge decorated in the Gay 90s style. It was the only funny thing that happened to us all afternoon.

Harvey drove us four blocks away to the Susan Miller Dorsey High School, which is being used as an evacuation center.

I have never seen anything like what happened today. Before I retired my wife and I lived in Topanga Canyon and twice we had to flee from brush fires. But at least you can escape a fire—what can you do when tons of water and mud surround you?

We are wet, we are sitting here on a bare gymnasium floor and our home and all our belongings are gone. But thank God—and thank Officer Holoubek—we are alive!

Five Naval Air Station 'Copters Aid Rescue

Five helicopters from Los Alamitos Naval Air Station east of Long Beach were in a group of quickly assembled aerial rescue units sent into the Baldwin Hills disaster area.

Among the others were two choppers from El Toro Marine Corps Air Station, Santa Ana, and a pair from the Coast Guard's air detachment at Los Angeles International Airport.

Control of the big life-savers was given the Los Angeles police department.

The Coast Guard here also sent a 16-foot fiberglass outboard motorboat for use in water rescues.

Day shift Los Angeles police headquartered in San Pedro were held on duty into the night as their normal relief men were sent to the scene for "an indefinite stay." Emergency drinking water pumps and lanterns were dispatched from San Pedro.

And the Coast Guard in Long Beach issued a special warning to mariners:

Stay away from the Ballona flood control ditch's exit point into the Pacific. Baldwin Hills debris — including large chunks of houses—was floating seaward and creating a major hazard for a mile beyond Plaza del Rey.

Liability for Damage Poses Major Question

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Who will pay for the damage done hundreds of Los Angeles homes by floodwaters from a broken reservoir?

The Los Angeles City Department of Water and Power, owners of the reservoir, said it hasn't yet been established if the utility will be held liable.

An official said, however, that the department is covered by $114.8 million in insurance, placed with 12 major carriers.

A spokesman for the Insurance Information Institute said that private dwellings are generally not covered by floodwater protection, because of the high costs of such coverage in Southern California.

France-Albania Pact

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — France and Communist Albania signed two trade treaties Saturday in Tirana, the French Embassy here announced. One set general conditions of trade and ship and air activities between the two countries. The second outlines what goods will be traded next year.

Start building now before new parking ordinance becomes effective

New parking ordinance requires 1¼ parking for 2-bed units, 1-1 parking on 1-bed units, for all areas north of Seventh St. New ordinance planned to become effective Feb. 1st, 1964 and requires that all construction must be started and foundations poured to comply with present parking ratios.

Security Apartments, Inc., claims we still have time to arrange financing, obtain permits and reach framing stage of construction providing you call now.

Reprieve Won on Off-Street Parking

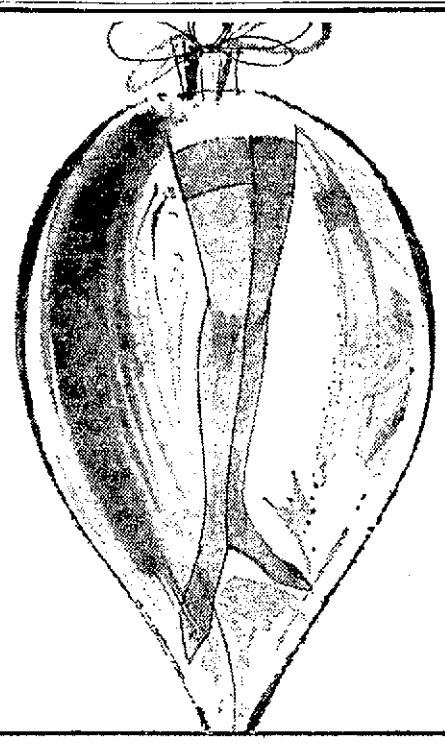

Builders were given a brief reprieve Tuesday for complying with higher off-street parking requirements in new residential construction. Long Beach City Council agreed that the new ordinance will not be made operative until Feb. 1, 1964, although it is scheduled for first reading next Tuesday and adoption one week later. Buildings for which foundations are poured on the Feb. 1 date may be completed in compliance with the present parking ratios. Councilmen also informally directed that the building department go ahead with processing applications for construction permits at the normal pace during the interim period. After Feb. 1 builders must provide a ratio as high as 1¼ off-street parking spaces for each apartment in larger dwelling units in most sections of Long Beach. The maximum now is generally a ratio of two spaces for three apartments.

GIRLS JOIN BROTHER FOR HOLIDAYS

Two Fischer Quints Leave Hospital

ABERDEEN, S.D. (UPI) — The first two girls of the Fischer quintuplets went home from the hospital Saturday.

The two, Mary Magdalene, the second born, and Mary Margaret, the last born, cried lustily as they were taken to join their quint brother, James Andrew, in the lavender-colored nursery at the Fischer home.

The father, Andrew, and his wife, Mary Ann, took the little girls — born exactly three months ago—home in the family's new car. The tots were bundled against the 10-below-zero cold in blankets knitted by their great-grandmother.

* * * *

MRS. FISCHER carried one of the girls out of St. Luke's Hospital. The other was held by their grandmother, Mrs. Elmer Brady, Hecla, S.D. Brady was at the Fischers' home baby-sitting with James Andrew and the Fischers' five other children.

Neither Andy Fischer nor his wife spoke to reporters as they left the hospital or when they arrived home, where the five older children were standing outside to greet the new arrivals. But Mrs. Fischer flashed a smile.

—Associated Press Wirephoto

MARY MAGDALENE (left) and Mary Margaret, two of the Fischer quints, pose in Aberdeen, S.D. hospital Saturday before going home.

An attorney for the Fischers said Andy planned to spend the rest of the day putting up and decorating the Christmas tree in the 10-room house where the family is making its home until a new house can be built next spring.

Stanley Siegel, the attorney, said "help has been secured for Mrs. Fischer, but right now Mrs. Fischer and her mother are taking care of everything."

Siegel declined to say who had been hired to help the parents care for the quints or the salary involved.

Hospital authorities said Mary Magdalene and Mary Margaret were sent home Saturday "simply because they were the largest of the four girls." They declined to say whether the other girls, Mary Catherine and Mary Ann, would be home by Christmas. But there was believed to be a possibility they would leave the hospital next Saturday.

Procter & Gamble Told It Must Sell Clorox Co.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission Saturday ordered the huge Procter & Gamble Corporation to dispose of Clorox Chemical Co., the largest producer of household liquid bleach.

The commission gave as one reason that the merger of the two firms, six years ago, produced economies only in advertising discounts available to Procter & Gamble. The FTC said these economies are a burden, rather than a benefit, to the consumer.

In Cincinnati, Howard Morgens, president of Procter & Gamble, said:

"We will, of course appeal this decision to the federal courts.

"The decision represents an attempt to make new law. It goes beyond any previous interpretation of existing anti-trust legislation."

At the time of the merger, Procter & Gamble had total sales of $1.1 billion and had substantial percentages of markets in such items as detergents, toilet soap, lard and shortening, and shampoo.

The FTC decision noted that total sales in the entire household liquid bleach industry were equivalent to less than 10 per cent of Procter & Gamble's total sales.

Tip From Sinatra Jr. Aids FBI

details of the case.

The entertainer disclosed a description by Frank Sinatra Jr. led FBI agents to the San Fernando Valley home where the kidnapers held their victim for two days.

The younger Sinatra was taken to the county jail where Kennan and Amsler, both 23, were being held. He spent about a half hour there, presumably to try to identify the suspects.

"I would like to say that I hope the results of this case, due to the efforts of the FBI, will discourage anything like this in the future," said the father. "I do pray that this is the case."

He also said, "When Frank was first kidnaped I was worried and distraught. But the more phone calls that came in the more heartened I became.

"They wanted money, not Frankie," said the singer.

Sinatra said he had not seen the kidnapers but was positive the man he talked to by telephone in negotiations for the ransom was the suspect known as John Irwin. He added that Frank Jr. actually had not been able to identify any of his abductors by pictures.

Sinatra explained Frankie had been "blindfolded all the time and was hardly spoken to." He said a previous report that FBI agents took infrared pictures of the ransom pickup early Wednesday shortly before his son's release was not correct to his knowledge.

Sinatra, who said it was "unfortunate" Los Angeles police were so critical of

KIDNAP SUSPECTS IN COURT
Joseph Clyde Amsler (left), 23, and Barry W. Keenan, 23, wait to be arraigned in a Los Angeles court Saturday. They and a third suspect are accused of kidnaping Frank Sinatra Jr.

Not Ad Libbed

WEST LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Frank Sinatra Sr. answered questions Saturday at a news conference about the kidnaping of his son and was asked his opinion on whether the abduction was done by professionals.

"Well, it certainly didn't look like it was ad libbed," the singer replied.

the FBI, also revealed for the first time the ransom bills had been chemically treated. Serial numbers also were taken down.

The kidnapers demanded old money, he said.

The trio—a house-painter, an abalone diver and a vacuum-cleaner salesman—were seized by agents moving swiftly and secretly into three Southern California cities in a period of 15 hours culminating early Saturday.

The arrests apparently completed the roundup of the gang.

At one time, as many as seven or nine suspects were believed involved in the abduction of the young singing star from a Lake Tahoe lodge last Sunday.

"We do not anticiapte filing any additional complaints to obtain warrants of arrest in this matter," said Thomas Sheridan, the chief of criminal complaints for the U.S. attorney's office here.

"Thank God it's over," said Frank Sinatra, father of the 19-year-old victim, when he was infotmed the federal agents had wrapped up the case in slightly more than five days. He praised the FBI, which had conducted its investigation in complete secrecy — excluding local police from participation.

Keenan's family hired an attorney immediately and began proceedings to have the suspect released on bail.

Although the FBI did not comment, Irwin was suspected as the ringleader of the plot, but physical descriptions given by Sinatra and his roommate, trumpet player John Foss, showed two men answering the descriptions of Keenan and Amsler carried out the abduction.

Background information on the three suspects:

—John William Irwin, 42, a house painter, Hollywood, born March 24, 1921, Tucson, Ariz.; navy veteran; married to Lupe Minjarez

JOHN W. IRWIN
Suspect Ringleader

Irwin; arrested at 9 a.m. yesterday in Imperial Beach, Calif., by FBI agents who recovered $47,938 in ransom money from him; police record dates back to July 1947 when he was charged with assault and battery in Dover, N.J.; other charges include desertion and nonsupport, and drunk and disorderly conduct in Maine, Massachusetts, New Jersey and California.

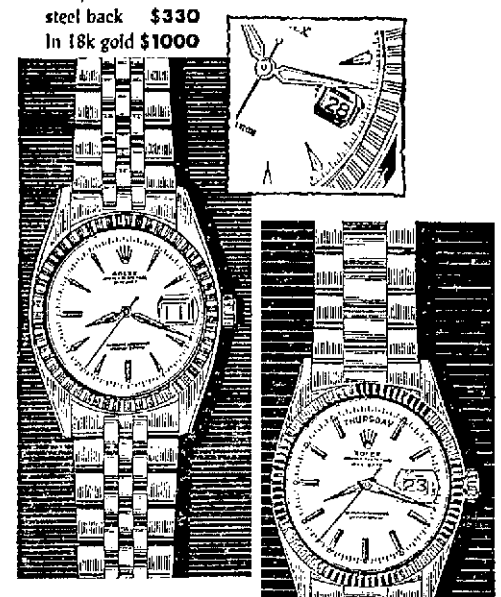

—Barry Worthington Keenan, 23, son of Mrs. Arthur Schaeffer, Los Angeles, and John J. Keenan, stockbroker and resident of exclusive suburb Flintridge (parents divorced); a vacuum-cleaner salesman; born June 26, 1940, Los Angeles; 1958 graduate of University High School in same class as Nancy Sinatra, sister of kidnap victim; attended Santa Monica City College; arrested about 11 p.m. Friday in La Canada, Los Angeles suburb, by FBI agents; police record shows arrest in Los Angeles on burglary charge Oct. 8, 1959 (no disposition); charged with petty theft in Beverly Hills, Calif., and proceedings suspended when he paid $25.10 in costs.

—Joseph Clyde Amsler, 23, Playa Del Rey; has been professional boxer and abalone diver; born Sept. 24, 1940, Kansas City, Mo.; arrested Saturday shortly after midnight in Culver City apartment house by FBI agents who recovered $168,927 in ransom money; police record shows arrest at Santa Monica in September 1960 on two counts of violating Alcoholic Beverage Control Act; sentenced to fine of $52.50 or 10 days in jail on one count; $15 fine or two days in jail on second count; in April 1962 placed on year's probation and fined $26.25 for trespassing.

Submarine Defense Tab $2.4 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of guarding against a mounting number of submarines has climbed to a record $2.4 billion this year, the Pentagon disclosed Saturday.

The fiscal 1965 military budget, most of it now in the hands of the White House and Federal Budget Bureau is believed to recommend holding next year's outlay for antisubmarine warfare (ASW) to about the same level.

The Johnson administration's drive for economy throughout the federal budget appears to have only a small part, if any, in the apparent decision against an increase for the overall ASW program.

* * * *

SECRETARY of Defense Robert S. McNamara appears to be holding to a position he took last winter. When Congress started work on the current military budget, he said, "I don't think we are suffering for lack of funds in ASW". Rather, the problem is essentially technical, he said.

"Simply stated, it is how to see through water," McNamara said then.

Most Navy research and development experts agree that more money isn't the answer now.

But there are Navy officials who believe that more ships, attack submarines, detection gear and weapons of existing design would increase the overall capability, even without any major new scientific breakthrough.

* * * *

THE PENTAGON'S estimate of $2.4 billion for the fiscal 1964 ASW program is divided this way:

—For forces, weapons, vehicles and equipment the primary use of which is ASW and for development and testing of new items: $2.05 billion.

—For forces and weapons with a mission which is primarily but not predominately ASW: $114 million.

These include such things as antiaircraft defense ships and service and support.

—Additional equipment and installations ashore for development and test work which contribute to ASW but are not related directly to ASW: $224 million.

Housing Act Repeal Move Gaining

By GEORGE ROBESON

Efforts to repeal the Rumford Fair Housing Act have been meeting stiff opposition from leaders of church and state in the past three weeks, but the circulation of petitions in the Southland reportedly is succeeding.

The petitions, if signed by at least 468,259 Californians, would put on the November ballot a measure that would allow sellers or renters of residential property to refuse to sell or rent to any person for any reason. If approved by the voters, the measure would nullify the Fair Housing Act, named for its author, Negro Assemblyman W. Byron Rumford, D-Berkeley, which became law Sept. 20.

* * * *

THE RUMFORD Act prohibits racial or religious discrimination in the sale, rental or lease of 60 to 70 per cent of California's housing, including apartment houses of five or more units and any other housing—including single-family residences—financed by state or federal housing programs or FHA.

Both sides in the dispute claim the same principle—human rights—to support their stand. Each side cites the Fourteenth Amendment and each calls the other's position "discriminatory" and "unconstitutional."

Circulating the anti-Rumford petition are the California Real Estate Association and the California Apartment Owners Association. Locally, the drive is headed by the Long Beach District Board of Realtors and the Long Beach Apartment House Owners Association.

* * * *

ON THE other side, opposing the petitions, are Gov. Brown, several state legislators of both parties, the Episcopal Church, the Southern California Council of Churches, the Catholic Archdiocese of San Francisco and the Northern California Board of Rabbis, as well as others.

The California Real Estate Association says the Rumford Act has removed "a basic American right—the right to manage and dispose of one's own property as he sees fit"—without a vote of the people. As an infringement upon property rights, they say, it is an infringement upon the human rights of property owners.

Further, the CREA says, the law is discriminatory in that it does not apply to all housing uniformly—it applies only to apartment houses and publicly financed housing.

* * * *

BACKERS of the Rumford Act stand on the same ground and say that the law apparently is the only way to end racial discrimination in housing and eliminate Negro ghettos and de facto school segregation. It would permit a man, of whatever race or religion, to live wherever he wants to and can afford to.

The Rumford Act enforces a basic human right, its proponents say. It takes away a basic human right, say its opponents.

Gov. Brown has called the initiative move of the CREA "one of the most dangerous and inflammatory initiative measures I have ever seen," and said it will "pit race against race." He urged citizens not to sign the petitions and said he hopes a bipartisan committee will be formed "to shame these people" into dropping the initiative.

* * * *

STATE Real Estate Commissioner Milton G. Gordon Wednesday told a meeting of the Long Beach Realty Board that the initiative "will hurt the image of the realtor, and the harm it does will be more than we can contemplate." He warned that the campaign "will attract extremists of both sides" and that the realtors won't be able to answer for all of them.

He said the law should be given a trial period of a year or two. But opponents say it is a bad law, and a bad law does not deserve a trial. What it needs, they say, is a vote of the people.

* * * *

GOV. BROWN negotiated a temporary cease-fire in the word battle between the two sides. After a closed-door meeting last week with leaders of the CREA and the Apartment House Association, Brown announced that the two associations "had agreed to review their plans" to get the initiative on the ballot. He said no further statements would be issued by either side for "five or six days" while everybody thinks things over.

That could mean that the battle will start anew Monday. Meanwhile, there has been no halt called to the circulation of petitions. Long Beach Realty Board spokesmen said they are finding the local response about the same as last September when petitions were circulated to keep the Rumford Act from becoming law in the first place. At that time, when the local Apartment House Association was circulating petitions, 11,500 signatures were gathered here.

* * * *

THE LOCAL realty board has not begun counting signatures on returned petitions, and has had no conclusive reports from the apartment-house owners' group or the Harbor Area Home Builders Association, another ally. But the public response has been called "enthusiactic" by Melvin L. Mould, outgoing president of the Long Beach Board of Realtors.

The response has been something less than enthusiastic from any of the state's realtors, however. Several realty boards have placed themselves in opposition to the initiative, and the issue has created a schism in California's realty profession.

The deadline for filing the petition is Feb. 5. The CREA is seeking far more than the required number of signatures because many of the names will be thrown out. In the earlier referendum move, a sufficient number of signatures was gathered — but nearly a third of them were invalidated.

* * * *

THE CREA did not back the referendum move because it would have only postponed the Rumford Act until the people could vote on it. The initiative measure would not only nullify the Rumford Act and the earlier Unruh and Hawkins Acts, but also would prevent the enactment of other similar laws in the future.

In instructions to realtors at a meeting in November, Realty Board President Mould told petition circulators not to discuss the initiative measure on a racial basis with any persons they asked to sign. He said it should be approached as a human-rights issue, instead.

And, added James Odegard, president of the Long Beach Apartment House Owners Association, "This is not the time for philosophizing. If they aren't ready to sign the petition, drop the matter right there."

CAB Orders Frontier Air Return Subsidy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board ordered Frontier Airlines, Denver, to refund $25,730 of the subsidy paid to it in 1961.

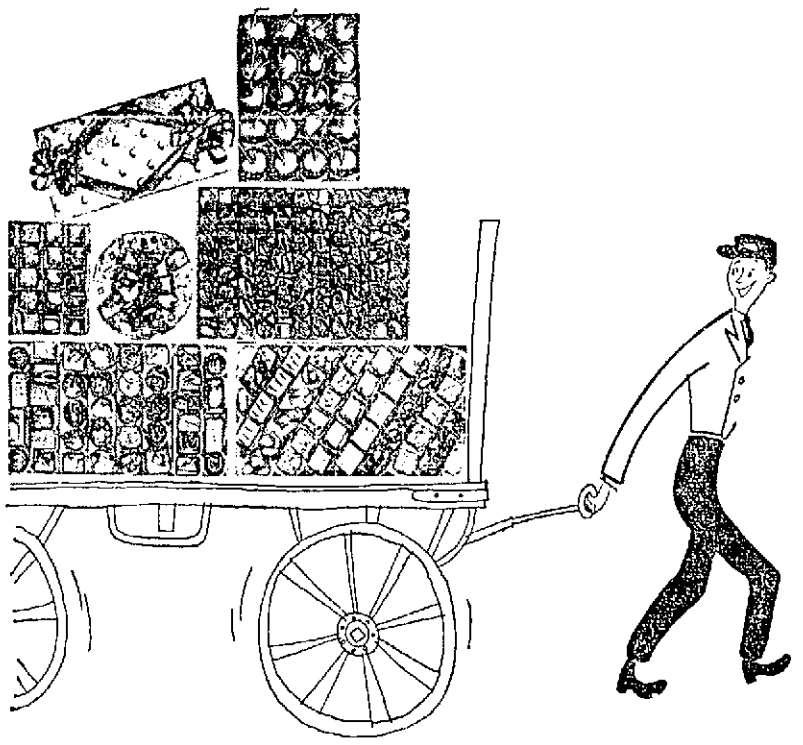

The Board said it found six instances of overstatement of operating expenses, one of understatement of operating revenues, one of overstatement of depreciation expense, and seven other disputed items.

The board dismissed Frontier's petition for a hearing or oral argument.

Orange Planning Chief Ends Long Stint

INSTALLATION SET
James B. Graham will be installed Worshipful Master of Service Lodge 594 F&AM at 8 p.m. Friday at the Masonic Temple, 3610 Locust Ave.

SANTA ANA — Harry E. Bergh will retire this month as the chief fortune teller of the nation's fastest growing county.

The 64-eyar-old Orange County planning director, only the second in the county's history, will step down Dec. 31 after 37 years in public planning and more than 40 years in government service.

Succeeding him to the post will be Forest S. Dickason, assistant planning director and a 10-year veteran with the County Planning Department.

The builder of much of the foundation on which Orange County is constructing its future, Bergh is leaving at a time when the county is in what he terms, its "giant hour."

* * * *

"WE HAVE already seen great changes take place in this county," he said, "but they are minor compared to the changes which are yet to come.

"Orange County faces its great opportunity, a unique opportunity; an opportunity to develop leadership, to develop teamwork between private enterprise and government, an opportunity for total planning."

Undoubtedly, Bergh's most impressive mark as planning director is the county shoreline development plan.

In 1949 he secured state approval—and state financial help—of the county's revised shoreline plan which he had updated. Corona del Mar State Beach Park and Bolsa Chica State Park are among the waterfront parks acquired as a result of his work.

* * * *

BERGH also made numerous studies after joining the county in 1947 which pointed up the possibilities of recreational harbor developments of the tidelands along Seal Beach, Surfside, Bolsa Chica and Huntington Beach.

These studies were the the forerunner of present day development such as the Huntington Harbor project.

Before coming to Orange County, the South Dakota native worked with highway survey parties in Oregon, was a staff member of the Los Angeles County Planning Commission for 17 years and was land planning consultant with the Federal Housing Administration.

* * * *

LATER, as planning director for Palm Springs, he completely overhauled that city's zoning ordinance and land use plan.

In leaving the Orange County post, Bergh warned that the county's greatest danger is "apathy, too many distractions, so much busyness."

Bergh explains that this danger of complacency results "in accepting things as they are, overlooking where we are going and not apprehending what each development step means in the total picture of the future. Imaginative solutions are needed."

* * * *

AS EXAMPLE of shortsightedness, he pointed to "piecemeal zone change attrition in the county which has meant the loss of future industrial areas through pressures for immediate real estate marketing gains."

Of the county's master plan for regional parks, he said, "this is all very well as far as it goes . . . but the next thing is to find a way to put this plan into operation."

Following his retirement, Bergh and his wife Dorothy plan "leisure and then, perhaps, a tour of the southwest by auto."

But work is his main master plan. He intends to launch a new career as a private planning consultant.

Christmas Dinner for 7 Costs $3.20

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—You can buy enough Christmas dinner to serve seven persons here for only $3.20—if you don't mind eating Canadian codfish on the holiday instead of turkey.

The government price-control agency made up the dinner packages for sale in the Mexico City slums. Other items on the menu in addition to codfish include lentils, chickpeas, rice, beans, corn meal, chili, frankfurters, sausage and coffee.

Pioneer Film Producer Dies

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Lewis Weiss, veteran motion picture producer and distributor, died Saturday in Hollywood after a heart attack. He was 74.

Friends said Weiss was one of the early motion picture pioneers, and was credited with first introducing Tarzan as a motion picture character.

Weiss produced many westerns and comedies during the silent film era, produced sound feature films, and at one time produced serials for Columbia Pictures, friends said.

We'll See Earth as Martians Do

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The chances are good that some day the people of earth will see photographs of their home planet as a Martian or man on the moon might see it — an intensely bright gray-blue ball floating majestically in space.

They may be color films taken by Apollo astronauts from the vicinity of the moon, 240,000 miles away. The first such photos may appear in print in the next five years.

Farther in the future may be color television pictures taken from spacecraft on expeditions to the nearer planets. At the moment the National Aeronautics and Space Administration has no approved and financed program to make photographic studies of the earth from deep space.

* * * *

BUT THERE IS NO doubt, according to officials, that such pictures will some day be made. As Dr. Jocelyn R. Gill, NASA astronomer, said, "I cannot imagine a time when we will not look back at our earth as we venture farther and farther into space."

Mercury astronauts have taken color photographs of the earth from altitudes of around 100 miles, and the Tiros weather satellites routinely transmit television pictures from more than 400 miles.

These pictures are grand panoramas, covering thousands of square miles, and they clearly show the curvature of the earth's surface. But they are far too close to capture the entire globe spinning in its space setting.

NASA has in the study stage a plan to put weather satellites in orbit at an altitude of 22,300 miles, where they will appear to hang stationary above fixed points on the earth.

* * * *

THESE SATELLITES, when and if they are launched and assuming development of improved space television cameras, will be able to get almost half of the planet in a single picture.

Apollo astronauts are scheduled to fly around the moon in 1968 on a photographic and observation mission preparatory to landing attempts later. They are expected to come back with pictures of the earth as well as the moon.

These photos, officials believe, will show the planet in the round just as pictures taken from earth show the moon to be a giant ball.

Y Flags Mark Tie Between Long Beach and Venezuela

Fraternal ties between the Y's Men's Clubs of Venezuela and the Y.M.C.A. of Long Beach were emphasized in the presentation of two sets of flags to Donald Marks, representative of the International Committee of the Y.M.C.A. to Venezuela, by Scott Wartenberg at a ceremony at the Armed Services Y.M.C.A.

One set of flags will be presented by Marks in the name of the Y.M.C.A. of Long Beach to the Y's Men's Club in Caracas, and the other will be for a new club to be formed at Maracaibo, Venezuela. Flags of 34 countries are in each set.

Marks and his family are on their way from Sault Ste Marie, Canada, to Venezuela for a five-and-a-half year assignment as representatives of the YMCAs of Canada and the United States. He will assist in training Venezuelan nationals to be YMCA secretaries and leaders. He is one of 47 such technical advisors in youth program loaned by the YMCAs of these two countries to 34 nations.

The Long Beach Y's Men's Club special international projects is the supplying of the stand and flags for Y's Men's Clubs throughout the world.

More Phones Ring in State

NEW YORK (AP)—California, which has more telephones outside the Bell System than any other state, gained nearly three times more non-Bell phones this year than any other state.

The U. S. Independent Telephone Association, trade group of the non-Bell companies, estimated the California increase at 140,175 phones to over 1.8 million.

The only states to gain 40,000 or more were Texas (47,980), Illinois (46,800) and Florida (40,200).

Counting all telephones California trailed New York 9.4 million to 8.8 million at the end of 1962.

County Still Needs 2,055 Storm Drains

By P-T Los Angeles Bureau

To meet all of its flood control needs, Los Angeles County still must build 2,055 storm drains at an estimated cost of $1.2 billion, the Board of Supervisors will be told Tuesday.

A single undertaking to meet all 2,055 projects would take about 20 years, but is not practical, according to the County Flood Control District.

Even a program limited to all "critical or urgently needed" drains is impractical, because it would cost about $555 million and take about 12 years, the district report says.

M. E. Salsbury, chief engineer of the County Flood Control District, said a "substantial number" of the critical projects, however, could be built over a seven-year period at a cost of about $200 million.

Financing a program of this size would require a tax of about 8 cents per $100 of assessed valuation, Salsbury said. This is based on 30-year bonds at 4 per cent interest.

* * * *

THIS WOULD BE similar to the two prior storm drain programs of the district. County voters in 1952 approved a $179 million bond issue, and in 1958 voted $225 million in bonds to build storm drains. The former program has been completed and the latter is nearing completion, Salsbury said.

The current report, ordered by the Board of Supervisors last May, was prepared in cooperation with officials of 70 cities of the county and with the county engineer's office.

Salsbury said the two big programs present problems because they are spread out over so long a period that it is difficult to estimate costs.

Supervisors are expected to forward copies of the report to the Los Angeles County Division, League of California Cities, asking the league for its comments.

Copies also will be sent to all cities in the county.

Thresher Fund at $23,545

PORTSMOUTH, N.H. (UPI)—A total of $23,545 has been donated to a fund for the wives and children of the men lost aboard the nuclear submarine Thresher.

Most of the contributions to the fund, which began last summer, have come from the Portsmouth Naval Shipyard where the sub was built.

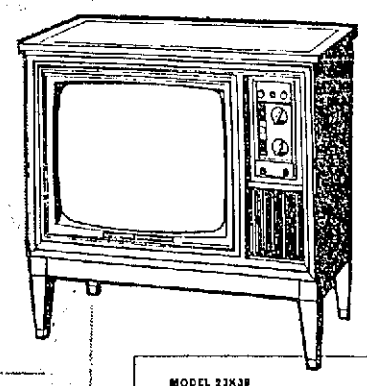

The Thresher was engaged in post-overhaul deep diving tests when it went to the bottom of the Atlantic off the coast of Massachusetts last April 10 with 129 men aboard.

Air Station's Future Up for Vote Tuesday

By WILLIAM JONES

Last-minute verbal shooting erupted Saturday on the weekend eve of the hottest election in the history of the city of Los Alamitos.

Opposing factions broke off taking potshots at each other only long enough to forecast a record turnout of voters for the municipal election Tuesday.

Simply, the issue is whether a large apartment development, a condominium, is to be constructed near Los Alamitos Naval Air Station.

* * * *

NOT ON THE ballot, but the more significant question is the future of the multimillion-dollar Naval Reserve base, largest in the nation, says the Navy.

It contends that noise and the crash hazard would kindle the temper of the apartment dwellers to the point where they would seek to shut up or shut down the air station.

For this special election, another first in city records, three rather than the usual nine precincts have been established.

* * * *

THE PRECINCT sites, with the precincts they displace listed, are as follows: Precinct 1 (1, 2 and 7), Fire Station, 11062 Los Alamitos Blvd.; Precinct 2 (3, 4 and 5), Chase residence, 11161 Essex Drive, and Precinct 3 (6, 8 and 9), McClellan residence, 12101 Pine St.

In last-minute developments Saturday:

William Brown of the Los Alamitos Committee For Fair Zoning charged that a $590,000 damage suit filed Friday against the city by the land owner of the proposed development "is a tactic to intimidate citizens to vote yes."

The suit by Henry Van Ruiten, owner of the 26-acre Meadow View Dairy, claims the referendum ballot is illegal, unconstitutional and in excess of the city's police powers.

* * * *

PUBLIC Relations Consultant Robert Geier, who has been retained by Van Ruiten in the election campaign, fired back that "Brown is bluffing himself . . . our lawyers looked into the matter, prepared the suit and find a definite basis for it."

Geier said that if Van Ruiten is not allowed to develop the apartments it would be a denial of his property rights without just compensation.

Capt. W. P. Tanner, commander of the Naval Air Station, said the Navy opposes the development "because it would be too close for safety and comfortable living."

"We want to avoid," he said, "development of a very undesirable situation."

* * * *

LOS ALAMITOS voters on Tuesday actually will vote on two separate ordinances.

The first question asks whether Los Alamitos should creat a "Planned Development Zone" for multistory apartment dwellings, condominiums.

The second asks whether Van Ruiten's Meadow View Farms should be rezoned from general agricultural to Planned Development.

Joseph H. Hyde, chairman of the Fair Zoning Committee, argued that condominiums would inflate land prices to the deteriment of schools and industry; result in higher taxes; create heavier loads on schools, and increase the cost of city services.

* * * *

VAN RUITEN replied that "Planned Development is a healthy type of growth, is economically desirable, and in the minds of those who have made a study of this, would be of advantage to our city."

He claimed opposition to the entire idea of condominiums is a "thinly-veiled attempt not to prohibit Planned Development, but to prohibit" just one such development, his own.

Arguing on the second question, Hyde stressed safety and the noise nuisance.

"This condominium would be located within 365 yards of the main jet approach of the Los Alamitos Naval Air Station and 65 yards of the main taxiway," he said.

* * * *

"IF A malfunction occurs during a landing approach and the plane goes out of control, it would crash into the proposed condominiums, causing deaths and injuries to families occupying them, plus extensive property destruction.

"The only sound (noise) survey taken (at the base) showed that when jets with afterburners go into operation at the Air Station in about two years, residents of the proposed condminiums could be expected to complain bitterly and start organized efforts to have the Air Station removed."

If the air station were to be removed, Hyde added, "it would be an economic disaster for this city."

* * * *

VAN RUITEN countercharged that the Navy "has not paid any compensation for the restriction in use of the property which it claims is necessary to accommodate these problems. However, it has asserted that the city should restrict such use by zoning.

"It is a basic constitutional guarantee of this country that one man cannot throw stones into the back yard of his neighbor and then get his city to tell his neighbor to stay out of his back yard if he does not want to be hurt . . . "

Both sides in the campaign have cast different meaning on a recent court case in which it was held that Orange County could not rezone property to preserve a flight corridor for El Toro Marine Corps Air Station without payment to the landowner.

Van Ruiten said, "If Los Alamitos does the same thing, it is very likely that it also will be forced to pay a substantial amount of compensation.

* * * *

HYDE contended there is no similarity between the El Toro and Los Alamitos cases.

"At El Toro, residential zoning was in force and tract plans approved. The landowner had been given assurance that his houses could go up—and then came the change, the rezoning.

"Here in Los Alamitos, the Meadow View Farm is now agricultural and no tract plans approved.

"By defeating the request for condominiums, the owner of Meadow View will continue to have the right to operate his dairy."

Methodist Bishop Hurt in Car Crash

BERKELEY (UPI)—Donald H. Tippett, resident bishop of the Methodist Church in Northern California and Nevada, suffered a broken collar bone in an auto accident in Germany this week, it was learned here Saturday.

A spokesman for the Methodist Church in San Francisco reported Bishop Tippett would be hospitalized for about one week in Augsburg, Germany, before continuing his tour of Europe, the Middle East and Northern Africa.

Pacific 'Big Lift' of 15,000 Troops to Korea Postponed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government has decided to postpone the airlift of a 15,000-man Army infantry division to Korea, apparently for economy and diplomatic reasons.

The Associated Press learned Saturday that the second big overseas lift exercise, recommended for next March, will not be staged before summer or fall—if then.

Confirming this, the Defense Department said, "A 'big lift' type strategic mobility exercise to the Pacific Command will not be held during the 1964 fiscal year." That year ends next June 30.

* * * *

THE PENTAGON did not say whether the transpacific lift would be attempted in the 1965 fiscal year—or whether budgetary or other considerations might scratch both the Korea operation and one to the Middle East next year.

Although it has not been acknowledged publicly, it is known that the Joint Chiefs of Staff recommended that the 4th Infantry Division, stationed at Ft. Lewis, Wash., be flown in Air Force transport planes to the Far East in March.

The tentative plan was to send the division's troops to Korea by air while moving heavy stockpile equipment from Okinawa and the Philippines to Korea by ship.

Like the spectacular "Big Lift" of the 2nd Armored Division from Ft. Hood, Tex., to West Germany in late October, the operation across the Pacific would include a compusite strike force of jet fighters, reconnaissance planes and air transports.

* * * *

THE DEFENSE Department gave no reason for the postponement but informed sources hinted strongly that President Johnson's economy drive was a major factor. The airlift to Europe cost about $20 million and the projected operation to Korea was expected to be more expensive.

In addition, some U.S. officials were reported concerned that such a movement might rekindle fears about possible U.S. troop withdrawals from overseas.

The Germans became greatly worried about this after the first big lift and the United States had to rush some of its top leaders to reassure the Bonn government.

Fire Drives Trio Overside; Boat Burns, Founders

Three persons escaped unhurt Saturday when a 40-foot cabin cruiser burned and sank six miles off White Point, the Coast Guard reported.

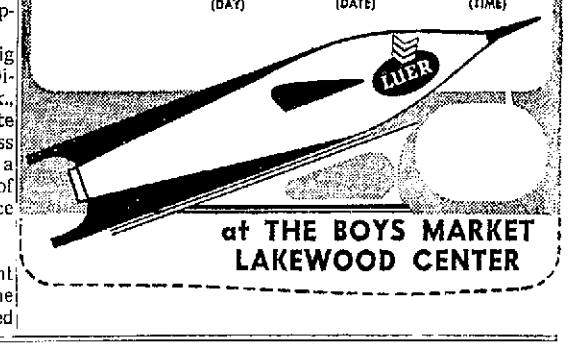

Edson R. Stroll, 34, of Los Angeles, owner of the $18,000 boat Playpen, said the fire started in an alcohol stove and quickly flared out of control.

Stroll and the other occupants, Joan M. Patrick, 24, and Allen Seldon, 34, both of Los Angeles, escaped on a rubber raft and were picked up by a passing boat which radioed the Coast Guard.

A cutter succeeded in extinguishing the fire but the cruiser was so badly damaged that it sank before it could be pumped out, the Coast Guard said.

America Appears as Many Countries to Political Editor of Korean Paper

By ROBERT HEARD

The political editor of Korea's second largest newspaper thought he had a pretty good idea what America was like before he came here three months ago. Now he's not so sure.

"I have a very confused picture of life in your pluralistic society," said Doug-bok Lee, 26, of The Hankook Ilbo in Seoul. "Foreigners think of America as one country, with one policy, but it seems to me America is several countries."

Lee is one of 12 journalists from 11 nations who were invited by the U.S. State Department to participate in its 4½-month Foreign Journalist Project. He has toured most of the states, taken a seminar at Indiana University and will be a staff writer for The Independent, Press-Telegram until Dec. 27.

A graduate of Seoul National University and speaks fluent English after years of listening to the Armed Forces radio network.

* * * *

"YOUR FEDERAL government in some ways appears to be a shaky one on top of your 50 states," Lee said. "Your political parties are not disciplined, and they get their leadership from the bottom up instead of from the top down as in Korea."

He concedes this makes for more political independence for the individual, but he thinks it bolsters those who champion states rights over federal power. This leads to something akin to political anarchy, he believes.

To support his case, he cited the assassination of Kennedy. As part of his cross-country tour, Lee visited Dallas the first two days of this month.

"I talked to people in the hotels and I went to the assassination site," he said. "There is an atmosphere, a mood in Dallas that leads up to the motive, the cause of the assassination. I felt this strongly.

DOUG-BOK LEE

"It also led to the killing of Oswald, and it is Oswald's murder that I find totally incomprehensible."

The U.S. was isolationist until World War II, Lee says. After that, internationalism and liberalism took over. "But now there is a tide running against this," and it is led by Sen. Goldwater, Lee thinks.

On the subject of American politics, one thing drew Lee's unstinting praise: the transition of power to President Johnson and the rallying behind the new leader by both parties. "This was quite impressive to me," he said.

After observing a session of Long Beach's City Council, Lee fondly pointed to the similarities between its conduct of business and that of its counterpart in Seoul before the military coup in 1960. The only major difference was Seoul's lack of a city manager.

* * * *

THERE ARE 11 political parties in Korea, Lee said. But two of them control more than 70 percent of the legislature. None of the other parties is Communist or "socialist-inclined," he said, because the Korean Constitution prohibits such parties. Each party must set forth in its platform its support of "liberalism and competitive economy," he said.

Election laws are extremely strict in Korea, Lee said. For example, a candidate for political office cannot visit a voter's house (for fear the voter will be intimidated or bribed). But, within this stringent code, politicans practice the maximum amount of mud-slinging permissible, he said. They stay right "on the fringe" of the law, Lee said.

Lee admires much about American civilization, but he views us as too materialistic. Our preoccupation with "things" is intensified by television commercials, which are "very dangerous" and "in bad taste," he said.

* * * *

LEE VISITED Indian reservations in New Mexico en route to Long Beach When asked if he noticed many racial similarities between the American Indian and Koreans, and other Orientals (on the theory, accepted by many scholars, that American Indians came from Asia via Bering Strait thousands of years ago), he replied with the Korean theory of racial origin: Koreans are Aryans who emigrated eastward from central Asia at the same time the European Aryans emigrated westward from central Asia.

"Our people believe our ancestors crossed Siberia until they came to the Pacific Ocean," he said. "Then they moved south toward a more temperate climate. When they settled in Korea, they gave it its original name: Chosun, which means 'Land of the Morning Calm.'

"Perhaps some of them did move north and cross the Bering Strait after they first struck the Pacific."

Air Reserve Major Plans to Retire

Major Jack L. Tennant, director of personnel for the 2478th Air Force Reserve Sector at Long Beach Municipal Airport, will retire this month after 26 years of active military service.

He is a veteran of World War II and Korea and holds many awards and decorations.

During World War II, Major Tennant was a B-24 Liberator pilot and was shot down over Austria in 1943. He was a prisoner for the remainder of the war in Europe.

He plans to reside in Westminster with his wife, Marilyn, and their two daughters.

JUBILEE OF FREEDOM

New Name for L.B. Rose Float

Long Beach's float in the Tournament of Roses Parade has been given a new name—Jubilee of Freedom.

The title originally selected—The Gem of the Ocean—just didn't quite fit, members of the City Council's Public Relations Committee have agreed.

For one thing, there is nothing on the float depicting the ocean. Committee members also noted that the new name will conform more closely with the general theme of the tournament, Symbols of Freedom.

Dominated by a huge diamond of flowers, the float will remind parade watchers of Long Beach's 75th anniversary.

THE WEEK IN REVIEW

LBJ Pushes His 'Budgetary Stringency'

By HARRY SHARPE
United Press International

President Johnson declared war on unnecessary federal spending last week, causing waves of anguish among congressmen of both parties and fear in some defense communities.

He coined a new phrase —budgetary stringency — and told cabinet officials and heads of all government agencies that henceforth it must be their credo.

* * * *

SPECIFICALLY, he ordered them to cut expenses in the fiscal 1964-65 budget which must be completed next week. They must do this, he said, by reducing programs not of the highest urgency and getting rid of deadwood personnel.

Only hours later Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara announced the closing over the next 3½ years of 33 military installations in 14 states and three unnamed foreign countries — a net cut of 7,800 in jobs and a saving of $106 million a year.

There will be further reductions, including some in the nation's 11 naval shipyards. But he promised that all civilians losing jobs will be offered new ones and he estimated that 80 percent would stay on the payroll. Retraining also will be offered.

* * * *

MOTIVATING the President was the problem of keeping the new budget at the lowest possible level in the face of $3 billion of "built-in" increases voted by Congress or to meet other commitments. He also desperately wants to win support of economy-minded congressmen for the late President Kennedy's $11.1 billion pump-priming tax cut bill which comes up in the Senate in January.

White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said the President was keenly aware that non-government unemployment may rise as some federal projects are cut off. But he said Johnson had emphasized that there would be no skimping on imperative national needs. Salinger added that any cutback in government payrolls could be achieved through normal attrition.

Members of Congress, whose bailiwicks will be hurt, barraged the White House with pained protests, even though many had been demanding just such economy moves. Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N. Y., introduced a bill to block any shutdown in distressed areas. There also was talk of Senate and House Armed Services Committee investigations.

KEATING

But McNamara refused to give ground. He said the decisions would not be reversed—that he had been given economy instructions by both Kennedy and Johnson. He previously had ordered a 25,000-man cut in defense personnel. He said 70,000 jobs had been eliminated and $442 million saved since he started the surplus-base cutback program in 1961.

* * * *

THE PRESIDENT told defense and cabinet officials he wanted "full value for every dollar spent." But he also said that "not for one moment" would the nation's military strength be weakened. He also called in bi-partisan congressional leaders to explain his drive and seek their cooperation.

Edwin Neilan, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, met with Johnson, praised his campaign, endorsed the tax-cut bill, then urged local businessmen to support rather than protest the economy closing of federal installations. He said he would urge business to try and provide jobs for men and women displaced and even move in new industries.

The tax-writing Senate Finance Committee finally completed hearings on the House-approved tax bill and began considering amendments. The Senate will take it up after the President submits his budget. Any cuts would be retroactive to Jan. 1.

* * * *

LIKE PRESIDENT Kennedy, Johnson sees it as a potent anti-recession weapon. He has given it top priority with civil rights legislation when Congress meets for its second session Jan. 6. The lawmakers are expected to take a holiday recess starting Dec. 20 or 21st.

The President told Democratic leaders to impress upon the House and Senate that civil rights "cannot be ignored for another 100 years or even 100 days." On still another legislative front, he will meet with farm organization leaders next week to discuss major farm problems, including new wheat and cotton bills to maintain farm income.

On the foreign policy front, the President told top-ranking defense officials the U. S. must continue "with all our energy" to combat communism in South Viet Nam and in the Caribbean.

* * * *

HE ASKED his foreign policy advisers to make a special review of policy toward Fidel Castro's Communist-dominated Cuba and report whether more economic sanctions are advisable, how to curb Castro arms exports to Latin American countries, and what steps should be taken to support anti-Castro groups.

Cuban exiles in Miami told the Organization of American States (OAS) that Soviet submarines and fishing trawlers were smuggling Cuban arms to pro-Castro rebels in Latin America. OAS delegates went to Caracas, Venezuela, to investigate charges of aggression against Castro and to inspect seized caches of Cuban weapons.

At St. Paul, Minn., Secretary of State Dean Rusk warned in a speech that neither the Soviet Union nor Red China have abandoned their aims of world revolution. He cautioned against believing the ideological split between Moscow and Peking would lead to a complete break.

* * * *

RUSK THEN flew to Paris for six days of talks that will set the Johnson tone for the NATO defense alliance in the immediate post-Kennedy era. The President met at the White House with top-ranking members of the diplomatic corps for a "get-acquainted" policy views.

The Warren Commission investigating the assassination of President Kennedy received a thick report on the tragedy from the FBI and also hired former U. S. Solicitor General J. Lee Rankin as its general counsel. The report was said to establish that Lee Harvey Oswald, self-styled Lenin-Marxist, alone and unaided fired the shots that killed the President.

Senate and House continued eulogizing the late chief executive and prepared to pass a bill requested by President Johnson for the minting of a 50-cent piece bearing Mr. Kennedy's likeness.

Mrs. Kennedy let it be known that she plans to observe a one-year period of mourning during which she will have no public engagements. There had been reports that she would campaign for President Johnson next year.

* * * *

SHE AND her two children will spend the Christmas holidays in Palm Beach, Fla., with the Kennedy family and upon their return move into a 12-room colonial-style home in Georgetown near where she and Mr. Kennedy once lived. Mrs. Kennedy bought the house. The asking price was $190,000.

Meantime, members of Congress worried over the present presidential succession law, introduced various measures to close the gap when a vice president succeeds to the presidency through assassination or other emergency. Hearings will start in January.

The men who now guard Johnson's life will face a major test Tuesday when the President goes to New York to address the United Nations.

On the political front some Northern Republicans were saying they believed Johnson's accession to the White House severely had weakened Republican Sen. Barry Goldwater's presidential chances. They noted that Johnson is from the South where Goldwater's chief strength lies.

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower denied published reports that he had asked former Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, Mass., now U. S. Ambassador to strife-torn South Viet Nam, to run for the GOP nomination. Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon went to Gettysburg to talk to Eisenhower after the reports were published. Lodge wrote from Saigon that he was not a candidate, but he didn't foreclose a draft movement.

Dean Vivian Looks Back on Long Life as Prospector, Oil Scout, Chemist, Teacher

By ROBERT WILCOX

When Robert Evans Vivian started teaching in Bakersfield in 1918, the town had 90 saloons, seven houses of prostitution and a teacher got 25 percent more pay just for being there.

When he'd starred as a 140-pound college end, the forward pass had just been invented and the football suit looked like a golfing outfit with a turtleneck collar.

He'd spent 50 years as a prospector, inventor, oil scout, chemist, teacher, college dean.

But now it was 1957, he was 65 and retiring after 18 notable years as dean of the USC College of Engineering. It was time to spend his twilight working years in relative ease.

* * * *

VIVIAN fingered five attractive offers to "fade away" like an old engineer should. Typically, he picked the sixth—a grueling 12-hour-a-day task of training Long Beach State College's first bright-eyed contingent of 130 engineers. "At least I won't have to go over somebody else's mistakes, he rationalized.

Vivian moved his three-man faculty into temporary classrooms. Immediately he began harrassing "those people on the hill" (the administration) for more manpower, more space.

Today, six years later, the inexhaustible septugenarian has 950 students, a division faculty of 25. More than 100 prestigious employers come hat-in-hand each year to bid for his products.

* * * *

NEXT YEAR, Vivian will inaugurate the second complete engineering master's degree program in the state college system. It will be rivaled in the Los Angeles area only at USC and UCLA.

Dr. Carl W. McIntosh, LBSC president and "on-the-hill" commander, recently marked the point in time of Vivian's arrival:

"The establishment of our engineering programs may some day be looked back upon as the turning point where the state colleges stopped being teacher-training schools and became colleges in the truest sense of the word."

Vivian would rather look forward. He expects to double his student ranks in five years.

* * * *

THROUGH the years since 1912 when Vivian took his first engineering job as a "blueprint boy" ("$40 a month all in gold and silver") he's seen engineering grow out of its roughneck days into a full-fledged profession.

They say you can tell today's aspiring engineer by the number of books under his arm. At college, he's the upper crust. He works hardest (132 units), gets better starting pay ($620 a month). Firms which once sneered at book learning now beg him to come to work, often pay him while he studies.

He's an expert in one of the world's fastest-moving fields. Vivian sometimes glances guiltily across the cluttered office he commands as dean of the college's Division of Engineering. "See that pile of pamphlets over there," he laments. "I should be reading those right now if I expect to keep up."

* * * *

THE OFFICE walls display some of the scores of professional awards he's won. Glittering from a table are samples of a lifetime mineral collection that once earned him his students' nickname of "The Old Prospector."

Vivian has a simple educational creed. "I don't think you can teach anything unless you've had practical experience," he says. "You must know what you're talking about."

How much experience can one man get in a single lifetime? Born in Illinois, he went to work at 19 when he brought his ailing Methodist preacher father to California for his health.

He engineered for gas at the Signal Hill oil field, swung into action at midnight as a trouble shooter for a telephone company, sought oil in Central California as a wildcat scout, prospected for gold in the Mother Lode country.

* * * *

HE WORKED full time as a janitor and window washer while he Phi Beta Kappaed his way thorugh USC in chemistry.

He briefly considered a legal career before heading north to Bakersfield High School to teach. His sweetheart, Belle, came out from Illinois to marry him in 1919.

Vivian worked a night shift as a sheriff's office chemist, in 10 years saved enough to go to Columbia for his Ph.D. There he went back on two shifts again when an associate embezzled his funds.

He left Columbia in 1928 and worked nine years for a chemical company before taking a 50 percent pay cut to come to USC in 1942.

* * * *

THERE HE became a living legend. Students dubbed him the "dynamite dean" in reference to his post-World War II excursions to inspect European explosives plants. He gave more than 7,000 engineering degrees. He startled his faculty by letting the students grade the professors.

In his classes, he was too kindly to be considered a "tough" grader. He taught both his sons but this was accidental and a little embarrassing. "I wouldn't want anyone to think I influenced them into becoming engineers," he says.

Vivan joined five engineering societies, was listed in "American Men of Science" and three "Who's Who's" — America, engineering and education.

Hungary Ready for U.S. Parley

WASHINGTON (AP) — Communist Hungary told the United States Saturday it is ready to start discussions on all issues pending between the two countries, including the future of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty.

The Hungarian offer may mark a new phase in the on-again off-again negotiations with the regime of Premier Janos Kadar. It was submitted by Peter Mod, Hungary's deputy foreign minister, in a 35-minute conference with Undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman.

State Department officials cautiously termed the meeting a continuation of talks Mod had three weeks ago with President Johnson and Harriman while the Hungarian was in Washington representing his country at President Kennedy's funeral. Harriman and his guest, officials said, discussed "general problems."

Diplomatic sources strongly indicated, however, that Mod's visit may indicate a new Hungarian approach to solve differences between the two countries. Relations with Hungary have been especially strained since the crushing of the Hungarian revolution in 1956.

Township May Get Mrs. Kennedy Name

SOUTH HACKENSACK, N. J. (AP) — Mayor Frank C. Zindle has written to the township committee urging it to change this community's name to Jacqueline Township, in honor of Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy.

Referring to the assassination of President Kennedy, Zindle said that the name change "would honor the magnificent, noble and stately manner in which Mrs. Kennedy conducted herself during this grief-stricken and unbelievable period."

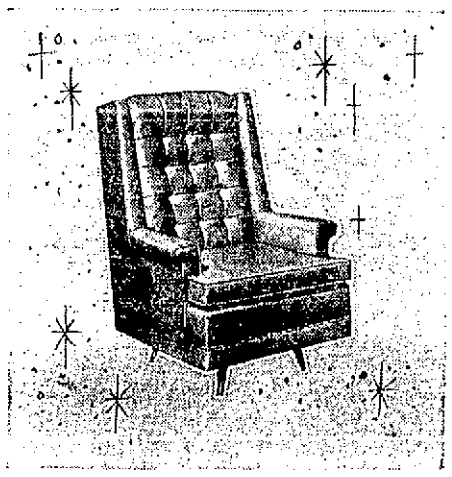

If the township committee approves the proposal, it would be placed before the voters in the election next November.

Fewer Cowboys Today, but Boot Sales Are Booming

FORT WORTH (UPI)—The cowboy is disappearing, but the boot lingers on. More cowboy boots are being worn today than ever before in history by everyone from newsboys to the President of the United States.

That suits John Justin just fine. He is the world's largest producer of custom-grade cowboy boots.

"A guy doesn't have to be a cowboy to like boots. Once you wear them . . . they are habit forming," he said.

"I haven't worn a pair of shoes for two years."

Justin, a former mayor of Fort Worth, is a typical corporation executive, down to his kangaroo-hide boots. (Remember the kangaroo "Banker Style" shoes?)

Below his second story office, 250 employes were busy combining modern automative techniques with hand craftsmanship to produce 250,000 pairs of boots a year.

A sweet smell of leather, calf, goat, alligator, water buffalo, ostrich and kangaroo skin perfumed the air.

"We sell boots from around $30 a pair up to $250 for the real fancy jobs with lots of hand tooling and exotic leathers," Justin said.

The small orange brick plant on the edge of downtown Fort Worth also makes Wellingtons, Jodphurs and "square dance shoes."

This shoe is a small production loafer style shoe on a cowboy boot last, heel and sole.

"Las Vegas gamblers love them. They can stand for hours," he said.

Working boots remain the biggest part of the business, but the Hollywood cowboy is a good customer.

"My firm has supplied most of Hollywood's cowboy stars with their boots from Tom Mix on," he said.

President Johnson has also been known to wear boots on his ranch. (12½ B, made to measure.)

"New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller wears a 9½D," Justin said.

Justin fitted Rockefeller along with the other state governors in 1960, at the request of then Texas Gov. Price Daniel.

"Ross Barnett of Mississippi was the hardest to fit," Justin remembered.

Justin was asked how long the boots would last. He shrugged his shoulders and smiled.

"We have a Fort Worth electrician who can run through a pair in a week. He is so hard on boots, we use him as the company tester."

Most customers, Justin said, wear their boots a considerably longer time. Some customers become so attached to a favorite pair that they keep sending them back to the factory for repairs. About 200 pairs, looking as if they had walked across the country, were lined up for fixing.

"Lots of these fellows can afford new ones, but they keep sending back their favorites. We have to charge them almost $20 for repairing them. By sending $10 more they could buy a new pair. We tell them that and they say, 'No. I like these.'"

The repairing takes about as long as the original manufacure. Five weeks is par for a new pair. Up to two weeks is spent on the last, which shapes the leather to the foot.

Justin is big and rugged with silver hair combed straight back, friendly blue eyes and could pass for a cowboy star. He has won prizes for his trail rides.

He quit as mayor of Fort Worth "because my business needed me."

Justin has been in charge of the 84-year-old firm founded by his grandfather, H. J. Justin, since 1949.

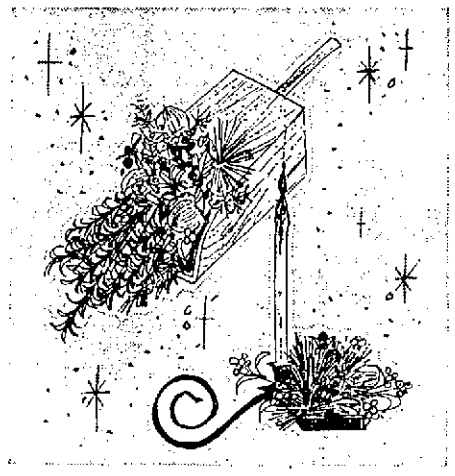

His father, whom he succeeded, warned him boots were a "dying business."

"Sales are up 71 per cent over 1949," Justin chuckled.

KEEPS MEN WORKING

Canadians Building House Given Bonus

OTTAWA (AP)—Canadians who build a house this winter will get a $500 bonus.

This is part of a government plan to keep men working in the worst season of the year.

Applications for 25,000 dwelling units have been received under the plan so far, and officials say this means jobs for 75,000 construction workers plus 90,000 in associated industries.

The bonus is paid to the first owner of a house.

Government forecasters seem confidnt this and other winter work incentives will curb the seasonal onslaught of unemployment.

N.D. Hikes Tuition Rate

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI)—University of Notre Dame tuition on the undergraduate level will be raised $50 per semester, effective next September.

Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, C. S. C., university president, said the rise would up undergraduate tuition to $1,400 per year. Tuition for graduate students and law students will remain unchanged at $1,000 per year, he said.

State Body Meets to Decide on Texts for Revamped Math Study

PASADENA (AP) — The State Curriculum Commission will meet here this week to iron out details of an unprecedented textbook proposal designed to revamp mathematics instruction in California schools.

The commission has recommended the use of three textbooks for seventh and eighth-grade mathematics courses. There would be a different book for fast, average and slow learners.

The 11-member commission, meeting Tuesday and Wednesday, will also discuss a proposal for two basic textbooks for fourth-grade history and geography courses. Previously, only one basic textbook was used. The final decision will be made by the State Board of Education. The board will conduct public hearings Jan. 9-10 before ruling on the commission's recommendations.

Bully for Quintin!

L.A. Recruits Police in Hawaii

HONOLULU (UPI) — The City of Los Angeles is opening a campaign to recruit policemen in Hawaii — and as an inducement is offering Honolulu applicants $109 per month more than they could earn with the Honolulu Police Department.

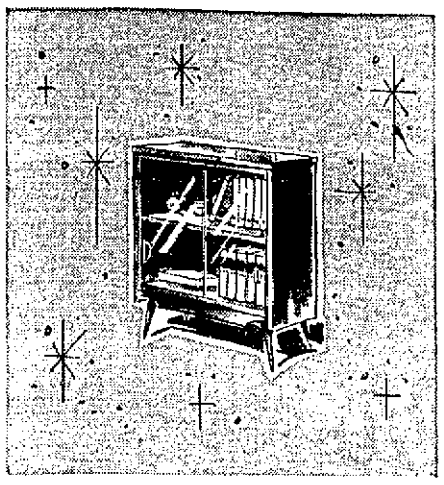

Tests will be given to the Hawaii applicants on Jan. 18. If enough men apply and receive passing grade, a team of Los Angeles examiners will be sent here to give the oral tests.

Starting pay for the Los Angeles rookies is $575. Honolulu pays its rookie policemen $466 a month.

BEACH Combing

With MALCOLM EPLEY

SHARP eavesdropping ears provide a plus for the Christmas shopper. Some overhearings, down Pine Ave. on a Friday afternoon, follow.

One young fellow to another: "I spent all my money on myself. I guess she'll have to take me for Christmas."

One sailor to another, just after breaking through a bevy of perfume-scented gals at a crowded corner: "For a minute I could hardly get my breath."

Haberdashery salesman to young customer: "Maybe that's enough. It's better not to get overloaded and keep your credit good."

Young gal to another: "He's awful to buy for. I won't say he has everything, though."

Feminine bank teller to male customer: "Oh, I wouldn't shortchange you—not right before Christmas."

Woman at Fifth and Pine: "Oh, oh. I forgot to get my parking ticket violated."

SHOPPERS, particularly the gals, seem to me to look a little sharper than usual this season. Could it be that a recent survey showing how few women dress up for shopping is having some effect?

Dorothy Sutherland of Lakewood writes that she took the survey to heart, has been dolling up a little more, and feels a lot better for it. But she sends along an addendum pointing out that when she "puts on the dog" she never sees anybody she knows. But let her dash out for a quick purchase, hair in rolls and clad in an old housedress, and the street teems with acquaintances.

That figures.

THIS is an appropriate time for voicing appreciation and a caller thinks it ought to be done for the Long Beach Public Library's question-answering service.

I can attest personally to the resourcefulness and willingness of the library people. For my own edification, or that of readers who have put some toughies to me, I've called over there many a time and have always received the finest treatment, even when my question entailed a lot of deep digging.

And I've sent some roughies over there. Fore example, the library staffers worked hard and long for me once to find out the significance of the words, "Shall I Wasting?" in the Whippenpoof song. And once they did a full-scale research for me on the background of the Long Beach street name, Ximeno.

Sure, I welcome the chance to thank the library people. They're ready and willing.

OUR obituary editor got an odd call from a prominent Southern California college the other day. The college gave us a name and wanted to know if that citizen had died here recently.

The editor checked his records and reported that yes, the man had died.

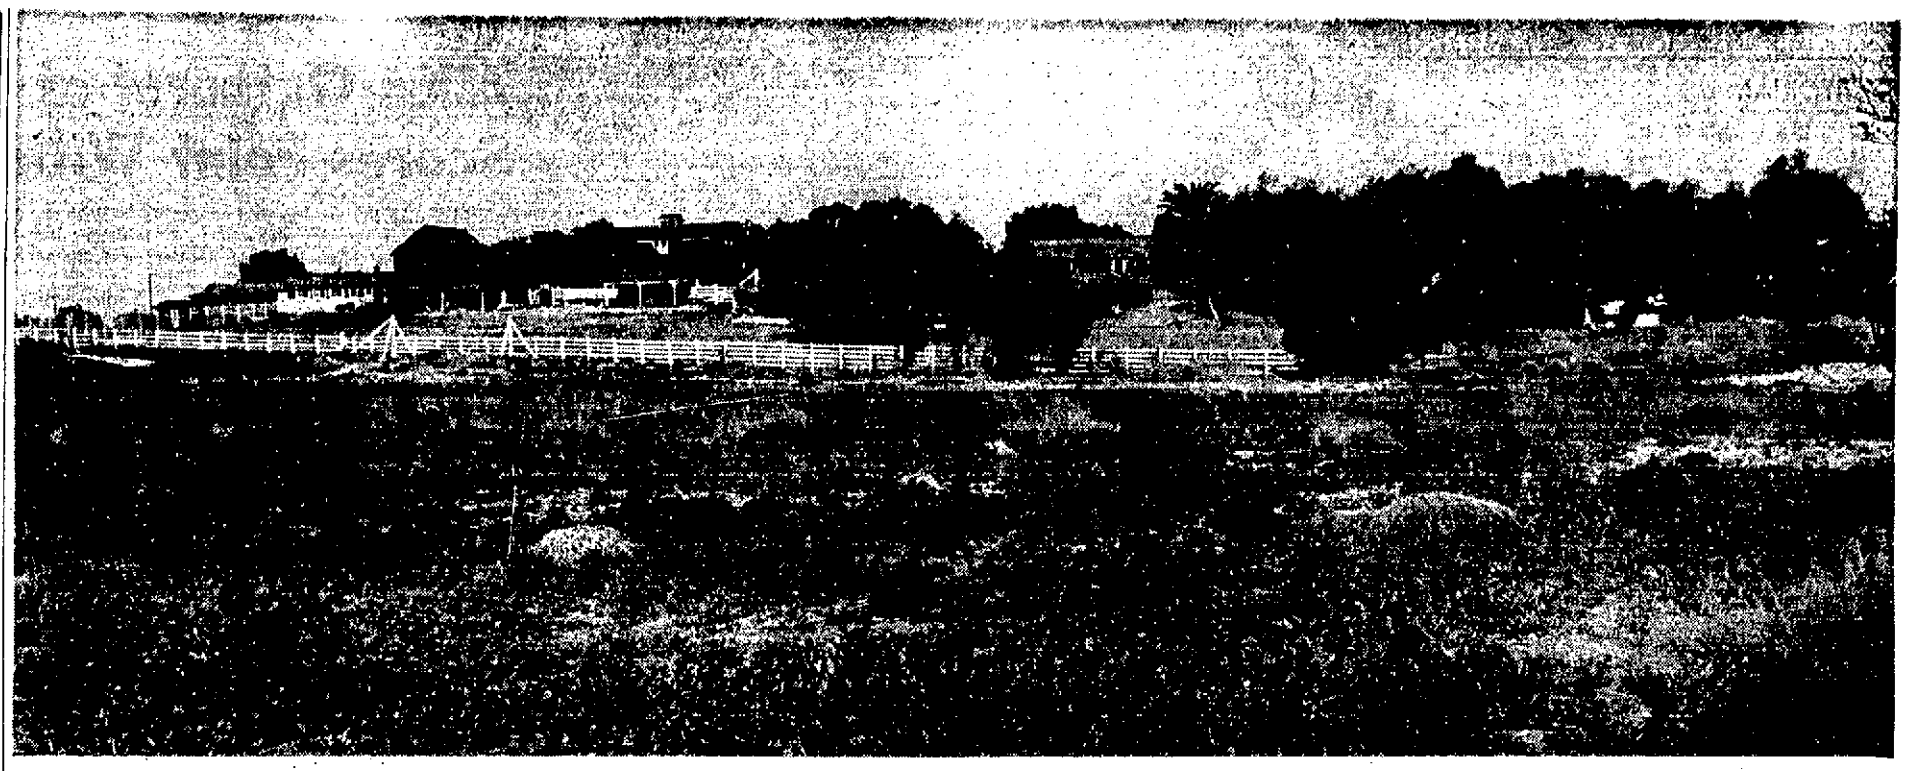

The college caller was most appreciative, explaining that they were glad to have this verified so the attendance records of the son of the deceased could be cleared and adjusted.

Evidently, there just weren't taking the young fellow's word that he had missed classes because of a death in the family.

Our obit man was a little incensed but I think it was okeh. When I was in college I knew a student who was quite a weekend playboy and had trouble making classes. His grandfather's funeral was held on Mondays periodically all that school year.

HISTORIC BIXBY RANCH LAND TO BE SUBDIVIDED FOR EXECUTIVE HOMES

$50,000-PLUS EXECUTIVE HOMES

$30-Million Bixby Ranch Development Planned; City's Last Residential Area

By ANDY PARK

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1963

The last remaining segment of undeveloped residential real estate in Long Beach will become a subdivision of executive-type $50,000-up homes beginning in 1964 if the City Council approves a proposal Tuesday to allow Nathan and David Shapell to develop the famous Bixby Ranch property east of Long Beach State College.

The $30-million development is slated to turn the property surrounding the historic Rancho Los Alamitos into a tract of 277 lots averaging 8,000 square feet each.

The adobe ranch home, dating from 1784, will be preserved near the center of the development in an 8-acre enclosure to be landscaped into an "historical site" with adjacent gardens and ranch buildings protected.

RANCH HOME, DATING FROM 1784 TO BE PRESERVED

* * * *

THE SHAPELL brothers, along with Max Webb, owners of the S&S Construction Co., 7841 Berner St., have submitted to the City Council a tentative tract map outlining 274 residential plots with three others set aside for future multiple-residence dwellings.

The area to be developed lies between the eastern boundary of the LBSC and the Los Cerritos Channel, running north and south parallel to Studebaker Road; and between Anaheim Road and Seventh Street.

Plush $50,000 to $150,000 homes would be built south of the diagonal Bouton Creek feeder channel, which runs northwest to southeast across the plot and empties into the Los Cerritos Channel.

* * * *

DEVELOPERS plan to retain as many as possible of the area's famous pepper trees, placing these in street parkways within the area or on residential lots.

The topographical configuration of the land will be retained, the developers say, affording a commanding view of the city and Alamitos Bay from hilly lots within the tract.

A number of the lots will be sold separately, allowing the owner to employ his own architect and contractor, but rigid restrictions will be placed on construction plans to maintain the value of the area.

Construction date is tentative, pending public hearings and City Council and Planning Commission action, but the developers hope to begin in early summer, 1964.

* * * *

THE UNUSUAL action of filing the proposal before the full City Council, rather than first going through Planning Commission channels was taken, spokesmen for the Shapell brothers said, "because we feel that the historical and economic importance of this particular area makes it incumbent upon us to reveal our plans to entire community first."

Completion of the project is expected to take two to three years.

The proposed development will take another cut from what was once the 45,000-acre Rancho Los Alamitos that has figured in the area's history since Spanish land-grant days.

* * * *

IN MARCH 1941, the first part of the ranch was placed on the market for residential development.

In 1784, Pedro Fages, Spanish governor of California, gave 300,000 acres to a soldier who had served under him, Manuel Nieto. Los Nietos Land Grant comprised, roughly, an area "bounded on the north by the foothills and on the south by the ocean, lying between the Santa Ana River and the San Gabriel River," which, at that time, emptied into the ocean near Wilmington.

The grant was reduced to 150,000 acres when it was discovered that it encroached on the property of the San Gabriel Mission.

By 1804, when Manuel Nieto died, the estate—now known as Rancho Los Alamitos—had shrunk to 29,000 acres, which went to a son, Don Juan Jose.

* * * *

IN 1834, the rancho was sold by Nieto's son to Gen. Jose Figueroa for $500 and in 1843 the famous La Casa de los Cerritos — the main ranch house—was built. It is a museum at 4600 Virginia Road.

In 1842, the land was sold by Figueroa to Don Abel Stearns for $5,954. Stearns defaulted on a mortgage in 1864 and a San Francisco moneylender, Michael Reese, became the owner.

John W. Bixby rented the property in the 1870s from Reese's estate and in 1877, Mr. and Mrs. Bixby moved to the crumbling rancho and began to rebuild and rehabilitate the structure.

In 1881, Bixby, with a business partner, purchased Rancho Los Alamitos.

* * * *

BIXBY'S SON, Fred, took over operation of the rancho when John Bixby died in 1887.

Fred Hathaway Bixby lived until 1952 in the adobe home at the rancho. He was instrumental in developing many sites in the city of Long Beach, including Recreation Park.

In 1941, Bixby opened the first part of the historic grounds to residential development. Since then, the modern tracts of College Estates, east of Studebaker Road, and College Park Estates, south of Seventh Street, have been developed by S&S Construction Co.

On Sept. 8, 1961, in an elaborate ceremony, the city of Long Beach became the official custodian of the homesite and immediate surrounding area—La Casa De Rancho Los Alamitos — in a dedication of the biuldings and grounds as an historial monument.

* * * *

THE SURROUNDING ranch grounds have been held in trust by the Fred H. Bixby trustees, who are participating in the proposed 1964 subdivision.

The proposed development, the latest in a series by S&S for the Bixby trustees, will bring to more than 10,000 the Estates and College Park Estates tracts, S&S has been responsible for 8,000 homes in Norwalk as well as El Dorado Park, a tract now under development.

The $30-million development is expected to provide a healthy three-year boost to the economy of Long Beach and surrounding areas.

Mayor Edwin W. Wade, commenting on the proposal, said:

"We, of the City Council, are certainly interested in any $30-million development for the community. I feel sure the council will cooperate in any way possible. We are running out of land for these types of major development."

* * * *

REPRESENTATIVES of construction and allied trades unions expressed enthusiastic approval of the plans, pointing out that "more than 4,000 suppliers and up to 50 different crafts of workmen are employed in any major home-building project.

City and County tax officials conceded that "broadening of the tax base by the introduction into any community of high-value homes is beneficial to the overall tax structure."

The developers point to the expected completion of the San Diego Freeway only a few miles north of the proposed subdivision as an added incentive to homeowners to invest in high-value exclusive homesites and structures.

The setting aside of plots for future multiple-dwelling residence within the 101.8-acre development site, outside of the perimeter of the one-owner homesites, could provide for much needed auxilliary housing for Long Beach State College, according to the developers.

The City Council will officially receive the proposal at its Tuesday meeting.

L.B. Shipyard Measures Up

CITIES WHERE DEFENSE installations are located received a rude jolt last week when Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara ordered 33 facilities shut down and hinted that others will be closed as time passes.

No shipyards were closed in this week's cost-saving action, but the Secretary stated that an extensive study of the entire naval shipyard complex is under way. Efficiency, according to the Secretary, is the standard of measurement. If such is the case, Long Beach Naval Shipyard must be listed among those installations most likely to survive.

THE LONG BEACH facility, incidentally, has won its place on that list against staggering odds. Until recent years, land sinkage in the harbor area was so bad that the shipyard appeared doomed. However, because of the yard's splendid record, its strategic location, and its closeness to a supply of skilled workers, everybody concerned felt that it should be kept open if at all possible.

Long Beach launched a titanic battle against subsidence—and won. Sinkage slowed down and finally came to a halt. The shipyard, as well as other harbor facilities, was able once more to operate without the hazards and difficulties which sinkage previously had imposed. All this was achieved, of course, only at great expense. Surely millions of dollars and years of effort were not invested in the shipyard to prepare it for closing!

A VOTE OF CONFIDENCE in the Long Beach facility is reflected by the transfer of overhaul work from the San Diego naval repair facility, which was one of the 33 defense installations affected by McNamara's order. Actually, the transfer will halt a recent decline in work assignments at the Long Beach Naval Shipyard and, in the opinion of Rep. Craig Hosmer, "make it harder to close it down in the future."

As of now, it would appear that one result of the week's cost-saving activities in the Defense Department was the bolstering of the Long Beach shipyard's position. The shipyard has met a test and by any fair standard of judgment should be able to meet those of the future.

Boomlet Started for Kin of Ike

I, P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—Every Republican who's anybody is being mentioned as a possible candidate for presidential nomination these days, and that includes Milton Eisenhower, the former President's brother.

The Milton-for-President boom is being whipped up by Malcolm Moos, the White House egghead-in-residence during the Eisenhower years of 1952-60. Minnesotan Moos, a widely respected writer of books about politics and government, wrote speeches for Gen. Eisenhower.

An interesting sidelight of Malcolm's boomlet is the reaction of Milton, now president of Johns Hopkins University at Baltimore. In the past, when newsmen queried him about becoming a candidate for political office, Milton invariably replied that he was quite happy being a university president, his occupation for more than a decade.

This time, Milton said that it would be inappropriate to comment about politics during the 30-day moratorium connected with the national mourning period for President Kennedy. Much is being read into his failure to issue his denial in the terms used in the past.

REPUBLICAN PARTY insiders are watching closely the activities of the Republican Citizens Committee. This is an organization dear to President Eisenhower's heart. It was put together after he left office with his blessing. Ike is a great believer in citizens groups, since they helped elect him to office. Anyhow, the insiders believe that the citizens organization will give the first tipoff as to which candidate Ike prefers.

ANN WHITMAN, IKE'S personal secretary in the White House recently left the citizens organization to go to work for Gov. Nelson Rockefeller in New York.

THERE HAS BEEN an unexplained delay in the release of the surgeon general's report on smoking and health. Supposedly due last summer, then in November, the report remains in a mystery status.

The Surgeon General's office states that it is not finished, but evidently portions of it have been shown here and there, complete with statistics and fearsome color photographs on the effects of lung cancer.

No statistic yet furnished seems to have diminished the consumption of cigarettes, but this report apparently has produced cold chills in those that have seen it.

One congressman told us this week that he had been a pack and a half man for more than 20 years, but had stopped, absolutely, without recourse to crutches of any kind, after leafing through the report.

THIS MAY GIVE YOU some idea of the boom in Georgetown real estate values. Some years ago, a friend of ours was offered a house on N St. in Georgetown for $65,000. For a lot of reasons, including money, he didn't buy the house—for which he is now kicking himself. The house was sold the other day to Mrs. Jacqueline B. Kennedy. The price was in the neighborhood of $150-160,000.

Sen. Abe Ribicoff Considers Religion No Political Handicap

WASHINGTON—Shortly after the funeral services for the late great Gov. Herbert Lehman of New York, Sen. Abe Ribicoff, (D-Conn.) reminisced to friends regarding the question of religion and politics.

Like the late Governor of New York, Ribicoff is Jewish, and like Lehman he served as both governor and now as senator of his state. Lehman had served as governor of New York longer than any other man in history, then went on to the Senate.

PEARSON

"When I decided to run for governor of Connecticut," Ribicoff recalled, "I went to see Gov. Lehman. My state is one in which the Jewish population is only 4% and I wanted to get Lehman's advice.

"He told me: 'I have never found that my religion hurt me or helped me. People take you for what you are.'

"I followed Gov. Lehman's advice and I found it to be correct," Sen Ribicoff continued. "Before my inauguration as governor I stopped by my synagogue to pray. The newspapers all mentioned it, many of them on the front page, but there was no criticism. People regarded it as the normal thing to do.

"When my mother died, I held a period of mourning in the governor's mansion. It was the first Jewish mourning ever held in the governor's mansion and many rabbis came from other parts of the country and even abroad. There was no criticism. People respected my religious faith.

"And I have always found that the only Jews whom non-Jews do not respect are the Jews who are ashamed of their religion."

Sen. Ribicoff also told of his conversations with the late John F. Kennedy at the 1956 Democratic convention in Chicago, when there was a contest between the late Sen. Estes Kefauver and Sen. Kennedy for the vice presidential nomination. Adlai Stevenson had just been nominated for President, and Ribicoff said he got a call to come to Stevenson's private headquarters in the Stockyards Inn.

"There I found those who set the policy for the Democratic Party debating who would be the best vice presidential candidate. There was considerable discussion as to whether Jack Kennedy's religion would hurt the ticket. Quite a few of the Democratic leaders were Catholics but not one Catholic spoke up for Kennedy.

"Finally I said: 'It seems ironic that a Jew has to stand up for a Catholic while the Catholics remain silent. But I have never found that religion hurts a man politically.' And I told them of my own experiences."

Though Kennedy lost out to Kefauver in the 1956 vice presidential contest at Chicago, Sen. Ribicoff felt that this helped to pave the way for Kennedy's subsequent nomination and election as President.

"Religion as an issue was pretty well dispelled in that 1960 election," Ribicoff said, "but recently hate and suspicion have been revived in some parts of the country, and it was a tragedy that this fine young man who had shown so much tolerance toward his fellow men should have been struck down just as hate began to creep across the United States."

* * * *

THIS COLUMN'S investigation bears out Sen. Ribicoff that the hate campaign has been increasing recently in some parts of the South and Far West. It appeared to be reaching a climax at the time of Kennedy's death. Some of it has been anti-Catholic, some anti-Jewish, some anti-Negro, and most of it anti-U.N. and anti-cooperation with the rest of the world. It was bitterly opposed to Kennedy's policy of co-existence.

Part of it has stemmed from the fact that men who once wore the uniform of the United States, like retired Adm. John Crommelin, have broadcast charges of "Communist-Jewish conspiracy"; or that Gen. Edwin Walker has flown the American Flag upside down. This has a growing effect on those who do not know that Crommelin was kicked out of the Navy, and Walker was censured by the Army.

The fact that these men can still call themselves admiral and general carries weight in some circles.

Also carrying weight is the American Legion, which unwittingly has lent itself to some of the hate program by sprinkling its certificate of Americanism indiscriminately around the country—even to one legion post which has been openly anti-Semitic.

Just outside Long Beach, Calif., the Signal Hill Post 490 has been exposed by Sherman Williams of The Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram for being a cover for the California Rangers, one of whose officers, George Joseph King, son of the retired admiral by that name, was recently convicted of selling illegal weapons.

The Signal Hill Post's newsletter last June recommended that members read two publications: The Cross and Flag, published by the openly anti-Semitic Gerald L. K. Smith; and Common Sense, a violently anti-Semitic publication by the late Conde McGinley.

The newsletter commented: "We came across Gerald L. K. Smith's message and we liked it very much. It teems with the truth."

Because of these activities, the California Executive Committee of the American Legion called on the Signal Post to terminate its charter or stand trial. After this, believe it or not, the national headquarters of the Legion in Washington gave the Signal Hill Post a certificate for "outstanding service in the field of Americanism."

Another case where the Legion lent itself to hate is that of its executive committee in Montana which adopted a resolution charging the Cooperative League of the United States, a highly respectable farm organization, with being "alien and foreign to our way of life and a threat to our economic well being."

It also linked the Cooperative League with Khrushchev and Communism, and charged that it destroyed "national patriotism" and sought to "communize trade and commerce."

Head of the Cooperative League of the United States is ex-Congressman Jerry Voorhis of California, who is no more communistic than the man who defeated him for Congress, ex-Vice President Richard Nixon.

Allen Outburst at Hecklers Scores Point With Buckley

WHEN LIBERAL Steve Allen and conservative William Buckley debated in Los Angeles five days before the assassination, there was not the restraint on political dialogue which the tragedy wrought.

And so the debate was in the best tradition of the American way. Buckley, as the attacker of the administration, would seem vicious and cruel in the re-reading of the transcript if it were not for the fact that his harshest terms were figurative rather than literal, that his barbs were typical of anti-JFK sentiment and, importantly, that his post-assassination writings absolved him of any suspected meanness.

HOUSER

Coincidentally, both Allen and Buckley chose to use Groucho Marx in planking their foreign policy discussions. Allen shamed Buckley for calling Pope John's encyclical on social justice "a venture in triviality" and ascribed it to Buckley's Groucho-like desire to shock.

Buckley ticked off his appraisal of foreign policy failures, concluding it was "as if foreign policy were written by the Marx Brothers."

At this point, in the front row shadows of the Hollywood Palladium, a man's figure popped up from a seat and moved back and forth in a familiar, exaggerated stride, then waved at the audience. It was Groucho Marx himself.

IT WAS A BUCKLEY audience and Allen was heckled, booed and groaned at for his Kennedy defenses until he finally had had enough. Responsible conservative voices are absolutely necessary, he said, and Buckley epitomizes the distinguished, responsible, intelligent conservative as opposed to what Richard Nixon calls the kooks and the nuts. With several thousand in one room it is inevitable there will be a few kooks and nuts and I ask them to shut up! These debates are sponsored by a responsible conservative organization and the loud-mouthed representatives here are doing them no credit.

Buckley, at his turn, approved of what Allen had said but turned the maneuver to his own advantage. The only thing Steve Allen said effectively, declared Buckley, was "Shut up! But you'll notice he did it alone—he didn't call upon our moderator to refer the matter to a committee!"

Without abating his anti-administration theme, Buckley did his best to forestall the catcalls against his opponent. Any who suspect Steve Allen of being pro-Communist are ether evil or witless, Buckley said. California is a principal exporter of loose talk, he continued, and there are some in the right wing who cherish a great ignorance of realties; they hurt the innocent—some because they are malicious, some because they are uninformed—and this applies to both right and left.

ALLEN CONTENDED the present debate was really insoluble because the conservative has nothing to defend "because he has not yet put a team on the ball field." Conservatives generally and Barry Goldwater specifically should advocate with "a lesser degree of belligerence and a greater part of wisdom . . . the conservative's suspicion of foreign entanglement and security in isolation is a euphemism for selfishness . . . there no longer are any faraway countries and morally there never were . . . a contributor to the dilemma is our delusion of omnipotence—we do not run the world and can't dictate, even to our allies . . . they say knock down the Berlin wall without realizing the consequences, without considering that this would be invasion of the Soviet sector. . . ."

Buckley, responding to Allen's claim of propaganda victory by the Berlin wall, asked, "Whence the victory?—that West Berlin is still free? This means only that all of Berlin is not lost. . . . It is the stamina of Charles De Gaulle on which West Berlin survives, not the profile of courage from Boston. . . . Failure to move against Cuba was a conspicuous symptom of our degeneracy; apparently nothing will move us unless Castro finds a few Buddhists to persecute . . . the policy of containment has become the official paradigm and is not sound because it is dogmatically defensive—repressing the enemy's salients rather than striking our own.

"IN CUBA we don't rouse ourselves off the beach. In Berlin we don't tear down the wall but learn to live in its humiliating shadow, but our rhetoric of defiance and liberation continues basso sostenuto . . . and we (subscribe to the message) of Orwell's incandescent novel that war is peace. And the horror of it is that men of intelligence and good will rise to defend it."

Gun Law Won't Deter Criminal

EDITOR:

Since the assassination of President Kennedy, and the subsequent events in Dallas, Texas, there seems to be a movement afoot to establish stronger laws pertaining to the sale and ownership of guns.

Why the discrimination?

In all the wars that this country has ever fought, approximately 550,000 men lost their lives.

In a much shorter period of time, approximately 1,500,000 men, women and children have been slaughtered on our highways by cars.

This would seem to indicate that cars are three times more dangerous and deadly than guns.

* * * *

AS OF THIS writing, I haven't read or heard of anyone campaigning for stronger and better laws that might curb, or eliminate, this unnecessary carnage by automobiles.

Granted, deaths by cars are accidental, whereas most deaths by guns are by design. That does not alter the fact that a person killed accidently by car is just as dead as a person deliberately killed with a gun.

Regardless of how strong or rigid gun laws are, the criminal element will still possess them by some means or other.

If, by some miracle, guns would be completely abolished, it would not stop assassinations or murders. A determined person, a psycopath, or a martyr would find other ways and means to accomplish his purpose due to his complete disregard for his own life.

DAVID LAWRENCE

No One Training to Succeed LBJ

WASHINGTON—Much talk is being heard today and serious consideration is being given here to what may soon become a major issue throughout the country. For the nation has suddenly come to realize that it has no Vice President.

LAWRENCE

It's true there is a line of succession to the presidency, but both the Speaker of the House and the President Pro Tem of the Senate have their own duties to perform and cannot give their time now to all the tasks performed by a Vice President. In short, nobody today is in training to take over the presidency in an emergency.

Sen. Jacob Javits of New York, Republican, has come forth with a proposal that a constitutional amendment be adopted authorizing a joint session of the two houses of Congress to elect a Vice President the moment a vacancy in that office occurs. But the defect in his proposal is that it would permit either a member of Congress or a cabinet officer to be chosen. No cabinet member, however, is placed in office by the vote of the people.

The reason why so many persons have brushed aside their worries over the recent change in the presidency is that Lyndon Johnson became Vice President after he had served the preceding eight years as majority leader of the Senate. Confidence in him arises today out of the fact that he has demonstrated in a position of leadership in Congress skill in handling national and international problems. But would the people have the same confidence today if three weeks ago the successor to President Kennedy had been a cabinet member, with little knowledge of the problems of the executive branch except the operations of his own department and with no over-all familiarity with legislative questions?

The fact is that the present law of succession is inadequate and perhaps even dangerous. It provides no method of selecting a Vice President. The existing law merely designates the Speaker of the House and the presiding officer of the Senate to be next in line when a vacancy occurs in the presidency, to be followed by members of the cabinet in a specified order. No reference is made to a vacancy in the vice presidency. It has been suggested that a return to the law prior to 1947—which put cabinet members in direct line ahead of anyone in Congress—would be desirable, but this is opposed in both the Senate and the House, where the feeling is that the selection itself should be made by the people's elected representatives in Congress.

To choose, as is proposed by some, an acting President and wait an interval of even a few months for a general election would produce deep uncertainty in public policy and might even cause some foreign adversary to precipitate a crisis, if not a war, which might be difficult for the temporary official at the head of the executive branch of the government to handle.

What is needed, of course, is a new Vice President immediately that there is a vacancy in that office. He should be selected by Congress from its own membership, and probably would always be a leader of his party. He would then go in training for the presidency in his capacity as Vice President. He would, as in the past, succeed at once to the presidency in an emergency. But he would presumably be a man trained in leadership by his experience in the post to which he had previously been elected by the members of his own party in either house. Under such a plan, the selection could be made from either the House or the Senate, and the choice would be by majority vote of the members of both houses, who themselves have been elected by the people.

A constitutional amendment is also needed to cover all phases of the problem that arises during any period of disability which a President might experience due to illness or accident. The current system has long been discussed but no action has been taken by Congress, though several proposed amendment have been introduced and considered by congressional committees.

Unfortunately, Article II of the Constitution is not clear. It says that "the Congress may by law provide for the case of removal, death, resignation or inability, both of the President and Vice President, declaring what officer shall then act as President, and such officer shall act accordingly, until the disability be removed, or a President shall be elected." But the big question is what is meant by the phrase "act as President." Would he possess full authority, and could a President, upon recovery from a "disability," vitiate what had been done by an "acting President?" It seems clear that a constitutional amendment is necessary to clarify the whole problem.

Airport Proposal Hearings Urged

By GEORGE WEEKS

Long Beach city officials will ask the Board of Supervisors and the Federal Aviation Agency to hold extensive hearings on the proposed establishment of a county airport at Wilmington Avenue and Del Amo Boulevard.

A resolution detailing the reasons is due for action Tuesday by the City Council. It has already been approved in principle.

The county airport project is still in an early stage, following the board's decision to operate the Compton Airport for 15 months.

But city officials were stirred to action by notice from John A. Lambe, county director of aeronautics, of an application to the Federal Aviation Agency for approval of the Wilmington-Del Amo site for eventual development.

The proposed location, in unincorporated territory, is only four miles west of Long Beach Municipal Airport. Instrument landing systems of the two might very well conflict, City Manager John R. Mansell said.

* * * *

MANSELL AND Nicholas Dallas, city director of aeronautics, also cited these figures as evidence of the economic importance of the Municipal Airport to the entire area:

The Federal Aviation Agency currently ranks the airport as the third busiest in the country, surpassed only by Chicago's O'Hare Field and Los Angeles International Airport.

Last year 340,000 flight operations were recorded from the Long Beach facility.

Exclusive of Douglas Aircraft Co., the public and private investment in the airport complex exceeds $66 million.

Firms located at the airport provide employment for more than 15,000 persons.

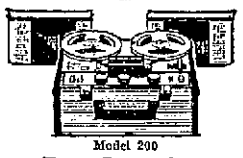

Gov. Wallace To Tour West

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Gov. George Wallace of Alabama plans a speaking tour through the far west next month.

Wallace, an outspoken segregationist and states righter, said he will limit this tour to Colorado, California, Oregon and Washington because he doesn't want to be out of Alabama more than a week.

Leisure World's Demos Push JFK Memorials

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

A project of Leisure World Democratic Club, Seal Beach, for wide distribution of both printed copies and recordings of the late President John F. Kennedy's inaugural address is meeting with enthusiastic response, club president Ben Silverman announced Saturday.

The club started a fund to provide suitable copies of the speech for the nation's schools and libraries and to seek to have the speech recording made available at a price within reach of the school child. The fund is being handled and administered by United California Bank, Seal Beach.

Silverman said Rep. Richard J. Hanna, D-Calif. (Fullerton), had written his "wholehearted endorsement" of the program. Silverman said he also had been advised of Gov. Brown's approval. He said the Leisure World club seeks contributions from other Democratic clubs as well as from organizations and individuals of any political faith. Any funds over the project cost would go to a John F. Kennedy scholarship fund.

Silverman said his club launched the fund out of its regard for the inaugural speech as "a statement of national purpose ranking with the finest speeches made by our leaders in the past."

PAMELA RANDOLPH STEERS TO AUTO SHOW

$4 Million in Autos to Be Displayed Here

More than 100 automobiles, with an aggregate retail value of over $4 million, will be on display at the 1964 Long Beach International Auto Show Jan. 17 through 26, the Long Beach Motor Car Dealers' Association announced Wednesday.

Executive secretary N. L. McLaughlin said that cars are being shipped to Long Beach from six other nations, to be shown alongside American cars.

Exhibting nations will include Germany, Italy, Japan, France, England and Sweden. The only other car-manufacturing nation, Russia, has not yet participated in major American shows, he said.

THE 10-DAY SHOW, producer Mickey Levine says, will include a twice-daily stage presentation by radio, television and screen stars. The Mills Brothers will head the cast of entertainers.

Individual cars displayed, McLaughlin said, will range in retail value from about $1800 for compacts to more than $10,000 for custom-designed vehicles.

Some of the more unique features, McLaughlin said, will be use of jet propulsion, television and other accesories not normally seen by the average car buyer.

The show, which will extend through 10 days at the Arena, is expected to attract more than 50,000 people.

Tippit Fund Hits $246,000

DALLAS (UPI) — Police stopped counting for the weekend Saturday with $246,018 in hand and 10 sacks of mail still to be counted for the widow and three children of the policeman slain trying to catch President Kennedy's accused assassin.

The nine-man tabulating crew at police headquarters will resume their work Monday for Mrs. Marie Tippit, 39, and her children.

In Fort Worth, the fund slowly grew for Marina Oswald, the widow of the accused assassin Lee Harvey Oswald.

An estimated $12,000 had been contributed from all over the country and abroad. Mrs. Oswald and her two babies remained in seclusion under the protection of the Secret Service.

French Secret Army Officer Trial Set

PARIS (UPI) — The last major commander of the Secret Army Organization which led a last-ditch fight to prevent Algerian independence will go on trial before a special state security court Dec. 26, reliable sources said Saturday.

The commander is former Col. Antoine Argoud, who was kidnaped from a hotel in Munich, Germany, and delivered bound and gagged in a truck to police headquarters in Paris Feb. 26.

Waiters End Strike at New York Cafes

NEW YORK (AP)—A waiters' strike that closed more than 100 Manhattan restaurants, some of them internationally famous, was settled Saturday. Normal business was expected to resume—at higher prices.

The strike flared Dec. 7 at the Lobster, the Press Box and Keen's Chop House. Other well known establishments such as the Colony, "21", Brussels, Le Veau d'Or, Le Cafe Chambord at La Cote Basque, Sardi's and Lindy's closed down in a "one-struck, all-struck" move.

All are members of the Restaurant League of New York. The settlement emerged after some of the eating places broke ranks and reopened while negotiations were still under way. One of these was Lindy's.

* * * *

THE SETTLEMENT was announced by Vincent D. McDonnell, newly appointed chairman of the State Board of Mediation.

Vincent Sardi Jr., chairman of the Restaurant League and head of the management negotiating team, said the undisclosed terms of the agreement meant a certain increase in restaurant prices. This is a matter to be decided by individual restaurants, he added.

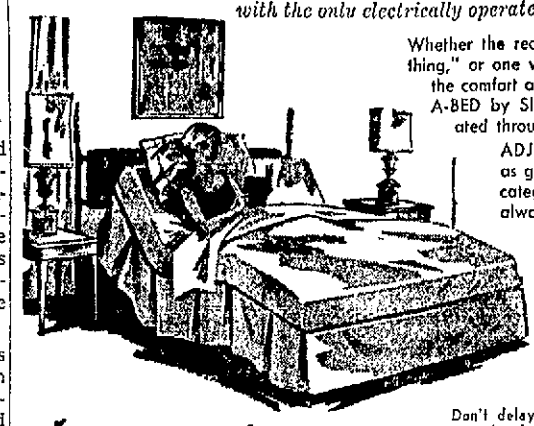

The waiters are members of Local 1 of the Dining Room Employes Union. Their president, David Siegal, voiced concern that some restaurant patrons might deduct the increased prices from tips.

SIEGAL SAID he would recommend ratification of the agreement to the union membership at a meeting Thursday. Terms were withheld pending ratification.

Spy Executed

Long Beach Will Be Given Share in S. Cal. Regional Library Study

Long Beach will share in a regional library study which —although it wasn't planned that way—may furnish added factual material to support a campaign for a new main library.

A joint project of numerous libraries in the Los Angeles-Long Beach and San Bernardino-Riverside-Ontario areas, the survey is intended to develop, along with other data, projections of population and related information "pertinent to library development in terms of types and levels of service."

At the request of Miss Blanche Collins, city librarian, the City Council has authorized Long Beach participation in the state-financed survey.

JOINT application is being prepared for a grant from the $850,000 allocated in the current state budget under terms of the Public Library Development Act.

Librarians in the area have designated the Los Angeles Public Library to receive and account for the grant. Long Beach will receive no funds directly, but the study here is estimated to cost $2,000.

The investigation will be made by consultants selected by an administrative committee chosen by librarians in the region. None of the participating cities will be required to implement the findings.

City officials acknowledged privately, however, that the consultants' report could strengthen the arguments which so far have fallen short of persuading voters to give a two-thirds majority for a main library bond issue.

IT ALSO could assist library administrators in improving services, according to Miss Collins.

Among the other items of study are book collections, audio-visual materials; number, characteristics and utilization of personnel; administrative structure; availability of materials at all service outlets; methods by which participating libraries may ascertain special holdings of other libraries; augmented regional reference resources and services; cooperation between public libraries and academic and special libraries.

Tideland Oil Proceeds to L.B., State Up 51.5 Pct.

Net proceeds to the city and state from harbor tideland oil production under the Long Beach Oil Development Co. contract increased by 51.5 per cent last fiscal year to a total of $16,694,451.99.

Courson attributed the gain of $5,675,684.13 to higher production brought on mainly by water injection. Also an important factor was reduced capital outlay for the injection program.

In the previous year the city-state share was $11,018,767.86.

GROSS PROCEEDS last year rose 24 per cent to a total of $23,447,469.74. LBOD received $4,201,385.96 as its fixed overhead allowance of 14.45 per cent. Reimbursable expenses of the company under the contract amounted to $8,179,497.39, or 28.13 per cent.

Since the start of production in 1939 the harbor tidelands have yielded gross revenues of $542,841,476.23, Courson reported.

From this figure the city and state have obtained $302,726,312.72 in revenues. Of the balance, $78,440,574.74 represents LBOD's overhead allowance, and $161,674,588.77 is accounted for as reimbursable expenses.

COURSON SAID the audit report has no connection with bids received last week for a new contract to replace the present LBOD agreement, which terminates in March.

But Chief Deputy City Auditor Robert E. Shepherd did remark that the high bid for continued production—91 per cent of net profits—is "better for the city" than the current contract based on a percentage of gross receipts.

12 FOR 1.00

GETTING TO KNOW Santa by feel, blind Jimmy Nakumura, 10, a fourth grader at Lee School caresses St. Nick's luxurious beard.

BLIND AND PARTIALLY blind visited Santa's Animal Fair here. Carrie Dillard, 2, is held up to "see" by Santa's Helper Linda Jones.

FOR BLIND BOY

Fair Cast Early Christmas Spell

Jimmy Nakumura, who is all of 10, doesn't think people should succumb to the Christmas spirit until Dec. 21.

Before then's just too early, he asserts.

Well, you can just imagine how Jimmy must have felt when, 13 days before the holiday, he got to feeling pretty Chrisimasy.

It darn near scandalized the boy.

Dolefully, he confessed that he just knew he was happy. "I know because if I'm not having fun, I usually start to cry," he declared.

* * * *

BUT YOU REALLY CAN'T blame the youngster. It wasn't his fault that he started feeling so good so early in the season.

Along with 10 of his blind classmates from Lee School and 22 "partially sighted" youngsters from Lafayette School, Jimmy paid a visit to Santa's Animal Fair Thursday. The fair, located under a huge green tent behind the Long Beach City Hall, is being presented by Downtown Long Beach Associates and will be open to youngsters and their parents until Dec. 24.

It was during the visit that Jimmy fell victim to the spell of Chrisimas.

You see, he got a chance to chat with Santa Claus (Woody Cammett), ride a 25-passenger miniature train, meet Santa's pretty helper (Linda Jones) and feel a ferocious-looking tiger (made of papier mache).

So you really couldn't blame him after all, could you?

A COOPERATIVE papier mache tiger attracts Debbie Martinez, 8, Mindie Lee Beach, 8, and Jimmy Nakumura. Fair is open to Dec. 24.

France Holds Off China Recognition

PARIS (AP) — France has informed the United States it has no plans for early recognition of Communist China, diplomatic sources said Saturday night.

They reported French action followed some published reports that such recognition may be forthcoming soon.

YMCA Plans Holiday Events

A Christmas party next Saturday will kick off a special two-week holiday schedule at the Downtown Young Men's Christian Association.

Activities will include swim lessons, movies, games. Two trips for boys—one to Griffith Park in Los Angeles, the other to Knott's Berry Farm —are planned.

Gov. Connally Home Today

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—Satisfactory progress in his recovery from bullet wounds and then a blood clot in his right leg will allow Gov. John Connally to go home from the hospital this afternoon.

The Texas governor shot by President Kennedy's assassin, was reported Saturday by his doctors at St. David's Hospital to be making a good response to treatment for the blood clot.

An indirect result of the wounds, the blood clot formed in the superficial vein in his right calf where a tube was inserted to feed Connally intravenously.

Taipei Terminal

TAIPEI, Formosa (UPI) — A $1 million (M) Terminal at Taipei International airport is scheduled to be inaugurated Friday.

All Grudge Grenades of Omaha Avenger Believed Rounded Up

OMAHA (AP)—Federal men and police have recovered what they hope is all the grenades of Carl Nielsen who said he planned to send some to those on his grudge list.

Nielsen, 39, of Omaha, was charged with violation of the Federal Firearms Act. He is in jail awaiting psychiatric examination.

Officers who searched Nielsen's home said they had uncovered a fantastic arsenal of 82 rifles, and 27 pistols, plus the 33 grenades.

* * * *

SOME of the grenades had been rigged into boxes so a flip of the lid would detonate them.

Among the firearms were two new sniper rifles with telescopic sights, a machine gun and a variety of pistols dating back to cap-and-ball handguns of Civil War vintage.

The last six grenades were found Friday night by Federal Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Unit men and Omaha detectives. Postal inspectors earlier had entered the case when Nielsen indicated he might have mailed some of the boxed grenades wrapped as Christmas presents to persons against whom he had a grudge.

The list of 22 persons included relatives, a judge, attorneys, a doctor and others.

* * * *

NIELSEN was picked up Thursday after two women said he was annoying them. Some of his grenades and pistols were found on his person and in his car.

He subsequently admitted shooting at two churches.

Nielsen's grudge list included his father, Peter Nielsen, Mesa, Ariz.; Mrs. Blanche Daugherty, Portland, Ore.

RAILSWORTH, England (UPI) — Pig breeder David Adams said he has produced fatter, happier and better pigs since he piped disc jockey shows into his pigsties.

GIVE A PINT of blood through the Red Cross this Christmas, urge Mrs. Willard Harris (left) and Mrs. Rufus Davis who head drive for donors.

"Make a gift of life this Christmas season."

With this message to the public, Mrs. Willard Harris and Mrs. Rufus Davis, co-chairmen of blood recruitment, open a campaign for holiday blood donors at Long Beach Chapter, American Red Cross, 319 W. Broadway.

"We face a critical shortage of life-giving blood each holiday season," the chairmen said. "Hospitals have more patients, but Red Cross has fewer donors."

Sunday, Dec. 22, is designated as Red Cross "Save-A-Life Sunday," with the Long Beach Red Cross blood bank open from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

On New Year's Eve, donors will be accommodated from 1 to 4:30 p.m.

Hours for additional holiday blood banks at 319 W. Broadway are: Dec. 23, 3:30 to 7 p.m.; Dec. 24 and Dec. 26, 1 to 4:30; Dec. 30, 3:30 to 7; Dec. 31 and Jan. 2, 1 to 4:30 p.m.

Blood banks will be closed on Christmas and New Year's days.

Regular blood bank schedules to be maintained on all other dates will be Mondays and Tuesdays, 3:30 to 7; Wednesdays and Thursdays, 1 to 4:30.

Jerusalem Excited Over Pope Paul's Planned Visit

By WEBB McKINLEY

JERUSALEM, Jordan Sector (AP)—The forthcoming visit of Pope Paul VI to the Holy Land has charged the cool, clean air of Jerusalem with excitement and a renewed sense of history.

People are looking with fresh interest at the narrow streets where Jesus walked and at the hills where he taught and died. The January pilgrimage of the Pope somehow puts a different light on them and narrows the span of centuries.

"Will he come here?" asked a young French priest with a fond glance at the face of the Church of St. Anne over the spot where Mary is believed to have been born, and the nearby pool of Bethesda. "It is so lovely . . . and so important. Don't forget, it was here that the Lord cured on the sabbath."

* * * *

THE POPE ARRIVES three weeks from today in Jordan's capital city of Amman, 80 air miles from the eastern end of the Mediterranean. He will quickly be on sacred ground. His drive westward to Jerusalem will take him down from the stark mountains of Moab into the valley of the Jordan River, where Christ was baptized.

As he crosses a bridge over the narrow, muddy stream he will pass within a half mile of the Dead Sea, lowest spot on earth. A few miles farther on he will come within sight of Biblical Jericho, oldest city in the world and now a winter resort scented with orange blossoms.

The drive will then take him up into the barren Judean hills until, 55 road miles from Amman, he comes in sight of the Holy City, its spires reaching up from the hilltops.

If the Pope were an ordinary pilgrim he might first go to the top of the Mount of Olives. There, near the rock from which Christ traditionally ascended into Heaven, he could see in panorama the beauty and tragedy of the Holy City.

* * * *

BELOW, descending toward the Valley of Kidron, lies the Garden of Gethsemane where Jesus went to pray with his disciples the night he was betrayed. West across the valley, behind the medieval walls of Jerusalem, is the golden dome of the Rock Mosque, third most sacred shrine in the Moslem religion.

Rising in the distance behind it are the tragic hill of Calvary and at its little summit the Church of the Holy Sepulcher on the spot where Christ was crucified and buried.

The Pope could see, looking beyond that, more walls and the area called no-man's-land separating the Israeli and Jordanian sectors of the city. The two nations are technically still at war with each other.

During his three-day pilgrimage, he is expected to cross into the newer or Israeli side of Jerusalem and visit the Christian shrines in Israel, at Nazareth and the Sea of Galilee. He will then return to Jordan, a two-way crossing normally only allowed to diplomats or United Nations personnel.

* * * *

ONE OF THE POPE'S first acts on arriving in the Jordanian sector from Amman probably will be a visit to celebrate Mass at the Holy Sepulcher—like Jerusalem itself, a victim of conflict and division.

Roman Catholic, Greek Orthodox, Assyrian, Coptic and Armenian churches hold jealous guard over this ancient church, originally built by the Roman emperor Constantine in the 4th century and several times destroyed and rebuilt.

A year ago the Greek Orthodox, Roman Catholic and Armenian churches at last agreed on a unified plan to repair the tottering structure, most recently damaged by an earthquake in 1927. Scaffolding props up its walls and reconstruction work goes on, with signs warning passersby to beware of falling stones.

In token of the old conflict of the sects, a Moslem family has since 1789 been entrusted as the only keeper of its keys.

* * * *

THE PEOPLE ALSO will travel to the little town on a hilltop where Christ was born. The 11-mile drive, circumventing the border of Israel, winds past olive, pomegranate, fig and apricot trees, past a little roadside shrine marking the tomb of the Biblical Rachel, beside a wide valley still called Shepherds Field, and up a final climb to Bethlehem.

Despite its fame, Bethlehem is still a little place and it is both sacred and profane. It has a "Manger Square Cafe" and dozens of signs beckon tourists into shops to buy souvenirs. But on the main square is the Church of the Nativity, first built only three centuries after Christ was born. The stars in the clear air above it shine brightly during the Christmas season.

There on Jan. 6 the Pope is expected to make a major speech, a plea for peace and unity—a call like that of "Peace on earth, good will to men" which the shepherds heard in their field 20 centuries ago.

Scout Summer Camp Building Under Way

The building program at the Will J. Reid Scout Reservation in Barton Flats is under way, William F. Bennett, chairman of the Camp Development Committee, Long Beach Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, said Saturday.

Roads and parking lots, in the area, have been developed an doiled to eliminate the dust problem and provide parking space away from the camp sites for troop leaders, parents of Scouts and camp staff.

The William F. Prisk Memorial Swimming Pool is under construction and will be ready for the use next summer. Boating on Jenks Lake will continue for this next year, but it will no longer be necessary for Scouts to hike a mile to the Lake to have an opportunity to swim.

A Casting Pond has been developed for the boys to practice casting and program areas will be improved before summer.

Funds for camp development were raised in a public drive here during the year.

New Force in Defense Thrift Wave

By CHARLES W. CORDRY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson's orders for federal thrift have put new force into an economy wave that already was rolling over the Defense Department when he succeeded to the presidency.

After three years of steeply rising arms expenditures and forced expansion, the department that spends more than all other government agencies combined was bent on leveling off and, if possible, reducing outlays.

That this can be done soon, however, apparently is not yet certain despite anxious discussions that have been going on in the Pentagon and White House preparatory to sending Congress the new federal budget next month. The fate of the tax-cut bill is likely to hinge on what this budget reveals of government cost cutting intentions.

* * * *

BEYOND ANNOUNCED Pentagon cuts in civilian and non-combat military manpower and pleas for greater efficiency, a measure of the new urgency was the Budget Bureau's unannounced suggestion that the Navy might do without some of the six nuclear submarines proposed in its budget. They cost about $60 million each.

The determined economy effort of Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara and his principal aids long has been visible here in cost-cutting programs in the procurement field and in studies of future size and composition of major forces.

The effort is beginning to be felt keenly in the forces in Europe, as was made plain to newsmen lately during a three-week tour of military headquarters and installations. There is concern that an obsession with reducing "support" forces can result in a weakening of "combat" forces.

* * * *

ON THE DEFENSE economy front, too, a restive Congress has shown its frame of mind by slashing more than $2 billion from military appropriations request for this year.

As much as anything else, this move has slowed the spending increase this year and influenced calculations for next. After a rise of more than $8 billion in the annual defense spending rate since the last year of the Eisenhower administration, Congress plainly seems to want a leveling off.

In this framework, finishing touches are being put on the military blueprint which will go to Congress in January in the new budget for the year starting next July 1.

The budget was largely cast when Johnson succeeded to the presidency. And, while he was familiar with its outlines as Vice President and has settled remaining issues, his major impact on defense policy and expenditure can be expected to come later.

He had what might be called minimum maneuvering room in the final preparation of the new budget.

* * * *

THE MOMENTUM of Kennedy administration defense measures and built-in pressures for certain increases have made it extremely difficult to prevent spending in the new budget from rising somewhat.

The spending figures now are expected to be between $50 billion and $51 billion plus.

In the present year, spending had been expected to be $51 billion in a total federal budget of $98 billion. But congressional cuts in appropriations are expected to hold spending down to about $50 billion.

Offsetting economy efforts are such built-in, mandatory increases as $500 million for military, retired and civilian pay and at least another $500 million for operation and maintenance of the forces.

Officials believe, however, that the coming fiscal year will be the beginning of the level-off and that the international situation permitting, reductions will follow in future years.

Provine Emerges From 20s

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Blonde Dorothy Provine has emerged from the "Roaring 20s" where television has confined her for the past couple of years.

It was a long climb, but Dorothy jumped from the 1920s to the 1960s in a relatively short time. All it took was a haircut and a movie opposite Jack Lemmon.

For two years, Dorothy co-starred in ABC-TV's "Roaring 20s" at Warner Bros. Studio where she is under contract. It was a show that featured Miss Provine doing the Charleston part of the time.

* * * *

HER SERIES went out of production and Warner Bros. hired the pretty actress out to other studios.

Since leaving the series, Miss Provine has appeared in "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World," and now "Good Neighbor Sam" the latter film with Lemmon.

Her hair has been clipped so she appears to be of this decade, and her clothes don't appear to be from a church rummage sale.

* * * *

MISS PROVINE has a standard movie colony seven-year contract with Warner Bros. That means the studio can have her services for seven years, with the opportunity of releasing her at the end of each year. The actress has two and a half years left in her Warners pact.

That's not enough time for a studio, network and advertisers who might want an actress in a new series. Television likes to have a five-year hold on its stars so they can't bolt a successful series before it's had a long run. Miss Provine knows that.

* * * *

"THE STUDIO was rather angry because I wouldn't do another series," she said. "I would have had to take an extension of my contract to do one. I didn't want an extension. I didn't feel I was in a position to negotiate for two years hence."

Whatever Dorothy does on screen, she'll do her best to see that it's a modern role. She got tired of those old beaded dresses.

"I like the period of the 20s," she said. "But it gets boring after awhile, everything does."

Boone Admits Role Goof

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Pat Boone, family man and churchgoer, says he goofed in playing his first shady character.

As Boone fans will recall, eyebrows were lifted when Pat agreed to play a morally bankrupt beatnik in "The Main Attraction" opposite sexy Nancy Kwan.

"The public helped me realize my mistake by staying away from the movie," laments Pat. It was the first Boone movie that wasn't a moneymaker.

"I would have preferred staying in the wholesome movies that I first made, but they went out of style. I felt I had to develop as an actor so I took the part. It was too radical a change in my career.

"About the only good that came out of it was that some of the producers around town who saw it know now that I can do serious acting."

Pat now is concentrating on comedy.

BUILT-IN DEFICIT

Seattle Launch Repertory Co.

By SALLY RYAN

SEATTLE (AP)—Fifteen actors who fled Broadway to take Theater to the hinterlands have launched the Seattle Repertory Theater, a fledgling company with a built-in deficit and no stars.

They are presenting a 30-week season with five plays, ranging from Shakespeare's "King Lear" to Robert Ardrey's "Shadow Of Heroes."

Seattle businessmen and art patrons underwrote the venture, guaranteeing up to the $477,000 now budgeted for the first year's operation. That allows for a deficit the first season of up to $70,000.

BUT THE artistic director, Stuart Vaughan, sees the project as a new hope for the theater.

"Creative theater cannot emerge in New York's economic environment," Vaughan said. "New institutional theaters in cities throughout the country are the means for the theater to survive and flourish. "The only hope for the American theater today is to change it."

The members of the company embarked on educational and promotional campaigns soon after they arrived in Seattle this fall.

The actors spoke to thousands of students in high school english and drama classes. Vaughan and his staff members made the rounds of the women's clubs, and spoke at 200 coffee hours.

HUNDREDS of women and high school students volunteered to sell subscription tickets, man information booths or hold parties publicizing the theater. Ticket booths were set up in department stores and supermarkets.

William S. Taylor, the general manager of the company, said more than $200,000 worth of advance tickets were sold. More than 10,000 subscription tickets, covering all five plays, were sold at prices ranging from $6.40 to $23. Individual tickets were $1.60 to $5.75.

"The response has been literally fantastic since we couldn't show them anything," Taylor said.

ONE REASON for it happening here is the 1962 Seattle World's Fair. It left the city with an 800-seat playhouse, and nothing much to put in it.

Ewen Dingwell, general manager of the Fair, mentioned the possibility of a repertory theater to actor Hal Holbrook when he played at the theater during the Fair.

Vaughan liked the idea too, and subsequently was signed to a three-year contract.

ONE OF VAUGHAN'S first decisions was to rule out the star system.

"You can't keep stars such as Jessica Tandy and Hume Cronyn, who were with Sir Tyrone Guthrie at Minneapolis this summer, for more than a season or two," Vaughan said. "When they leave, you have to start all over.

"We are after permanency. The goal is to put together a company of players who will want to become and will become permanent residents of Seattle—to help nurture drama and culture through their presence, as well as their performances," Vaughan said.

"All of us, including the actors, could earn more in New York, but this is something we have long wanted to see happen," Taylor said. "Seattle is the first city in the country that has actually gone out and hired professionals to come in and help establish a full-time repertory theater on a business-like basis."

'Fair Lady' Film Release Next Fall

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The end of filming is almost in sight for "My Fair Lady."

Audrey Hepburn has completed her role as Eliza Doolittle. Only one number remained for Rex Harrison—"I've Grown Accustomed to Her Face." The production would be finished after staging of two numbers featuring Stanley Holloway, "With a Little Bit of Luck" and "Get Me to the Church in Time."

Final cost of "My Fair Lady" is figured at $17 million, including 5½ million for the rights. Warner Brothers has announced release of the film for next fall.

Specialists in Pipes

NO DUST ALLOWED
Gerry Kitchens makes certain inside of big pipe is perfectly clean in processing at Associated Pipe & Engineering plant in Compton. Intense care is taken with certain operations such as preparing piping for fuel transfer in U. S. missile program.

By VERN ANTHONY
Southland Progress Editor

COMPTON — They became friends when active in church work some years ago; and Lewis M. Jones and R. E. Ferguson — both Mormons — still devote much time to church affairs. But today they share in control of perhaps the major pipe fabrication plant on the West Coast.

These men could play lead roles in a typical business story of individual initiative.

Jones is president of the Associated Piping & Engineering Co., 1707 W. Compton Blvd. Ferguson is a vice president.

Jones, a resident of Bellflower, started with Associated in 1943 as controller. The firm then was under other ownership. Fifteen years later, he resigned as executive vice president to "go on his own."

* * * *

LIKEWISE, Ferguson, who lives in La Mirada, left North American Aviation, where he had advanced over 15 years to position of general manager.

Henry Anderson, of La Mirada, another vice president, was with Associated 15 years before joining the new firm. T. J. Jones, a nephew of the president, is secretary.

The firm acquired, and still operates, Western Piping & Engineering Co., 2414 E. 53rd St., Los Angeles. This plant does pipe bending and coiling, largely for refineries.

The company took over Associated in Compton in Novemer of 1962, buying it from the Southwest Fabricating Co. of Houston, Tex.

* * * *

THE COMPTON PLANT includes three operational divisions: Power and Process Refining, Uni-Flex Cryogenics and Temp Flex.

The latter division makes bellows expansion joints for piping. The Cryogenics division processes pipe for handling and transfer of liquified gasses colder than minus 200 degrees F.

The Compton firm has widespread dealings with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA); with utilities; refineries, etc.

It recently undertook a job for a Navy power house on the island of Guam, along with the Dillingham Corp. of Honolulu. It has the pipe fabrication order for Union Oil's new unicracker project at Wilmington, to be installed by C. F. Braun & Co. of Alhambra.

* * * *

IT IS DOING a major job for the Edison Company's new Units 3 and 4 at El Segundo. Requirements for these steam plant units call for bending of huge piping up to three inches thick — a tremendous job.

The firm, which has some 200 employes, is closely involved with the government's space and atomic energy programs, including underground A-blasts.

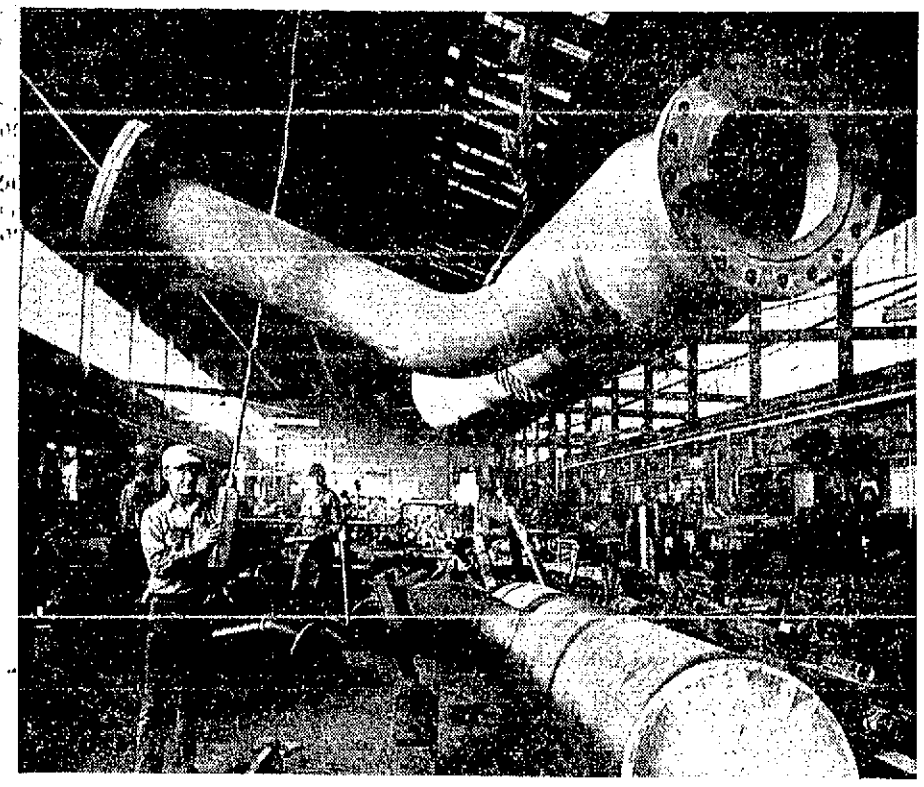

This calls for many delicate operations, some in a 'clean' room free of dust and humidity for fabrication and assembly of cryogenic vacuum-jacketed piping through which will flow liquified propellants for missiles.

* * * *

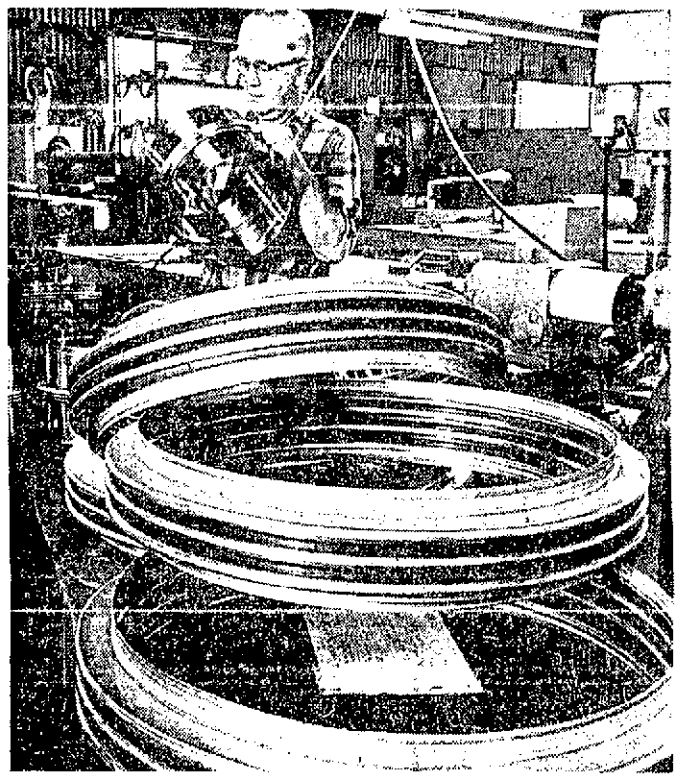

SOME SPECIFICATIONS call for expansion joints in order to absorb thermal movement in piping systems.

Products of the Compton firm find their way to such vital points as Cape Kennedy (formerly Canaveral) in Florida; to the rocket test site at Edwards Air Force Base; to Aerojet rocket test site at Edwards Air Force Base; to Aerojet rocket site near Sacramento; to the Rocketdyne Division of North American; Oakridge, Tenn.; Redstone at Huntsville, Ala., and to Los Alamos

MAKING IT LOOK EASY
Harold Anderson, foreground, controls powerful crane lifting big piping unit being fabricated at Associated Plant in Compton. Note how big pipes have been bent to specifications. Pipe up to three inches in thickness is shaped to order at Associated. Metal is heated intensely for bending, which is done by powerful machinery. Much of pipe work for Southland refineries is processed by this Compton Boulevard plant.

BELLOWS UNITS FOR PIPE EXPANSION
Intense cold of liquid fuel for missile operations using pipe such as some of that fabricated at Associated plant requires provision for expansion and contraction. Bellows such as these are placed between pipe joints to solve the problem. That's George Michalke, sheet metalman, examining expansion unit.

THREE-INCH-THICK PIPE BENT
Pipe bender John Garder does some figuring on huge pipe which has been bent at Compton plant. This is type of curved piping one may see at Edison Co. steam plants around Southland. Up to three-inch-thick pipes are fabricated.

Buffums' to Pay $64,000 in Bonuses

Christmas bonuses amounting to $64,000 will be distributed to qualifying employes of Buffums' five stores, Vaile G. Young, president of the retail store firm, announced. This is the largest Christmas present to employes in history.

Young said the bonuses will go to some 900 employes, both in selling and non-selling functions, and will represent a maximum of a week of pay to all employes who have qualified through length of service to the company.

This is the tenth year Buffums' employes have received the special bonus.

Extra Dividend

Bemis Bro. Bag Co. has announced that a 25 cents extra dividend on common stock has been voted payable Jan. 15, 1964, to stockholders of record Dec. 31, 1963.

$7 MILLION IN SHARES OF STOCK

Former Long Beach Federal Shareholders to Get 'Bonus'

By KEN CHILCOTE
Business News Editor

More than $7 million in shares of Equitable Savings & Loan Association guaranteed stock will be distributed to shareholders of the former Long Beach Federal Savings & Loan Association as a bonus, T. A. Gregory announced following an order obtained from the U. S. District Court.

Long Beach Federal merged with Equitable Savings and Loan Association in September. Gregory, who headed Long Beach Federal, is chairman of the board of Equitable.

The distribution, in the form of 585,821 shares of Equitable stock, equals 13 per cent of the savings accounts the recipients held in the Gregory association.

* * * *

THE BONUS comes from surplus funds of Long Beach Federal, which, under the merger, were replaced by new capital stock.

Under direct return of the surplus, Long Beach Federal would have been required to pay a heavy corporate tax and the recipients would have faced income taxes.

Equitable had agreed to distribute about $9,500,000 in stock to the Long Beach Federal shareholders; but because of restrictions imposed by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board in Washington the management sought court approval of the distribution plan.

* * * *

THE 7 MILLION, which will be released in stock to the shareholders, probably in January, will be on a basis of one share for each $91 in savings funds in the Long Beach Federal at the time of the merger.

The balance of the stock, some $2,500,000, will await court actiton and concerns mainly accounts over $10,000.

George Trammel, attorney for the Long Beach Federal shareholders committee, hailed the action as a "tremendous victory for the shareholders."

'Self-Service' Computer Business Operated in Oil Plant Basement

By ED KENYON

WILMINGTON — Hidden away in the basement of a red brick building in the huge Unionn Oil Co. refinery here is a small business that has brought self-service to the space age.

Laundromats allow you to do your own laundry in their washing machines; Computermat, Inc., allows you to do your own data processing on their electronic computers.

What is believed to be the first self-service computer service was started nearly three years ago in the Wilshire area of Los Angeles by computer operators Hy Kolkowitz, 45, now president, and Robert Curiel, 33, vice president.

* * * *

THEY BASED their hopes for success on the idea that there were many firms which either were too small or had too infrequent use for a computer to make the high costs of leasing one practical.

Other companies are in the business of working out computer problems for clients, and other companies leasing machines for their own use sometimes rent them out when they aren't in use; but Computermat is the first based on the do-it-yourself idea as a business, says Curiel, who manages the Wilmington office at 1664 Anaheim St.

* * * *

THE COMPANY opened its second office at Union Oil Co. about a year ago because the refinery needed a computer but didn't want to lease one.

"A man from International Business Machines contacted us and asked us if we would like to set up and maintain a computer center for them," says Curiel, "We said we would, if we also could rent

Builders Seek Permits Prior to Car Parking Law Deadline

By CHARLES SUTTON

Long Beach builders are "scrambling like mad" to get building permits before a tough new set of off-street parking requirements for new residential construction goes into effect Feb. 1.

The new regulations are embodied in a pending ordinance which city councilmen claim will relieve curb parking congestion, but which the builders say will raise construction costs in the city.

(One industry source, who prefers to remain anonymous, says the higher costs eventually will be passed on to the tenants of the new apartment buildings as higher rents. The same person goes on to say that Los Angeles County and certain cities have been living with parking ordinances as tough or tougher than Long Beach's new law for some time. "So we're really Johnnies-come-lately," he adds.

* * * *

UNDER THE NEW ordinance, the builders will be forced to provide roughly double the parking space they now are required to have for every dwelling unit outside the downtown area.

It's difficult to say exactly what percentage of the building permit applications being filed are prompted by the impending change; but architect William Lockett, says, "everybody is scrambling like mad to get under the wire."

Lockett, president of the Long Beach district of the American Institute of Architects, explains that by "everybody," he means those builders who have plans for new apartment buildings already in the works.

* * * *

BUT ANOTHER industry source says it's also possible for a speculative builder to start from scratch and still beat the deadline by using a stock set of plans.

According to City Building Department statistics, applications for permits have jumped almost 80 per cent in recent weeks.

Edward M. O'Conner, head of the department, refuses to read anything into the increase, saying that sharp fluctuations are the rule, not the exception, in building trends.

He admits, however, that builders have been making inquiries about the Feb. 1 deadline, which some City Hall sources admit could change.

* * * *

SINCE 1952, when the first off-street parking law was adopted by the city, apartment house builders have been operating under a set of rules which requires them to provide the following ratios of parking space to dwelling units in the city:

One space for every two dwelling units in the downtown district;

Two spaces for every three units in the area south of Pacific Coast Highway and the Pacific Electric tracks;

And two spaces for every three units everywhere else in the city.

* * * *

STARTING FEB. 1, however, they'll have to live with the new, tougher regulations. These call for one off-street parking space for every two apartment units in the downtown area, which is no change from before; a 1-for-1 ratio for single or efficiency units, and 1¼-for-1 for larger apartments elsewhere in the city.

It's in the 1¼-for-1 ratio for larger apartments where the big change comes in. And that's where the builders will feel the blow.

It supplants a 1-for-2 ratio in the area south of Pacific Coast Highway and the Pacific Electric tracks, known as Area B; and a 2-for-3 ratio in the rest of the city outside of the downtown district, or Area C.

* * * *

THIS MEANS that where builders must now provide one parking space for every two units in Area B, they will have to provide 2½ spaces for the same two units under the new ordinance. And where they now must have two spaces for every three units in Area C, they will have to have 3¾ spaces for the same three units under the new law.

(In unincorporated Los Angeles County, builders are required by law to provide 4½ spaces for every three units, regardless of location or size.)

IN DEVELOPMENT OUTLAY

Port of Long Beach Second Only to N.Y.

The Port of Long Beach is second only to the Port of New York in port development expenditures by United States and Canadian ports since World War II, according to a study by the New York Port Authority.

During this period, the New York-New Jersey harbor area spent for new construction and modernization of ocean going ship facilities $383 million.

Long Beach spent $116 million.

Top Canadian port was Montreal with an expenditure of $93 million.

Port of Long Beach is one of the fastest growing ports in the world and is currently the leading dry cargo port on the West Coast.

Under way at the Port of Long Beach is a massive $150 million expansion program which will double the size of the port in less than 20 years.

The largest project in the expansion program is the 310-acre Pier J which will be completed in 1965. The pier will be used temporarily by the California World's Fair in 1967-68 then revert to commercial shipping operations.

Moore Sales Top $25 Million in 1963

Moore Realty sales for the year passed the $25 million mark last week, President E. Tennyson Moore announced.

That figure made the company one of the biggest home-selling organizations in California. It also represented a whopping 66⅔ per cent gain over the $15 million sales figure of 1962.

Moore Realty operates nine offices in southeastern Los Angeles and Orange counties, and will open a tenth, for its income property division, at Long Beach in January.

* * * *

FURTHER EXPANSION is contemplated for 1964, Moore said. The company plans to add two sales offices in Orange County during the year.

The large growth rate of the company in 1963 is attributed by Moore to three principal factors: soundness of the economic structure of Southern California, dedication of the company's experienced sales force, and development of new ideas in the sale of homes.

* * * *

KEY SALES PERSONNEL, many with 10 years and more with the firm, have kept abreast of the changing real estate market, Moore said, prospective home buyer efficient and economic service. As a result, he noted, 10 members of the sales force now have sales that total over $1 million.

Newest program in home sales, Moore declared, is the development of the "trade-in" plan, a program in which Moore Realty has been a leader. Under this plan, customers now can trade in "old homes for new" as readily as they purchase automobiles.

Apartment Association Plans Party

Christmas party plans have been completed for the Long Beach Apartment House Association, James E. Odegard, president, said Saturday.

The party, on Thursday, will start with a 6:30 p.m. dinner at the Lafayette Hotel, followed by a program featuring the Sweet Adeline Chorus and Crusader Bell Choir and a talk by Rev. Dorsey Allen of Lancaster.

The Rev. Mr. Allen is a widely known convention and after-dinner speaker. Odegard suggested that persons wishing to attend the party make advance reservations.

Panel to Discuss County's Growth

Panel discussion of Orange County's growth and development will feature the December meeting of the Orange County Chapter, Building Contractors Association of California, scheduled for Monday evening at the Revere House, Tustin.

Jihn Lusk, pioneer builder and construction industry leader, will moderate the discussion, titled "Looking Ahead in Orange County."

Members of the panel will be Charles P. Diehel of the Federal Housing Administration; Sanford R. Goodkin, president of Goodkin Research Corporation; David Griffith, vice president and general counsel, Title Insurance & Trust Co., and John Porter, vice president, real estate, the Irvine Company.

Montebello Woman Takes Drugs, Dies

MONTEBELLO (CNS)—The 52-year-old wife of the Montebello city-treasurer died Saturday from an overdose of Seconal.

Nancy Besset took the overdose Friday night, apparently out of despondency over illness.

the equipment to other companies."

That is just what they have been doing (at the rate of $100 an hour) for some 30 clients who include psychologists, contractors and shipyards.

* * * *

THE MACHINES are used for a variety of jobs. One firm has them digest mounds of data to compile monthly reports for the home office. Another keeps track of which sub-contractor is needed at what time on a housing tract construction site.

"The possibilities for the use of this equipment are almost endless," says Curiel, who lives at 9930 Tecumseh Rd., Downey. "As just one example, I've been trying to interest delivery companies in using the equipment to determine how to route their trucks most efficiently."

BUT EVEN CURIEL admits there are limits to the miracles the machines can do. One occurred when an engineer walked into the office one day with an armful of statistics on race horses in an attempt to figure out a way to beat the odds.

The information he got never helped him to win at the track, however.

"The statistics he fed the machine didn't take into account all the factors that make a given horse win a given race on a given day," says Curiel. "That's one thing the machine can't do — figure out the behavior of horses—or of humans."

HIGH PRESSURE piping for electric steam plants providing power for Burbank and Glendale was processed by Associated. So was piping for Brea Chemicals, at Brea, Calif., and for other Edison projects.

Thus, with its teams of engineers, fabricators and piping specialists, Associated Piping has gained high standing not only in meeting industrial needs; but plays a key role as a missiles support system and the nation's space program.

NEBEKER PRESIDENT

Lakewood-Los Altos Realty Unit Elects

Gene Nebeker, Lakewood broker and city councilman, has been installed as first president of the newly-reorganized Lakewood-Los Altos Real Estate Association.

Nebeker served as chairman during a three-month reorganization from a loosely-knit group into an organization governed by bylaws and a board of directors.

The change was made necessary by the "growth and success" of realty firms in the Lakewood-Los Altos area over the past 10 years, Nebeker said.

* * * *

INSTALLING OFFICER Hal Gerling, who served as chairman of the group when it was formed in 1953, said there "were only nine brokers and 35 salesmen in the organization in those days. Today you have 35 brokers, 59 offices and 445 real estate salesmen in the association membership."

Gerling, a retired broker, now serves as president of Insured Mortgage Co. of Long Beach.

Other association officers installed at the luncheon ceremonies in the Long Beach Elks Lodge were Art W. Hancock of Walker & Lee, vice president; and Lloyd Chapel, also of Walker & Lee, secretary-treasurer.

Increased Building Seen for California at U.S. Convention

(Special to Southland Progress)

CHICAGO—Home and apartment construction in California will continue to increase each year up to a level of 500,000 units annually within the next decade, Robert A. Olin, Pomona, Calif., home builder, said at a press conference here.

He is president of the Home Builders Association of Los Angeles, Orange and Ventura Counties, which has set a new record for attendance at the 20th annual convention-exposition of the National Association of Home Builders which opened Wednesday and will continue through today. He is the leader of the delegation to the national NAHB convention.

* * * *

ANALYSTS at this convention predict that within the next 10 years, the annual rate of home and apartment construction will be at 2,500,000 units," said Olin. "Since California home builders construct 20 per cent of the nation's housing unit each year, we can look forward to spectacular increases in building."

The best estimate for total housing units in the nation in 1963 by analysts here is 1,560,000, with California scoring a substantial 20 per cent.

Researchers predict that the market for the foreseeable future is practically unlimited for the home builder if the product can be made attractive and within the means of the families that need the housing.

* * * *

THE BOOM in housing construction of the next 10 years will be caused by two strong forces—the increase in family formations as the result of population growth and the replacement of older homes in massive slum clearance and similar programs.

Olin reported that the latest Census Bureau projection shows that the nation will have nearly 80,000,000 households by 1983 which compares with 55,000,000 today and with 37,000,000 in 1943 when the National Association of Home Builders was organized.

During the 1950's for every 10 units for new household formation another five units were built to take care of replacement of old homes.

"Researchers at this convention state that for every 10 units for new household formation in the coming decade seven units will be needed for replacements," Olin said.

* * * *

IN THE PAST 20 years, the nation's home building industry constructed 21,500,000 housing units in homes and apartments, enough to provide a new home for four out of every 10 families, said Olin.

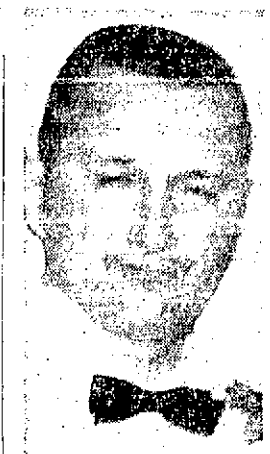

"Private enterprise and federal agencies have cooperated in the past decade to produce this record, according to a statement given us by Sen. John Sparkman," Olin said. "I am sure this cooperation will continue in the future so that we can meet the housing needs of the nation. There are 9,000,000 families living in substandard housing today and another 5,000,000 living in deteriorating housing. The housing needs of the nation are tremendous."

Thompson said Local 353 offices would be moved shortly from the present location, 520½ W. Willow St. and relocated upstairs at the Redondo address. Major use of the hall by musicians, he said, will be for rehearsals and auditions. It is planned to rent out the facilities on occasion.

State Faces Stiff Competition for Aerospace-Electronics Contracts

By VINT MADER

In coming years California aerospace-electronics industries will have to battle for their share of federal spending "more than we ever have in the past," Lewis M. Holland, commissioner of the state Economic Development Agency told Long Beach civic leaders this week.

During the last 10 years these industries have absorbed 50 per cent of the increase in labor force arising from California's population growth of 600,000 per year, he said.

* * * *

HOLLAND, making his first visit to Long Beach since his appointment to head the state agency early this year, met prominent persons in the city's civic and business community and addressed a meeting sponsored by the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce.

Spending by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration is "committed to go along at the same rate as the last five or six years," but space defense contracts are "beginning to taper off and during the next decade will actually be tapering off," Holland told the meeting.

Some of California's industries, he said, have 90 to 95 per cent of their business concentrated "in this general field."

* * * *

"SO WE recognize a problem," he said, adding that the state is trying to help diversify industrial activity and to maintain the share of aerospace contracts.

Business and government in other states "recognize that California has had over the years what they call more than its share," he said.

"We'll be in good shape for the next three or four years. After that the best prognosis is that we will gradually taper off."

The center, located at Hawthorne Boulevard and Silver Spur Road in the city of Rolling Hills Estates, now has more than 360,000 square feet of floor area and 56 retail establishments.

Another 35,000 square feet of floor area will be added during the third and final phase of development, which, said Moss, is scheduled to begin in January and expected to be completed in August. Moss stated that lease negotiations for the additional space were well under way.

BELLFLOWER—A capacity crowd of 419 members and guests were present for the 42nd Annual Installation and Dinner-Dance of the Bellflower District Board of Realtors Wednesday evening to witness the passing of the gavel from Robert Y. Prigmore, 1963 president, to Paul M. Williams who will guide the board during 1964.

Smith, vice president of the board, is a relatively new member, having become associated with the board in 1958 as an associate member. In 1961 he became a Realtor member and has served on many board committees, among them the important Program Committee of which he is chairman.

Huge Space for Storage in Building

The West Coast's first appliance office-warehouse exclusively conceived and built for that purpose was unveiled last week in Los Angeles by Hotpoint district manager, R. A. McWhinney.

The 73,000 square foot facility, at 4353 Exchange Ave., can stockpile more than 180 carloads of refrigerators, washers, and dryers under a vaulted ceiling that permits refrigerators to be stacked four high.

A specially designed three-sequence operating department permits all paper work on an incoming order to be processed in less than five minutes from reception through credit check to shipping documents.

Two radio dispatchers provide Hotpoint customers with same-day service with one of 27 service trucks in the field. An efficiency check constantly maintained on the product service area by Hotpoint headqparters indicate an 80% first call completion record.

The building is constructed at truck height for loading, and all doors have ten foot entrances.

Plan Christmas Party Tuesday

Children will be special guests of the Long Beach District Board of Realtors Tuesday morning at its Christmas party breakfast meeting. Winnie Cross is program chairman.

Special features at the 7:15 a.m. event in the Crown Cafeteria will include:

PLAN SUNSHINE HOME SALES
Thomas Richey, marketing director; Richard C. Hunsaker, president; and S. V. Hunsaker Sr., board chairman of S. V. Hunsaker & Sons, builder-developer of Sunshine Homes, discuss year-end sales plans for company single-family residences at Huntington Beach and Lakewood East.

Hunsaker Homes in Demand

S. V. Hunsaker & Sons, builder-developer of Sunshine Homes — "the most wanted homes since 1932" — claim they offer today's discriminating buyer not just more for his money, but a better way of living.

Proof positive lies in the fact that Sunshine Homes have become sales leaders.

Thomas Richey, marketing director, points out that "Buyer acceptance of our Sunshine Homes in Huntington Beach and Lakewood East is reflected by above-average weekly sales."

* * * *

"OUR HOMES are best sellers because they include not just the features that buyers expect in a house, but features they do not expect," said Richey.

Huntington Beach Sunshine Homes may be purchased for as little as $95 down, with 6% financing. They are located on Heil off Golden West in Huntington Beach.

Lakewood East Sunshine Homes require a $295 down payment on prices that start from $21,100. They are located on Del Amo Road, west of Pioneer Blvd. in Lakewood.

WINS TROPHY
Honored as Associate of the year at recent banquet of Long Beach Realtors was Minnie Lacey-Baker, pictured here with trophy.

Easy-On-Feet Floor in Grant's Homes

The Belfontaine series of Stardust Homes in Fountain Valley is drawing a unique type of home seeker says builder-developer Robert H. Grant. "Our prospective home buyer is looking for a healthy way of life not only outside the home — but inside as well!"

Grant explained that Stardust Homes have a specia appeal in this respect because they're "easy on your feet!"

"The American housewife walks an average of 10 to 12 miles per day in the course of her regular work at home," said Grant. "This underlines the importance of floor composition and material."

THE .NATURAL strength and beauty of genuine hardwood floors adds to the distinction of every Stardust Home where the floors are carefully constructed on solid concrete piers for lasting value and comfort underfoot.

According to Grant and reports received from the American Podiatry Association, "The human body is being tortured by lack of resilience in the modern floors of America. Placing thick carpets over non-resilient floor surfaces doesn't solve the problem. It is not a natural footing."

Warm, resilient and comfortable oak floors are only one of several aristocratic features presented at the one and two-story Belfontaine residences on Garfield Ave., one-half mile east of Beach Blvd. and two miles from the Huntington Beach State Park in Fountain Valley. Homes are priced from $22,600 to $26,495 with FHA and VA financing.

First Units Renting in Capetown West

The first 20 buildings of a 160-unit apartment complex in Huntington Beach have just been completed. Known as Capetown West, the development is located on a 10 acre site just south of Hwy 39 on Slater Ave.

The $1.3 million Capetown West complex is made up of 40 single level buildings, each of which houses four two-bedroom apartments.

* * * *

THE APARTMENT-HOMES are in what is generally considered to be a moderate rental bracket, however, they offer many things found only in apartments with a much higher rental structure. They feature wall-to-wall carpeting, drapes, built-in kitchen, huge master bedroom, extra large wardrobes, and above all, excellent construction and soundproofing. The smallest apartment has 1000 sq. ft. of inside living area.

According to the builders, Capetown West's second phase of 80 apartments is now under construction, and will be completed about the first of the year. In addition to the Huntington Beach complex Lansing Investment Co., Inc. is also constructing a 68 unit apartment development in Escondito.

1964 Increases Predicted in Industrial Real Estate

OJAI, Calif. — "The year 1964 should be an excellent one for industrial real estate," Bill Brooks, of Long Beach, president of the Southern California Chapter of the Society of Industrial Realtors, said at the annual S.I.R. meeting here last week.

"The upsurge of inquiries and increased business reported by members of S.I.R. during the fourth quarter of this year is an indication of the confidence that business executives now have in the future industrial growth of the Southern California area," he said.

Brooks pointed out that the expansion is due to several factors, one of which is the wave of industrial demand that indicates that the gross national product will soon reach the $600 billion rate.

Capital outlays are advancing this quarter at almost a $2 billion rate and capital spending has increased from a low of $45 billion in 1961 to over $55 billion rate in this quarter. Many economists predict a $5 billion rise in 1964 which may increase if the proposed tax legislation is enacted by Congress, Brooks added.

Walker-Lee Sales Over $114 Million

Walker & Lee, Inc., reports sales to-date for 1963 of $114,957,500, gross volume. This total represents sales in homes, acreage, industrial/commercial and income departments.

Frank R. Hart, executive vice president of the real estate firm stated that the 19 re-sale offices and 32 subdivisions are realizing gains of 25% over last year.

In this 11-month period, 4,687 homes were sold. Of this number 2,138 were re-sales and 2,549 were new homes.

* * * *

HART DECLARED the 4th quarter of the 1963 year for the company would see a gain of $2½ million over the corresponding time for 1962.

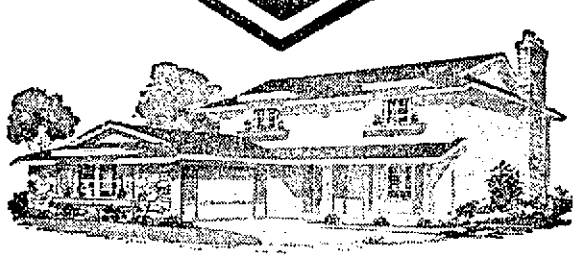

"This is a definite indication," said Hart, "that customer confidence in real estate continues to gain momentum."

In 1962, the 22-year-old firm of Walker & Lee achieved sales of over $100,000,000 which is believed to be a national record for a real estate firm concentrating in the residential field.

The firm is headed by DeWitt Lee and Frank R. Hart.

44,044 See White, Pirates Roll in Junior Rose Bowl

By KEN PIVERNETZ

The little man still has a place in football, especially if he's Billy White and he plays for Orange Coast College.

White, only 5-4 and 134 pounds, won player-of-the-game honors Saturday as the Pirates from Costa Mesa won an easy 21-0 decision over Northeastern Okla. A & M in the 18th annual Junior Rose Bowl game before a crowd of 44,044.

Northeastern, a three-point favorite at game time, was almost as inept as Columbia Basin, Wash., a year ago.

OCC should have scored at least two more TDs, but really didn't need any after the half.

* * * *

ONLY THE passing of White in the first half and some exciting running by Mike Hunter made the game interesting.

The Pirates' defensive unit turned in an outstanding effort and it was easy to see why nine Eastern Conference foes could only score 43 points this season.

White was six-for-seven in the first two quarters and wound up eight-for-14 for 115 yards.

The game was decided in the first half as OCC scored twice in the second quarter and then added one more with a minute left in the game.

How They Scored

	OCC	NEO
SECOND QUARTER
Orange Coast 3:28
Carr, 31 yd. pass from White	6	0
Haynes, conversion	7	0
Orange Coast 12:56
Hunter, 53 yd. punt return	13	0
Haynes, conversion	14	0
FOURTH QUARTER
Orange Coast 13:50
Hunter, 29 yd. pass from Jones	20	0
Haynes, conversion	21	0

Northeastern had only 32 net yards rushing and passing at the half compared to OCC's 205 and never got past the Pirate 35.

Orange Coast used nine backs in the game and all were impressive. The line play was exactly the same way—hard hitting with great pursuit and gang tackling.

The Pirates took the opening kickoff and drove all the way from their own 20 to A&M's three where Bob Haynes was stopped on the one when he tried to dive over right tackle.

* * * *

HUNTER, the former Anaheim star and a player who can hurt an opponent both as a receiver and with his broken field running ability, had the big play in the initial drive on a 24 yard sweep around left end that carried to the Golden Norsemen's 40.

It was a typical play that OCC used all day along with traps up the middle and White's effective, 'though not brilliant, passing.

The Pirates, with left guard Bill Epperson and left tackle Chuck Campbell leading the way, didn't have any trouble moving their slower opponents.

Pete Moseley's 66-yard quick kick kept A&M out of trouble in the first quarter and it wasn't until 3:23 had elapsed in the second period that the game's first score came.

White hit right end Gary Carr straight over the middle and Carr had no trouble outrunning Mike McElreath into the end zone.

After Haynes kicked the

Parseghian to Coach Football at Notre Dame

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI)—Notre Dame, never able to beat Ara Parseghian's Northwestern football teams on the field, hired him under a four-year contract as coach Saturday to try to restore the Fighting Irish to their former days of glory.

Parseghian, 40, quit with one year remaining on his contract as coach at Northwestern to take the Irish job. Wildcat athletic director Stu Holcomb said Northwestern willingly released Parseghian.

Parseghian, head coach at Miami of Ohio for five years where he had a 39-6-1 record, tutored the Wildcats for eight years, posting a 36-35-1 mark.

ARA PARSEGHIAN
Four-Year Contract

In four consecutive years against the Irish, Parseghian won every time, 30-24, 7-6, 12-10 and 35-7, from 1959 through 1962.

* * * *

"WE FEEL very fortunate in securing the services of such an outstanding coach as Parseghian," Rev. Edmund P. Joyce, C.S.C., executive vice president of Notre Dame and chairman of the Faculty Board in control of athletics, said.

Father Joyce also announced that Hugh Devore, "interim" coach of the Irish last year after the resignation of Joe Kuharich in March, had been named assistant athletic director.

"Coach Devore performed admirably in the assignment this year," he said, "and we're most appreciative."

* * * *

UNDER DEVORE this year, Notre Dame had a 2-7 mark. It fell one defeat short of equalling the all-time worst record ever marked up by the Irish.

The Irish have not had a winning season since a 6-4 mark in 1958. In 1960 they had a 2-8 record.

Parseghian becomes the 24th Notre Dame coach since the first in 1894.

3RD L.B. HOLIDAY IN 5 YEARS

Huskies Arrive Today

By JEROME HALL

Last time the University of Washington football team was in these parts for the Christmas holidays, ferryboats were running to San Pedro, four-legged goats were running around Chavez Ravine and Long Beach was planning a world's fair.

It's been awhile.

But the Washington football team, unavoidably derailed the past two years, today returns for the holidays, the third Christmas in Long Beach in the past five years.

* * * *

OFF A CHARTERED airliner this afternoon at Long Beach Municipal Airport will clamber 46 fresh faces in dark blue jackets, eager for a kiss from the Rose Bowl queen, a glimpse of sunshine and a trip to Disneyland, none of which Seattle offers.

In between, they'll spend the next 15 days tearing up the grass at Veterans Stadium, with intent to do the same on New Year's Day against the champion of the Big Ten, Illinois.

The Huskies will be four-point underdogs, but that should cause no distress since they were seven-point underdogs the day they dismantled Wisconsin by 36 points and six-point underdogs the day they de-monsterized the Minnesotans by 10.

It was Washington, it should be remembered, that started the West on the way up in the Rose Bowl. Until the Huskies moved into their Long Beach hotel rooms in the winter of 1959, the Big Ten had won 12 of the previous 13 Rose Bowl contests.

The record now is three out of the past four in favor of the West and if Illinois can't reverse the trend, the shoe will be on the other leg.

But there are no holdovers from those husky Husky teams, other than the one-eyed crackerjack quarterback, Bobby Schloredt, who is now an assistant coach.

All the husky Huskies are unspoiled in the ways of the Rose Bowl and coach Jim Owens is going to see that they stay that way until business is completed.

Instead of a trip around the movie studios, Owens has planned a few extra laps around Veterans Stadium. Insdtead of a quick run down to the beach for

65 FOULS CALLED AS TULSA WHISTLES PAST 49ERS, 112-83

By AL LARSON

TULSA — T-Town, U.S.A. turned into Foul Town Saturday night as Tulsa University avalanched Long Beach State, 112-83, before 2,881 whistle-weary customers at Fairgrounds Pavilion.

It marked the most points ever scored against the 49ers in 14 seasons, surpassing the 106 registered by Los Angeles State four seasons ago.

Coach Dick Perry's 49ers rest today before resuming their Oklahoma invasion against Phillips 66 Monday night. They'll need the day off for the 66ers are defending national AAU champs.

It didn't take long to establish the tenor of Saturday's game. The officials charged a personal against John Rambo on the opening tip-off and foul No. 2 was whistled one second later. Before the contest was over, the men in stripe shirts had called 65 fouls—34 against Long Beach and 31 versus Tulsa.

* * * *

THE RUGGED Missouri Valley Conference outfit entered the game averaging 93 points, but for the first 10 minutes it appeared the Hurricanes would fall far short of this.

After scoring their field goal, Tulsa went eight minutes before cashing in No. 2. But in between the Hurricanes pumped in 18 free throws and managed to hold a slim 22-21 lead.

Ken Ammann squared matters at 24-24 with a basket—the last time the 49ers could honestly say they were in the game.

TU quickly shot ahead, 40-27, behind the fancy shooting of Carlos Gripado, a 6-6 junior from Pawhuska, Oklahoma. By halftime, Tulsa led, 55-42, but only because of its superior foul shooting. The T-Town boys sank only one more field goal (16-15) but held an 11-point bulge at the charity line.

The second half was never close as Tulsa got balanced fire power from Bob Fedorko, Bill Kusleika, Rick Park and Larry Berke. By the time coach Joe Swank pulled his regulars with 10 minutes still to play, each had hit double figures.

* * * *

PERRY WAS fit to be tied afterwards. "I just don't understand why we can't play defense. We work hard in practice but then in the game we just can't get the job done. The only man who does is Lyn (Hodge).

"Hodge did a great job on Kusleika, their leading scorer who was averaging 27 points before tonight. He was an all-Missouri Valley Conference selection last year and Lyn held him to 13 points. But we just can't get anyone else to

POST-GAME CONTRAST

Pirates Felt Best; NEO 'Beat Better'

By RAY CUNNINGHAM

The post-game contrast was evident. Surrounded by kisses and laughter was peewee Billy White, so excited he could hardly wait to hear what he was going to say. And all alone with a tan Stetson cocked over one eye was three-time loser Red Robertson, who looked as if he'd just swallowed a bagful of gravel.

Orange Coast College had just won the 18th annual Junior Rose Bowl game, 21-0, from Northeastern Oklahoma A&M.

The 5-4, 134-pound White, who doesn't appear to be much older than his number 11, was jubilant. His fine passing and general excellence were so instrumental in the victory that he was named "player of the game" in a close vote over teammate Mike Hunter.

Robertson, in his 19th season as coach of the Oklahoma squad, was heartsick with his boys' performance. "I'm just humiliated," he said. "We were terrible. I am just floored. I can't explain it."

* * * *

IT WAS HIS third trip to the Junior Rose Bowl and he has yet to win. It was evident throughout the game that he was disturbed and displeased as his boys went nowhere time and again. But he could do nothing. He was as helpless as the owner of a sick goldfish.

There was no doubt that Orange Coast soundly whipped the Golden Norsemen. But there were different explanations from the two teams.

As a group, Orange Coast players felt they were superior. Almost to the man they said that the Norsemen would have run into a lot of trouble if they'd been in the Eastern Conference.

And, almost to the man, Oklahoma players felt that they had beaten better teams this season but that for some reason they just couldn't get going Saturday.

Orange Coast's Dick Tucker, the polished young man in his second year of junior college coaching, gave North-

Goetta Posts Decisive 'Alamitos Futurity Win

By ERNIE MASON

With the big money waiting at the line of finish, Hugh Huntley's Goetta changed overnight from a charmaid to a princess Saturday afternoon as she made a mockery out of the second running of the $114,300 Los Alamitos Futurity.

Only two weeks ago Goetta was the toast of the quarter horse racing world, but two subsequent defeats stripped her of her charms until Saturday when she defeated the fastest 2-year-old sprinters in the world by a decisive one and one-quarter lengths.

J. W. and D. J. Burr's Maggie McGowan ran her usual steady race to finish second in a photo finish with D. C. Castronova's Surgin Gold third, and the 6 to 5 favorite, previously unbeaten Tidy's Pleasure a badly chagrined fifth.

Tidy's Pleasure had no excuses, breaking alertly and holding as much as a one-length margin half way down the stretch. However, when Goetta got into high gear, Tidy's Pleasure slowly faded to be beaten nearly two lengths at the wire.

* * * *

IN POSTING the second most important victory of her career, and eighth out of 10 starts, Goetta earned $51,371 to boost her lifetime earnings to $186,058, second only to Jet Deck in total winnings. She turned the 350 yards in 17.6 seconds, fastest ever recorded for a 2-year-old and only one-tenth of a second off the world record of 17.5 held by Vandy's Flash.

A turnout of 11,106 racing patrons saw Goetta's backers pick up mutuel payoffs of $6.60, 3.80 and $3.20 across the board. It was the longest price against the Huntley miss in her entire career.

MIGHTY Jet Deck became victimized by a bad break in the co-featured Hard Twist purse at 400 yards and finished out of the money for only the third time in 30 career starts.

The Western Stables' Scooper Chick, given a reprieve by Jet Deck's stumbling start, came on to win the Hard Twist by a convincing neck over Anna Dial, with Dariman third.

Scooper Chick was wasting no time with the champion quarter horse of all time eliminated, scooting the 400 yards in 19.9 seconds to equal the world record set here April 29, 1961 by Breeze Bar. The strong overnight second choice to Jet Deck, Scooper Chick paid a surprising win price of $13.60.

Coliseum Defends Parking

In the backwash of blistering criticism aimed at it during the USC-UCLA football game two weeks ago, the L. A. Coliseum has issued an informative and amusing communique on the number of parking spaces in its vicinity.

The statement begins:

"An exhaustive survey—made on foot, in cars and from the air—reveals that the Coliseum and Sports Arena has a total of 31,913 parking spaces within a six to 10 block radius of Exposition Park.

"Of this total, 19,850 spaces are free curb-side parking spaces available during events in an area that in acres corresponds to other large outdoor facilities in Greater Los Angeles."

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

Aw, come on, Bill Nicholas and Jack Tobin! You've got to be kidding about those 19,850 FREE curb-side parking spaces. I'll admit your exhaustive survey may have determined that there are that many spaces within your 10-block radius, but how many of those spaces are utilized by Coliseum or Arena patrons?

I'd be astonished if 1,000 FREE curb-side parking spaces are taken up by your patrons. Those spots are utilized by homeowners, their brothers, sisters, fathers and mothers who seem to come from nowhere about 10 a.m. the day of a game in order to park the family cars at the curb-side.

The object is obvious: Get the sucker to park in their driveway or on their front lawn for a neat $2.50 tab.

If you don't believe us, Bill and Jack, make a personal two-man survey the next time you have a major Coliseum attraction and find out how many of those FREE curb-side parking areas are NOT being used by your patrons.

Another thing. Your survey pointed out that 11,063 parking lot stalls (both the state-operated ones and those of private operations) are available. Have you ever tried to get OUT of those traps after a big game? I realize this is beyond your jurisdiction, but I thought I'd point it out.

Coliseum and Sports Arena parking is anything but a pleasure. Not that your operation is any different from Dodger Stadium, but the harassed baseball patron has some advantages:

1. He can leave after seven innings, usually without missing too much.

2. He can enjoy Walter O'Malley's beer (or wines, if he belongs to the Stadium Club) for an hour after each contest when the jam is alleviated.

O'Malley does have a major disadvantage, however. He doesn't have those 19,850 FREE curb-side parking spaces . . . and why do you think he built his Taj Mahal on the site of an old Indian burial ground? The Indians never gave anything away FREE.

GRABBING THE BRASS RINGS:

. . . The Nicholas-Tobin survey pointed out a further curious bit of information: Regular service Metropolitan Transit Authority buses delivered 816 passengers to the Coliseum, but 1,111 used MTA service to go home. (I thought MORE than 300 people got boiled at traditional football games that lured 82,426 fans!)

. . . April flowers, from the South Bend Tribune column of Joe Doyle (on April 18): "Coach Hugh Devore's move in opening spring practice to fans and students is certainly a welcome one. In recent years in football, there has been a growing gap between the athletes and the other students in colleges." (The gap at Notre Dame hasn't been so noticeable. Most of their athletes ARE students . . . at least that's what the Irish football record would indicate. And I hope this sarcasm doesn't make Frank X. O'Neil, John Rochford and Chuck Johnson TOO angry.)

. . . When the U. of Washington football team arrives here this afternoon, I hope none of the press asks big Jim Owens this question: "How does it feel to be in the Rose Bowl with the worst record in years?" (I understand a Seattle writer made that interrogation and almost had his head presented to him on a platter.)

. . . Early prediction: The Huskies to win another Rose Bowl game next Jan. 1. Owens means business . . . and that's good enough for me.

BACK IN Southern Calif. on recruiting assignments is Stanford's John Ralston, the tireless young man. John's not happy with his infant season's 3-7 record, but he's not ready to leap off Belmont Pier, either. "I look back at some of our losses and admit they were the result of coaching mistakes," says John. "It takes time to honestly evaluate all the personnel and also for the coaches to function together properly."

. . . The sudden resignation of Cal's Marv Levy caught Ralston by surprise, too. An ex-Golden Bear himself, Ralston quickly answered Old Blues in this area when they wondered if John might be ready to listen to a Cal coaching offer. "Absolutely not," snapped Ralston. "I'm happy at Stanford. Period."

. . . Ralston's three wins put him in good stead with the always-problem alumni. He whipped two neighborhood foes—Cal and San Jose St.—and the famous Notre Dame Irish (before a national TV audience). He barely lost to UCLA, Washington and Oregon State. Just a bit of luck would have given him a tremendous 6-4 first-year mark.

. . . P.S. Don't look for Cal to name a head coach immediately. I think the Berkeleys could do much worse than hire Dick Stanfel, the ex-USF and Detroit Lion giant. Stanfel is rough, as Bear linemen learned this season. The Bears need teeth . . . and Stanfel will supply that commodity, or personally knock out the molars himself.

PIMENTEL, ASIS BATTLE AT L.A. SPORTS ARENA

Bantamweight title contenders Jesus Pimentel of Mexicali, Mex., and Rey Asis of Stockton, Calif., headline a fight card scheduled for Monday night in the L. A. Sports Arena.

Pimentel, who has registered 25 straight knockouts, is favored over Asis, a native of the Philippines who has never been stopped in 65 bouts.

Pimentel is rated the No. 1 challenger and Asis No. 4 for the title held by Brazil's Eder Jofre. The winner hopes to meet the champion.

Pimentel, who has never fought a ranked fighter before, was originally booked to box Minum Ben Ali of Spain but the latter cancelled out of the match.

Heavyweight Eddie Machen was originally slated to headline the card, a charity affair sponsored by the Friars' Club, but the California Athletic Commission refused to approve Johnny Riggins of San Francisco as a suitable opponent.

Lakers Rally for Win Over Bullets

By DON HARDIN

If there is a spring loose in your watch, then it must be repaired with another.

Jerry West is about the best person to repair such a spring in the Lakers' attack.

West, the kid from Cabin Creek, took up the slack from Elgin Baylor's absence, as usual, Saturday night, scoring 38 points to help the Lakers to a 113-108 victory over the Baltimore Bullets.

In winning, the Lakers built up their lead in the Western Division of the NBA over the St. Louis Hawks, whom they meet tonight at 7:05 in the L.A. Sports Arena where they won Saturday night.

West, who scored only 11 points in the first half, repeatedly drew fouls, missed only one free throw out of 16 attempts in the second half while scoring six field goals to enable the Lakers to overcome a 54-46 halftime deficit.

Gene Wiley, aided by Rudy LaRusso, held the Bullets' towering Walt Bellamy to 21 points, all but five of them coming in the final period when the Lakers just about had the affair sewed up. Wiley had nine blocked shots!

LaRusso, who has been having to share the defensive burden since Elg's afflictions, was tremendous in every respect.

Other than his outstanding defensive work, Rudy scored 19 points.

Rod Thorn, a likeness of West, led the Bullets with 29 points and Terry Dischinger had 23.

Baylor will suit up tonight but possibly will not play.

* * * *

OF COURSE, the Bullets are not the best drawing team in the league, but still the crowd of 5,671 was disappointing. Baylor's name alone means hundreds—even thousands—extra fans for a game. But, Elg stayed home because of a severe cold.

There were West Virginians, ex-Lakers and all kinds of relatives vying in the first half.

Thorn, from West Virginia University, scored 16 points. He was West's predecessor at that university.

Coach Fred Schaus of the Lakers also was that school's mentor.

Poly Wins Third Place; Dons Beaten by Glendale

By RALPH OLMO

Cold-shooting Dominguez High did very little right Saturday night and lost its own basketball tournament to Glendale, 49-44. It was the Dons' first loss this season.

Poly returned to the victory circle in the game for third place, whipping Anaheim 67-59. Crescenta Valley won the consolation crown and Redlands finished seventh.

Dominguez could convert only one field goal in the first 10 minutes and never led the tall Dynamiters, who were not good enough to finish better than ninth in the recent Pacific Shores tourney.

Herb Hargate was again a one-man scoring machine for Dominguez, contributing 25 points. The lanky forward was named the tourney's top player and led all scorers with 87 points.

Poly landed three players on the all-tourney team—center Mel Reed, soph forward Chuck Moore and guard Billy Richard. Others were Ed Palmer and Bill Paulson of Glendale, Bill Holt of Dominguez, Pat Watt of Anaheim, Gene Sutherland of Crescenta Valley and Doug Eckert of Palos Verdes.

The Rabbits had a 10-point lead at halftime, saw that margin reduced to four in the final period and then used baskets by Moore and Trent Gaines to move away to a comfortable bulge. Moore finished with 61 points in four games and Reed 58.

Blades Barraged by Denver, 9-4

DENVER (AP) — Two four-goal periods helped the Denver Invaders to a 9-4 victory over the Los Angeles Blades in a Western Hockey League game Saturday night.

The victory increased Denver's league lead over second-place Seattle to five points.

It was the ninth consecutive home triumph for the Invaders.

Denver scored four times in the first and in the last periods, skating far out of reach of the visitors after Los Angeles closed the breach to 5-4 at the end of the second period.

Larry Keenan, Gary Jarrett and Steve Wiliuk each scored two goals for the Invaders.

STAUBACH TOP COLLEGE GRID IN U.P.I. POLL

NEW YORK (UPI) — Navy's Roger Staubach, the marvelous Middie whose specialties are throwing passes and receiving trophies, has climaxed the 1963 season in fitting fashion when he was named college "player of the year" by United Press International.

Staubach, who has won the Heisman Trophy among other numerous awards, is currently preparing for New Year's Day when his Navy team, the second-ranked college eleven in the country, tangles with top-ranked Texas in the Cotton Bowl.

Roger finished first in the balloting by an unprecedented margin.

Green Bay Keeps Hopes Alive, 21-17

WYNN

Man to Man

KIRKLAND

By JERRY WYNN

The toughest job in football isn't coach or quarterback. It is being an official.

Just ask Frank Kirkland.

The energetic director of recreation at Long Beach Naval Base has been wearing a striped shirt on weekends for 14 years. This year, he is a rookie official in the American Football League.

A Long Beach native, Kirkland is well qualified to call the shots on the playing field. He was an all-CIF center at Compton High, an all-America jaycee at Compton College and played football and basketball at the University of Santa Barbara.

First, Frank, could you outline the individual responsibilities of a pro football official?

"There are five officials in a game. The referee is the senior member of the crew and the deciding factor; the head linesman is responsible for offsides, the chains and his side of the field; the back judge is opposite the head linesman and is responsible for motion calls, offsides and his side of the field; the field judge is responsible for timing and deep passes down the middle; the umpire is responsible for interior linemen and calls penalties for illegal use of hands."

How much does an official get paid?

"In the American League, we get paid by the season and average about $150 a game including pre-season. The National League hires its officials by the game. I think they get $250 a game and $125 for pre-season."

Is the pay too much or too little?

"Too little."

What is considered the toughest play to call?

"Pass interference. You have to be guided by the position of the ball and the player's bona fide attempt to get two hands on the ball. The rule book says you can 'go through a man.' But a lot of players try to cut a man in half and that's not the intent of the rule."

Have you encountered any dirty play this season?

"No. I have not had to call any unnecessary roughness penalties except for minor cases of piling-on. There has been no intentional or malicious roughness. There is a $100 fine in the AFL for being kicked out of a game and the players are aware of it."

Does the noise of a rabid home crowd have any effect on an official?

"Not at all. Sure you can hear the crowd, but it doesn't affect your decision. The reason for a lot of the booing is that fans don't know the pro rules."

How do AFL teams compare with the NFL?

"I truthfully think two or three of the AFL teams could fit in the NFL right now. I'd like to see them play a world series. I think a team like the Chargers could give any NFL team a game. I know they can offensively. I don't know defensively."

Who are some of the AFL players who have impressed you the most?

"Lance Alworth and Keith Lincoln of San Diego are top backs. Alworth is an identical copy of Jon Arnett in his prime. He has tremendous speed and mobility. Lincoln is just a real good hard-nosed player who loves to run."

What was the toughest call you ever made?

"I had a tough one this season in a game between Houston and Buffalo in Texas. It was an offensive pass interference penalty which cost Buffalo a touchdown. The receiver went straight at the safetyman, pushed off and then caught the pass."

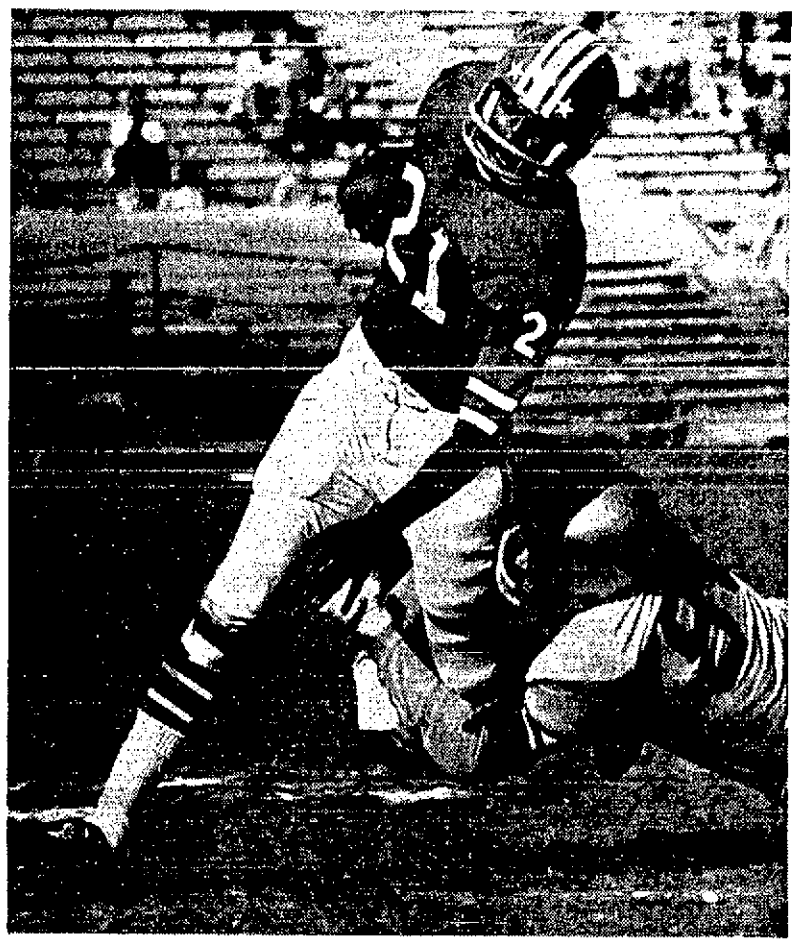

What kind of athletic program do you have at the Navy Base?

"The emphasis has gone from varsity to intramural competition. We have 55 teams playing basketball, 73 teams playing softball, 130 teams bowling and a golf league."

Is it true that no one loves an official except his family?

"Yes, and sometimes I wonder about them. It's like the wife of Lenny Dawson (Kansas City quarterback) said when she was asked if she objected to fans booing her husband. She answered, 'No, sometimes I feel like booing him myself!' "

Boo them or cheer them, but football has to have fine officials such as Frank Kirkland.

Starr-Led Air Game Decisive

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Green Bay Packers kept their championship hopes alive Saturday with a "long bomb" attack that edged the San Francisco 49ers, 21-17.

The Packers now have to depend on the Detroit Lions to defeat the Chicago Bears today to give Green Bay its fourth consecutive Western Division National Football League crown.

Fought to a standstill on the ground by an aroused defense, the Packers took to the air for the victory. Quarterback Bart Starr found Boyd Dowler behind the San Francisco secondary with passes that were good for 53 and 50 yard touchdowns. That spelled the difference.

THE PACKERS had marched 78 yards to a score the first time they got the ball with Tom Moore piling over from the one. But the 49ers came back with an 80-yard ground drive of their own featuring J. D. Smith and the veteran Joe Perry. The score came when Smith piled over from the two.

On the ensuing kickoff, Green Bay fumbled and San Francisco recovered on the Packer 23. This attack stalled on the 15 and two minutes after the Packers got the ball, Starr faked and then hit Dowler with his first touchdown bomb.

San Francisco came right back to knot the count at 14-14 when Smith broke over tackle and went 52 yards to score.

STARR'S NEXT bomb to Dowler came in the third quarter and put the Packers ahead to stay. Tommy Davis, who tied the National League record of 156 consecutive conversions with his conversion after the second San Francisco touchdown, kicked a 44-yard field goal in the last quarter.

Mira Entertains Eager Offers by S.F., Denver

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The San Francisco 49ers and the Denver Broncos entered into spirited bidding Saturday night for George Mira, Miami's great passing quarterback.

Lou Spada of the 49ers and Ray Malavasi of the Broncos opened negotiations with Mira shortly after the Hurricane quarterback put on a spectacular passing performance in Miami's 17-12 loss to fifth ranked Alabama.

"I don't want to rush into anything," Mira said. "I'll just sort of wait and see what develops. Maybe I'll decide tomorrow or the next day."

Haynes broke loose for the first time this season. The elusive 190 pounder raced for 85 yards in five trips, including a 36-yard touchdown run. He also had runs of 28 and 17 yards. Prior to this game his longest run of the season was only 14 yards.

Colts Favored in Finale With Rams

By JERRY WYNN
I. P-T Staff Writer

BALTIMORE — The Rams invade the world's largest outdoor insane asylum, Baltimore's Memorial Stadium, to battle the Colts today in their final game of the season.

There are no more rabid pro football fans than the citizens of the crabcake town on the Chesapeake, and a crowd of 53,000 is expected despite weather ideal for fireplace quarterbacks. It snowed here earlier in the week and there is a chance for more today.

Baltimore is favored by nine points to reverse the 17-16 defeat it took from the Rams at the Coliseum three weeks ago. With Johnny Unitas riding high in the saddle, the Colts since then have galloped over the Redskins, 56-20, and Vikings, 41-10.

Unitas never has been sharper. In his last five games, he has completed 65.7 per cent of his passes. His season's percentage of 57.9 exceeds his best of 57.1 in 1957. Against Minnesota, he passed for 344 yards to break his own season club yardage record with 3,158.

* * * *

MOREOVER, statistics can't do justice to the excellence of Unitas' signal-calling and ball-handling.

If Baltimore needs added incentive today, it has it. For it will be the final game for Gino Marchetti, the great defensive end who has announced his retirement after a career of 12 years.

The Colts also need a win to boost their record to 8-6 and give coach Don Shula a successful rookie year.

So it would appear that the Rams will have to be at their best today to produce the upset which would climax their best season since 1958. A victory coupled with a Detroit defeat at Chicago would enable the Rams to finish in fourth place with a record of 6-8.

Coach Harland Svare will pin his hopes on the sturdy shoulders of Roman Gabriel, the sophomore quarterback star, who for one half last Saturday was a 14-10 winner over the Packers. The Rams are at full strength with the exception of Jon Arnett, who still is hobbled by a pulled leg muscle.

'SEASON STARTS TODAY'

Tab Giants, Bears in Title Matches

By Associated Press

"The season," said Jim Katcavage, "starts at 2:05 Sunday afternoon."

This, of course, may be a mild over-simplification. But only a mild one. It took 92 National Football League games to set the stage for this one, the winner-take-all battle between the New York Giants and Pittsburgh Steelers for the Eastern Conference title.

There's no way they can end up sharing it. Someone wins and someone loses. The Giants are favored by 7 points.

The Giants can grab their third in a row with a win or a tie. The Steelers, who have had more than their share of ties this season, have to win to take their first conference title.

The Steelers pinned a 31-0 humiliation on the Giants in their first game this season, but bald old Y. A. Tittle, key to the Giants' offense, missed that game.

The Giants take a 10-3 record into the final regular season game, while the Steelers are 7-3-3. It developed into a two-team race last week when Cleveland was eliminated 38-10 by Detroit and St. Louis dropped out despite a 38-14 victory over Philadelphia. The Browns and Cards each have a 9-4 mark.

In the West, the defending champion Green Bay Packers won their Saturday game at San Francisco to stay alive. They are 11-2-1.

The Chicago Bears take a 10-1-2 mark into their season windup, a home game against Detroit, 5-7-1. A Chicago victory will clinch the Western title for "coach of the year" George Halas.

The Bears won the first match from the Lions, 37-21, on the strength of a 28-point second quarter. They are picked by six points this time.

The Steelers lost to Cleveland, St. Louis and Green Bay. They tied Philadelphia twice and Chicago once. New York lost to the Steelers, Cards and Browns.

"If we don't beat Pittsburgh once," said Giant linebacker Sam Huff, "we don't deserve it."

Both teams are healthy. The Giants are expected to have fullback Alex Webster back in action for the first time in four weeks.

QUANTICO IN MISSILE BOWL WIN OVER S.D.

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI)— Dick Bainbridge, a third-string defensive end starting his first game, turned in two key pass interceptions Saturday to spark Quantico to a 13-10 victory over San Diego before 8,000 fans in the fourth annual Missile Bowl football game.

Bainbridge's first interception started the drive for the winning touchdown. His second halted San Diego on the Quantico 18.

Quantico scored the winning touchdown when quarterback Tom Singleton hit Herm Brausch with a screen pass good for 26 yards.

Tunney Beat Dempsey With Psychology

I was quite surprised the past week when Jack Dempsey admitted he may have been slipped a mickey before he went into the ring against Gene Tunney in the first of their two fights.

Oh, not at the fact that such things happen. We have revealed many such instances in the past.

Latest fighter to reveal he had been slipped something was Ingemar Johansson. He claims that before his second fight with Patterson—he was champion then—a drug was put into his food the day before the fight and he was ill all night. He claims he still was weak when he entered the ring.

Harold Johnson was drugged in his dressing room before a TV fight when he ate a drugged orange.

You can't trust anyone in the fight game. For instance, the boxing mob allegedly had a man planted in Max Schmeling's corner the night he fought Joe Louis for the heavyweight title.

The world was on the brink of war and the mob was afraid that if Schmeling beat Louis, he would take the title back to Germany and "freeze it."

JACK DEMPSEY
"Tunney Made Me an Idol"

Schmeling earlier had knocked out Louis before Joe became champ. It was the Brown Bomber's first of three defeats as a pro. Presumably, if Louis hadn't been able to handle the German again, the cornerman would have used some means to "stop" Max . . . such as putting something in his eyes while wiping off his face.

However, such action was not necessary. Louis knocked out Schmeling in the first round with one of the most savage attacks in ring history.

Incidents like these have been common in the fight game down through the years.

IT MAY WELL HAVE happened to Dempsey, but I still was surprised to hear him say it because in a private conversation with him a few years ago, he told me that the best thing that ever happened to him was to lose to Tunney. "I would have been just another ex-champion . . . and not a particularly popular one at that. But Tunney made me an idol and set me up for life," Jack said.

Dempsey was very unpopular during World War I and for a few years afterward. He was called a slacker when he didn't go into the service, but the "long count" in the second bout with Tunney wiped out all this feeling and gained immortality for Jack.

Many boxing men claim that Tunney beat Dempsey in their first fight with a great job of psychology, first by reading Shakespeare and then by flying from his training camp to the weigh-in ceremonies.

Flying was still considered extremely dangerous in those days and a man close to Dempsey later confided that the more Jack thought about it before the fight, the more it bothered him.

He figured that if Tunney wasn't afraid to fly before such an important fight, he certainly wasn't afraid of Dempsey . . . "and Jack's confidence steadily deteriorated between the weigh-in ceremonies and the time he went into the ring."

HAROLD F. PIERCE, who did some fighting in the Navy as Bruno Piaskowski, writes to say he was serving aboard the old coal-burning battleship, USS Utah, in 1925 when she made a midshipman's cruise of the West Coast.

"With us," he reveals, "was Spike Webb, the noted boxing coach of the Naval Academy. One day, he told us about Dempsey. 'No man in the world today can stand up to him,' he told us.

"But if Dempsey continues the way he has and doesn't fight before another year, there is one fighter that might take him,' Webb went on. 'That man is Gene Tunney. I trained him when he won the AEF light-heavyweight title overseas. He is a good, cool, smart boxer. He has studied every one of Dempsey's fights and has been practicing running backwards for a year. He could beat Dempsey a year from now if Jack continues his present life and inactivity.'"

Dempsey, of course, had been idle for three years when he finally met Tunney on Sept. 23, 1926, in Philadelphia.

A LOT OF HANKY-PANKY went on around that time. After Tunney decisioned Dempsey in 10 rounds to win the title, Jack was matched with Jack Sharkey in a comeback bout leading up to a return fight with Gene in Chicago in 1927.

The story, as told to us by a man in the boxing game, was that Sharkey reportedly was "promised" the heavyweight title at a later date by the guys who ran the boxing game if he lost to Dempsey.

Dempsey, of course, won the fight and then met Tunney a second time. In the 7th round, Jack finally caught up with Gene and knocked him down. He wouldn't go to a neutral corner immediately, though, and the referee refused to start the count until he did. That is how the "long count" of 14 seconds occurred.

Few people remember that after Tunney weathered the round, he took complete command of the fight again and pummeled Dempsey almost at will in the final three rounds and even had Jack on the floor. Dempsey probably wouldn't have been able to last the 15-round distance now used for title bouts.

ANYWAY, AFTER Tunney retired . . . Sharkey and Schmeling were matched to decide his successor.

Schmeling dropped to the floor claiming foul in the 4th round and his manager, Joe Jacobs, stampeded the referee into awarding the German the fight and title on a foul, although doctors later claimed Max wasn't hurt that badly by the blow. From this incident stemmed the rule that a fight cannot be won on a foul.

The two were rematched. This time, according to many ringsiders, Schmeling actually outpointed Sharkey, but the latter was given the decision. A "promise," thus, may well have been kept.

Sharkey later lost the title to Primo Carnera when he was knocked out by the now famous "invisible punch." It was a fitting end to a series of strange developments.

SCHEDULE 2 TITLE BOUTS

The biggest attraction in wrestling is on the schedule this week for the final Long Beach card of the year.

It's Bearcat Wright against Edouard Carpentier in a heavyweight championship match. But there actually will be two championship matches, since the new tag team champions, Mr. Moto and Kintaro Oki, will be back to oppose Freddie Blassie and The Preacher.

PAT, it was 7-0 and the game was all over.

HUNTER SCORED the game's second TD on a twisting 53-yard punt return with three minutes to go in the half. Taking the ball on one bounce over his shoulder, Hunter got a great block from Dick Gordon at A&M's 40 and then turned on the speed to romp the rest of the way down the center of the field after starting near Northeastern's bench on the left sideline.

After that it was hard to tell if Orange Coast was that good or Northeastern that bad.

Northeastern's one big chance came early in the final period on a drive that started at its own 47 and moved down the field with George Kevern and Rich Enyart doing the most damage.

* * * *

WITH A first-and-goal on the OCC five, two plays could gain only two yards before Andy Sixkiller, a full-blooded Cherokee Indian, went around left end and into the end zone.

However, the left end on the play was called for facing sideways, instead of ahead on the line of scrimmage and an illegal formation call pushed them back to the eight and ended the threat as a fourth-down pass fell incomplete.

Northeastern, trying to gamble late in the game, gave up the ball on fourth down on OCC's 45 that led to the final TD of the game.

Sub quarterback Larry Jones from Gary, Ind., directed the seven-play march.

* * * *

HUNTER was a one-man show in the final minutes of the game, scrambling 18 yards to the Northeastern 35. Two plays later he caught a 29-yard pass from Jones for the TD with 1:15 to go. Haynes made his third PAT in a row.

Hunter was the game's top rusher and receiver. He gained 58 yards on seven carries for an 8.28 average and caught six passes for 78 yards besides scoring twice.

It was difficult to see how Northeastern was the No. 1-rated jaycee team in the country.

The Golden Norsemen's offense left a lot to be desired, their team speed couldn't equal the Belmont Bears and there wasn't anything speedy about star end "Speedy" Gonzales.

It was the third loss for Northeastern in the JRB, giving the Norsemen a dubious record, and after looking at the best of the rest the last two years, there shouldn't be any doubt as to what part of the country has the top caliber of junior college football.

BIGGEST MAN ON FIELD
Orange Coast College's 5-4, 134-pound quarterback, Billy White, was named "player of the game" for leading 21-0 Junior Rose Bowl win over Northeastern Oklahoma. White completed 8 of 14 passes for 115 yards and one touchdown.

eastern more credit than his players did.

"They had a good football team," said Tucker. "They were not underrated. After all, remember they had beaten the number one team in five different states.

* * * *

"BUT TODAY we played our finest defensive game of the year, and we put it together with an excellent offense.

DICK TUCKER
Best Defensive Game

"Our whole team was superb, but offhand I'd say that defensive end Ken Madison, Hunter and Billy were at their best."

Madison, Hunter and White all thought that Orange Coast coaches had done a remarkable job scouting Northeastern and that the Norsemen didn't present any surprises.

Hunter, whose great punt runback gave the Pirates their second touchdown, had a lot of praise for Northeastern's all-purpose back Andy Sixkiller. And White said that he was bothered in the second half by the hard rushes of 212-pound Norseman tackle Howard Glen.

"He was on my neck all the time," revealed Billy. "And he really coldcocked me in the fourth quarter."

* * * *

TWO LINEMEN, 275-pound tackle Ron Cray and left end Mike Fazio, summed up most of the Orange Coast feelings, though.

Cray said the Oklahomans "just didn't pop. They were slow and didn't hit hard. They just didn't pop. That's all."

Fazio said, "I sure don't mean to be disrespectful, but they ran like they had sewing machines on their backs."

In the Oklahoma dressing room there was bewilderment. Almost no one, not even coach Robertson, would say that Orange Coast was the best team the Norsemen had faced.

Stars like Sixkiller, George Kevern and Pete Moseley all felt they were better than the men from Orange County, but they, like their coach, just couldn't understand how they lost.

The only one who did come up with an explanation was the heralded right end, Floi (Speedy) Gonzales. He said, "I guess they were better'n us."

O'BRIEN BIDS FOR FOURTH OLYMPIAD

Parry O'Brien, who "retires" from shotput participation each year, will be a full-time competitor in 1964, he revealed Saturday.

The Beverly Hills banker hopes to become the first American to compete in four Olympiads. O'Brien won gold medals in 1952 and '56, a silver medal in '60.

O'Brien opens his "target Tokyo" campaign Jan. 18 in the Los Angeles Invitational at the L.A. Sports Arena.

EASTERN CONFERENCE DEFENDED BY TUCKER

Orange Coast College's Dick Tucker, whose unbeaten Pirates ripped Northeastern Oklahoma A&M in Saturday's Junior Rose Bowl game, put in a plug for the Eastern Conference in a post-game interview.

"I don't go along with the feeling of many that the Eastern Conference is weak," said the 37-year-old mentor who has gained jaycee coaching prestige in only his second season.

"I saw both Long Beach and Bakersfield this year," he said, "and both were tremendous. But I think that last year's Santa Ana team and this year's Orange Coast squad are every bit as good if not better.

"It may be true," he admitted, "that the Eastern Conference may not be as strong in the overall sports outlook, but in football I think our top teams are on a par with those of any other conference."

E. Sadowski Sold; Haddix to Birds

With the inter-league trading deadline set for midnight tonight, there was a scattering of activity on the major league front Saturday.

The Angels sold veteran catcher Ed Sadowski to Hawaii and purchased three first-year players who may later be optioned under the provisions adopted at the recent baseball meetings.

The Angels purchased 19-year-old catcher George Pena from Quad-Cities, 20-year-old pitcher Chris Maneff from Quad-Cities and 18-year-old outfielder Jay Johnstone from San Jose.

Pittsburgh traded southpaw Harvey Haddix to Baltimore for minor league shortstop Dick Yencha and an undisclosed amount of cash. The deal is conditional with the Orioles having the first 30-days of the 1964 season to decide if they want to keep Haddix.

Johnny Temple, who retired from baseball and the Houston Colt .45s at the close of the 1963 season, has signed as a coach with Cincinnati.

HUSKIES--

some surfing, Owens has in mind some quick runs through the infamous Purple Gang gauntlet line, described as "more vicious than almost any real game."

OWENS HAS announced, further, that the practice schedule is so tight that all drills will be behind locked gates.

In the shade of a "Welcome Huskies" banner this afternoon at Municipal Airport will be held a public ceremony, scheduled for 2:45 after chartered-aircraft touchdown.

Then follows a motorcade to the Lafayette Hotel where another gathering is scheduled at 3:15, bands and civic officials at both locations.

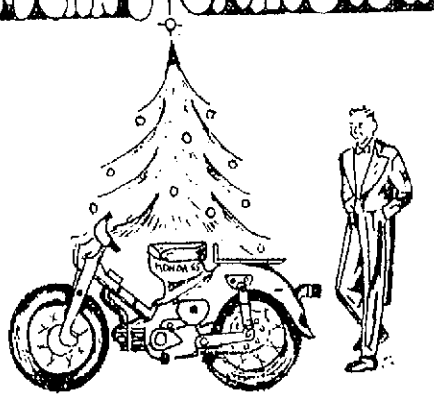

Then follows locked practices, more vicious than most football games. And, say Husky rooters, more vicious than the battle the Illini will put up New Year's Day.

By DOUG IVES

Poly High's multi-talented halfback, Marv Motley, and a pair of hard-nosed Wilson linemen, Bob Heckman and Doug McKenzie, have won the most cherished of Long Beach prep football awards.

The dynamic 155-pound Motley has been selected back of the year and the durable Heckman and McKenzie co-linemen of the 1963 season on the All-City high school team chosen by the Independent, Press-Telegram Board of Athletics.

Co-Moore League champions Wilson and Poly dominated the 12-man offensive and defensive teams, landing nine of the offensive berths and six of the defensive positions.

* * * *

MOTLEY, probably the best back Long Beach has seen since Willie Brown, gobbled up 1,204 yards and averaged 9.4 yards per carry in 10 games and tacked on 18 touchdowns and 22 pass receptions as well.

Despite his size, he ran with power as well as speed, and he blocked extremely well. Last season he was rated Poly's best blocker and this season he was ranked second.

Only three other players, Brown, Joe Pearson and Dee Andrews, all of Poly, ever gained more yardage than Motley in one season, and Brown and Andrews had the opportunity to play more games.

The highlight of Motley's season came in the second-round playoff game against El Rancho when he ran for 185 yards, scored four times and caught six passes in a fantastic effort.

Unfortunately, that was also the game Poly had its win reversed by CIF executive committee decree for a rule violation.

Heckman and McKenzie were noted for their defensive abilities on a Wilson team which broke a school record with six shutouts, but both were complete players who did everything well.

* * * *

THE CHARGE of the 195-pound Heckman from his center position and the might of the 202-pound McKenzie from his tackle spot were big factors in making the Wilson ground attack go.

Defensively, Heckman was the middle linebacker and had the difficult job of calling signals. McKenzie played tackle (and some end) on defense. Both were 48-minute players, a rarity these days, and the two were the only ones chosen on both All-City squads.

Joining Motley in the dream backfield were teammates Gene Washington and Earl McCullough, Wilson's Pat Cashman and Millikan's Bill Meyer. Poly's Ike McCraw and Millikan's Denny Moulton were the ends.

In the line, Poly's Rich Spindler won the other tackle spot. McKenzie and Wilson's Mike Wike and Lakewood's Harold Olmstead were picked at guards. Heckman, of course, was the center.

* * * *

DEFENSIVELY, Millikan's Jim Blecha, Poly's Pete Tingom, St. Anthony's Dave Evans, Jordan's Dave Borelli and Wilson's Rod Everling and McKenzie formed the sizeable six (average 219 pounds) up front.

St. Anthony's Tony Terry and Wilson's Tom Cadwallader were paired with Heckman at linebacker, while Poly's Russ Lewis, Jordan's Jim Keck and Millikan's Tom Beckley were the defensive backs.

Poly's Washington was the best passer since Wilson's Bob Bailey. He connected on 64 per cent of his aerials and set season records in total yards throwing (1,145) and in touchdown tosses (12). He's a junior, the only one on the offensive squad.

Cashman was called by coach Skip Rowland "my best running back ever" and his 843 yards and 6.7 average helped prove this. What made Cashman so exciting was the way he'd scrap and claw for extra yardage.

* * * *

McCULLOUGH was used less than some players but had the most sensational record. He averaged 13.3 yards per carry and caught seven TD passes. When used late in the year, he was tremendous on defense at a corner backer spot where some feel he is a top college and maybe pro prospect.

Meyer did everything for Millikan. He ran (476 yards, 6.1 average), caught 23 passes (tops in the city), played defense, kicked, punted and returned punts and kickoffs.

His teammate Moulton latched onto 20 passes, most by an end in Millikan history and Poly's McCraw was even slightly better with 30 receptions and a fine 23.2 yards per reception.

Spindler was Poly's strongside tackle, a position that held the key to Poly's breakaway offense; Wike and Olmstead were superb trap blockers and were strong on straightaway charges, too.

* * * *

DEFENSIVELY, the strapping Blecha was a pillar of strength; Tingom was tops for a good Poly defense; and growing boys Everling and Evans, both over 250 pounds, were too physically tough for many, if any, to handle.

Perhaps the most surprising line choice was Borrelli, a rugged 190-pounder who was playing his first year of football. Both Poly and Wilson backs had trouble going over his position.

Terry was a rugged middle linebacker who has both power and maneuverability, and would have challenged strongly for an offensive backfield berth had not injuries slowed his play there.

* * * *

CADWALLADER tipped the scales at only 160 pounds, but ask CIF king Loyola who gave them the most trouble and they'll say it was this youngster, who helped hold the Cubs to a two-year low of 10 points.

Lewis was the hardest hitting corner back in the league and his speed helped stop power sweeps by other clubs; Beckley, at only 130 pounds, was not publicized much but there is nothing on defense he didn't do well. The same went for Keck, who is more known for his quarterbacking.

Poly fullback Ellwood Stewart was the top vote-getter on the second team offense and Wilson end Jack Harris led on the second defense. Harris was plagued by injuries, as were Jordan back Jack Hadaway, Terry, and Wilson guard Mike Grijalva, all of whom might have been higher on the ratings were it not for physical ailments.

SMITH NAMED ON DEFENSE

Vikings' Williams Only Repeater on All-America

By KEN PIVERNETZ

Fullback Homer Williams of Long Beach City College was the only player to repeat as a first team selection on the 1963 J.C. Grid-Wire all-America football team.

Williams, who led the country in rushing this season, thus becomes one of the few jaycee players to be named twice. The last was LBCC tackle Mike Giers in 1960 and again last season.

Separate offensive and defensive teams were picked.

* * * *

VIKING TACKLE Jeff Smith won a first team berth on the defensive squad. Other area first team selections were tackle Jim Vellone (Cerritos), end Steve Joyner (Fullerton) and linebacker Ron Paterno (Orange Coast).

HOMER WILLIAMS
Led Nation in Rushing

Williams rambled for 1,227 yards this season to join a jaycee dream backfield of Don McCall (LACC), who gained 1,080 yards, and Tommy Bell (Cameron), who had 1,183. The quarterback, Bill Buckner of East Mississippi, completed 204 of 325 passes for 2,767 yards.

The Vikings wound up 7-2 under Jim Stangeland to bring his seven-year record to 48-15-2, best in the school's history.

* * * *

THE VIKINGS, if they can come up with some of the top local high school players, as in the past, should be strong again next season.

A better than average turnout will be back in the line, though the backfield loses most of its punch with Williams and Pearson gone. With San Diego out of the league, the Vikings pick up three teams from the Eastern Conference — Santa Ana, Fullerton and Grossmont—to give them a complete nine game schedule again.

FIRST TEAM OFFENSE

FIRST TEAM DEFENSE

MARSHALL DUFFIELD'S
New Customer Relations Program Completes 14th Satisfaction Report Since Initiating the Program Nov. 15th

Al Shaw
Mgr. New Customer Relations Dept., and Gen. Sales Mgr.

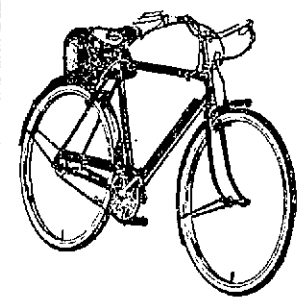

The other evening a customer came in who had purchased a 1962 Buick from our used car lot. Not having seen the car in daylight, she was unaware of a stain on the upholstery. Two or three other items including the gasoline gauge had not been fixed to her satisfaction. We replaced the upholstery in the front labor free, with charge for material only. The gasoline gauge was an involved electrical problem consuming considerable repair time. After three trips, and inconvenience to her, the problems were resolved to the customer's satisfaction. Because she was patient enough to give us a second and third chance to solve a more difficult complaint, we now have another completely satisfied customer. Sometimes a problem needs patience and understanding from both parties. If you have a problem, see or call Al Shaw.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

Let's Go Christmas Shopping

A woman whispered to me at a recent gathering: "What should I get my husband and my boy for Christmas?" My first inclination was to reply: "Just go into your favorite sporting goods store and start looking." Upon reflection, however, I realized that many women shy from a sporting goods store as do men from a lingerie section of a department store.

In this particular instance, the boy didn't have a rod and reel. So what, I insist, is a better present under a Christmas tree than a rod and reel—his very own and his first.

He doesn't have to have a $50 outfit, but he should have one that won't fall apart on his first trip to Belmont Pier.

For that reason, any wife and mother should make it a point to visit a sporting goods store, make known what she wants and I feel that she will meet a friendly clerk who will be fair, courteous and helpful in her gift selection. I know many of them and they are superb.

Fishing for the boy in question is much more than just a matter of catching fish. It provides an education in the ways of man and nature not to be found in textbooks. It molds character, instills a sense of responsibility, sportsmanship and humility. And it teaches patience and bolsters confidence.

A ROD AND REEL don't lose their luster after Christmas, nor do they lose their interest to the head of the household, mainly father. Perhaps he, too, would like a new outfit. Maybe he's ready to graduate from $7.95 reel and $6.95 rod to something that would hold a marlin if he had the chance to catch one.

If there are plenty of rods and reels in the family, then take a look at some of the items in the fishing line: De luxe tackle boxes, lures of all kinds, fly-tying kits, scientific anglers' tapered flylines, pack racks that range from $9 to $27.50 (they never had such beautiful racks when I was a Boy Scout or even a Scoutmaster).

Then there's a cover guard in which you may insert four rods when traveling. It holds even more if the guides are not too large. Shakespeare has a new soft professional monofilament that makes the old-style monos look like broom straws. The same company also has a new push-button reel for $15 and a remarkable open-faced spinning reel for $27.50.

Solunar tables that tell you when and where to fish cost only a dollar, and maps of many California fishing and hunting areas cost that or less.

If, however, you are still looking for rods, don't pass by the Feralite, by Fenwick, manufactured in Long Beach by Sevenstrand Tackle Mfg. Co. Then you can say, "Look, Mom, no ferrules!"

THERE ARE BUCK KNIVES that cut bolts without damaging the blades, for either fishermen or hunters, or possibly just plain campers. And speaking of the camping section, there are new types of tents—popups that you can put together in minutes and which house four to six persons, or smaller ones that sleep one, but with standing room.

In picking out the sleeping bags and rain clothes, it's best to consult the man of the house. After all, he can pick it out in advance and still act surprised at Christmastime.

There are combination tool sets and another combination—crowbar, axe and shovel—that is especially useful in camping and yet packaged neatly and lightly. Perhaps you want a smaller gift. Then, how about a waterproof match case.

Getting into the hunting section, again, it's best to ask the man of the house, or perhaps it's mother who wants a new shotgun so that she can go along and do her share of the shooting. The guns become more beautiful each year, and it's up to the individual what he or she wants to pay.

I personally hope to "oh" and "ah" Christmas Eve when I see that new gas-operated, 12-gauge 1100 series Remington, with a Poly-Choke and ventilated rib. About 75 percent of the recoil has been taken out of the gun.

THE HUNTING SECTION of a store is filled with useful items for the shooter. There are variable rifle scopes (2½x9), made by Weaver, or Bausch & Lomb or Browning. You might be better off to give a purchase order on such an item.

But there is no reason why you can't pick out compasses (get him home alive and quickly), binoculars, gun and sidearm cases, Crossman and Sheridan pellet rifles in all styles and to suit almost any pocketbook.

The archery section also offers something entirely different and the sport is growing so rapidly that the industry can hardly keep pace. I looked in on the archery counter of one store and found items all the way from $2.10 (Browning arrow) to $64.50 (Browning's top bow).

I would like to talk more about the new types of reels that should be on the market this month. One is: the Penn Senator 4/0 special, a ball-bearing beauty for either official light-tackle or short-range, medium-tackle use.

Another, the Mitchell 8000, a reel that automatically doubles its fast pickup when a fish strikes, is in short supply, but well worth considering later. Other Mitchell reels of spinning design have increased pickup ratios that will make fish wonder what in the world happened to the world above their own.

RACING ROUNDUP

Hill Rise Romps at Golden Gate

ALBANY (AP) — Hill Rise won the $25,000 added Golden Gate Freshman Handicap—first half of a stakes doubleheader — at Golden Gate Fields Saturday, three and one-quarter lengths ahead of longshot Nevada Bin.

Hill Rise, a slight crowd favorite over Seattleite, who failed to rally, paid $6.60. His time for the mile and a sixteenth was a sparkling 1.42 4/5.

Tell No Tales won the $10,000-added Golden Gate Sorority Handicap, second stakes event on the program, running the six furlongs in 1:10 2/5. She paid $6.80 as second betting choice.

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (UPI) — Jets Pat put on a strong finishing rally and won the $10,000-added Coral Gables Handicap at Tropical Park.

Jets Pat then took the lead and won by two lengths over King of Kentucky with Kisco Kid third. Jets Pat paid $16.00, $7.60 and $3.40. King of Kentucky returned $9.20 and $3.80 while Kisco Kid paid $2.40.

PAWTUCKET, R.I. (AP) — Back from two out-of-the-money starts at Aqueduct, Hy Greenspan's Heliotwist got back in step when he won the featured Au Revoir Handicap as Narragansett Park closed the 1963 New England thoroughbred racing season.

Second choice of the crowd of 14,681, Heliotwist paid $8, $4.60 and $2.80.

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Yankee-Blaze was declared the winner of the $5,500 feature race at Pimlico after the stewards disqualified Lous Playboy for interference.

Yankee Blaze returned $6.40, $4.40 and $3.00 while Lous Playboy returned $10.80 and $4.80. Lord Balmoral paid $2.80.

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico (UPI) — An unidentified person cashed in a $2 5-10 handicap contest ticket for $47,575.20 by picking six winners at Caliente race track.

ROMAN HI-JINKS ON NAPLES CANAL

Galley slaves and gorgeous gals are the features of this boat entered in the 18th annual Naples Christmas Pageant Saturday night by the Long Beach Rowing Club. As oarsmen pull under the crack of the "master's" lash, beauteous princess-types loll under a canopy. Un-Christmasy it may be, but it's one of the top attention-getters in the parade of brightly-lit and lavishly decorated boats that will parade again today at 6:30 p.m. In fact, it won first place in the Junior Division.

Bolivian Hostage Release

LA PAZ, Bolivia (UPI) — Leftist Vice President Juan Lechin, spokesman and leader of pro-Communist miners who have held 21 hostages including four Americans for a week, bowed to the threat of federal force Saturday and announced the hostages will be freed "to avoid a bloodbath."

Federal troops early Saturday encircled Catavi, where the hostages are held, and the accompanying mine site of Siglo Veinte. The hostages have been held as pawns for the release of two Communist labor leaders.

Lechin announced the miners have accepted the demands of President Victor Paz Estenssoro to free the hostages from their dynamite-mined improvised prison.

* * * *

THE THREE-STAGE plan called for by the president provides in sequence:

—Release of the hostages to an intermediary, probably a Roman Catholic priest, to conduct them out of the mining zone to freedom.

—Withdrawal of federal troops now encircling the zone.

—A government guarantee of a fair trial for Communist union chiefs Ireneo Pimentel and Federico Escobar.

Pimentel and Escobar are charged with murder, sedition and embezzlement of public funds. The 21 hostages were seized to force the government to release them.

Lechin's announcement of acceptance of government demands, a virtual unconditional surrender by the insurgent miners, came after Paz Estenssoro threatened to use force if necessary to gain the hostages' release.

Lechin did not say when the hostages will be freed.

* * * *

LECHIN MADE his announcement of acceptance in a statement handed to Msgr. Abel Antezana, archbishop of La Paz, who has been mediating in the miners-government dispute which threatened to explode into civil war.

Lechin first talked with union leaders in Catavi by radio and got their promise of acceptance.

The only government concession was the promise of a guarantee of a fair trial.

Paz Estenssoro said the federal troops will not be pulled away from Catavi and Siglo Veinte until the hostages are free. He had promised earlier that if there is a peaceful settlement there will be no punitive action against the leaders of the miner revolt.

SAIL AGAIN TONIGHT

Winners Repeat in Naples Pageant

By GEORGE ROBESON

A bubbling bunch of youngsters who waved "applause" cards at an audience of thousands won the Sweepstakes Trophy for the second straight year in the spectacular Naples Christmas Pageant Saturday night.

The kids, called the "Frivolous Floaters," were entered in the junior division for children and teen-agers. A motorboat pulled their little boats. One of the "trailers," for example, was a floating circus cage full of youngsters in wild-animal costumes.

Leaving nothing to chance, one of the kids in the lead boat held up oversized instruction cards to the spectators who lined the Naples waterways. The instruction: "Yell" and "Klap." The crowd obyed enthusiastically.

The 27 competing boats vied in four divisions—junior, senior (for individual adults), commercial (entries from business firms) and civic organizations.

Winners in the four divisions were:

Junior — Long Beach Rowing Club, which entered a Roman slave gallery, first place; Leeway Sailing Club, second place; John Thomas, third place.

Senior—Val Hyang, with a Hawaiian float featuring hula girls, first place; Robert K. Light, second place; Fern Jessing, third place.

Commercial — Elda Barry's Vogue Modeling School, with a boatful of beautiful girls, first place; Portofino Apartments, second place; Kai Loa Shop, third place.

Organizations — Women's Division, Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, whose entry, entitled "Christmas Out of This World," had girls in red leotards crewing a huge gold rocket, first place; Seal Beach Yacht Club (with probably the longest entry — a main boat pulling 18 little Sabot sailboats), second place; Treasure Island residents, third place.

Choirs sang carols on floats under the five Rivo Alto Canal bridges. First prize was awarded to the choir from St. Bartholemew's Catholic Church, with the New Hope Baptist Church Choir and the Girl Scouts' carolers winning second and third places.

The parade, sponsored for the 18th year by the Naples Improvement Association, will be staged again tonight, beginning at 6:30. The boats will be the same, but a new group of choirs will sing carols on the canal floats.

Judges for Saturday night's competition were Councilman William Grant, Halcyon Ball, David L. Bryant and Robert Mulvey.

ROME (UPI) — The Education Ministry announced Saturday report cards for Italian schoolchildren will not be distributed until after Christmas.

Yank Defects in Korea

SEOUL, Korea, Sunday (AP) —An American soldier from Henderson, Ky., has defected to Communist North Korea, it was learned today.

He went over to the Reds while on patrol duty Dec. 6.

A U.N. Command spokesman identified him as Spec. 4C. Jerry Parrish, 19, 1st Batallion, 8th Cavalry Regiment, 1st Cavalry Division.

Parrish was on a six-man patrol along the western front, the spokesman said. He said the patrol was moving through a section of the demilitarized zone where American and North Korean troops have clashed sporadically since July. The soldier apparently split off from his comrades. The sergeant patrol leader said Parrish was the last man in a single file.

According to the spokesman, Parrish left a note behind on the ground.

It said: "Tell mother I love her. I'll be back home some day. Tell my friends goodbye."

He also left his M14 rifle, a cartridge belt and his canteen.

Parrish's mother was identified as Mrs. Virginia Craddock of Smith Mills, Ky.

TWO WOMEN SLAIN YEARS APART

Ask Death for Dual Killer

By BOB SCHMIDT

Prosecutors Gordon Jacobson and John A. Marin will ask a six-man, six-woman jury Monday to send convicted murderer Robert Leslie Webster to the gas chamber.

The jury, which late Thursday found the 47-year-old ex-convict guilty of first-degree murder, will return to Superior Court Judge Beach Vasey's courtroom at 9:30 a.m. Monday to hear evidence relating to the two possible alternative sentences, death or confinement for life.

* * * *

ALTHOUGH the decision is at the sole discretion of the jury, a death sentence may be reduced to life imprisonment by Judge Vasey, by the higher court which automatically reviews all capital offense trials, or by Gov. Brown.

Monday's hearing will be conducted exactly like a trial, with witnesses testifying under oath for both sides before the jury retires to deliberate.

Webster, who strangled Diane Jane Harley, 38, last Sept. 4, was also convicted of first-degree murder in 1946.

* * * *

AT THAT TIME, however, the law did not provide for a separate hearing on the penalty.

Webster was tried before now-retired Superior Court Judge Kenneth E. Morrison in Santa Ana for the slaying of Carrie Bendel, a 19-year-old Long Beach waitress. The jury which returned the first-degree murder verdict did not recommend death for Webster, and Judge Morrison sentenced him to life imprisonment.

* * * *

HE WAS released on parole in 1955 after serving nine years.

Dep. Public Defender Hayes Mead, representing Webster, is expected to contend that Webster's possibilities of ever again receiving parole are nil and that society need not fear his being given another chance to kill.

Mead said he would plead that Webster be sentenced to life.

Dep. Dist. Attorneys Jacobson and Marin said they would attempt to show that Webster is a cold-blooded, brutal man deserving the supreme punishment.

* * * *

WEBSTER will hear several voices from his unhappy past as the prosecutors attempt to prove their point.

Only other recipient is former Republican Assemblyman W. S. (Bill) Grant, who attended the Kennick tribute.

Joseph Blake, CSEA state board member, presented the award before 400 dinners at the chapter's annual Christmas dinner in Veterans Park Clubhouse. He cited Kennick's "continuing distinguished service to the citizenry of Long Beach and the state".

Water From Rocks in Moon Research

SEATTLE (AP) — Researchers are sweating water out of rocks at the Boeing Co. these days.

The experiments are an attempt to solve the drinking water problem on the moon where the crust is believed composed of basaltic rock similar to that found in the Seattle area.

The researchers have built equipment that heats crushed rock, reduces it to rubble and produces about 3 per cent of the rock's weight in water during the process.

Peace Corps to Send Film Libraries

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Peace Corps plans to send 203 film libraries to Africa, 57 to Latin America, 48 to the Near East and South Asia, and 42 to the Far East.

The libraries will be assembled from 12,500 educational film strips presented to Corps Director R. Sargent Shriver Jr. by Newton N. Minow, former chairman of the Federal Communications Commission and now executive vice president of Encyclopedia Britannica Films Inc. The film strips are valued at $75,000.

TOO MUCH HOMEWORK

Students Organize, Teacher Negotiates

RED BANK, N.J. (UPI)—History teacher Thomas M. Perry taught his senior class about the labor movement so well that he found himself facing their organized bargaining unit.

Thomas teaches at Red Bank High School and describes himself as a "fairly tough and demanding teacher."

That could be the reason the 31 members of the class showed up organized as "United Slaveworkers, Local 211." Some even carried placards which said "Boss Unfair."

The students presented Thomas with a seven-point petition including demands for a writers cramp break, more regard for the fact that students have other subjects, an end to excessive homework, a shorter term paper and more time to do it.

Thomas went along with the practical lesson in labor negotiations and sat down with the negotiating committee.

After deliberating, he granted one of the demands to give students more time to complete their term papers. The papers, however, will still have to be at least 5,000 words long.

FROM DIFFERENT sides of world, American Field Service students Harpa Josefdottir of Iceland and Suphan Koevenklioglu, Turkey, catch up on studies under symbolic globe in Poly High library.

Around the World ...in 179 (School) Days

Phones, Phonetics —Language No Barrier for AFS Students

AN AMERICAN TEEN-AGE custom, talking on telephone, gets enthusiastic response from Jordan High student Carlos Araya-Lunas from Chile. A natty dresser, he does not, however, take to teen-age fad of surfer-style casual clothes.

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON

When it comes to the culinary arts, America is a pretty mixed up place in the minds of Long Beach's current crop of American Field Service students.

But, all in all, nicely mixed up they agree.

"I never heard of Swiss steak until I came to this country," says Swiss miss Claire-Lise Stehle.

"French toast? What's that?" asks Cathy Matillon from France. "By the way, how do you make those French dip sandwiches?"

And then there's the student from Bavaria, Bernhard F. Kulla, who—munching contentedly on German chocolate cake—never heard of it in his homeland.

What about Busch Bavarian beer? "First time I ever heard of it was on American TV," says the German import.

AND THERE are a few other American practices that apparently got mixed up in the translation from there to here.

Take Turkish baths. "I plan to take one before I go home," says Suphan Koevenklioglu from Turkey. "Imagine, a bath with steam!"

Turning the tables, cute Iolanda Neirotti, called Dida by her local classmates, would like this side of the world to know that "in Italy we don't eat spaghetti every day!"

"And our people aren't Eskimos," clarifies Harpa Josefsdottir from Iceland. "What's more, we don't live in igloos."

Suave Chilean student Carlos J. Araya-Lunas points out that "they don't really have revolts every other day in South America. It's really quite peaceful . . . like here."

And exotic Aruna R. Taribagil from India, graceful in flowing sari, was quick to point out that family life in her own country is not greatly different from that in the United States.

"My family in Long Beach," says she, "has been wonderful to me. Before I came here, my ideas of America were, in some ways, not complimentary. The picture I got from movies and magazines was completely wrong.

"Now I can go back home and tell my people how wonderful life is here, how warm and understanding the people are . . .

"Which, of course, is the real purpose of the AFS program."

AND THAT pretty well sums up the opinions of all nine exchange students enrolled in local high schools who, like 2,000 other foreign students throughout the nation, are studying on an American Field Service international scholarship.

They're on a one-year lend lease educational program, living in local homes with families who have sons or daughters of comparable age and interests.

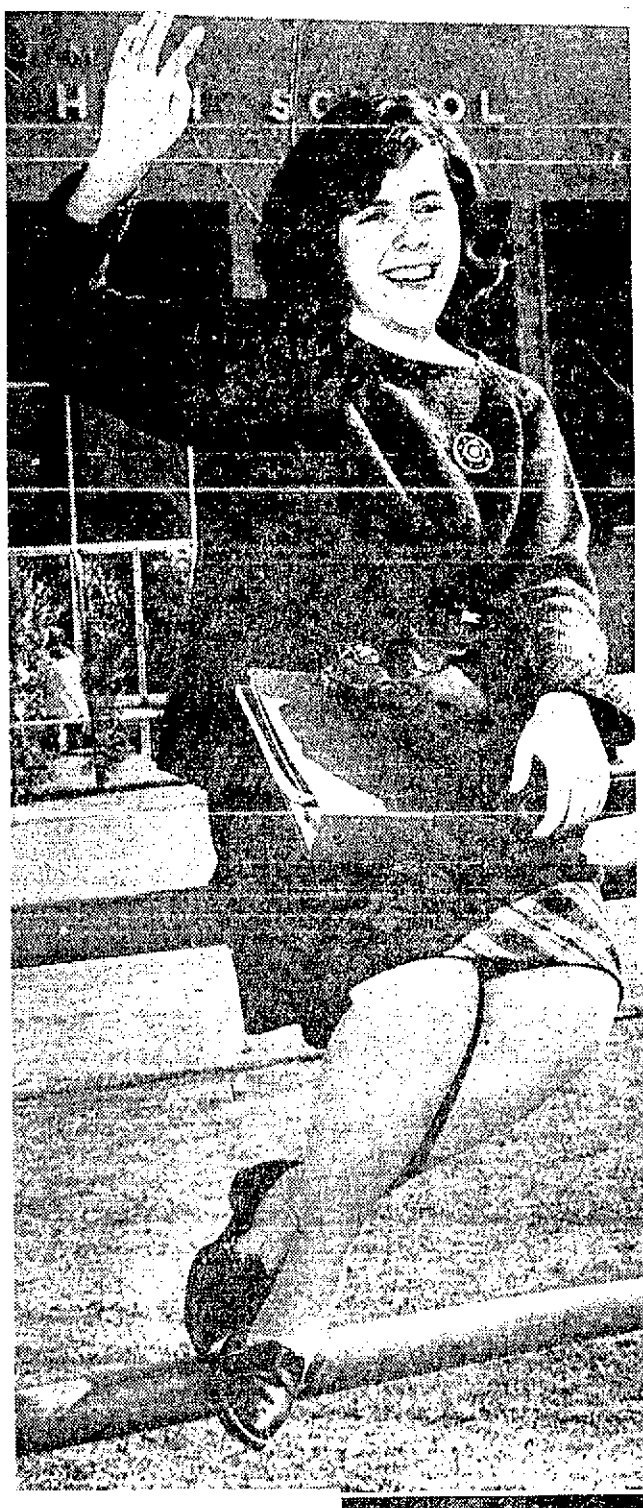

When the student imports get together for once-a-month meetings, sometimes in native costume, it has all the overtones of a small United Nations gabfest.

Most amazing thing of all: their ease of communication.

Each speaks three or four different lan-

LENDING FRENCH accent to Jordan High campus is Cathy Matillon, who comes from suburbs of Paris. New-to-Cathy Americanisms: hamburgers, going steady, corn on cob and sweet potatoes.

INTERNATIONAL language of music is enjoyed by AFS students Naoto Kira from Japan and Claire-Lise Stehle, Switzerland, in choir class at Millikan High School.

SCHOOL CAFETERIA at Wilson High is new adventure for foreign exchange students Bernhard Kulla from Germany and Aruna R. Taribagil, India. Lunchroom facilities are not provided in either of their own countries. Piling tray high, Bernhard describes cafeteria with typical American teen expression: "It's the most!"

Belles and Boats of Christmas Sea-son

By Iola Masterson
I, P-T Women's Editor

WITH A WOMAN'S eternal prerogative, Louise Neuner asks husband, Jim, "is that what I should wear?" She is pictured below preparing to go to Rick Racker's marveolusly gay Winter Wonderland formal ball, its 13th annual, last Saturday at International Ballroom, Lafayette.

Ah, ladies—she decided to where white!

While Jim debated, Louise changed her mind, I discovered, wore a gorgeous white bugle beaded crepe floor length gown. She admitted she knew all the time she leaned to the white. Ah, ladies!

Anyway, it was a most posh affair. The wonderland effect was created by a veritable forest of cloudlike pink angel hair trees, all a-sparkle, on the tables.

Cecelia, chairman, and husband, Dave Tallichet, greeted guests with assistants Louise and Jim (Neuner), Neena and Dermot McHenry, Pat and Bob Bergmann and Mary and Bob Lintz.

Each member entertained, singly or in conjunction with other members, at pre-ball parties and proceeds from affair will aid RRs work with Girls' Club at Franklin as well as campership funds and scholarships for eligible students at LB State.

Fashions were, to say the least, MOST fashionable. Myrna (Mrs. Charles) Bartell wore a floor length gown of flowing white chiffon with autumn haze mink bodice.

Susie (Mrs. Vernon) Lewis was in holiday red chiffon ball gown, cut a la Eugenie.

Sally (Mrs. John) Nisbet wore full length blue and green chiffon with green chiffon leaves filling in the neckline.

Wild Waves Say...

Georgianna (Mrs. Patrick) Hamilton wore floor length white brocade skirt with black velvet bodice accented with a pink belt, while Jean (Mrs. Patrick) Devlin wore Capri blue beau de soie, also full length, with beaded top.

That should give you some idea. And yes, all the men looked very elegant, too, as they danced to Joe Moshay's orchestra with their wives and friends' wives.

A PEEK IN at Pacific Coast Club Saturday netted a glimpse of another swank affair as members and guests danced to the lilting music of Sid Zaid's orchestra, society musical group from Hollywood, during annual Snow Flake Ball.

Here, again, at least three quarters of the women wore long gowns and looked dazzling. Noted were Mary and Bill Decker, new to our town but, I'm sure, beginning to think we're quite a city. Toni and Fred McDowell were present, noting their anniversary as they always do at this party, timed perfectly each year for them.

Others were the Larry Copelands, Virginia and Walter Hale, the William Sweeneys. Also there, with a group, was Aram Soroyan, uncle of the famous playwright, William. Aram is currently in residence at the club, I understand.

THE TREND was to wend one's way to Daisy and Dr. Oscar Shadle's home for 50 or so friends last Saturday. Daisy and "Doc" were in the midst of having a gala, informal combination open house and Christmas cocktail party in their new manse in El Dorado Park.

Among those spotted having a spry time were Dee and Sumner Trent, Leone and Norman Chu, Roberta and Todd Mulford, "Carly" and Bob Fox, Eleanor and Ray Kelso and Mary and Jerry Cope.

FORTUNATE guests of Dell Lewis at her traditional eggnog fete, being co-hostessed by her daughters, Dorothy Brady and Betty Munholland, had better keep their thinkers ticking, meaning not getting their wires crossed on which way to go.

For several years, party has been given in Dorothy (Mrs. Phil) Brady's home. But THIS year it will take place in Betty (Mrs. Jim) Munholland's, 275 Argonne Ave.

Assisting at annual favorite fete will be Dorothy Munholland, Barbara Clarke, "Brownie" Berkaw, Marie Hargrove and Julia Witz.

Over 200 are expected to gather around the 10-foot tree in the living room; by the tinkling silver fountain in the dining room or, weather permitting, out by the pool where an aluminum tree will glitter afloat on the pool.

PUSHING, prodding and hustle-bustling to completion his newest hotel is Deck Shelley, architect, who is "doing" The Parkway House in St. Louis, Mo. He's been a regular commuter to Missouri. But hopes are high the House will be far enough along so that he and his wife, Gladdie, and children, Jeff, Leslye and Rod, will be able to catch a jet for Hawaii to spend the holidays.

Completing the party of nine will be Dr. Bill and Jean Brown, neighbors on Treasure Island, with their children, Brian and Sandra.

Highlight for the youngsters will be participating in the International Surfboard Championships.

Keeping things running smoothly in homes here are various members of both families. In fact, having relatives stay here at the holidays took absolutely no urging at all they tell me.

Travelers will stay at the Sheraton Maui for Christmas and be at Coco Palms on New Years.

ACTIVE ALUMS of AOPi here are beginning to wonder. For three years in a row, and quite by accident, their "uptown" Founders Day and this city's Panhellenic tea have fallen on the same date.

So they have to split-up for representation at both events. Intrepid - on - the - freeway driver, Jane (Mrs. Malcolm) Epley chauffered the FD date, way out at Sportsmen's Lodge in Hollywood, for Jean Graham, Margaret Rockwell, Eleanor Cottle, and Eileen Folsom. Gwen Long led the contingent to the tea date here.

DECK THE BOW with boughs of holly and glisten both port and starboard with strings of glitter. That's what Dr. Dick and Nancy Daniels, and Sybil (Mrs. Quentin) Royer are doing, below, to the Daniels boat. The Royers craft is also having finishing touches put on it for today's first Huntington Harbour canals Christmas boat parade.

Boats will begin parading at 3 p.m. through the channels of our neighboring marina. Several boats, long familiar in L.B. waters, will be in parade.

It's all for fun to benefit the Orange County Philharmonic under the guiding hands of Sybil and her crew, co-chairmanned by Jane Dod and Virginia Belt. A buffet supper will end the festivity with a bang and tickets might still be available at main Huntington Harbour office.

Psst. Don't forget our own Parade of Lights around Naples and Alamitos Bay ends tonight, too.

All around-Christmas spirit puts to sea.

Hoffman-Eastman Engagement Told

Mr. and Mrs. Schuyler V. V. Hoffman III of Whittier have announced the engagement of their daughter, Ellen Porter, to John Bernard Eastman, son of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Eastman of Long Beach.

The bride-elect attended the University of California at Santa Barbara. Her fiance was graduated from Wilson High School and is now attending Long Beach City College.

* * * *

EASTMAN is a native of Long Beach. His maternal grandparents are John G. Wagner, pioneer Long Beach druggist, and Mrs. Wagner.

The engaged couple won 5th place in the National Lido Races held in Berkeley this summer. Eastman is a member of the Alamitos Bay Yacht Club.

The wedding date has not been announced.

Leave the Bikinis to Sophia, Tillie

Dear Molly Mayfield

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

The richest boy in our school has invited me to a swimming party at his home. I've seen a picture of their pool, all surrounded by green plants, in the papers, and I can hardly wait to splash in it.

But, here's my problem: My last summer's swimming suit is pretty raggedy, and it's very conservative, too, as Mom bought it for me.

Don't you think I ought to buy one of those envelope-size bikinis that the actresses wear in the Italian movies? I'm sure that's the kind my friend's circle wear. If I can make a breath-taking impression maybe I'll be invited again. Right, Molly?

—TILLIE.

DEAR YOUNG LADY:

Wrong, Tillie. A bright, conservative bathing suit

Should I just go on smoul- your introduction to your friend's home. If you appeared in the attire of Sophia Loren, I suspect that would be the sure way to make his mother be certain that you were never invited again.—M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My girl friend left her pocketbook in my car the other night and I didn't find it until I got home. Maybe I shouldn't have opened it, but I did, and I found three letters from servicemen overseas, and they were calling her darling and angel, and saying how much they loved her.

It was quite plain she'd been writing them mushy letters, too. I took the letters and burned them and returned her pocketbook the next day without mentioning them. She hasn't mentioned them either. But the more I think of it the more burned up I am.

why her boy friend is smouldering or clear the air?

—TOM.

DEAR TOM:

Clear the air by all means. The girl is entitled to know why her boy friend is smoldering—and she's entitled to have her say. Then you can kiss and make up, or blow your top, whichever course the situation calls for.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I have a king-sized headache. Soon after we were married I learned my wife was a kleptomaniac. She has been in and out of mental institutions and is now staying with her sisters. They insist I pay her board because they say she is a bad influence on their children.

I claim I can't keep her at home because she is a bad influence on our children, and paying for babysitters all the time keeps me pretty strapped financially.

Do you think I'm right?

—WORRIED.

DEAR WORRIED:

I can't imagine who in the world would think you were right. Kleptomania is a sickness. She very much needs a physician's care—and a husband's understanding.

When you married her you took each other for better or worse. Now she is a sick woman and you are pushing her aside. How can you act this way and call yourself a decent man, a husband of any account, or even a father to be proud of?

You owe your wife as much attention and help now as it is possible to give. By your own letter you are giving NONE.

SHAME is the word you should know by heart.

—M.M.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I hope you can help me with rather a special problem. The problem is female, 16 years old, blonde, 5-foot-2, weighs 105 pounds, and is, as I said, very special.

Her parents think, because I am 20, I am too old to date her. I refuse to slip around behind their backs. She has said she would do this. I'm a very unhappy lad.—JUST TWENTY.

DEAR TWENTY:

You might not like the idea, but go and call on her parents and explain that you really would like to date their daughter, and that you wouldn't think of trying to date her without their permission. Ask them if they would consent to let her double-date with you. Ask them if you might take her to a movie some night and get her home at any hour they stipulate.

I think you might soften up, nay, even impress her parents with this approach.

—M.M.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Come On, BeChair-itable!

DEAR ABBY: We have a problem for which there seems to be no solution. I asked my minister, and he just laughed and said, "That's a good one for Abby!" We are very friendly with another couple and we visit back and forth very often. When they come to our house they bring along an in-law who recently lost his wife, and is lonely. This in-law weighs about 400 pounds. He is a very nice person and we truly enjoy his company but, Abby, our furniture is beginning to break down under his weight. Can we diplomatically ask our friends not to bring this man to our home, and explain why? We have had to replace the springs in our best chair, and now the other one is going. Please help us.—DESPERATE

ABBY

DEAR DESPERATE: There are no words diplomatic enough to salvage a friendship after asking friends to leave a lonely in-law at home because he's too heavy for one's furniture. Go to a second-hand store and find the sturdiest and least expensive chair available. Buy it and call it "his" chair. No one will care what it looks like. They'll love you for it.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: We are not kids. I am 25 and he is 29. He says he wants to marry me, but he wants to be sure we are compatible first. So he has suggested that we have a trial living-together period for about three months to be sure. We have gone together for 13 months and it never occurred to me that we wouldn't be compatible when married. He tells me that automobile dealers let you drive a car before you buy it, and candy dealers always give samples, and I can't think of a logical reply. Only I know he is wrong. Can you help me?—STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: A woman is neither an automobile nor a batch of candy. Tell him nothing doing. He will have to take his chances with you, just as you are willing (or had been!) to take yours with him. (P.S. Give this prospect some more thought.)

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: When should a girl's father stop kissing her on the lips? Many girls have this problem, but I don't want to solve it my own way for fear of hurting Dad. Please print this, as I know it would benefit many.—"SAY WHEN"

DEAR SAY: If Dad's embrace is innocently offensive, tell him so, and offer your cheek. There are no set rules. That's a family affair.

* * * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO KAREN: He sounds like a "swell" boy—with a head to match. Ask him to return your bracelet.

What's on your mind? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

AFS Experiment: One Year Lend Lease

...for World Peace

The Goals:

To break international barriers... to promote better understanding among peoples of different countries, races and creeds through education.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT is exciting new experience for AFS student Iolanda Neirotti (better known as "Dida" by Lakewood High classmates). Her schools in Northern Italy do not offer such extra-curricular activities. Interested in political science, she plans to become a political journalist. In America she's enjoying her first pancakes and packaged breakfast cereals; she especially likes Disneyland, Knott's Berry Farm and the freeways.

Staff Photos by Joe Risinger and Kent Henderson

guages. Most have had several years of English.

In a drone of dialects and accents—with some Americanized teen talk thrown in—they compare foods and fashions, studies and hairstyles, dating and family life.

Like most teen-agers, they have an affinity for hamburgers, Disneyland, the beach and talking on the phone.

They're amazed by California's freeways, traffic and casual manner of dress . . . by the nation's push-button living, instant foods and supermarkets.

Most express amazement over clubs, sports and extra-curricular activities in the schools . . . also the friendly, relaxed relationship between teachers and students.

WILSON HIGH student Bernhard Kulla, whose Long Beach "parents" are the Perry Griffiths, 4424 Vermont St., notes that in German schools, like those of most exchange students, electives are not offered.

He notes that "students may take as many as 14 subjects at a time—all academic—math, languages, the sciences, literature and the humanities.

Music and art, physical education and technical subjects—auto mechanics, typing, home economics and crafts—are seldom available to high school students in most AFS countries.

Which method do they prefer? Most vote in favor of America's practical approach to the three R's. Some aren't sure.

Iolanda Neirotti, Lakewood student who makes her home here with the William J. Moshers, 6619 Arbor Road, favors the U.S. approach: "In schools here you work on problems that help you meet life . . . you study about how to run a business, how to head a family, how to think of life as it really is. At home, we learn more the classics, more theory."

Claire-Lise Stehle of Switzerland, who attends Millikan and resides with Mr. and Mrs. Graddus Schrotenboer, 3228 Marber Ave., would like to reserve opinion.

Says she: "I think I like best the American system of specialization in areas of particular interest. On the other hand, students then are not as well grounded in the academics. I would like to again observe our own system before I make up my mind."

FRENCH mademoiselle Cathy Matillon, a student at Jordan High who resides with the Joe H. Arterberrys, 6100 Lemon Ave., especially likes the relationship between students and teachers. "At home it is on a more formal basis. Teachers there are not often concerned with your problems at home or elsewhere."

Suphan Koevenklioglu ("nobody here can pronounce my name"), whose father is a doctor in Turkey, votes in favor of electives. "I think it's great to be able to take whatever subject you want." Interested in chemistry and algebra ("I think I want to go into electronics"), he's enrolled at Poly High and lives with the Phillip Fawcetts, 1172 Cartegena Drive.

Japanese student Naoto Kira, who finds school life "exciting and friendly" at Millikan High, has brought along a Japanese custom to his foster home with the Leonard W. Towners, 6500 Espanita St. He takes off his shoes whenever entering the house.

"Homes in Japan are very different," says he. "We have a one-and-a-half inch mattress padding over our entire floor. And, well, you just don't wear shoes on that."

He finds his new-found friends here the best part of his one-year transplant to America.

"They can tell me about America . . . and I can tell them about Japan. It clears up misconceptions for both."

THAT SAME idea is echoed by Chilean student Carlos Araya-Lunas, a handsome addition at Jordan High who resides with the John J. Wankners, 5217 Brayton Ave.

"Before I came to America," says he, "I thought everyone here had two cars, two TV sets and was concerned only with money. I found out that Armenians are really like people at home . . . they work, help others and are much concerned with the finer things of life."

And this from Jordan student Harpa Josefsdottir of Iceland: "I really enjoy telling everyone about Iceland . . . it seems there is so little known about my country." One of her little-known facts: "All people in Iceland are called by their first names . . . no Mr. or Mrs. or Miss. When a child is born, his or her last name becomes the father's name with "dottir" or "son" added. When couples marry, the wife keeps her maiden name."

And so goes the exchange of ideas . . . the principal purpose of the AFS program.

MRS. ROBERT N. Haney, president of the local AFS chapter, terms the AFS scholarship program "one of the most remarkable educational experiments ever launched."

Since the local chapter was formed here in 1954, 60 young people, ages 16-19, from 47 nations each have spent approximately 10 months in Long Beach homes, attending Long Beach high schools, forming life-long impressions of the REAL America.

After these young goodwill ambassadors return to their respective homelands, they pass along their on-the-scene impressions to church, service, youth and other groups.

Charles Sleeper, district AFS representative, sums up the value of the program this way:

"In years to come, when these students become integrated into the political, business and social lives of their countries, it isn't too much of a dream to believe that one day we will see them making important, world-significant decisions.

"It would be difficult to believe that any one of them would end up dropping atom bombs on the other."

Advantage in Seeing

East wins the first trick with the ace of spades and returns a trump whereupon South is able to run off the rest of the tricks.

Had East simply led the ten of spades at trick two the story would have been entirely different. South would have had problems in every suit and would have probably wound up making either two or three hearts, but not any more, so East's lead at trick two cost his side at least three tricks.

In double dummy play declarer has the same advantage you readers have. He can see all the cards! Therefore he makes plays he would not attempt in a real game.

* * * *

WITH THAT advantage he wins the second trick with his king of spades, leads a diamond to dummy's queen, cashes the ace, ruffs a third diamond, finesses dummy's ten of hearts, cashes the king, and is finally ready for the key double dummy play. He leads a fourth diamond from dummy. East's best play is to trump and South must not overruff. Instead he discards a spade from his hand. East has to lead a club whereupon South gets back in dummy, leads his last diamond to get rid of his last spade. Thus, South winds up losing one spade and two trumps and makes four odd.

Chef of the Week

Dennis Patrick Ahern

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I. P-T Food Editor

Nope, he wasn't born in Ireland!

But from his name, perhaps he'd even be hard to convince of that fact.

Dennis Patrick Ahern, today's Chef of the Week, was born in San Francisco. Ahern is Collector of Customs for District 27. It is the second largest district in the United States, clearing some $3,000,000 weekly. New York is first.

He was only permitted to bask in the breezes of San Francisco for 30 days before his family moved to Ogilby, Ariz. Located seven miles west of Yuma, it contained a railroad section house, four somewhat shanty type homes and a small general store which supplied the miners working 20 miles back in the hills. Ahern's Dad was section foreman for the Southern Pacific Railroad.

* * * *

AFTER FIVE months the Arizona heat was too much for Pat, and he was brought to Long Beach for the summer. Later, on several occasions, he stayed with friends here for short periods of time and decided then to return someday.

Ahern's father eventually bid on a section job in Pomona and the family moved there. Pat attended Sisters' Academy of Holy Names for the first eight years of his school life, before going on to Emerson Junior and Pomona High Schools. At both, he was active in student affairs.

On to Pomona Junior College he went, and aside from an outstanding athletic program, he served as Freshman Class president. He was again elected prexy in his sophomore year, but it only lasted 10 days. An election for Student Body president was then held, and Ahern got the vote.

He has a year and a half to his credit at UCLA, also.

While in Pomona, Ahern started the 20-30 Club Annual High School Baseball tournament. But during the depression, it began being dropped from high school budgets, so Pat took over with renewed enthusiasm. His first strategic speaker was the late Will Rogers, whom he had secured through Sheriff Eugene Biscailuz—the second "speaker recruit" was actor Joe E. Brown. The result? . . . that baseball organization is still in existence today.

* * * *

AHERN left Pomona to manage the campaign for Congressman Jerry Vorhees. He was the first Democrat to be elected to the old 12th Congressional District of California. That was in 1936.

Two years later Ahern was appointed by Vorhees to take part in the "NYA", National Youth Administration, program. It's noteworthy that President Lyndon B. Johnson also was a member. The late Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt was the architect of the project on the national level.

Ahern immediately secured the Biltmore Hotel in Hermosa Beach and took over as public relations manager and as coach of a baseball team. The program attracted some 500 boys and girls.

Nationally, it received only a 50% acceptance, so was temporarily abandoned in order to re-evaluate its merits. Ahern then joined Douglas Aircraft in Santa Monica. He worked from midnight until 8 a.m. During the day he coached baseball at Santa Monica High School.

* * * *

THEN, in 1949, the NYA program was resumed, and Ahern was again given charge of all physical activities in the State of California. It was headquartered on the Cal-Poly College campus at San Luis Obispo. Eventually it was necessary, due to expansion, to take over the huge complex of the Brown School for Boys at Atascadero. It took in eight square city blocks.

Ahern organized a baseball team, and secured the services of Jackie Robinson as his assistant. Jackie was finding it hard to continue at UCLA because of financial reasons — and, at that same time he was not admissible to the Major League because of color. Robinson became shortstop, and, though the team was given amateur standing, it chalked up six straight wins over professional teams.

Following World War II, at the direction of President Franklin Roosevelt, a committee of 21 citizens was formed to establish a Veterans' Center Board. Ahern was chosen to organize the Long Beach Division, and served as its head for three years. For having conducted the most economically run center in the United States, Ahern was given a national award.

In 1954 he was elected to the Long Beach City Council, and re-elected in 1957. He entered the Democratic race for Congress in 1960, but conceded the election to Craig Hosmer.

To retrogress a bit, Ahern, in 1958, took time out to manage the successful campaign for Senator Clair Engle. It was in 1960 that he was appointed by the late President John F. Kennedy to his present position.

Our "chef's" recipe today is for Catalina Omelet. The idea seems to have started as an excellent idea for using up the bacon, ham, cheese, or what-have-you, before returning home from a week-end at Catalina.

CATALINA OMELET
1 doz. fresh eggs
4 tblsp. olive oil or butter
1 cup cream or half-and-half
¼ tsp. paprika
Salt and pepper to taste
3 or 4 slices of bacon—or 1 cup leftover ham—or ¾ cup shredded cheese

If bacon is used, pre-fry and break into bits, remove from pan and set aside. (If bacon is used, use less oil or butter accordingly.) Add eggs, which have been previously well beaten with cream, paprika, salt and pepper. Reduce fire to low heat. When it begins to firm, place bacon, ham, or cheese on top, and turn or place under the broiler for a moment.

Such Toys as 'Dreams Are Made On'

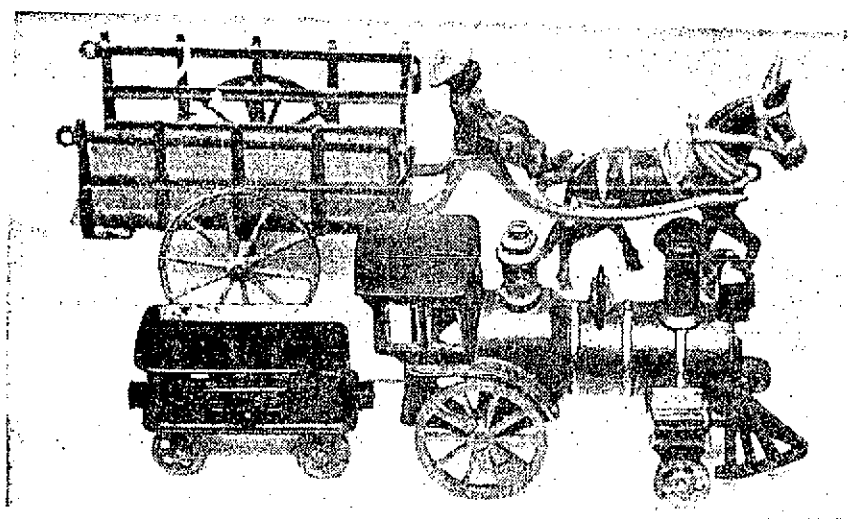

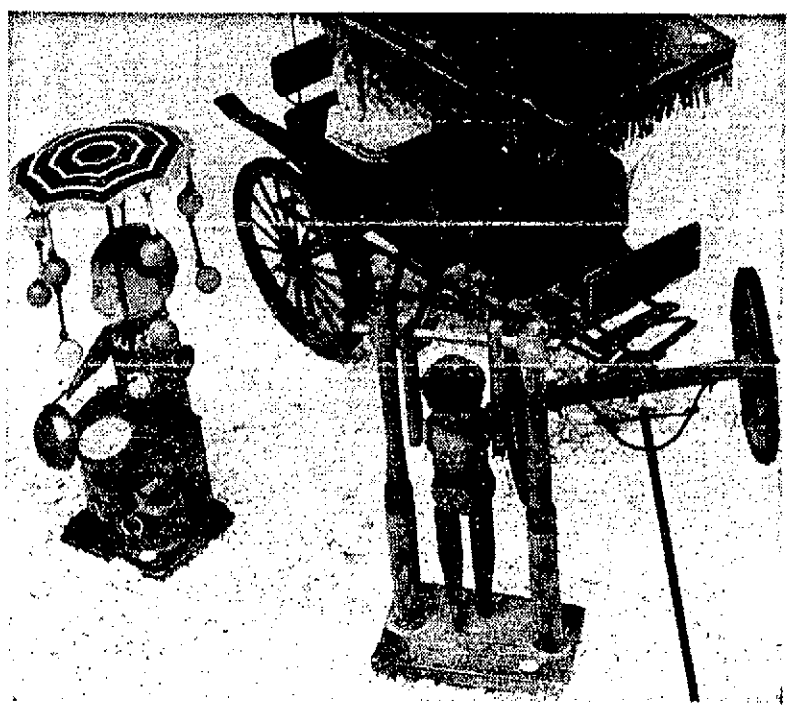

Old toys that rouse wonder in children but stir memories in grown-ups, and new toys that bedazzle are on display at Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd.

Galli-Curci Won World's Acclaim

By RACHEL MORTON
I. P-T Music Critic

Another great celebrity has passed from among us — alas! Madame Amelita Galli-Curci died in La Jolla Nov. 27. I was privileged and honored to interview Mme. Galli-Curci when she lived in Rancho Santa Fe a few years ago, and my article so pleased her that she invited me for a return visit. I would like to recall for my readers some highlights from Major & Minor Notes of Jan. 5, 1958.

"I have never been in one the Doges palaces that line the canals in Venice, but the salon into which I was welcomed in Rancho Santa Fe must be a very like replica of one of these palaces. The air of old world aristocracy pervaded the beautiful home, not only because of the priceless objets d'art everywhere in evidence, but because of the rare personality of the little lady who dwells therein—Amelita Galli-Curci.

* * * *

"HOW TO DESCRIBE this woman? At first one was impressed with her dainty stature. She weighed only 90 pounds and was about 4 feet tall. But, of a sudden, she vitalized with charm, with warmth, with excitement, a personality that became strong and dominant. And lighted so from within, she was eternally young. Her large, sparkling grey-green eyes held me fascinated and she gesticulated constantly with her long, slender fingers. With this arresting personality, plus one of the greatest coloratura voices of all time, it is no wonder that she reigned supreme as an idol of the public for 30 years.

"She showed us a marvelous, life-sized portrait of herself by the famous Spanish painter, Henrique Mendina. (This painting has been willed to the Metropolitan Opera Company.).

* * * *

"IN THE MUSIC room were breath-taking things: a Carrara marble bust of GalliCurci, a whole wall filled with beautiful paintings, the work of Madame herself, who never took a painting lesson; a letter by Mozart framed; and a large portrait of the famous Italian actress, Eleonara Duse inscribed La Sua sorella d'arte; (My sister in art).

"Amelita Galli-Curci was born in Milan of a Spanish mother and Italian father. She began the study of piano at 5 and at 16 graduated from the Milan Conservatory. A frequent visitor at her father's house was the famous composer, Mascagni. One night when she was 18 she played and sang for him the difficult florid music from 'La Sonnambula.' Astonished, Mascagni introduced her to an opera conductor who immediately engaged her for two months with his opera company in Triani. Her first role was Gilda in 'Rigoletto.' From these performances began her illustrious career. She never sang at La Scala and when I asked her why she said it was because she would not sing small parts as they demanded of her.

"IN 1916 she made her debut as Gilda with the Chicago Opera Company and such was her reception that from then on she had the world at her feet (and such tiny feet!), and for fees of $3,200 a performance.

"For 36 years Homer Samuels was constantly at her side as incomparable accompanist, devoted husband and companion. They built their 'dream house' in Rancho Santa Fe but the dream lasted only a few years, when Samuel died."

A beautiful home was only recently completed by Mme. Galli-Curci in La Jolla and here her dream ended, too. Her last words to me were: "There are no closed doors — only closed episodes.

Hanna Ahroni, 28, internationally known concert star, will sing ballads, semi-classical and folk songs, and modern tunes in nine languages at Temple Beth Shalom, 3635 Elm Ave. today at 8:30 p.m.

Miss Ahroni has been acclaimed in 17 countries on four continents for her four-octave vocal range. She has made numerous television and night club appearances and is a recitalist and recording artist.

Her repertoire includes numbers in Hebrew, English, French, Yiddish, African and Italian; Spanish flamencos, Portuguese fados, Yemenite nightsongs and Biblical songs.

Tickets will be available at the door or may be reserved by telephoning the temple office.

Helen Thigpen

Stephen Kemalyan

200-Voice Chorus to Sing 'Messiah'

Four noted professional soloists will join with the Long Beach City College Choir, Schola Cantorum and Chamber Orchestra in a performance of Handel's "Messiah" at 8 p.m. Friday in the college auditorium, Harvey Way near Clark Avenue.

Tickets will be available at the box office Friday night and during the week at the LBCC banker's office, 4901 E. Carson St.

Conducting the combined chorus of more than 200 voices will be Wayne B. Gard, director of choral organization at City College. Director of the orchestra is Akira Endo.

* * * *

GUEST SOLOISTS will be Helen Thigpen, soprano; Olive Chorley, alto; Fred Shackleton, tenor; and Stephen Kemalyan, bass.

Miss Thigpen has appeared in more than 1,000 concerts and recitals throughout Europe, Latin America and the United States. She attracted wide critical acclaim both here and abroad for her performance as Serena in George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess" and was personally commended by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower as "in a real sense, a goodwill ambassador of the arts."

* * * *

MISS CHORLEY, a popular church soloist in Long Beach and Beverly Hills, has sung many operatic roles and was a soloist last summer in the Bach Festival at Carmel.

Now a music instructor at Arlington College, Long Beach, Shackleton has frequently appeared as soloist with the Minneapolis Symphony and the Indianapolis Summer Opera Company. He has also appeared here as a soloist with the LBCC Schola Cantorum in Mendelssohn's "Elijah" and Handel's "Lord Nelson Mass."

* * * *

KEMALYAN has had a varied career in opera, radio, television, motion pictures and on the concert stage. He has appeared with major symphony orchestras on the West Coast, has been a frequent soloist in the Hollywood Bowl, and last summer was the featured soloist at the International Beauty Pageant here.

Lachaise's Sculpture Is Aggressively Vital

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

Los Angeles County Museum in Exposition Park is showing the largest collection of sculpture by Gaston Lachaise ever assembled. After the exhibit closes here on Jan. 19, it will travel to the Whitney Museum in New York City.

One hundred and sixty-four works include numerous drawings, some jewelry, small bronze figures, sensitive portraits and reliefs as well as the large, aggressively vital figures for which the French sculptor is, perhaps, best known. In these, each member is fully realized and articulated in itself to a fantastic degree as well as being an harmonious part of the whole figure.

* * * *

LACHAISE seems to wear two hats: as a portraitist he is great, achieving an evocative likeness along with classic simplification of detail. But in the female figures, the pulsating body is the thing, with living forces pushing all parts into an amplitude beyond the full round. The heads are summarized, detached, submerged in a remote atavistic dream.

Lachaise's woman is neither girl, nor wanton, and puts to shame the meagerness of the contemporary fashion figure. She is not an individual, as are the brilliant portraits like those of Georgia O'Keeffe. Lachaise harks back to the female forms of pre-history, to earth mothers privy to the deepest secrets of nature.

IT IS REALLY quite a marvelous show. Since he worked from 1895 to 1935, Lachaise not only reflects many of the developments of contemporary art, but, in many cases, originated them. I could have been lost completely in admiration had not a wicked imaginary colloquy been running through my head . . . concerning the definition of woman . . . between Lachaise and Betty Friedan, author of the recent "Feminine Mystique."

This exhibit cannot help but have a profound effect on the visions of contemporary artists and is an event not to be missed by anyone interested in the visual arts.

Artists Recorded History

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Page Editor

The Southern California scene in the 19th Century is depicted in prints and drawings from the Robert B. Honeyman collection which go on view Friday at Los Angeles County Museum. The exhibit will continue through Feb. 2.

The history and events of this romantic, dramatic period in California are shown in lithographs, drawings and watercolors.

Ruth Mahood, chief curator of history at the museum, points out the fact that artists of the 19th Century acted as reporters, photographers and newsreel men of their time. Some 100 works are included in the exhibition, titled "Prints and Drawings of Southern California."

The museum is open daily except Mondays and Christmas Day.

OUR COVER

Imagine, as a little girl, waking up on Christmas morning to find a whole town of toys at your feet. Not just one doll or a single dollhouse, but an entire town of tiny houses, shops, churches and little people. Such is the dream of Janet Ridgway depicted in Roger Coar's cover photo, after her day of helping decorate Geppeto's Village for Christmas. The village is one of Disneyland's miniature fable settings in Storybook Land. Like many other parts of the Magic Kingdom, the village is colorfully decorated for the yule season with evergreen garlands, trees and gay ornaments. Janet was able to get in on the decorating fun because her father works at the park. Next Sunday, Walt Disney will turn all of Disneyland into a magic Christmas toyland. For more about the world of toys, see Page 7.

NEXT WEEK

Hardy men, wresting gold from the rugged West that was California in pioneer days, were far from home, family and the comforts that civilization then afforded. Far, too, from the happiness of the Christmas season around the hearthside. But Christmas was in their hearts and minds and they found ways to mark yuletide in their own rough and ready manner. For an insight into those pioneer Christmases, read "They Didn't Forget Christmas," by Maymie R. Krythe, in next week's Southland Magazine.

Learning of such interesting writings as this ancient bit on a Walker Lake rock is one phase of Long Beach CC GAD educational forums.

"PRESENT dry lakes of California's deserts were full of water, clams and fish. Lush green grass and bushes fringed the lakes, making homes for many animals," Dr. R. F. Logan, specialist on arid regions was speaking in a forum at Rogers Junior High School Auditorium on "Man's Past and Future in Desert Areas."

"At this same time," he continued, "Pinto man, a hunting-and-gathering person, was living at Joshua Tree, near Twentynine Palms. In his leisure, when not hunting rabbits, squirrels and lizards, or gathering acorns and pinon nuts, Pinto man made pictures on the rocks and the cave walls. We can still see these wonderful records of early culture, which tell so much about the men and animals living on the wet California Desert, thousands of years ago."

A period of questions and answers followed Dr. Logan's presentation.

This is offered an unusually refreshing way to go to school — yes, school! Most people think of night classes as lasting a full semester, with home work, tests and grades —but not so with these free lectures and forums which are usually given in a series of four, and which families may attend. And those who attend sit in a comfortable auditorium, look at beautiful colored pictures and listen to fascinating information dispensed by an expert who can also answer his questions! All this is arranged by the General Adult Division of Long Beach City College.

RECOGNIZING THAT, for instance, some persons might find the desert a dry subject, lectures are offered on every conceivable topic.

Fred Dow, associate dean-forums, said that when Dr. Harvey Franklin organized the first forums in 1937, interest was focused largely on public affairs. Now it has expanded to include a large variety of subjects, many of which are illustrated. The forums program has grown in size as well as variety. In 1950, when Dr. Arthur Bietz gave his first lecture here, less than 100 persons attended. In 1962-63, those registered for his series numbered 2,000—in fact, registration for all the forums and lectures last year totaled more than 13,000.

"Some people might observe," Dow said, "that these forums are somewhat similar to colored TV. This is true to an extent. However, let me point out that TV won't answer their questions, and we don't have commercials!"

Send your name to Lu Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give genealogy on DIAZ —M.M., Wilmington.

M.M.: DIAZ, an ancient Spanish name, was formed from Diago, the old Spanish term for James, from Latin, meaning "supplanter." The Diaz shield, granted in Spanish Aragon, has six narrow blue stripes across a gold background. The most noted descendant was Porfirio Diaz, 1830-1915, who was president of Mexico.

DEAR MISS RULE: What is the genealogy on HAZELTINE.—R. H., Downey.

R. H.: HAZELTINE was first known as the English village-name Haseldene, meaning "hazelnut tree hollow," a geographical origin term. Early references to this family is Somerset, England, include William and Adam de Haseldene in 1327. The Haselden (Hazeltine) shield is silver, decorated with a black cross in the center. Robert Hazeltine married Ann Hunt at Bradford, Mass., in 1639.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give genealogy on MARTINDALE.—N.M., Seal Beach.

N.M.: MARTINDALE is a descriptive name taken from a town name in Cumberland, north England, where the Martindale ancestors once lived. This place was originally called Mere Tun-Dael or "Pool-farmstead in the valley." Yorkshire tax lists of 1475 list Katerina Martyngdale, an ancestor. The Martindale shield is silver, emblazoned with a diagonal blue stripe crossed by two red bars.

DEAR MISS RULE: What is the origin of BADHAM?—M. M., Garden Grove.

M. M.: BADHAM began as the Welsh surname Ab Adam for "Son of Adam." The poetical, Biblical given name Adam meant "man of the red earth." Ab-Adam became Badam in the 1600s. The Badham shield is gold, emblazoned with five gold stars on a red cross.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please explain TAVOLARA.—A. T., Long Beach.

A. T.: TAVOLARA, traced to its archaic medieval Italian origin, is revealed as being an occupational word. This surname began as Tavollaro meaning "table-maker," describing a skilled master-carpenter and maker of fine furniture.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give genealogy on KAISER. A. K., Long Beach.

A. K.: KAISER is a German surname meaning "king" or "emperor." Its origin was the Roman word "Caesar" introduced to western Europe by conquering Latin armies in the first centuries of the Christian era. In Germany, Kaiser usually referred to an ancestor who enacted the part of an emperor in a popular medieval religious pageant. After continental usage it became this actor's name. The Kaiser coat-of-arms granted at Nurnberg, Bavaria, has the crown of Charlemagne, the first Holy Roman emperor, centered on a red shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you explain JARED.—M. Y., Long Beach.

M. Y.: JARED is revealed as a variation of the English surname Gerard denoting "brave spearman." The ancestry may also be traced to a forefather baptized with the Biblical Hebrew given name Jared meaning "Descendant." No shield is available for Jared.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please publish your analysis of RUSSELL.—M.K., K.R., Long Beach.

M.K., K.R.: RUSSELL, from from the French "Roussel," was brought to England in the 1000s. Roussel pictured a "reddish-haired" ancestor. Hugh de Rosel owned land in Dorset in 1066 and was marshal of the King's buttery (pantry) a position of great prestige. The Russell shield is silver, emblazoned with a red rampant lion. John Russell of Suffolk, England, brought his sons to America in 1630. One of them was among the first graduates of Harvard University.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give history on BOTKIN and BODKINS.—Mrs. M. B., Centralia, Wash. V. B., Garden Grove.

M. B., V. B.: BOTKIN and BODKINS had their start in England as "Boto-kin," deciphered as "young messenger." The Bodkins coat-of-arms has three silver tailors' bodkins with gold handles on a blue shield. No shield is available for Botkin.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like your analysis of WITT.—R. W., Long Beach.

R. W.: WITT is a north German and Dutch family name altered from De Witt. This name has two sources, either from Wido, a warrior title for "chieftain," or from Witu, a home location word for "at the forest." The De Witt coat-of-arms, granted at Amsterdam, Holland, has a silver chevron surrounded by three rosettes, with a silver dove holding an olive branch in its beak, perched on the point of the chevron.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give genealogy on WATKINS. —Mrs. B. W., Garden Grove, Mrs. H., Long Beach.

B. W., H.: WATKINS evolved from Wat, one of various nicknames for Walter which meant "army ruler." Old London baptismal registers list the birth of Jane Watkinnes in 1547. One of the Watkins family shields is gold with three gold leopards' heads on a red chevron across the center.

The World of Christmas . . .

It's a Toy World

THE WORLD of Christmas, for children, at least, is a small world, a land of toys filled with dolls, trains, boats, planes, buggies, games, guns, cars, bikes and tin soldiers.

Youngsters of yesteryear were content with a doll that said "Mama" or a teddy bear with button eyes, soldiers who merely stood guard or a gun that went bang!

In today's electronic world, however, it takes more to bring that special Christmas sparkle to young eyes:

Dolls that laugh when tickled, speak when spoken to, walk on command; or miniature mannikins with a wardrobe rivaling Zsa Zsa Gabor.

Guns, it seems, must knock down a bear at 20 paces with a beam of light or plastic pellet. Wooden soldiers have been promoted to giant robots for hurling guided missiles.

CHEMISTRY SETS, once calculated for ink-making and smoke bomb preparation, must now nearly approximate rocket fuel or atomic explosions before they can compete in the Christmas toy-buying rush.

And electric trains, long a Christmas stand-by for boys, are now largely reserved for dad's own amusement. Male small fry are concentrating on speedway racers with roadways instead of rails.

Simple wooden sailboats of the past have suddenly become mighty battleships, capable of blasting submarines (and water by the bucket) right out of the bathtub.

All this leaves dad (not to mention his empty pockets) with a yen for the good old days of wooden soldiers, rag dogs, penny whistles and dolls just for hugging.

Even the old-fashioned Christmas tree usually turns out in plastic splendor with footlights and baby spots suitable for a Broadway production.

AMONG THOSE who still remember the Christmas traditions of old, however, is a man named Walt Disney. And he's doing something about it.

Next Sunday, for the ninth straight year, he'll turn out a world of Christmas toys unmatched around the globe. It's Disneyland's "Christmas in Many Lands" and "Parade of the Toys" beginning at 2 p. m. and ending at 5:30 with a candlelight procession of 1,000 carolers in traditional Christmas music.

Disney's toy world is filled with giant wooden soldiers marching down Main Street, mammoth dolls, a river-size battleship, galloping toy knights, French balloonists and 60 Disney animals—living toys.

From 28 nations around the world come marchers and dancers with floats representing the traditional toys of many lands. "Stuffed" elephants become live pachyderms.

THERE ARE German music boxes, Scotch dogs, Arabian camels, Japanese dancing dolls and bands and marchers from throughout the South-

Enchanting—there is just no other word for childhood in a toy village, as Southland's Cover Girl so happily demonstrates at Disneyland today.

Two happy parades next Sunday at Walt Disney's magic kingdom, "Christmas in Many Lands" and "Parade of the Toys," will attract giant toy soldiers.

Comic reindeer will dance down Disneyland's Main Street in the "Parade of Toys," which will be a daily feature from next Sunday through Dec. 31.

A Square Deal for Square Dancing Dolls

By Leslie Jones

DOLLS ARE plentiful in most families in which there are little girls —which is most families. But, in the case of Mrs. Margaret Cloyd of Lawndale, dolls and their clothes helped her get a driving license. Anyway, that's how it all ended up.

The whole thing actually started in New Orleans, a generation ago. Mrs. Cloyd's grandmother, Cora Chalin, and Aunt Elizabeth (Ish) Pursglove, helped Margaret's mother, Cora Louise Fortier, get started making doll clothes. She made clothes for the Woman's Christian Exchange, on consignment.

Her mother eventually became associated with a woman who ran a doll hospital, and made clothes for the "patients" there. Also, she made doll costumes for an annual doll show.

Mrs. Cloyd thus inherited her interest and ability in making doll clothes from a long line of doll clothiers.

WHILE LIVING in Anaheim, she got the bug to buy an organ, and earn the money to pay for it.

She scanned the want ads for odd jobs she could do within walking distance. Some of her spare-time activities, done while teen-age Margo and little Helen were at school, included conducting elections in her home and serving as election judge, baby-sitting for square dancers, and doing alterations with her handy needle and thread.

The savings didn't accumulate fast enough, so she considered how she could increase her spare-time income. Then she remembered how her grandmother and her mother made use of their time.

GETTING HER material from many sources, she threaded her needles, started up her sewing machine, and turned out a long list of doll clothes and accessories.

She made brides' dresses, shifts, ballerina costumes, sheaths, shorty nightgowns, robes, coats, hats, "mink" stoles, pantaloons, gowns, slips, lingerie, shirts, pearl necklaces —and even bikinis.

Working whenever and wherever she could snatch a spare moment, perhaps while chatting with a neighbor or while waiting up for her husband, Lewis, to return from the swing shift, she sewed and cut and planned. Often, during the more lonely hours, she was kept company by the family's birds, Honey Bunch the cockateel, or Sweetie Pie the parakeet. Sometimes, they got in her hair—but she didn't mind.

MRS. CLOYD merchandized her products in many ways. A friendly, outgoing person, much of her "promotion" was through word of mouth, in the course of talking with neighbors. When a salesman stopped by, she usually ended up selling him something to take home to his daughter. She placed ads in newspapers and on market bulletin boards.

She did a good business. Even yet, the money was not coming in fast enough to pay for an organ. Just by chance, one day, she turned out a square-dance doll dress. There was so much interest expressed in this item that she did more. Soon, it snowballed. Now children from all over the neighborhood beat a little pathway to her door. She was amazed. In no time, she found herself several days behind on orders. Even a western wear store asked for some of her square-dance doll clothes to sell on consignment.

All dolled up in doll costumes designed and made by Mrs. Cloyd, one of her tiny couples begins to do a right-and-left through.

BUT IT MUST be said that the increase of business was not all due to the square-dance doll dresses. The children in the neighborhood had found out that they could get a square deal from Margaret Cloyd. In the first place, in return for half-an-hour to four hours of work on each item of doll clothing, Mrs. Cloyd kept her prices down, ranging from a mere 10 cents to seldom more than $2.

When even these low prices were beyond the pocketbooks of her little customers, she offered generous "terms"—a few cents down, a few cents a week. She kept good records —and she was teaching the children good business practices. Sometimes children got discounts by supplying their own material, and even patterns. Many a parent thanked her for encouraging their children to work for money for the doll clothes.

MRS. CLOYD was offering more than merely "wears."

By now, she was making enough to afford payments on an organ. But another objective had meanwhile taken the place of the organ. Worldly matters had finally won over. For years, she had been handicapped by not knowing how to drive. At last, she made up her mind to learn how, since California is no place for pedestrians.

Because her husband worked nights and had to sleep part of the day, and because she had no way to get to the Anaheim Adult Evening School, where inexpensive driving lessons are offered, Mrs. Cloyd had to take her lessons from a privately-owned driving school, where a car was furnished and the instructor came to her home. This cost more, but her square-dance doll clothes footed the bill.

After a year, Mrs. Cloyd at last has a driver's license. And, although now living in Lawndale (15635 Roselle) and far removed from them physically, she nevertheless has a place in the hearts of the children who made it possible.

SAN CLEMENTE

Mysterious Island of the Sea Monster

By Bill Emery and Dick Cadieu

Wilson Cove is the Navy's center of activities on San Clemente Island, mysterious mountaintop jutting from the sea off the California shore beyond Catalina. This is a view of the Naval Ordnance Test Station there.

FIFTY-TWO miles south and slightly west of Long Beach lies an island shrouded in mystery both ancient and modern, where fish abound in startlingly clear water but are off-limits to most divers; where the treasures of sunken Spanish ships are believed to lie, and remnants of a 5,000-year-old Indian culture have been found.

This is San Clemente Island, second biggest of the eight offshore channel isles. It is the home of thousands of wild goats, site of a Navy station with several hundred personnel and the place where the Polaris missile got its super-secret underwater testing.

It even has its own legendary sea monster.

San Clemente Island, called Kenkope (Wild Waves) by the Indians, was renamed by Vizcaino in honor of the fourth Roman Catholic Pope, St. Clement. But for the most part its recorded history is scarce.

The 24-mile-long island, of volcanic origin, has gently rolling hills and valleys thick with waist-high wild oats, and is ringed by sharp cliffs.

THE EAST SIDE of the island falls to 647 fathoms in about a 70-degree drop, and rises out of the Pacific to a height of 1,965 feet at the southern end at the same rakish angle.

The water around the island is so clear that large fish can be seen on sandy bottoms 60 to 80 feet deep. Abalone, lobster, sheepshead, bass, and virtually all types of sport fish thrive in the kelp caverns close to shore.

Since the fish see few divers, they are curious to the point of rudeness about their rare human visitors.

But there is no use donning flippers and wet suit. Civilians can tour the island only with special military permission. And federal imprisonment wouldn't be the only risk faced by an unauthorized visitor.

Part of the island is under practice bombardment on the average of four days a week, another part is strafed by Air Force planes, and underwater demolition teams blast away at still another site.

PRIME ACTIVITY of the Naval Ordnance Test Station, which has about 450 men stationed on the island, is the testing of underwater weapons systems, including the Polaris missile. The Polaris tests, conducted in secrecy for about five years, culminated in the first successful underwater firing of the 1,500-mile-range missile in April 1960.

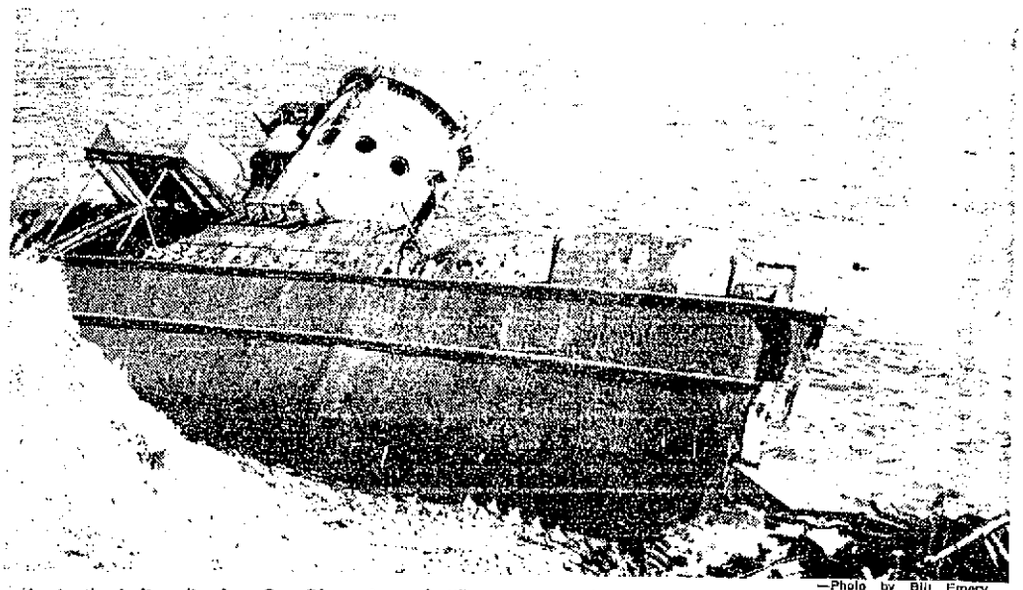

The ordnance facility, headquartered at Wilson Cove on the eastern slope, is involved in other scientific projects, and the $12 million Sherman Field air strip on the northern part of the island is used by carrier squadrons for touch-and-go landings.

Peak population of the now Navy-operated island was during World War II, when 3,000 men were stationed at a base in the island's interior. The base was abandoned at the end of the war in a matter of hours, and even the sheets were left on the bunks. Later, practicing invasion tactics, U. S. Marines used the buildings to further their training. The old 7,500-foot runway now is used only for launching drones flown for aerial gunnery practice.

THE ISLAND has several features all its own. There are three types of cacti—one of which is found nowhere else in the world. Of the two species of lizards, one is found only there.

The birds of the island include the meadow-

Anciently, Indians lived on San Clemente, and still more anciently, strange animals. The island's history also includes accounts of a sea monster. This rusting hulk is a reminder of military training landing operations.

Beyond a Door of Quartz and Glass

Forty feet long, the living room in the expansive home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Akers in the Lakewood Country Club area has plenty of living space and ample area to entertain when a party guest list runs to some length.

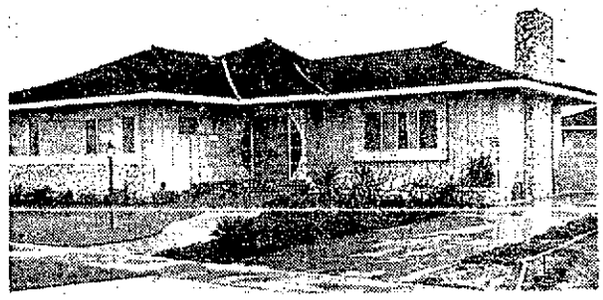

By Stella George

ON AN outsize lot, which measures 76x168 feet, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Akers built their dream home about a year ago in the Lakewood Country Club area at 3418 Warwood Drive. The location provides a permanent, unobstructed view of the tall trees and green fairways beyond.

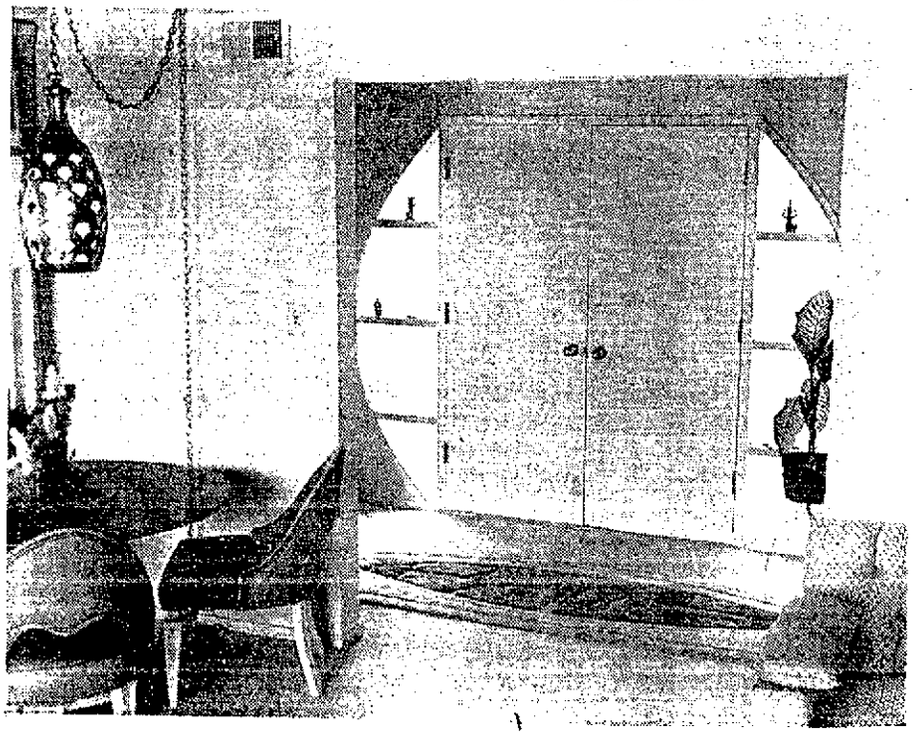

The home reflects the personalities and tastes of the occupants who modified plans to suit their own requirements, and planned the entire decorating theme of the interior.

A curved walk leads to the front door. Death Valley quartz, a clean, white rock, encircles an unusual doorway which has amber glass on either side. The quartz is also used in a fireplace, an outside planter, and in the front trim.

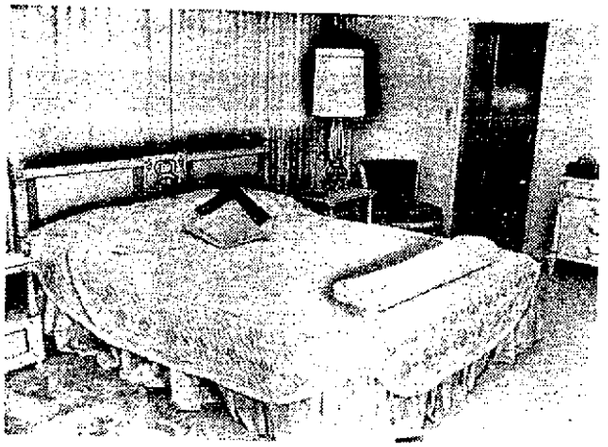

THE GRACIOUS entry is unique since it is a small foyer and part of the living room itself. The entire home is carpeted in martini wool, but in the entry there is a colorful rug on top of the carpeting that lends a warm and inviting feeling to the surroundings.

Two faces of a novel doorway: At right, quartz and amber glass frame a generous door. Below, the intriguing entry from the inside, showing an unique inner area that adds space to large living room.

Bedroom furniture here is custom-styled in Hawaiian modern. Color accents in the room are shocking pink.

The living room measures 40x22 feet. On the right, near the fireplace, is a persimmon-and-gold sofa facing a French Provincial coffee table. Across the way are two occasional chairs in antique white and with rollers so that the chairs may be moved to any desired position in the room.

A round game or dining table, surrounded by custom-made persimmon colored chairs upholstered in a silk finish plastic-type fabric is in front center of the room, with a hanging lamp overhead. Across the way is a hi-fi console. At the left end of the living room is a harvest table, TV, and other occasional chairs.

THE KITCHEN, with its up-to-date appliances, is a model of streamlined efficiency. There is a spacious dining area at the far end. A service porch adjoins.

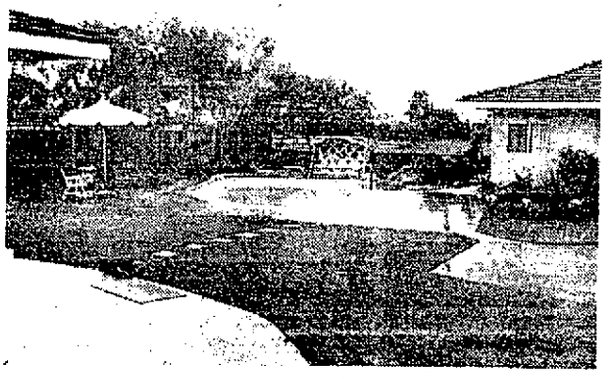

Furnishings in the master bedroom are Hawaiian modern. The king-sized bed is custom made with an antique white headboard. The dresser carries out the Hawaiian modern theme. Shocking pink accessories add a gay touch of color: the long velvet bench, the small rug beside the bed, and the occasional chair with pink and lilac upholstery. Venetian lamps are pink and lilac. Mrs. Akers' dressing room and bath is to the right of the master bedroom. The former has a pink settee, full length mirror and dressing table. Akers' bath is to the left, as tailored as the other bath is feminine.

The second bedroom is done with red mahogany furnishings. Next to this room is Akers' den—completely customed to his needs with desk, comfortable black leather swivel chair, sofa, and wall space on which to hang or mount maps and similar items.

AMONG THE many outstanding features of the home is the easy flow of the rooms and their location with respect to one another. For example, Mrs. Akers' dressing room and bath follows through to the service porch where the washer and dryer are conveniently located. This room, of course, adjoins the kitchen. With this arrangement, the typical morning tasks of a housewife are thus made easier. The problem of saving steps yet maintaining spaciousness in various areas is solved with such a plan.

A pool is at the far left of the lot. Immediately surrounding the pool is a wide deck area. The fence at the rear of the property is cut low in order to capture the view of the trees and golf course. A large patio directly behind the glass wall of the living room is excellent for entertaining. In their garage the Akers have built two baths with showers for pool users and a spacious den rumpus room.

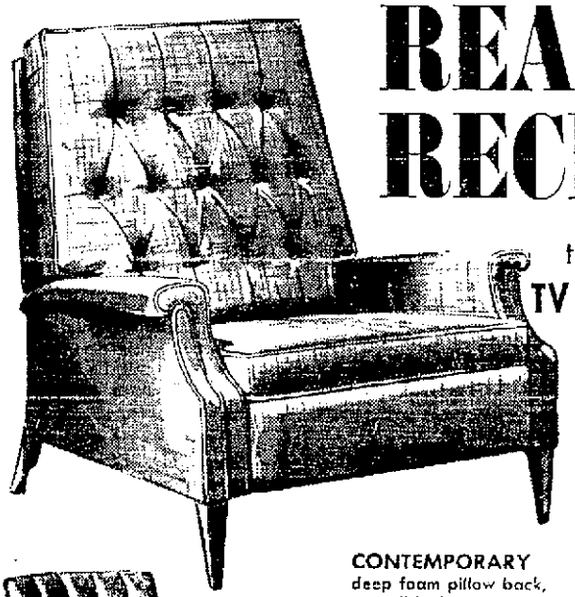

This comfortable and attractive home which is only sixty seconds away from busy Carson Street and the shopping areas has a true country atmosphere.

Pool and patio area: An unusually low fence, in rear of picture, permits a view of golf course and trees beyond.

Christmas at the White House

By Betty Hardesty

DURING the holiday season, the White House is ablaze with many lights and an enormous Christmas tree shines on the lawn. The North Portico sparkles with a beautiful cluster of colored bulbs and all the windows are lit up.

A fine Christmas tree in the East Room has been a tradition ever since Teddy Roosevelt's sons surprised their father with the first electrically-lighted tree.

When the Theodore Roosevelts came to the White House, there was no tree to add to the festivities. The President considered candles too serious a fire hazard. The next year, however, with help from the electrician, the children decorated a tree and hid it in a closet until time for the surprise.

THE EAST ROOM Christmas tree had no children to enjoy it during the Eisenhower administration, but throughout former years the White House glowed with festivities, gifts and laughter of children. Wonderful family parties took place during Andrew Jackson's term and those of Franklin Roosevelt as well as Theodore Roosevelt.

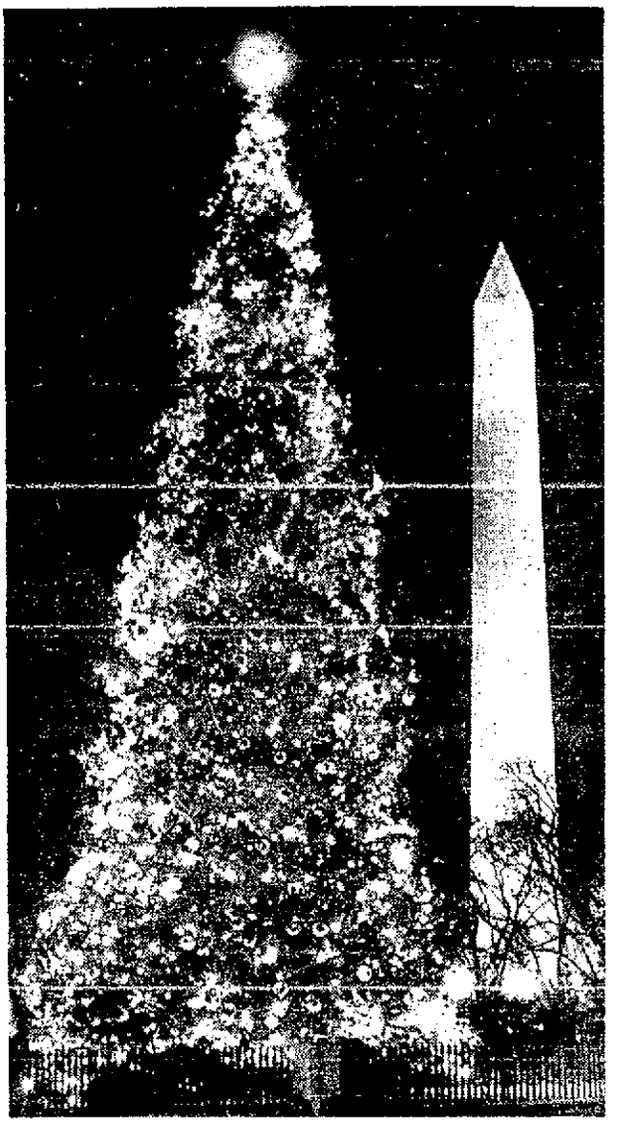

Jackson's nephew, Johnny Donelson, 6, was the cause of the first big party staged for youngsters — all the orphans of Washington D.C. Johnny had asked the President, "Did you ever hear of a Christmas when Santa did not come?" and Andrew Jackson had to thoughtfully answer, "Yes." He himself had been left an orphan without ever hearing about Santa or even owning a single toy.

President Jackson personally gave each child a gift and then played snowball fight with balls of starched cotton right there in the East Room.

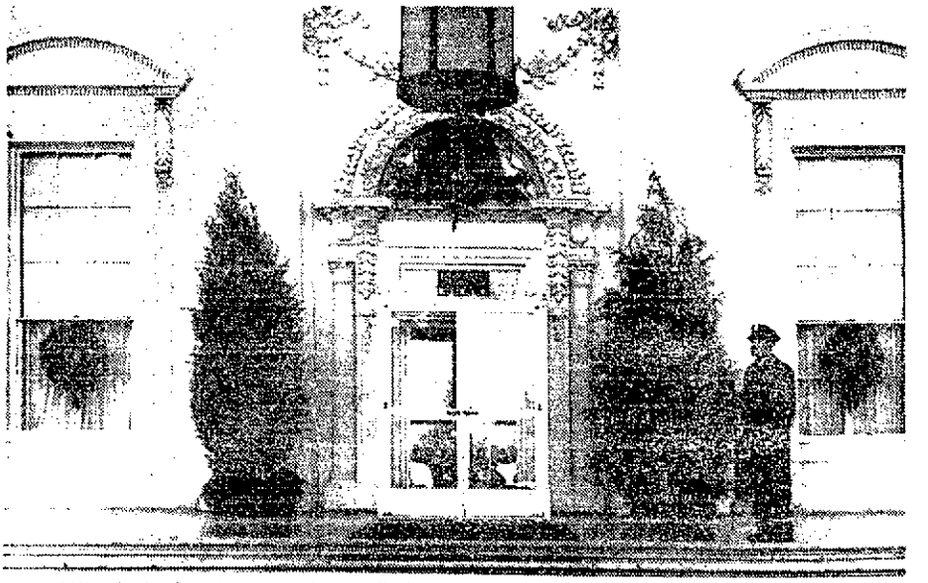

CALVIN COOLIDGE'S sons were too old when they lived in the White House to believe in Santa so their Christmas was less boisterous. The story is told that frugal Cal gave his staff some gifts he had previously received himself.

Hoover was always self-contained, but liked a merry Christmas. There was fun when Santa, really his secretary, Larry Richey, jumped from the fireplace to amuse the Hoover grandchildren, Peggy Ann and Peter. President Hoover began a White House custom by ordering a reading of Dicken's "Christmas Carol."

Franklin D. Roosevelt liked this ceremony and dramatized it by reading it himself to make it a memorable occasion for the White House children's Christmas.

The National Community Christmas tree blazes with lights each year on the Ellipse south of the White House.

Wreaths in the windows and trees flanking the entrance are typical of the Christmas decorations that are to be found each year at the North Portico of the White House.

Today's Daring Executives

Dr. H. G. Hubbard of LBSC takes a close look at today's business executive and gets some surprising answers.

By Lou Jobst

THE Southern California executive is no staid, stick-in-the-mud in a gray flannel suit.

He's a swashbuckling business adventurer who is ready, even eager, to take chances.

This is the view of a pair of Long Beach area researchers, Dr. Harold G. Hubbard of Long Beach State College and Dr. Edward C. McDonagh, USC professor and citizen of Palos Verdes.

Drs. Hubbard and McDonagh took a long and searching look at the management man, Southern California species, during a study in which they interviewed 102 vice-presidents of metropolitan area corporations.

THE VEEPS WERE the cream of the executive suite crop, representing firms whose annual sales were between $25 and $50 million and employed 1,000 to 2,500 persons each.

They found the group's most significant trait to be "a desire for adventure which includes 'making things happen' and creating situations which lead to calculated risks."

Each of those interviewed was given a 100-item questionaire and then personally questioned for more than one hour.

The researchers were particularly interested in finding out at what age men decide upon a career in finance and business management.

THEY LEARNED that unlike physicians and lawyers who usually decide on careers prior to entering college, business executives usually do not decide what they want to be until they have nearly completed their higher education.

Where once the business executive was characterized by his conservativeness toward change, a personality that carefully sidestepped anything that might suggest the flamboyant or adventurous, this portrait is no longer true.

Hubbard and McDonagh termed the business climate of the "60's" the "era of aggressiveness" and told a meeting of the American Sociological Association that management should be out looking for the adventuresome young man.

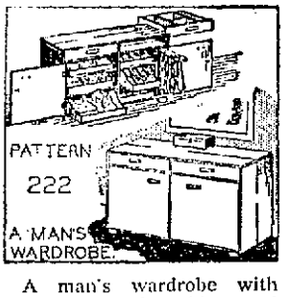

Aboretum Offers Christmas Displays

Displays of early Christmas decorations are open to the public free of charge, starting today, in the Historical Area of the Los Angeles State and County Arboretum, 301 N. Baldwin Ave., Arcadia. The arboretum is open daily from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and the Historical Area from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. The Christmas displays will remain until Twelfth Night, Jan. 6.

The Hugo Reid Adobe will present the Spanish manner of decorations and the "sala" of the adobe will feature an old altar cloth, intricately embroidered, that has been loaned for the occasion by the Duarte family. Also shown will be priceless old "santos," images of saints.

The Queen Anne Cottage decorations will be in old-fashioned theme. A Coach Barn exhibit will be "Peoples of the Valley: Textiles and Costumes," remaining through December.

You Make It

A man's wardrobe with sliding trays for shirts and underwear is a project to delight the home craftsman. So, send for Pattern 222 to wrap with his Christmas tools. Price 35c. This pattern also is one of four in the Place for Everything Packet No. 77 for $1. Clothing, dishes and even magazines will find a good spot in the home with this set of patterns executed. land among 3,000 persons taking part in the twin parade.

Santa's reindeer become comic dancers and Dad's electric train turns up as a locomotive for Santa's sleigh.

In the center of it all is Disneyland's mammoth old-fashioned Christmas tree—snow-tipped branches 60 feet in the air loaded with multi-colored lights and ornaments.

Along Main Street are the traditional garlands of 60 years ago and over all the beams of a giant star resting atop the mighty Matterhorn Mountain.

Even space-oriented youngsters, along with their parents, will find the world of "old-fashioned toys," Disney style, an exciting addition to an otherwise streamlined world of Christmas toys.

Tree Trimming Party Surprise

Surprise Luncheon Bowls, ideal fare for a tree-trimming party, have a filling of diced ham and pineapple chunks in sour-cream sauce, with pre-cooked asparagus spears underneath.

By Mildred K. Flanary

Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

A TREE-TRIMMING party is a happy way to entertain during the holiday season. The tree can be contemporary or old-fashioned—no matter what the style, the spirit is the same! And an easily served buffet supper will add to the festivities for the hostess as well as the guests.

Surprise Luncheon Bowls are just the thing to tempt your guests. They can be eaten "bowl and all" and the bowls are made, almost like magic, in a large pyrex custard cup with cream puff dough. The crisp bowl holds a delicious filling of juicy pineapple chunks and diced ham sparked with a sauce of sour cream seasoned with mustard, a bit of lemon juice and parsley. Tucked beneath the filling are pieces of fresh-frozen asparagus—a perfect complement to the ham and pineapple. The bowls can be made ahead of time and the filling added just before serving. Garnish with a cranberry and a bit of parsley for a gay touch of color.

Surprise Luncheon Bowls

½ cup water
¼ cup butter
½ cup flour
⅛ tsp. salt
2 eggs

To measure flour, dip nested dry measuring cups into flour, level off with straight-edged spatula OR sift if you wish.

Heat oven to 400° (mod. hot). Heat water and butter to boil in saucepan. Stir in flour, salt at once. Stir vigorously over low heat until mixture leaves sides of pan and forms a ball, about one minute. Remove from heat. Add eggs one at a time, beating until smooth and velvety after each addition. Spread batter evenly in bottom of six greased custard cups (10 oz.). Bake 40 to 45 minutes. Cool slowly away from drafts. Fill with filling (below).

Filling:

1 cup commercial sour cream
1 tsp. lemon juice
2 tbsp. finely chopped parsley
1 tsp. salt
dash pepper
½ tsp. prepared mustard
2 cups diced cook ham
2 cups cantaloupe (diced or balled) or pineapple chunks
1 pkg. (10oz.) frozen asparagus pieces

Combine sour cream, lemon juice, parsley, salt, pepper, mustard and ham in a saucepan. Heat and stir until smooth. Add cantaloupe. Arrange pre-cooked asparagus spears in individual salad bowls. Top with ham mixture. Garnish with parsley.

1 tsp. vanilla
½ cup nuts, chopped

Cook sugar, cornstarch, cream, butter and salt to soft ball stage (236 degrees). Cool to room temperature. Beat until creamy and thick. Add raisins, nuts, coconut and vanilla. Continue beating until the candy can be handled. Knead until creamy. Shape in rolls and slice. (This can be made in advance.)

Flowers, plants and medallions of Victorian ladies form design of this soup tureen, part of an old Wedgwood set.

By Helen L. Gillum

When Mr. and Mrs. Verne Holland of 3828 Alberan Ave. give a dinner party, like as not their guests are served on beautiful old Wedgwood. And, because of its unusual design and interesting history, this handsome earthenware dinner set is also apt to become the conversation piece of the meal before it is over.

The 12-piece setting is actually a family heirloom, for it has been in the Hollander family for about 50 years. Before that, it belonged to a newspaperman of Toronto, Canada, who won the china in a circulation contest. Some years later it was presented to Hollander's mother, who used it before the Hollanders came into possession of it.

The striking pattern draws much comment. It is in effect a design of not one, but many kinds of rambling flowers and plants transfer-printed in light grayish-blue on a white background. Big blue medallions of Victorian ladies and young girls also stand out on each piece. These, too, are dissimilar; four different portraits appear on the dinner plates alone.

SEVERAL YEARS AGO Mrs. Hollander queried the New York office of Josiah Wedgwood & Sons about this distinctive Wedgwood design. She was informed that the pattern was originally called "Botanical Plants," and was created in 1874. The intriguing medallions of female faces were added to the design in 1882. Just who are the comely maidens has never been determined. It has been suggested that they are likenesses of members of the royal family of that day, but this premise has never been substantiated.

Like most old-time dinner sets, the serving vessels of this Wedgwood are extremely generous in size — suggestive of the large families and family gatherings that were common years ago. There is a huge soup tureen with cover, an enormous platter that would accommodate the traditional suckling pig or 40-pound gobbler of holiday feasts, and covered vegetable dishes big enough to hold a dozen packages of frozen vegetables from today's supermarket. There is a smaller chop platter, a covered sauce boat and a gravy boat, the latter checked and darkened from repeated "settings" on the rear of the family range to "keep warm" until dinner was ready.

Josiah Wedgwood founded his factory in Staffordshire, England, in 1759. Much of the world's most beautiful basalites, jasper ware, earthenware, ironstone, luster ware and some porcelain originated here. Queen Charlotte of England, Empress Catherine of Russia, the queen of Naples, Napoleon and Thomas Jefferson counted Wedgwood creations among their most prized possessions. It was Queen Charlotte of England who was so pleased with Wedgwood's perfection of cream-colored earthenware that she appointed him "Potter to the Queen," and officially designated his cream ware as "Queen's Ware," a name still used by the Wedgwood factory today.

One of Wedgwood's greatest accomplishments was his matchless copy in 1790, in his famous jasper-cameo ware, of the classic Roman antiquity the "Portland Vase," owned by the Duke of Portland. From 1902 to 1912, bone china by Wedgwood, with the decoration and Great Seal by H. A. Chollerton, was used in the White House.

The Wedgwood factory has continued in operation under Josiah Wedgwood's successors down through the years. Its chief production is good quality earthenware, on which many of the old molds and patterns are still used. But it is genuine "Old Wedgwood" that continues to be the favorite among most collectors today.

Whiskeytown

By E. Margaret Bellaire

WHERE is Whiskeytown?

Now that the new dam there has been dedicated, anybody who has read the papers, listened to the radio or watched television news recently, knows that there IS a place in California named Whiskeytown, located in the deep, deep North, as the natives refer to that particular section of California as distinguished from the more prosaic Northern California known as Sacramento or San Francisco.

Whiskeytown is about 230 miles north of San Francisco, about 10 miles from Redding and Highway 99, the main road between California and Oregon.

It had its origin in 1849 as Franklin City and came by its present name after a long struggle, long before prohibition and well after repeal.

IT BECAME Whiskeytown about 1850 and when the post office opened in 1855, it's official name became Whiskey Creek. The post office closed in 1864 and did not re-open until 1881 but refused to acknowledge its undignified name. The long fight started.

The majority of the gold miners wanted the name Whiskeytown.

Washington remained stubborn. The official name now became Blair, then Stella, and still later Schilling, named after an old time resident. The distasteful part about the name Schilling was that it bore the name of a popular tea.

In 1952, Washington yielded and changed the name back to Whiskeytown.

On the day the change in name became official, more than 3,000 letters went out from the little post office to collectors in all parts of the world.

THE MOTHER LODE gold country is several hundred miles away, but Whiskeytown has had its own exciting past. Lotta Crabtree sang to the prospectors. Joaquin Miller, "poet of the Sierra," fought Indians near there. Not far away lived William B. Ide, first president of the Bear Flag Republic which brought California into the Union. Stage coach robberies were numerous. People like Black Bart, Rattlesnack Dick or Sheetiron Jack were names to think about when climbing into a stagecoach.

It's a country which has been slow to lose its Wild West ways. The last lynching of a stage coach bandit took place near there in the 1890s. Two brothers who had killed a driver were taken from a jail by a mob and strung from a tree in nearby Redding.

Towering Mt. Shasta and Mt. Lassen are on guard, viewing the changes and dreaming of the ghost towns of Igo, Ono, Horsetown, as well as One Horsetown, Piety Hill, Mulestown, Damnation Peak, Rip Gut Rapids, Tarantula Gulch, Budweiser Gap.

And now it's California's newest boomtown—Whiskeytown on Brandy Creek.

This slim guide is the reason new Kotams tampon can give more protection, more comfort

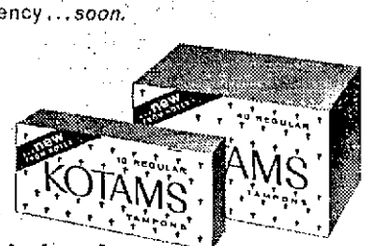

New Kotams is designed with a slim guide that places the tampon exactly where needed to give you the most complete protection possible.

Old-style ways of inserting a tampon can be very haphazard with bulky applicators—or no inserter at all. Protection is often incomplete!

But with new Kotams it's virtually impossible to position this tampon incorrectly. The guide stem has a tapered grip that makes you hold it just the right way for perfect placement. The tampon is angled correctly, directed smoothly to the most comfortable and protective position. The stem then releases.

Deftly compressed, a Kotams tampon expands in use to 4 times its size. Try Regular or Super absorbency . . . soon.

HOW YOUR CHILD LEARNS

Speedup Possible

By Howard E. Kent

QUESTION: Does the average learner work as efficiently as he can?

ANSWER: No. Far from it.

The learner—the student typist, for example—usually works at what he considers a "comfortable" and convenient pace. He is capable of typing 50 words per minute, but he types 40.

Most of us could work faster and more effectively, but we are satisfied with a rate much slower than our minds or muscles permit.

Each of us has had the experience of working faster and better in response to a special incentive or the pressure of a deadline. A businessman planning a pleasant weekend trip to a resort somehow gets his work done a little faster on Friday afternoon.

QUESTION: Does pronunciation affect a student's spelling ability?

ANSWER: Yes. Any teacher who has conducted a spelling bee knows how important it is that the student hear and repeat the correct pronunciation of the word to be spelled.

A child who has only a vague idea of how a word is pronounced will be vague about its spelling.

One common error of spelling is that of leaving out or adding letters. A study by David R. Stone, professor of educational psychology at Utah University, showed that more careful pronunciation is particularly effective in eliminating this type of error.

Urge the child to look up the pronunciation of words as well as their meanings.

World War II housing as it looks today. Wartime force aboard the island was in excess of 3,000 personnel.

Isle of the Sea Monster

lark, and giant ravens that soar up the canyons in updrafts and do barrel-rolls and flips at the edges of cliffs.

A puzzle of nature is the San Clemente fox, a separate breed; no other species exists on the island. The only other animals are the wild pigs and wild goats believed to have been left by the Spaniards a century and a half ago, and some wild house cats abandoned in recent years.

On top of the northern end of the island, the Southwest Museum of Highland Park has been painstakingly excavating an Indian burial ground where prehistoric and Columbian Indian remains and artifacts have been uncovered. Scientists also found the fossil of a hippopotamus-like animal dating back 15 million years. The species previously was unknown.

WATER on the island is unusable because of its silt content, and repeated attempts to build dams and reservoirs have failed because of the porosity of the soil.

Water must be delivered from Long Beach once a week in 250,000-gallon quantities. Meat, produce and other foods and supplies for the base also come from Long Beach.

Since there are no schools, grocery stores or other family conveniences, there are no women or children on the island. The facilities are basic, and many of the personnel are flown to Long Beach via Standard Airways DC3s for the weekends.

The island has ample evidence of man's misfortunes through the years. Treasure maps show locations of Spanish ships known to have sunk near the island and a Navy landing craft lies battered and rusty at the northern point of the island near a lighthouse.

The wreckage of two planes is spread across remote sections on each end of the island; the remains of one of these was being reported so frequently day and night it finally had to be covered with a bulldozer so that Cmdr. Tom Wallace, skipper of the island, could get a complete night's sleep.

ON THE WEST shore, the rocks tell the story of a cabin cruiser that lost a battle with the heavy seas. All that's left are some pillows sealed in plastic and a varnished spar with the numbers CF3248AW.

As for the island's sea serpent, first mention of it was made in 1919 by Ralph Bandini in a book titled "Tight Lines." He described it as having a huge head and neck, eyes "at least a foot in diameter" and with "something that appeared to be a kind of mane of coarse hair almost like fine seaweed." The "monster" has been reported sighted many times since then, most recently in 1954 by a fishing boat captain who said he fired a couple of shots at it.

The island itself, though it may sound like a potential paradise for tourists and sportsmen, isn't apt to be opened any time soon.

Rear Adm. George W. Pressey, the Navy's director of shore activities, testified in August 1963 before a House Appropriations Subcommittee that San Clemente Island "is one of the few isolated areas in which there is no requirement for civilian use, which the Navy owns completely, and where we can carry on a great many research and weapon systems testing projects."

The island, he added, "will be continually and increasingly used in the future."

Garden Clean-Up

Garden clean-up is a November project which the members of the California Association of Nurserymen take seriously. The idea is to remove fallen leaves from lawns and flower beds before they become soggy from rain and smother plant life or provide hiding places for insects.

Faded annuals should be uprooted and bloomed out perennials should be cut back. Much of the raked up material can be composted, but be sure to burn any that is infested either with fungus or insects.

When the Rains Came C.O.D.

Illustrated by the Author

Refused his rain-making fee, Hatfield rowed away pondering the perfidy of man.

By Tim St. George

FOR MONTHS the San Diego area had been drier than a covered bridge, and the city's reservoirs were empty. Something had to be done but the city dads didn't know which way to turn. Then Charles M. Hatfield, a former sewing machine salesman, appeared with an offer to induce rain for $1,000 an inch, over three years; or for a flat $10,000 to fill Lake Morena to the brim—18 billion gallons within one year.

And with Hatfield the rains came cash on delivery.

Deals with rainmakers were considered then as something akin to a prescription from a witch doctor; but the San Diego council authorized Hatfield to start his mysterious operation.

HATFIELD WAS no rainmaker-come-lately. He was credited with providing Central California ranchers with enough moisture to save their parched crops, and with enough rain (for a fee) to refill the miners' sluice boxes in the Dawson City, Alaska, area. He also had taken an assignment to bring down an Italian deluge for Naples, which threatened to make a historical ruin of the city. So, after surveying the area, Hatfield decided to set up shop on the banks of the lake he intended to fill. As usual he constructed a latticed tower in which trays of smoking chemicals were blown skyward by a makeshift windmill.

The rains came. And how they came—as though determined to damp down the gouts of evil-smelling vapors which floated upward during that January in 1916.

The first sprinkles brought a glorious change for the bone-dry San Diegans. Even after one, two, then three inches fell, the scheme was considered a good bargain. But talk of hanging Hatfield's picture in an honored place among other California immortals soon changed to talk of another kind of hanging as Hatfield's rains became a deluge. With no cover having grown on the hills, the water washed down canyons and gullies, sweeping everything before it. The reservoirs filled, then overflowed. Ranches were inundated, cattle lost, the Tijuana race track flooded, and the San Diego Exposition washed out. As the damage mounted, the city council, already facing the risk of being considered idiots for having started this thing anyway, called on Hatfield to see if he couldn't turn off the celestial faucet. But Hatfield's rain continued.

BRIDGES WERE swept away. One isolated train had its passengers removed by boat, while all supplies for the city were being brought in by sea since normal transportation lines had been cut by the floods.

But that wasn't the end of the deluge.

Otay reservoir, full for the first time, began to overflow. Suddenly its earth-fill dam gave way and a gigantic wall of water carried at least fifty people to their deaths. Damage ran into the millions.

Hatfield dismantled his tower and put out his chemical fires and tried to collect his money. No one would honor the commitment. Hatfield's claim was never paid, largely because no one dared take responsibility for making the rain with all of the attendant damage. Hatfield rowed away from city hall, cursing the perfidy of man and giving thanks for the blessings of nature who responded to his incantations.

Though scientists scoffed at his effectiveness and declared him to be little more than a black magician, before Hatfield died in January, 1958, he lived to see many of these same scientists using somewhat similar methods to precipitate rain.

HATFIELD WAS a kindly but secretive man and even his death was kept from the public for four months. He had always been able to inspire public interest and respect, sometimes too much. In one instance, he had to appear in court and while he was testifying rain drops suddenly splattered against the windows.

Because the weather forecast predicted a sunny day, the judge smilingly looked down and said to Hatfield:

"I hope the change of weather isn't an expression of the witness' displeasure."

MEDICINE AND YOU

Wholesale Tonsillectomy Hit

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical-Science Writer

WHOLESALE family removal of tonsils is criticized by the California Medical Association in a new report.

"Just because one child in the family may need a tonsillectomy is no reason for parents to decide to have all of the children subjected to the operation at the same time," the report notes.

The decision to operate should be based on individual circumstances, it continues.

Incidentally, respiratory infections have been found to be just as common in children after removal of tonsils as before. In fact, one extensive study of 909 youngsters in England shows that those who had their tonsils removed had more colds than those who kept them.

ANOTHER STUDY indicates flu vaccine is effective in protecting elderly persons against the disease.

Earlier this year Asian flu struck a ward in Stockton State Hospital. Some of the patients, all elderly, had been inoculated, others had not.

Twenty-four of 30 patients who contracted influenza had not received the conventional two-injection course of the vaccine.

But only six of 29 patients who had received two doses became ill.

The report is in California Medicine.

APPEARANCE of little gray spots in the eye can be an early clue in the diagnosis of lead poisoning, a researcher reports.

Eight persons working for an industrial wire manufacturer were exposed to lead compounds for periods ranging from six months to one year. In all instances doctors found retinal stippling (spotting)—grayish lead pigment glistening in the eye. Laboratory tests backed up this sign—the patients were found to have lead in their systems.

When workers were removed from this exposure to lead, the little spots disappeared, according to a report in the New England Journal of Medicine.

ADRENAL hormones often are used in the treatment of asthmatic children, but a drawback is that they stunt growth.

Now a team of Denver researchers thinks another drug may offset the tendency to restrict growth.

The drug is a small pink tablet named stanozolol, or Winstrol. It's a synthetic male hormone given in conjunction with the other hormonal drugs.

Dr. Constantine J. Falliers and associates of Children's Asthma Research Institute and Hospital prescribed stanozolol for 12 boys and three girls 7 to 16 years old. All were of short stature, and doctors feared they'd mature into short adults.

After six months of combined medication, the youngsters showed "a marked acceleration" in upward growth. But the doctors say observation must continue for a number of years before long-term effects of the drug can be assessed.

A SIMPLE compound made from sugar cane and natural oils may offer a solution to the problem of detergent pollution in both surface and ground water, researchers disclose.

This approach to the problem of sudsy water pollution is being investigated by Dr. Cooper H. Wayman and other hydrologists (water scientists) at the Denver headquarters of the U. S. Geological Survey.

Addition of the sugar-base compound expedites decomposition of the detergent, they say. The chemical additive makes the detergent a desirable "meal" for bacteria, to bring about a rapid breakdown of polluting suds.

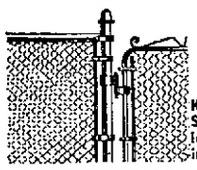

Sweetened by the sugar compound, detergents decompose within one day, Dr. Wayman reports. It makes no difference whether the detergent is discharged into surface water such as rivers, ponds or lakes, or into underground water.

Sugar detergents, the scientists sum up, offer a promising solution to this vexing problem.

Teen-Agers Theatre

By R. Winston Tucker

FOR THE LAST four years a group of Long Beach teen-agers have produced their version of Broadway musical shows. Forty-five hundred have applauded them for their performances.

It began in 1960 when 13-year-old Greg Killingsworth wrote a nine-page script for "Oklahoma Travelers," adapted from the musical "Oklahoma." Greg and seven of his friends then convinced Greg's grandmother that her garage presented the perfect setting for an expression of their talents. The reaction of the audience was enthusiastic and the participants decided that this type of fun was worth experiencing again.

Since then four shows have been produced at the home of Greg's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Killingsworth of 4606 Virginia Road:

"Battle of Bottleneck," "We Love You, Conrad," "Wildcat," and this year, "The Company Way."

At first, the garage was used, but later the teeners built the present Virginia Country Theatre overlooking the backyard. The shrub-and tree-enclosed area accommodates an audience of 200 and provides a pleasant setting under the stars for an evening of entertainment.

EACH SUCCESSIVE play reflected a little more of the professional touch. Gradually, tape recorders, microphones and speakers were added. Greg and his equally young technician, Ross Millie, designed and built a complicated light board with dimmers. Sets and scenery designed and built entirely by the members, have been improved — all this as donations permitted. The cast has included as many as 30 and recently double casting was initiated to enable more youngsters to participate.

Young Greg Killingsworth writes, directs and produces for Virginia Country Theatre.

Greg is a good-looking, tall, slender, easy-to-like person with hazel eyes and light brown wavy hair. Is the theater important to him? Don't ask unless you are prepared to be a good listener. He has written, directed, produced and acted in each show and gets his ideas by listening to tape recorded music from numerous Broadway hits. The script is then written to match the tunes selected. Applicants are auditioned and after weeks of hard work, a dress rehearsal is held.

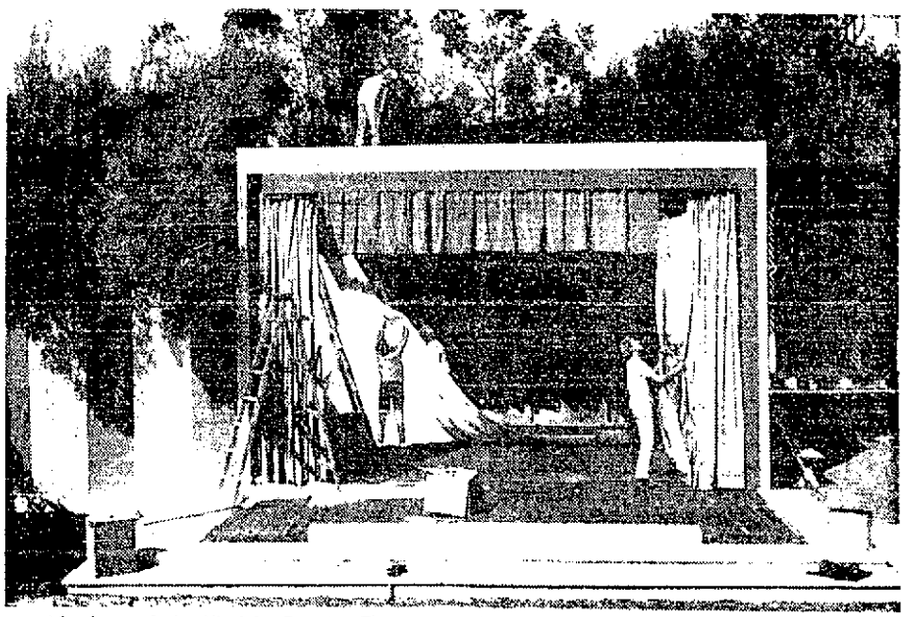

"TO ME, each succeeding performance is the most important," said Greg. "It quickly reveals whether or not we have accomplished our objective. Afterward, I crawl into bed exhausted and hitchhike a ride with the first sandman that comes along."

Ten performances are given outdoors during the summer months. Posters, placed in business windows throughout Long Beach, advertise the musical. There is no admission charge—just a handy donation box.

The Virginia Country Theatre was formally organized last January with a membership of 200. Its purpose: to provide an outlet for talented Long Beach teen-agers interested in the theater and to show adults what the younger generation can do.

THE MEMBERSHIP is composed of an enthusiastic, friendly group of boys and girls who appreciate this opportunity for self-expression. They neither smoke nor drink, do well scholastically (group average, B-plus) and many are active in school affairs.

Greg expressed the feelings of the group by saying that "The satisfaction and fun we get from developing an idea into a successful and entertaining production more than compensates for all the hours of hard work. The favorable attitude of the audience and the capacity crowds that we have performed for suggests that the shows should go on".

Members of the Virginia Country Theatre are shown at work on the back-yard stage where the group of 200 teen-agers produces its versions of various Broadway musical shows.

Eleanor Roosevelt's Favorites

By Vera Williams
Southland Magazine Book Editor

HIGH on the list of books that enrich the season comes "ELEANOR ROOSEVELT'S CHRISTMAS BOOK" (Dodd, Mead, $6.). Mrs. Roosevelt loved Christmas, its peace and good will. She liked writing about Christmas, to which she made her own contributions, and collected her favorites to share with others. These stories, essays and verses, old and new, come from many lands where Christmas is celebrated. Included are Mrs. Roosevelt's own descriptions of family Christmases at Hyde Park and in the White House; her charming original tale, "Christmas"; carols from the repertoire of the United Nations Singers and such classics as Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" which FDR used to read aloud on Christmas eve, along with contemporary works such as "Amahl and the Night Visitors." Mrs. Roosevelt selected writings of such diverse authors as Heywood Broun, Rachel Field, Anatole France, Robert Frost, Washington Irving, Selma Lagerlof, F. Van Wyck Mason, O. Henry, Dylan Thomas, William Shakespeare, Hugh Walpole.

"THE JOYFUL CHRISTMAS BOOK" by Kathryn Holley Seibel (Van Nostrand, $5.95) is meant to convey the joy of Christmas for those who like to create the decorations and gifts described in how-to detail. Under Mrs. Seibel's guidance you can turn metal foils, wood veneers, copper screen, plastics and glass bottles into decorative Christmas pieces. Even wood shavings, rice, macaroni, fruit, vegetables, seashells and glass marbles are part of ingenious designs, some for Christmas and others that can be used around the year.

MANY MORE BOOKS, on a variety of subjects are out, all eminently suitable for Christmas giving.

Biography?

Abraham Lincoln emerges as a man, husband and father, a national leader in "LINCOLN IN PHOTOGRAPHS, an Album of Every Known Pose," by Charles Hamilton and Lloyd Ostendorf (University of Oklahoma Press, $19.50). There are 119 photographs of Lincoln—39 beardless, 80 with a beard. He sat for 30 different cameramen on 61 occasions. A half-dozen are issued for the first time from the original glass negatives or collodion plates, unaltered and uncropped. Also included are 105 heretofore unpublished photographs of people and places known intimately to Lincoln. The total number of pictures of all subjects: 790.

"FDR" by Robert D. Graff, Robert Emmett Ginna and Roger Butterfield (Harper, $10) in photographs and text spans the life of Franklin Delano Roosevelt. It brings back the dark days of the depression, the hopeful "100 days," World War II and the sorrow and shock of FDR's death.

"WATCHERS OF THE SKIES," by Willy Ley (Viking, $8.50) is an informal history of astronomy from Babylon to the Space Age. Following the stream of discovery from its source in prehistory, Ley considers step by step the problems that confronted leading astronomers of each age, tells how they met them and outlines what each contributed to the growing knowledge of the skies.

"THE GREAT PIANISTS FROM MOZART TO THE PRESENT" by Harold C. Schonberg, music critic of the New York Times (Simon & Schuster, $6.95) makes the artists of the piano come vividly alive as people and performers . . . of special interest is his appraisal of the pianists of our own time—Lhevinne, Rosenthal, Godowsky, Rubenstein, Horowitz and younger men.

"SHAKESPEARE, a Biography" by Peter Quennell (World, $6.95) provides an account of Shakespeare's life and literary development against the historical background of his age. Quennell believes that Shakespeare actually wrote the comedies and tragedies attributed to him; he thinks the Earl of Southampton probably inspired the Sonnets.

"THE SEEKERS: Gaugin, Van Gogh and Cezanne," by Lawrence and Elisabeth Hansen (Random House, $6.95) is the first biography for the general reader which relates the lives and the work of these artists. The Hansons present the trio as a complete aspect of art: Cezanne, the intellect; Van Gogh, the heart; Gaugin, a balance between the two.

"RECOLLECTIONS OF CHARLEY RUSSELL," by Frank Bird Linderman (University of Oklahoma Press, $6.95) reflects the close friendship of the frontier artist and his friend, a trapper and assayer and their concern for the era fast slipping away from them. Includes a gallery of Russell drawings.

"HENRY THOREAU: American Rebel" by T. Morris Longstreth (Dodd, Mead, $3.50) is a readable biography of the great naturalist whose life exemplified every individual's need for integrity and independence.

"MARY BAKER EDDY, A Biography" by Norman Beasley (Duell, Sloan & Pearce, $5.95) presents the life story and the accomplishments of the founder of the Church of Christ, Scientist.

"UNFINISHED SYMPHONY AND OTHER STORIES OF MEN AND MUSIC" by Freda Pastor Berkowitz, drawings by Joseph Schindelman (Atheneum, $4.95): 50 stories about pieces of music, 16 musical biographies, Scarlatti to Copland.

"AS I REMEMBER THEM" by Eddie Cantor (Duell, Sloan & Pearce, $3.95). Cantor recalls when he and George Jessel were discovered by Gus Edwards and he tells interesting things about his friends, Jack Benny, W. C. Fields, Bea Lillie, Groucho Marx, Al Jolson, Will Rogers, Greta Garbo, Judy Garland, Jimmy Durante, Fanny Brice, Danny Kaye.

DRAMA—The Burns Mantle Yearbook, "THE BEST PLAYS, 1962-1963" edited by Henry Hewes with Al Hirschfeld drawings (Dodd, Mead, $6.50), the 46th volume of the Best Plays series. Includes programs of various Shakespeare festivals, a complete listing of Broadway and off-Broadway productions, programs on the theater outside New York and abroad. For the record, the 10 best plays are "Stop the World—I Want to Get Off," "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" "Tohin-Tohin," "P. S. 193," "The Collection," "The Milk Train Doesn't Stop Here Anymore," "Anderra," "Mother Courage and Her Children," "Battle of a Simple Man" and "She Loves Me."

Merry musicmakers, Haig and Regina Shekerjian drawing, appears in "A Book of Christmas Carols" (Harper, $5.95).

JANIS BABSON

The moving story of this little 8-year-old Ottawa girl, who, dying with leukemia, willed her eyes to the Eye Bank is told by Lawrence Elliot in "A LITTLE GIRL'S GIFT" (Holt, Rinehart and Winston, $2.95).

They'll Be Gadding Into Mexico

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

IF YOU PLAN a vacation to Mexico next year, you should not overlook Operation Amigós and the possibilities it offers for a memorable experience in travel.

Operation Amigos is a real bonanza in gadding because it affords the opportunity to visit Mexico City, Cuernavaca, Taxco and Acapulco group style—with friends — and at the same time assist in a worthy cause.

The trip is scheduled April 3-12.

Sponsored by the Children's Dental Foundation and the Junior League of Long Beach, Operation Amigos is designed to promote funds for the dental care of underprivileged children. The tour is being operated by Western Airlines, Mexico Travel Advisors, and the C. F. Beach Travel Service as agents for those making the journey.

A RATE of $349.50 per person includes transportation, hotel accommodation, and most meals and drinks.

While in Mexico City the group will visit the pyramids, the Shrine of Guadalupe, Chapultepec Castle and Park, National Palace and other points of interest. Entertainment will include the famous Ballet Folklorico, bullfights and Mexican folklore dances.

In Cuernavaca, there will be visits to the Palace of Cortez, with its Diego Rivera murals, and the Borda Gardens; in Taxco, the Santa Prisca Cathedral, House of Tears, and the world-renowned silver shops.

Two days will be spent in Acapulco, often referred to as the "Mexican Riviera."

Beach Travel (542 Locust Ave.) has all the details.

ALL TRAVELERS to Mexico are required to carry with them proof of citizenship (birth or baptismal certificate, voter's registration card, passport or naturalization certificate) and a Mexican Tourist Permit issued at any Mexican tourist office or consulate. A smallpox vaccination, not less than 14 days nor more than three years old, also is required.

Beginning Jan. 1, 1964 Mexican tourist cards good for 30 days, will be issued without charge.

STAY - AT - HOMES soon will be able to provide dining hospitality and other entertainment for traveling friends anywhere in the world—without themselves being present.

Such is the promise of a unique new service, "Be My Guest," established jointly by American Express, world's largest travel organization, and Be My Guest, Inc. of New York.

Starting soon, more than 1,000,000 American Express Credit Card holders will receive a colorful directory listing more than 800 dining spots in 200 cities throughout the U. S., Canada and the world.

All the holders need do to provide hospitality to their friends in far places is to determine when they will be where, choose the desired restaurant, and then either mail or telephone American Express. Be My Guest does the rest—sends the invitation which your guest merely presents at the designated eating place.

And that isn't all: prices in the directory, ranging from $4 to $25, depending upon the restaurant chosen, entitle the recipient to a full dinner of his own selection from the a la carte menu — from cocktails through dessert, and including tips and taxes.

CONTINENTAL Trailways Bus System of the United States has established a sales office in Tokyo (47, Mamiana-cho, Azabu, Minato-ku). Representative in charge will be Robert Strickland, 819 E. 37th St., Long Beach, for Japan, Korea, Okinawa and Taiwan. Strickland was formerly director of the American Orient Travel Corp. of Japan and is well known in travel and international circles in Japan.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH DELAPLANE

"Can you suggest something different for a holiday-party punch? Something with champagne?"

BAR CINTRA in the Square de l'Opera in Paris serves what they call a "cup"—they pronounce it just like we pronounce cup.

First you need two bowls —Bar Cintra used a glass bowl inside a silver bowl. Put the smaller bowl inside the larger. Fill the space between with crushed ice.

The mixture in the small bowl: Two bottles of champagne. An ounce each of cognac, apricot brandy, peach brandy, creme de banane, maraschino. Add small slices of half an orange, banana, peach, and apricot. Let it stand and chill a couple of hours.

Serve this in six ounce glasses. Fill the glass two-thirds full of the bowl mixture. Then top it with another third of freshly opened, chilled dry champagne. It's a lot of work. But you make good points.

". . . Something simple but foreign for a holiday party?"

A SIMPLE ONE is akvavit. Freeze the bottle in a block of ice, leaving the neck clear to hang onto. You pour this in tiny glasses and give them Danish beer for a chaser. Swedish akvavit is the best. Tuborg or Carlsberg is the beer.

You should serve little squares of buttered brown bread with this. Top each one with tiny cold shrimp. Don't get the bread flavored (no rye). The akvavit has a caraway taste. So don't compete with it.

"Is there a limit to baggage on Pacific cruise ships?"

ALL SHIPS give you almost unlimited baggage allowance. You may have to let your trunks go in the hold. But the shipping line will give you tags to put on them so that they will be stowed where you can get at them during the voyage.

"Any information on dining in Portugal?"

Tavares is the oldest top-restaurant in Lisbon. Fairly expensive by Portuguese standards, which means dinner will go for $5 or $6 with wines.

Cortador is colorful. They carve the steaks in front of you and give you a murderous Spanish knife to cut it.

Gambrinus is old and colorful and good.

The best color spots are the fado places—restaurants where they sing the Portuguese fado. "April in Portugal" is a fado. Done with guitars and a mournful voice in tavern-type restaurants with smoked sausages hanging from the roof.

Machado's is best known to the tourist trade. Festa Brava is good.

The stuff to drink is a wine and fruit punch called Sangria. And if you like rich, garlicky soups, sopa alentejana is your dish.

Miniature bedroom furniture that any handy do-it-yourselfer can make will accommodate a doll up to 30 inches.

By Bill Meyerriecks

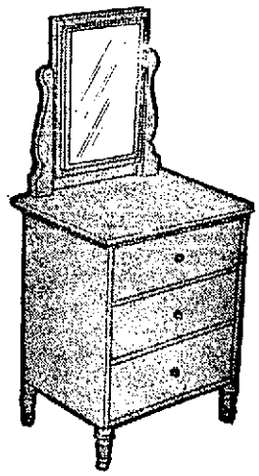

PINT-SIZED toy furniture has proved to be a popular item with Sketchbook do-it-yourself fans, and a plan for kitchen furniture (Plan S-131), consisting of two-thirds size range, sink, cupboard and refrigerator, is one of the most favored ideas.

This week's design idea, the Petite Bedroom Suite, for girl's favorite doll is a companion to the kitchen equipment in that it is in the same scale.

The doll bed is designed so that Dad (or Grandad)can put it together in one evening. The plan shows complete details of all parts, materials and assembly. And if you wish, you can make a more fancy canopy bed instead of the four-poster. You're shown how in the Sketchbook plan. Both the bed and dresser are made from standard lumber and any handy fellow can do it justice.

THE DRESSER is in scale, too, to store the many accessories that always clutter about when a little girl plays. It stands 30 inches high, 28 inches wide, with three full drawers and you can put a mirror on back as shown, but you can consider this as optional if you want. The dresser actually is a handy unit you can use anytime once the little girl grows out of the play doll stage.

The bedroom suite, Sketchbook Plan S-138, may be obtained by sending 50 cents with name and address to Building Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif. And, in case you missed the kitchen equipment Plan S-131, it may also be ordered for 50 cents from the same source. Be sure to state Plan Numbers desired.

Greener City

One of the greenest cities in Europe, Berlin is adding still more park space for recreation and beauty. The Berlin Tourist Office reports that a nature preservation program ("Naturschutz") has been announced and land presently undeveloped will be retained as nature tracts. More trees and flowers will be planted. More fish will be added to the rivers and lakes.

By Betty Coatsworth

MAKE A glamorous golden Christmas tree this year and friends will besiege you for replicas. For less than a dollar you will have a decoration fit for Buckingham Palace.

Materials: Eight long egg cartons; white glue (Wilhold is good); gold paint spray; one pound of plaster of paris; bean jar; one yard fancy white braid; 25 small gold balls, other decorations.

Cut lid and flange from eight long egg cartons.

With sharp knife slit bumps joining the cups.

Bend cups back, down the center, forming a row of six diamond-like designs, each with an oval opening. Glue the edges together securely.

REPEAT THE process with remaining cartons, but cut off cups till you have rows of five, six, five, four, three, two and one cups left.

In that order glue the rows together with structure lying flat. Glue one extra cup into the center of the bottom row as a stump to fit into the bean jar.

Insert a strong wire such as a coat hanger about 19 inches long with a hooked end directly up the center of the tree, with the hook at the bottom.

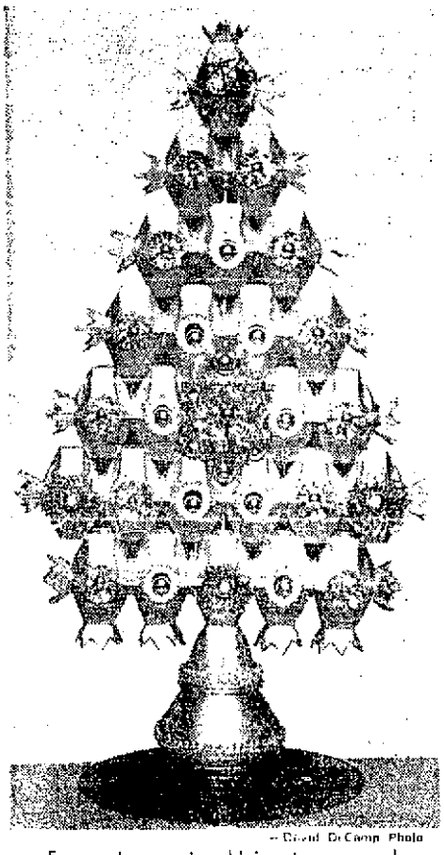

HALF FILL a 14 ounce bean jar with a mixture of water and plaster of paris thin enough to pour. Quickly place the wire hook into the plaster mix and put the stump into the jar, holding it straight until the plaster hardens. Caution: If the jar is more than half full, expansion may break it.

Cut 19 pointed decorations from the bottoms of discarded cups and glue one to each outside (border) and bottom cups.

Glue fancy white braid around neck and center of jar.

Spray gold paint on the whole tree and jar.

NOW HAVE FUN decorating. Glue a small gold ball inside each oval opening. Frame the opening with oval gold decoupage (may be pieces from gold paper doilies). Foil reflectors are effective. As a center of interest glue a large decoration in the center of the five-cup row and surround it with six balls glued into the crevices. (See photo.)

Egg cartons, not gold ingots, are used to make this elaborate, glittering tree.

Friends can form line to the right to request these decorations touched by the magic hand of King Midas.

Q. How long have people known that birds migrate? J. B.

A. One writer on this subject says: "The semi-annual migration of birds has attracted the attention of mankind from the earliest days. In the Old Testament we read the words of the prophet Jeremiah: 'the stork in the heaven knoweth her appointed times, and the turtle (i. e. turtle dove), and the crane, and the swallow observe the time of their coming.' Both Homer and Aristotle refer to the subject, the latter discussing it at length and advancing the theory of hibernation to account for the sudden appearance and disappearance of certain birds."

Q. How many different items does a chain of variety stores usually stock? G. I.

A. Every chain decides this for itself on the basis of its own merchandising requirements. The number of items sold in individual stores in a chain naturally differs from one city to another, depending on local conditions. One typical chain with some 600 stores buys about 12,000 different articles, purchased from over 9,000 manufacturers. Many of the articles are produced to the chain's own specifications, under its own brand names.

Friendliness in Fur

By Eleanor A. Price

TO SOME the word chinchilla spells a fur business, and pelts still do command a price. To others the word means a fascinating squirrel-size rodent with a lovely coat that wins ribbons at fairs. To a few it spells a friendly little pet who likes to be cuddled, will snuggle in a pocket for a nap, who enjoys a gentle romp, a spin on a whirligig, or a bath in a specially prepared chinchilla powder. And there no longer is the deep concern about the temperature at which one of these animals can live, for it is known that it can survive 100 degrees or sub-zero so long as the drinking water does not freeze.

The chinchilla is vermin free, odorless, and usually gentle, although some seem overly spirited. Its feeding problems are simple, for it likes chinchilla pellets and a special weedless hay. The same dried grain and nuts enjoyed by a flying squirrel are also relished. Offer small pieces of orange or other citrus fruit now and then to help keep the coat smooth and glossy. Your veterinarian or pet shop will help you select vitamin supplements.

IF YOU make a pet of a chinchilla, you should start with a very young one. Let it adjust to its new airy cage and nesting box (which you must keep clean) before you handle it. Then start hand-feeding the pet. Hold food in its cage and let it come to get it. If it does not, put the food down and carefully withdraw your hand.

Continue to give it lots of attention and gentle handling. Never scoop it up suddenly. When it seems tame, it can run in the house, but keep it out of the kitchen where it might get hurt.

Female chinchillas breed at from six to 10 months of age, and the usual litter is two babies, although sometimes there are three or even four.

THE CHINCHILLA was first discovered in the high Andes in South America. Fur trappers were so ruthless the animal was at one time declared extinct. But in 1922 an American engineer, after many years search, found a dozen or so chinchillas in the mountains of Chile. He put them in a refrigerated cage and brought them to North America, according to reports.

In its native habitat the chinchilla is nocturnal and lives in a community burrow above tree-line in the rugged mountains of Chile and Bolivia.

SAN FERNANDO Valley Cat Club will have a show Dec. 28-29 in National Armory, 3800 Valhalla Drive, Burbank.

Champion chinchilla owned by M. Wilson poses with the prize ribbon. Chinchillas can be friendly little pets.

Showy Sedum

Comes now a plant which knows only limited use in California, primarily because it gets so little publicity. Many California Association of Nurserymen members will praise the showy Sedum highly, however, and so will you when you get to know it.

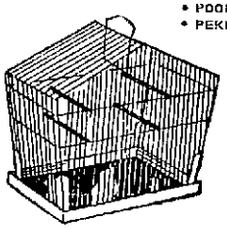

A succulent with gray-green leaves and clumps of 15-inch stems which are topped with flat heads of pink flowers in summer. If you remove the old stems at ground level after they bloom, new ones will sprout up to take their place, so showy Sedum's spot in the border is seldom bare and always neat.

Here's Help for 'Standpat' Iris

By Joe Littlefield

Bold and Gay

Pinwheel, a new Gloriosa daisy being introduced by Burpee Seeds for 1964, is a bold 5-inch flower in a gay pattern of mahogany and gold. Plants are vigorous, grow to 2½ feet tall and, if planted early, will bloom the first year. They may be planted for massed bloom effect as well as for cut flowers. Developers say they will last for years, tolerating hot summers and surviving zero weather.

EVERY so often, iris clumps should be dug up, divided and the newer sections set out again; however, there are times when it is not desirable to take such action and here is a method that may produce better blooms next spring among the overdue iris:

Soak the iris bed, and this means now. After several days, scatter four pounds of bone meal per each 100 square feet of iris flower bed. Lightly scratch this into the soil. Spread a quarter-inch layer of steer manure over the planting area, regardless of whether some of the manure covers the rhizome tops, and slowly soaked down the manure. Keep the area moist for the next couple of days.

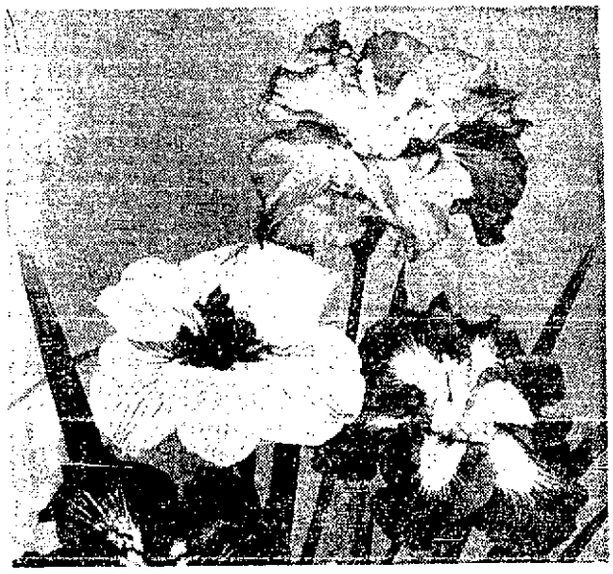

A month and a half from now, fertilize the area with a balanced complete plant food, with a formula reading of 6 percent nitrogen, 4 percent phosphoric acid, and 4 percent potash. Water well before feeding, then water again afterward. A 2-10-10 formula of liquid fertilizer is more specific in plant food for bulbous plants, fruit trees, and for flowers, because it is a fruit-flower maker, and may be preferable.

African daisies (Dimorphotheca aurantiaca) are annual late winter-spring blooming plants. Seeds may be sown like grass seed. Young seedlings should be thinned to about a two-inch spacing and, come blooming time, you'll have a mass of orange, yellow, apricot or white flowers, in a bright mixed mass.

And they're so easy to start. Select a sunny area of ground whether in the open or against a wall that you'd like to blanket with color. Soak the soil well. Next day take a garden rake and scratch up the soil as if to make a bed for grass seed. Then sow the African daisy seeds, and here's how to sow the seeds to insure even seed scattering:

Put a quantity of manure (about equal to a double handful) in a bucket. Scatter some of the seeds over the manure. Repeat this operation several times until the bucket is three-quarters filled, then mix with a trowel as if mixing a batch of cement.

Scatter the mixture evenly over the raked soil area. When covered over, rake lightly then scatter a thin layer of manure over it. Slowly soak down without puddling. Keep the area moist until seedlings have grown about an inch tall, scatter snail-slug bait to protect the young plants and water thereafter only as soil dries.

Beauty of iris blooms may be enjoyed, even if clumps are "standpats" of long terms, by special attention now.

If you live in an area that will permit growing annual rye grass in winter, you may still plant the seed and have a green lawn until the early spring grasses begin to show up.

In preparing the lawn for seeding of rye grass, precaution should be taken to spray the area first with a fungicide containing copper to insure against any failure of the rye growth. Annual rye grass grows fast but should be protected in the sprouting stage.

Recommended seeding is one pound to each 100 square feet of surface. Either steer manure or a light covering of peat moss can she used for protective covering. If you live in a particularly dry area, watering every day will be necessary until the grass is rooted well.

Normal rainfall in some areas will be sufficient to leach out salts in soil and manures. Otherwise regular watering will be necessary throughout the winter. When rye grass starts to die out in spring spray the lawn with an application of an ether-copper solution to clean-up the insects that have over-wintered in the rye grass.

GARDEN CLUBS

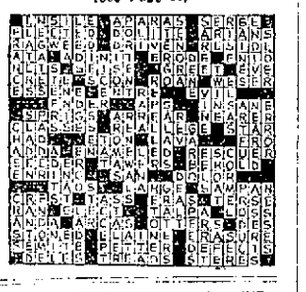

North Long Beach chapter, American Begonia Society, has scheduled its annual festival for 7 p.m. Friday in the social room of Community Savings & Loan Association, 3901 Atlantic Ave. Dinner will be served, potluck style, with turkey provided by the society. There will be a gift exchange. Members may invite guests.

"Forty Years of Fun With Roses' will be the subject of John van Barneveld of the Rose Hills Memorial Park and an authority on rose culture, at a second meeting of rose enthusiasts at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Orange County Public Library, 431 S. Manchester Ave., Orange.

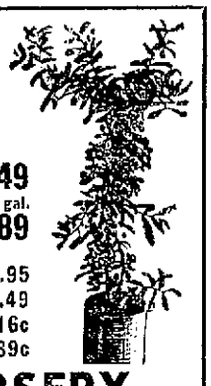

Van Barneveld's appearance before the group will be particularly appropriate in his capacity as consulting rosarian in this area of the American Rose Society and in view of the fact that a new Rose Society in Orange County is the objective of the hosting group. Mrs. Jean Cregar was chosen as temporary chairman at an initial meeting of the organization in November. George F. Roy Sr. is program chairman pro tem and Mrs. Loraine Spiess, temporary treasurer.

Anyone interested in roses or in becoming a member of the new society is invited. Charter memberships will be held open through February.

JOHN McKENNON
It's Beef Fondue

"Beauty is eternity gazing at itself in a mirror."

THOSE WORDS, written many years ago by author Kahlil Gibran, sum up very simply the quiet elegance of the newest dining room at the Lafayette Hotel. The loveliness of the Cafe Lafayette is not a shouting beauty, demanding to be appreciated. It is, rather, a restful beauty, conducive to gourmet dining which is the primary purpose of this continental restaurant.

Conceived by John McKennon, the hotel's personable, youthful manager, the Cafe Lafayette is one of two new rooms opened at the Lafayette last month. The other one is the Sans Souci show room which stages Las Vegas-style entertainment.

The Cafe Lafayette, Parisian in style, serves luncheon Monday through Friday from 11:30 to 2:30 p.m. and dinners from 5:30 to 11:30 p.m. Sunday dinners are served from 5 to 11 p.m. Catering manager Rainer Dickman, who developed the cafe's menu, can take pride in its accomplishments, which include Beef Fondue Bourguignonne, one of the most exciting epicurean dishes ever introduced in Long Beach. It includes strips of the choicest beef tenderloin, which the guests cook themselves at their table by dipping the meat (fixed to long forks) in a casserole. When cooked, the strips are dipped again in heavenly sauces (including mustard sauce, warm horseradish and perigourdine) which impart exquisite flavor to the beef. The $5.50 price includes Long Branch potatoes, and an outstanding salad of soft lettuce and tomatoes. Other extraordinary entrees include beefsteak Tartar, baked double breast of guinea hen a la Kiev, chicken cooked in wine, poulet Souvaroff, emince of beef a la Stroganoff and tournedos Rossini.

O'Herlihy Happy With 'Travels'—Now

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

Dan O'Herlihy currently is happy with "The Travels of Jaimie McPheeters."

That, admittedly, is a big change of heart.

For O'Herlihy, who has the lead role of Dr. Sardius McPheeters in the ABC-TV Sunday nighter, previously was unhappy.

"The series was done crudely and in bad taste," he said.

"Now we have one of the best production crews I've seen anywhere."

* * * *

IT IS A production crew headed by executive producer Boris Sagal whose first executive action a number of weeks back was to scrap all existing scripts.

"Good scripts are what you need in any series," said O'Herlihy. "Now we're getting them with real quality. They're hiring the best writers available."

Those "best writers," according to O'Herlihy, are not concerned with getting across a particular message.

"We're an entertainment series," said O'Herlihy. "Who's interested in messages?

* * * *

"PEOPLE will say a program carried a wonderful message, which means what —that they've suddenly discovered an elementary morality?"

What is now true about "Travels," feels O'Herlihy, is generally verified throughout most of television.

That truth, as he sees it, is that the passing years find those people with real talent emerging and being put in charge.

There is a good O'Herlihy reason why this is occurring.

"My feeling is that the mentality of the television viewer is not as low as the hack producer and hack writer would think.

* * * *

"ALL I KNOW is that the better stuff I've done — the better the scripts—the more acclaim I've got from the public.

"That's what makes me think that I'm right and they (the hack producers) are wrong."

It was O'Herlihy's strong feelings that he was "right" that led him, in the first place, to become associated with a series.

Although for a period he felt perhaps he had made a mistake, that attitude was righted with the advent of producer Sagal.

There is another reason why O'Herlihy became involved with television.

* * * *

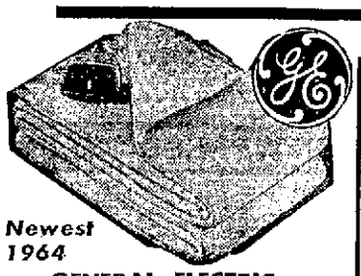

"FROM an actor's participation standpoint," he said,

SCALES NEW HEIGHTS

Maureen--at Last--Sings Classics

NEW YORK (UPI)—It took her a long time, but Maureen O'Hara has finally found a role she can sink her voice into.

In the movies she has done light-hearted comedies like "Parent Trap" and "Sitting Pretty" and heavy dramatic parts in "Jamaica Inn," "How Green Is My Valley" and "Sentimental Journey." She has had pure acting roles opposite swashbuckler Errol Flynn in "Against All Flags" and strong, silent John Wayne in "The Quiet Man" and most recently "McClintock."

In these and other roles, the flame-haired beauty has had occasional opportunity to sing —an Irish ballad here or there. And she has sung the same kind of music on radio and television guest appearances. She even did a record album "Maureen O'Hara Sings Her Favorite Irish Songs" (Columbia). Her Broadway debut was in the short-lived musical "Christie," a personal triumph although critics panned the show as a whole.

BUT UNTIL HER ROLE as Mrs. Susanna Cibber in the Hallmark Hall of Fame Christmas Drama, "A Cry of Angels," scheduled today (4 p.m. Sunday, channel 4 in color), Maureen never has been cast in a dramatic role as a real, honest-to-goodness singer.

Miss O'Hara plays a celebrated actress-singer of the 18th century who befriends famed German musician-composer George Frederic Handel during a difficult period of illness and sagging career. She will sing portions of "Beggars' Opera" and Handel's famed Christmas oratorio, "The Messiah."

The original teleplay by Sherman Yellen stars Walter Slezak as Handel. Emmy Award-winner George Schaefer is producing and directing the historical drama.

Miss O'Hara, as a five-year-old in her native Dublin, began singing and dancing in Irish festivals, then went on to acting in Shapespeare. At 14, she won admission to the drama school operated by the Abbey Theatre and briefly was a member of the famous Abbey Repertory Company. Then came "Jamaica Inn" and Hollywood.

"I TOLD THE STUDIO I was a singer," Miss O'Hara recalls. "I begged them to put me in a musical."

But the movie executives saw her instead as a gloriously beautiful dramatic actress and were content to keep her that way.

Undaunted, Maureen sought out a good voice coach and continued to improve her voice, even if it got little professional test.

She sang some on television shows such as "The Perry Como Show," "The Telephone Hour" and "The Dinah Shore Show," but in these guest appearances the quality and range of Miss O'Hara's lyric soprano voice was not amply demonstrated.

That's why she's so enthusiastic about her role in "A Cry of Angels." She is working again with a long-time accompanist, Mrs. Elaine Parkey, and when the show is completed the two plan to collaborate on a book about Irish music.

The Hallmark show, Miss O'Hara hopes, will lead to more and better singing roles.

"At least in the Christmas play," she says, "I'll have a chance to show I'm a bloody good singer!"

Negro Model in TV Series as Secretary

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UPI) — "I've learned more about myself as a person by being in the theater," said Cicely Tyson. "You have to delve deep within yourself in acting."

Miss Tyson, who currently plays the office secretary on CBS-TV's weekly offering "East Side-West Side" and who actually did once work for three years as secretary in a social work agency in Harlem, has carved out an acting career for herself in less than seven years.

While in the social agency, she began doing modeling during her lunch hour. Soon she was one of the top-10 Negro models in the country. That led to a movie contract, the Off-Broadway (and on-Broadway) stage, and lots of television.

* * * *

"I WAS SO shy as a kid," she said, "that when I got a small speaking part in a junior high school operetta, I couldn't say it. They took it away from me. I was never talkative. Now, they can't shut me up.

"I just went into acting headlong. My mother objected terribly."

She did, really?

"Oh yes—wow! She didn't speak to me for a year. The theater meant to her a life of sin. Degrading. But she came around after she saw me in 'Dark of the Moon.' I played Barbara Allen. People began saying to her, 'You have a talented daughter.'

"She saw it and was pleased. I don't know whether you know anything about West Indian parents—that's where she comes from. They want their children to succeed but it's not their custom to congratulate you too much. But I know she's very happy about me now for people to call her up and say they enjoyed her daughter on TV.

"But it is a little shocking that I'm in the theater. We lived in a Spanish-speaking community, and my parents were very strict. My sister and brother and I never were allowed to go to the movies. I had never been inside a legitimate theater until I got in the business."

TELEVISION BUILDS 'PAPER STARS'

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Public Does Not Respect What Comes 'Free,' Says Comedian

By DICK KLEINER

NEW YORK (NEA)—Television is building a flock of paper stars. That's the opinion of Dick Shawn, the brilliant comedian, who does just enough television to satisfy his agent and no more.

The "enough" includes a featured appearance on "The Judy Garland Show" today (9 p.m. Sunday, channel 2).

"Television success," Shawn says, "is just paper stardom. The public never has any respect for what it gets for free. I could buy three suits for $80 each but if I bought one for $240, I'd have more respect for it.

"The public gets television free, and really doesn't have any respect for television stars. The proof of this is the fact that television success lasts such a little while. Once a person is off television, that's it, unless he's had success in another medium first.

"You take people like Genevieve and Dody Goodman and George Gobel and Bob Newhart—they were big on television for a while, but now they're all having their troubles."

SHAWN FEELS there's more permanence to stardom achieved through other show business avenues. He has a good night club career, but is trying to reach the bigger time through the stage. He's been on tours with tried-and-true vehicles like "Do-Re-Mi" and "Bye-Bye Birdie." His ultimate goal is Broadway.

And he won't make a comedy record.

"I always said," he says, "that if you make a record of your act, you might as well throw the act away. Proof? Look at the hot record sellers—the Shelley Bermans, the Vaughan Meaders—they were big record smashes and now the public won't go to see them."

Shawn points to the techniques of the people he calls "the permanent stars" to buttress his reasoning.

"They never overexposed themselves," he says. "Crosby makes one picture a year. Fred Astaire makes even less. When they do appear, the public wants to see them. That's the only way."

So don't look for a Dick Shawn Show or a Dick Shawn record. He says he just won't do it.

COMEDIAN DICK SHAWN makes his point with the title star of "The Judy Garland Show" at 9 p. m. today (Sunday), channel 2.

Demonstrate Heat Detector

An infra-red detector capable of measuring the heat from a cigarette burning 100 feet away will be demonstrated by the pretty USC coed who developed it when she appears on the new "Science All Stars" TBC-TV series early next year.

Sheila McMorris, 18, now a freshman at the University of Southern California, designed and built the detector while still a high school student in Phoenix, Ariz.

DEBRA PAGET is quizzed during a murder case handled by "Burke's Law" at 8:30 p.m. Friday, channel 7.

BUYING-SPREE EDIE

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Edie Adams has shucked her widow's weeds to become one of Tinsel Town's most glowing glamour girls.

Widowed almost two years ago by the death of Ernie Kovacs, Edie has battled her way back financially and in the courts for custody of her children. She also has been the object of overwhelming pity.

Not any more.

"Everyone has their troubles," she said during a rehearsal break for her semi-weekly television show. "And I'm in full revolt against the 'poor me' attitude."

* * * *

ONE OF HER first moves to kick over the traces was a buying spree—a flashy new bracelet, a luxury automobile and a jump suit made of sable. That's right, sable.

"There's nothing to pick up a girl's spirit like buying something she really doesn't need," Edie said, smiling happily.

"So I went out and got the most vulgar, terrible bracelet in the world. It's covered with diamonds and emeralds. Believe me, it's really something I didn't need. Then I traded in two of my old cars and got a new Bentley Continental—a shocking red one."

The car retails for a neat $28,000.

* * * *

EDIE CHOSE the recent premiere of "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World" to turn the glamour dial to full volume.

She stepped out of the red Bentley wearing the sable jump suit and flashing the gaudy bracelet. It was a sight onlookers won't soon forget.

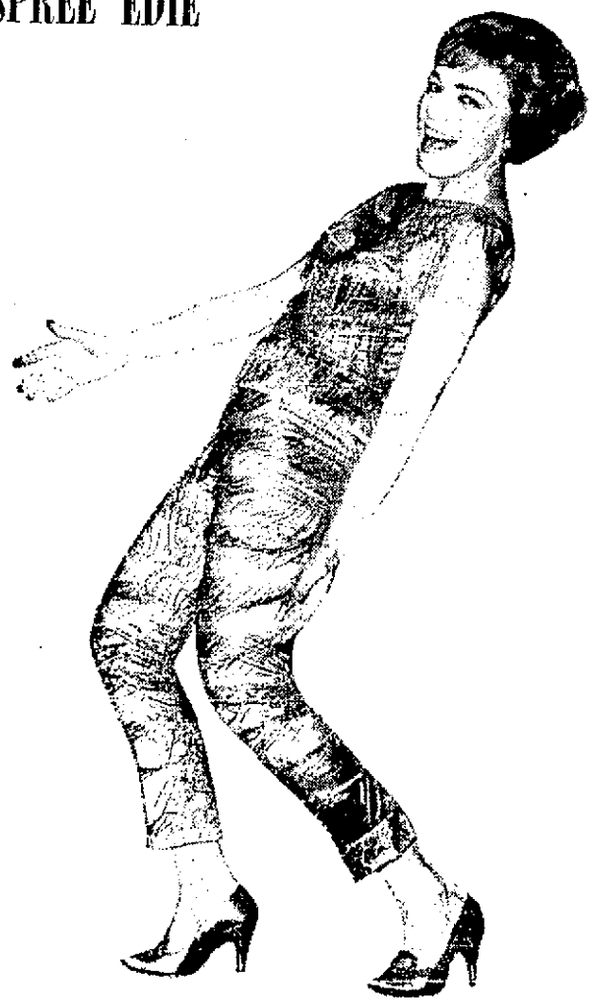

Edie dates frequently now and has caught up on all her debts. Her video show is rolling along and she's constantly in demand for movies—her most recent: "Under the Yum-Yum Tree." For these and other reasons, Edie is a rejuvenated gal.

* * * *

"I'VE MADE some financial provisions for the children," she said, "and now I'm going to spend a little money. Why save it?

"You might as well spend money while you have it because you sure as heck can't spend it when you don't have it. I've been both places, believe me, and I like it better this way.

"In this business your earning years aren't very long, and I'd rather do the things I want to now than wait until I'm old and sitting on a porch somewhere—too far along to enjoy it.

TV Series 'Automatic' Publicity

"television — particularly a series—is the best publicity in the world today.

"In itself it's publicity."

As an actor, O'Herlihy extends his personal movie philosophy to his feelings about his television series.

"I never aimed to be a box-office star," said O'Herlihy. "I just want for people to say, 'He's in it so it ought to be good'."

Dan O'Herlihy, the Dr. Sardius McPheeters of "The Travels of Jamie McPheeters," is in a movie, "Fail-Safe," to be released soon.

It ought to be good.

What happened to the "Andy Griffith Show"?

It was one of my favorites. Now all the characters speak in a muffled voice which is absolutely ineligible. We do not enjoy the show anymore.

Could you pass it on to the performers? Maybe they should do something about it.

Mrs. Frances Feuer, Long Beach

Ok' Andy, Don and the rest of you. Snap out of it. Get eligible.

* * * *

Since you "listened" to Jeannine Riley I'll forgive you for making an error in grammar.

You wouldn't say "The press agent was sitting with I" so by the addition of Jeannine should not change your pronoun from "me" to "I."

My English teacher harped on this all the time—modifying a verb or preposition use "me."

Mrs. Edna McKenny, Long Beach

Me stands corrected.

* * * *

I think the sponsors that sanction their products to be advertised on ridiculous shows have little regard for the way their money is diverted.

Perhaps some of the products are of the same quality of the shows.

Frank A. Winslow, Long Beach

With the kind of show that you're talking about Frank, the quality of the TV commercial—if not the product itself—is usually better than the program.

* * * *

In your reviews of television programs during the Nov. 30 weekend, you did not even mention the excellent documentary program entitled, "We'll Bury You."

After having discussed this ommission on your part with some of my acquaintances, we all agree that your reviews will become less and less popular by failing to give a proper review of such a very informative program.

Edward J. Wiater, MD

I dig you, Doc. Consider the subject mentioned and buried.

Jerry Lewis is allergic to hamsters, states an exciting item from the Jerry Lewis publicity bureau.

SPECIAL

AMERICA, AMERICA—Bill Burrud interviews celebrities at the Directors Guild Theatre at 7:30 p.m., ch. 13, for the invitational premiere of the WB movie of a Greek youth's driving ambition to come to the U.S. Elia Kazan, the film's producer-director, also guests on this morning's "Panorama Pacific."

CHRISTMAS HOLIDAY — The tender classic story of the "Littlest Christmas Tree" is told at 8 p.m., ch. 13, filmed in color in the breath-taking natural setting of the country near Brighton, Utah. (Repeated Sat., 6:30 p.m.)

CHRYSLER THEATRE — Lee J. Cobb, Gena Rowlands and Harry Guardino star, with Archie Moore, in Rod Serling's adaptation of John O'Hara's story about an ailing bachelor bar owner who decides to sell out, marry a hatcheck girl and retire in Florida. A young bartender plots to get both the bar and the girl in color hour at 8:30 p.m., ch. 4.

ALFRED HITCHCOCK — Following in the recent steps of Berle, Hope, Lucy and Mickey Rooney, comedian Bob Newhart climbs on the straight-drama bandwagon at 10 p.m., ch. 2, to play a mild-mannered bank clerk who devises a plot to get rid of his shrewish wife (Jane Withers) without resorting to either murder or divorce. (In like vein, "Twilight Zone" tonight stars Ed Wynn, and next month Wally Cox.)

Stringing Along Together

SOMETIMES IT PAYS to be a square, especially if you're a knot. Shirley Booth proves this to a pair of tenderfoot Scouts, Bobby Buntrock (left) and Charles Herbert, during "Hazel" at 9:30 p. m. Thursday, channel 4 in COLOR.

Television Rat Race for Real

VERONA, Italy (UPI)—Priamo Arcangeli finally discovered what caused those squeaking noises in his television set.

When he opened the set to check, five rats jumped out and one of them bit him in the neck.

CALL HIM 'HAPPY HARRY'

Video Rural Mural by Ozark Lark

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Just call me Happy Harry. I dream up television shows. I got one here for next season I'm gonna call either "Beverly Junction" or "Petticoat Hillbillies." They love it already at the networks. That's where you'll find me most of the day. Especially at CBS.

Now get this idea for the series: Three starlets living in Beverly Hills discover a rich oilman in their backyard and do what everyone in Beverly Hills really wants to do—they move to the Ozarks and open a rural hotel. Don't laugh, Charlie. Read that closely. It's psychology.

Don't tell me. You think I'm putting you on. You watched "Petticoat Junction" last night and you know all about the three girls who live at the rural hotel, and that "The Beverly Hillbillies" has those Ozark people who moved to Beverly Hills, and that the shows are high up in the ratings.

Baby, all I can tell you is forget what you're thinking. You wouldn't say that "Petticoat Junction" capitalized on "The Beverly Hillbillies" just because the same company made them, would you? Well, the same with me—I've had my idea for years. That's the way things are here, Baby. Anything else is a pure coincidence.

I'M ALL SET UP and ready to go. I got me a publicity man, and any time anyone accuses me of turning out phony folksiness or backward humor, he releases a statement for me saying: "I don't make shows for the critics, only for the people —and people are people, and they haven't changed much no matter what the snobs say." Top that, Baby!

And if the critics knock me off, I'll say, "The critics have a terrible power over shows." And if they don't knock me off, I'll say, "It just goes to show that the critics don't have any power at all."

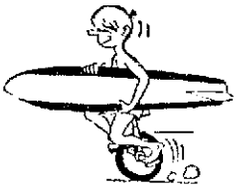

Charlie, my series is going to be really folksy, full of happy mountain people—not the ones that are starving. The happy ones.

No, I don't think we need to go on location to get any genuine flavor. We can work up the whole thing in the office at my home. It's just been redecorated—cost me $10,000. It's a swell conference room. And the cast I got in mind is all pretty folksy anyway. Some of them lived in the San Fernando Valley for years and know all about being rural.

As for me, Baby, forget it. I been in touch with the film industry for yars. Remember Ma and Pa Kettle? I'll never be able to tell you what an effect they had on my life. They proved to me once and for all that people are people and they haven't changed much, as I always say. Don't ever forget that, Charlie. No matter what anybody asks you, give 'em that answer and you're all right.

Video Star Doesn't Own TV Set

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Show me a television star who doesn't own a television set and I'll show you a cured ham.

Such a one is Henry Jones of the "Channing" series.

Henry is celebrating his 25th anniversary in show business this year, a span in which he appeared in 400 video dramas. Having spent uncounted hours before the cameras he chooses not to waste any more time as a viewer. For this reason he is without a TV set.

Back in 1938 Henry made his debut on Broadway in "Hamlet." The title role went to Maurice Evans while Henry played the second gravedigger and doubled as Reynaldo. Both roles consisted of a dozen or so lines for which he was paid $40 a week.

Now he makes a small fortune portraying a kindly, wise dean of Channing College, a fictitious educational subsidiary of ABC-TV.

* * * *

JONES has a remarkably average kind of American face which has allowed him to play a tremendous range of characters.

And while it has been a boon to him in this respect, it has also hindered him from becoming a major star. With a name like Jones and a kisser that defies recognition, Henry has a problem: Either people remember his name or his face, but rarely simultaneously.

"That's why I took this series," Jones said dispiritedly.

"It's remarkable how many people see me on the street and flash me a look of recognition. But I can see their minds working and they figure they know me from someplace but can't remember just where, or what my name is. It's frustrating all around.

* * * *

"WITH ALL those other shows I've done being rerun there are plenty of times when I'm on the air opposite my own show. And it's not unusual for me to appear on three different networks on the same night."

A New Yorker, Jones has moved to Hollywood for the duration of "Channing."

Henry gives you the distinct feeling that he'd rather be in the East than in Tinsel Town, but the advantages of the show won him over.

"I get star billing on this show and the salary is better than I could earn on Broadway or in pictures," he said with alarming candor. "There are so few pictures being made that we character actors can't find enough work.

"And on Broadway I'm doomed to second or third roles instead of the leads.

"My exposure on television is beginning to work in my favor. Now the public is able to put my name and face together for the first time. It's taken 25 years, but it was worth waiting for."

A. True.

Q. Why are there so few women artists—painters, I mean—in the world today?—Lois Pinder, Youngstown, Ohio.

A. One theory holds that women are too practical to become artists, that their talents are channeled into home, family, love and security, that in contrast to men, they are not dreamers. Another theory holds that they are victims of their environment and a culture which does not foster artistry in women.

Q. In the film Lawrence of Arabia, actor Arthur Kennedy plays the role of a newspaperman. Isn't that newspaperman supposed to be Lowell Thomas, who accompanied Lawrence?—Carole McMillan, Bridgeview, Ill.

JUDY GARLAND: 97 POUNDS OF HEART

by LLOYD SHEARER

TV dilemma: Should the Judy Garland Show be a sophisticated one-woman spectacular or offer a "family of regulars"?

HOLLYWOOD.

Each Friday night at 9:30 a little left-handed lady with large luminous brown eyes and a throaty, vibrant voice, larger than life, slithers onto stage 41 at the CBS-TV studios here.

For an hour and a half she sings, reminisces, sips tea, chats lightly and cavorts with such guest stars as Lena Horne, Count Basie, Mickey Rooney, Mel Torme, Barbra Streisand and, on occasion, her own children.

From these carryings-on, her producer and editor put together 52 minutes of videotape eventually telecast on Sundays as the Judy Garland Show. For this one-hour package, sometimes stirring and memorable, other times mediocre and old hat, Judy Garland is paid $150,000—or about half of what CBS gets for the time and program.

Of her $150,000, Judy pays her cast and crew approximately $100,000, sometimes more. This leaves the tiny singer (5 feet tall, 97 pounds) with $30,000 to $50,000 each week, making her, along with Danny Kaye, probably the most highly paid star in TV.

Judy's basic deal with CBS calls for her company, Kingsrow Productions, to turn over to the network 30 one-hour shows at $150,000 per show. In addition, the network guarantees to re-run 8 of these shows at $75,000 each.

"The best part of Judy's deal, however," explains agent Freddie Fields, who negotiated it, "is that Judy owns the tapes, and they're worth at least three to four million. She can release them over and over again. She can sell the syndication rights, the foreign rights, anything she wants. For once in her hectic life, this little dynamo is going to be financially secure. And it's about time.

"Judy," he goes on feelingly, "is 41. She's done everything there is to do in show business, from vaudeville to one-night stands. She's earned fortunes for other people, but she's been victimized over and over again. Before we made this deal with CBS, she was practically broke. But television is going to give her what it's given others much less talented than she—security. These shows are going to bring in money so that she doesn't have to sing her guts out in concerts night after night to support her kids."

A STORM IS BREWING

Judy puts it more gently. "It's nice to think," she says, "that these shows will make me rich."

Even nicer to see is Judy Garland—after all the professional and domestic crises she's weathered—happy, healthy, relaxed and seemingly at peace with the world, especially while a storm brews 'round her lovely head.

This storm concerns the Judy Garland Show. Through no fault of her own, Judy's is not a commercially successful television program.

At this writing it has a Nielsen rating of 18, which means that of the 50,000,000 television families in America, approximately 18 per cent, or 9,000,000 families, watch the Judy Garland Show on Sunday nights. Admittedly that's a large number of families. But Bonanza, slotted by NBC against Judy at the same time, has a Nielsen rating of 35, which means that twice as many families prefer watching the Western to viewing Garland. Also opposite Judy on Sunday nights is a third program, Arrest and Trial, telecast by ABC. Arrest and Trial also has an 18 rating. In fact, its rating is a fraction higher than the Judy Garland Show, so as of this moment, Judy's show is running last in a race of three.

In a sentence, the Judy Garland Show is in trouble. The fault is not Judy's, and she knows nothing about this rating abracadabra. The man who goofed in this particular case is Jim Aubrey, the CBS chief who placed the show into the Sunday night 9:00 to 10:00 P.M. time slot opposite Bonanza.

He made the judgment, and the audience figures have proved him wrong.

Judy Garland—and this is the opinion of the men who have produced her show (she has had 3 producers to date)—should be spotted on Monday nights from 10:00 to 11:00, or even on Sunday nights from 10:00 to 11:00.

"She is basically," says Norman Jewison, who produced 8 of her shows, "a sophisticated performer who appeals to sophisticated, intelligent and literate people. She is definitely not the girl next door. She will never attract the mass meat-and-potatoes audience that Bonanza does, and it's foolish even to let her try."

George Schlatter, a talented producer who was removed by CBS from Judy's program after he had done the first five shows, operated on the following concept: "Judy Garland is someone special, one of the great, electric, incomparable talents of our time. I can't tell you," Schlatter says, "how co-operative Judy was when I worked with her. She did everything I asked, and more. She was prompt, tireless, painstaking. She worked like a Trojan. All this baloney about her being temperamental and high-strung—she showed none of that.

TV FINANCE

• Television is primarily an advertising medium, and only those shows which prove profitable to a sponsor remain on the air in prime time (7:00 P.M. to 11:00 P.M., with minor variations).

For an advertiser, the Judy Garland Show is reputedly one of the most expensive programs in television. Before it went on the air this past September, the show had 6 commercial minutes to sell. CBS sold them to 4 sponsors for $56,000 a minute.

The 4 sponsors who shelled out $336,000 for the time and talent on the Judy Garland Show were led to believe by their advertising agencies that this was a good buy, a wise purchase, that the show would attract a tremendous audience. It does not do so in terms of cost.

Unless CBS lowers its asking price from $56,000 a minute to something like $20,000, or makes other concessions, Judy's sponsors will probably cancel. The current word in advertising circles is that CBS has already lowered its asking price drastically. Thus, the Judy Garland Show continues, but the $64,000,000 question is: for how long?

"In her first five shows—and these haven't been telecast in sequence—I framed her as someone very special with a background of elegance and incomparable talent. I framed her performance as an event, because I think it is."

The CBS program chiefs—and let's not get into names here—feel that what Judy's show needs to gain a wider audience is a family of regulars such as Garry Moore offers. They feel strongly that the show should have two or three performers who appear every week.

Judy, who knows relatively little about television, is willing to listen to anyone. She went back to New York a few weeks ago and was advised by network executives that she must stop touching her guest stars, that people complained about such physical intimacy; so she has stopped. She was also told that she must talk to TV editors throughout the United States, so she has arranged an elaborate setup of long-distance conference calls whereby she talks simultaneously to 10 or 12 reporters throughout the country.

I was at her house one recent afternoon—a one-story modern 8-room Brentwood job worth $250,000, pool included—when she was giving out with such an interview.

Here are some of the questions and answers:

Q. How do you like TV compared to other media you've worked in?

A. I like TV better than any of the other jobs I've had in the past. It's hard work, but we've got it down to a pretty good routine now. I work four days a week and have Saturday, Sunday and Monday off. It's inspiring and fun and not too much work.

Q. I thought your television show was supposed to originate in New York. That was the original announcement.

A. I know, but we decided it would be better to do it from out here. After all, it gets so hot in New York during the summer. I would have had to take an apartment in Manhattan and my children would have had to be out on Long Island. This way we are all together. And besides, I have such a pretty new house. Oh, yes, my children watch the show. They come to the studio on Fridays when I tape it, and I must tell you this. The other week they were sitting down front, and they fell asleep while I was doing the show. My daughter, Liza—yes, she's out here, in fact, she's so busy I have to make an appointment to see her—I've done one show with her, and I'm doing the Christmas show with my other children, too.

Q. Is it true that CBS didn't like the first concept of your program and is now changing it?

A. Well, they're thinking along the family concept right now, that I should have a group of regulars, a Judy Garland family of performers, so that the program doesn't look like a spectacular each week.

Q. Judy, I've heard some people say that you look like a little old lady on television.

A. Well, I am a little old lady.

Q. Is it true that you won't allow people to watch you in your dress rehearsal?

A. I don't like a lot of people sitting in the audience during rehearsals because I'm too hammy and I wind up singing to them. I entertain the visitors, and then when it comes time for me to tape the show I'm dead.

Q. All the girls in my office want to know how you managed to diet so much—you must have lost 100 pounds.

A. That's my secret. Seriously, I just stay away from food. I drink tea.

Q. What do you do when you're not working?

A. I stay at home with my children. I play a little golf. I wait around for Tuesday and work to begin.

As all her fans know—and most of them are 30 or over—Judy Garland has not lived a particularly happy life to date. Child movie-star, poor picker of husbands and lovers, bedeviled and bewildered by agents and advisers, wracked by illnesses physical and mental, this great talent, this living legend, has somehow managed to generate from her own essence enough fortitude, enough determination, to fight herself out of life's defeats.

It is ironic at this point, when she is healthier and happier than she's been for years, that Madison Avenue and the advertising fraternity should interpret Judy and her show in the light of disappointment.

Heretofore, Judy Garland has never failed in any avenue of show business. If her weekly TV series ends in statistical failure because it has been incorrectly targeted by network masterminds, at least Judy will have the satisfaction of winding up with three or four million dollars to balm her low Nielsen.

DOCTORS RECOMMEND:

1. Rest in bed
2. Drink plenty of fluids
3. Take aspirin to reduce fever and relieve pain

REPORTING on a Government-Financed Study of Five Leading Pain Relievers, an article in The Journal of The American Medical Association showed that Bayer Aspirin was unsurpassed by any of them for speed and strength of relief. The report also showed that Bayer Aspirin was as gentle to the stomach as any product tested, including the higher-priced buffered product. On the other hand, the two combination-of-ingredients products tested upset the stomach considerably more often.

My Favorite Jokes

by LEE CARON

EDITOR'S NOTE: Lee Caron, born in Dallas but raised in Dayton, Ohio, bills himself as "The Tall Texan." Originally, Caron started out in show business as a dancer in Detroit. When he couldn't earn more than $7 a night hoofing, he switched to comedy. As a funnyman, Caron has appeared in many of the top night spots throughout the country, including the Saxony in Miami Beach, The Hilton in Chicago, the Holiday House in Pittsburgh. When he isn't telling jokes, Caron runs a prosperous farm and stable in Michigan, where he breeds quarter horses. Herewith some of his favorite jokes.

"Don't be so impolite," the angry wife said to her husband. "You've yawned six times while I was talking."

"I wasn't yawning," he replied. "I was trying to say something!"

A 7-year-old boy was sent to the grocery to get a dozen eggs for his mother. When he arrived at the store, he asked the grocer, "How much are your eggs?"

"Sixty cents a dozen," answered the storekeeper, "and thirty cents for the cracked ones."

"Okay," said the little boy. "Crack me a dozen."

A drunk was hauled into the police station. He shouted to the receiving officer: "What was I brought in here for?"

"For drinking," the officer explained.

"Schwell," said the drunk. "I'll have a martini!"

A kindly old gent said to the hotel desk clerk: "I was here last week in Room 720 and when I checked out, I forgot my umbrella. May I go up and get it?"

"I'm sorry, sir," answered the clerk, "but there is a couple in that room. They're on their honeymoon, and I can't allow them to be disturbed."

Ignoring the clerk's protest, the little old man went up to Room 720. He was just about to knock on the door when he heard a man's voice from within say: "Darling, my darling! That lovely blonde hair, and to think it's all mine. Those luscious red lips, and to think they're all mine. And . . ."

"And when you get to the umbrella," interrupted the old man in a booming voice, "THAT'S MINE!"

A mother was concerned about her son's behavior and decided to visit a psychiatrist. After listening to her story, the psychiatrist said: "I don't think you have to be concerned because he makes mud pies."

"Well, I don't think so either," replied the mother. "It's his wife who's beginning to worry!"

My wife's idea of frozen foods is a daiquiri. I don't know why she can't be like her mother and just open a can!

An Easterner was visiting a dude ranch and was fascinated by a cowboy rolling a cigarette. "It's terrific," he said, "the way you can roll a cigarette with one hand."

"Tain't nothin'," replied the cowboy. "Gettin' the filter in is the hard part!"

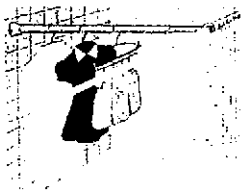

Definition of a pedestrian: A man who didn't believe his wife when she told him the family needed two cars.

CHRISTMAS GIFT TIP FOR THE LADIES:

How to Disguise a Necktie

by ROSALIND MASSOW

The American man has come to expect nothing new under the Christmas tree.

This year, fool him. Wrap his presents with imagination so that every gift is a surprise package.

Take the Christmas tie, for instance. Men have been getting an average of three every Christmas. If this yule's gift cravats were lined up end to end, there'd be enough to Christmas-wrap the world three-and-a-half times over. So how can you make yours look different? Don't use a tie box. It's a dead giveaway. Get a mailing tube and hang two or three ties inside with cellophane tape and then wrap it like a firecracker. He's sure to get a bang out of that!

Socks? Every man's got to get socks for Christmas. It's almost traditional. Get a deep box and weigh it down—with several cans of tobacco, if he smokes a pipe, or beer, if he's a beer drinker, or a paperweight if he collects papers. Roll each sock into a ball, cover with colored foil and tuck inside. Your gift should be a socko success.

No matter what else you give a man, a shirt is something he'll always appreciate. To disguise its recognizable shape, get an oatmeal container or any large cylinder. Cover the cylinder with foil and roll the shirt around the box; then wrap. No one will suspect it's a shirt.

When is a tennis racket like a big lollypop? When you wrap it in peppermint-striped paper. If there's a bowling ball in his future, cover it with red foil, like a big red apple.

If your gift is a record album, make it look like an oversized envelope complete with his address. Belt boxes can be tied with a tape measure, golf clubs can be made to look like stick horses, and mufflers can be camouflaged by taping shirt cardboards end to end and laying the muffler out on them. He'll never guess what's in the long box.

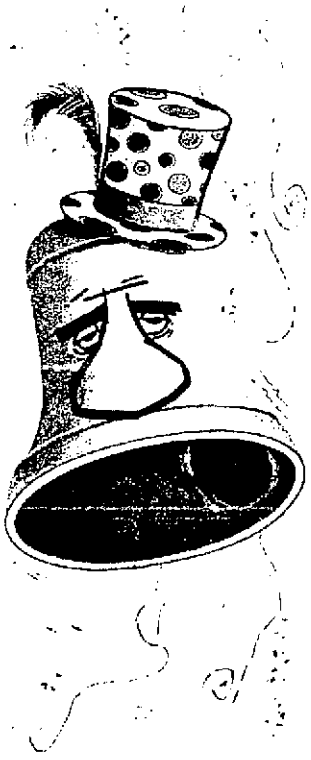

Gift wrappings should be not only creative, but neat as well. According to officials of the Chicago Printed String Co., one of the world's largest producers of gift wrappings, wrapping problems usually start with the paper. People cut off too much or too little. The rule is to size up the box and cut enough paper to cover it, and still leave a two-inch overlap. This will prevent bulky-looking packages. In selecting Christmas paper, keep size of parcels in mind. A large-pattern paper can't be used on a small box.

In the interests of economy, large rolls of paper can be bought with big bolts of ribbon in compatible colors. Non-woven ribbon can be slit into widths without fraying.

New automobiles, refrigerators, washing machines or horses needn't be wrapped. A classic example of what to do with a horse was suggested to a lady by a practical-minded salesman. "Just ride him in," he said.

If you've got good intentions but are all thumbs, the ready-made roses, bows and ribbon corsages shown above are available for your Christmas wrappings. The flat bow (top) is excellent for gifts that are mailed—it retains its shape. The kissing ball on the left is easy to make. Start with foil, tied in the middle with long ribbon and crumpled into a ball. Wind rubber bands all over ball and insert stems of ready-made roses under bands. This Christmas, Americans will have a gift-wrapping bill of over $200,000,000, or $4.17 per family. Gifts will cost a record $8,394,000,000.

Candy-Topped Christmas Cake

by Beth Merriman
Parade food editor

Christmas is the time to show your skills as a dessert master. This filbert cake with shaped marzipan candies as topping is sure to make you shine. Marzipan is made with almond paste, available in one-pound cans at fancy grocery stores.

Della Robbia Cake

1 cup chopped filberts
1 teaspoon ground mace
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup butter or margarine
1½ teaspoons vanilla
1¾ cups sugar
5 large eggs
2 cups sifted all-purpose or instantized flour

Toast filberts at 325° for 10 to 15 minutes. Combine mace, salt, butter and vanilla in large mixing bowl. Beat until consistency of mayonnaise. Beat in sugar gradually. Beat in 4 eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Stir in flour, mixing well after each addition. Beat in remaining egg. Fold in toasted filberts. Spoon into greased and floured 3-quart ring mold. Bake at 325° for 1 hour. Cool 20 minutes. Turn out on wire rack to finish cooling. Store in tightly closed cake box. Flavor of cake will improve with age. Before serving, drizzle with confectioners' (powdered) sugar icing and wreathe top with tiny marzipan candies.

Marzipan

1 lb. almond paste
½ cup light corn syrup
1 jar (1 pint) marshmallow topping
2 teaspoons vanilla
6 cups sifted confectioners' (powdered) sugar
Vegetable coloring oil (liquid)

Combine almond paste, corn syrup, marshmallow topping and vanilla; mix thoroughly. Add sugar, 1 cup at a time, mixing well after each addition (knead in the last 2 or 3 cups with the hands), until marzipan is satiny. Mold small pieces into fruit and vegetable shapes. Insert artificial leaves where needed while marzipan is soft. Let stand several hours to dry surface before painting with vegetable coloring, diluted and mixed as necessary, using artist's brushes. Roll "potatoes" in a mixture of cocoa and cinnamon instead of painting. Roll "strawberries" and "raspberries" in red sugar after painting. Makes about 5 dozen pieces. Store in covered metal boxes. Will keep indefinitely.

Make life easier—take a look at these new ideas for your home and family ■ BY PETER DRYDEN

Combination vacuum: This one (right) cleans floors—and, when you disconnect the floor attachment, becomes a compact, portable hand vacuum. You can use it for such above-floor cleaning chores as dusting furniture and book shelves, cleaning draperies. And it's handy for cleaning the car as well. It incorporates a new jet engine said to provide unusual power. $24.95 in stores. Details: Troy Industries, Dept. PP, 135 Marbledale Rd., Tuckahoe, N. Y.

Log cart: Now comes a wrought-iron cart you can roll from woodpile to fireside—and attractive enough to stand alongside the hearth. It has oversize, non-mar tires, moves up and down steps easily, holds 100 lb. of wood in a deep metal basket, eliminates tracking debris into house and scattering wood chips on floors. 30" high, 17" wide, 14" deep. $17.95. Leslie Creations, Dept. PP, Lafayette Hill, Pa.

Quick sharpener: You can keep your kitchen, pocket, hunting and fishing knives in shape with just a few passes through a new sharpener about the size and shape of a large butterfly—and easy to carry along anywhere as well as use at home. It has ground tungsten inserts that do the sharpening—and it's guaranteed to restore a keen edge to any knife in a few seconds. $1.69. S & F Sales Co., Dept. PP, P.O. Box 1092, Bloomfield, N. J.

Easier snow shoveling: Wet, slushy snow will not stick to a new snow shovel made of laminated fiberglas instead of metal. It has no nuts or bolts to rust, weighs only three pounds—and is said to regain its shape instantly when banged, avoiding curled or turned-up corners that often make shoveling difficult. In permanent, molded-in colors: red, white, blue, amber and green. $4.50. C & K Plastics, Dept. PP, P.O. Box 41, Middlebranch, Ohio.

Cakes in tiers: You can bake miniature cakes—just the right size to be used for individual servings—with little three-tier aluminum pans. Each pan is in one piece—2¼-inches high and graduated from 4-inch diameter at the bottom layer to 1¾-inch at the top. Different color batter can go in each layer. Also useful for gelatin desserts and salads. Set of 6: $1.95. Artisan Galleries, Dept. PP, 2100 North Haskell Ave., Dallas 4, Tex.

For your tape recorder: No need to bother now with hand-threading tapes—a new reel does the threading by itself and speeds the tape-changing process. You simply lay tape inside the transparent 7-inch reel, turn on the recorder and the tape is automatically threaded and wound around the hub. There's also a plastic collar that snaps on the reel and serves both to keep out dust and permit convenient stand-up storage without a box. $1.50. The 3M Co., Dept. PP, 2501 Hudson Road, St. Paul, Minn.

A bright new note for the bathroom: You can add a decorative—and practical—touch to a bathroom with a new mural panel designed specifically for the tub-shower recess. It's available in a choice of nine scenes and designs and in 5' x 5' and 5' x 6' sizes. The 5-foot width allows 1-piece paneling of the standard 5-foot bathtub wall, eliminates the need for division moldings, provides an uninterrupted wall scene and reduces installation costs. A plastic surface finish resists heat, moisture and high-humidity conditions. You can install the paneling right over old bathroom wall—and it's easily kept clean by damp-wiping. Details: Marsh Wall Products, Inc., Dept. PP, Dover, Ohio.

While movie cameras grind, drunken driving suspect walks line in Denver police headquarters.

DRUNKEN DRIVERS

by SID ROSS

DENVER, COLO.

They're making a new kind of movie here, and the results aren't too popular with the actors. The films are "produced" by the Denver police, the "studio" is police headquarters and the "stars" are drunken driving suspects. In 3 minutes and 100 feet of film, police make a permanent record of just what kind of condition drivers are in at the time of their arrest. And this new and unusual law enforcement technique has proved a first-class weapon against a growing road menace.

The photos on these pages show how the system works: every suspect is brought before police cameras and put through a series of speech, thought and co-ordination tests. While cameras grind, he picks up scattered poker chips, walks a chalk line and answers police questions. Three days later he can see the films in a private showing. If he decides not to fight the charge, the films are forgotten. But if he pleads "not guilty," they are introduced against him in court. After seeing the films, fewer than 1 in 10 persons pleads innocent.

NEW SOBRIETY TEST NEEDED

The Denver system originated because police—in the face of rising arrest rates—felt the need for a more precise method of testing to supplement the old chemical and visual sobriety tests. Like most cities Denver used—and still uses—a "breathalyzer" test which measures alcohol content in the suspect's blood. He is considered legally drunk if it reaches .15 per cent. "But," says Capt. James Shumate, a police chemist who helped set up the movie system, "what chemical testing doesn't tell you is the tolerance of a particular person. I've seen youngsters who'd never imbibed before so crocked they couldn't walk—yet the breathalyzer showed them well below the .15 mark. We needed something that would show a jury the condition of a suspect when he was picked up—and also show the truth to the suspect himself."

The movies generally do make a deep impression on the suspect once he has sobered up. In one case, a woman suspect was so moved that she insisted on bringing her two teenage sons in to see the films. "See what drinking did to your mother," she told the shocked boys. "Let that be a lesson to you."

Although some attorneys and suspects contend the tests are unfair ("I couldn't walk that way even if I hadn't been drinking," is a favorite wail), police maintain they are careful of suspects' rights. In about 1 in 20 cases, the movies even clear the suspect. One man with a .38 per cent alcohol blood content appeared well co-ordinated and lucid on film. And suspects always have the right to refuse to co-operate.

CAMERA INCREASES CONVICTIONS

However, Police Chief Harold Dill is pleased with the effects of the new system. In Denver, drunken driving has doubled in four years, but with the camera crews at work, convictions have gone up, too. Out of 20 arrested, 19 are now convicted and fined, jailed or have their licenses lifted. The system is also employed in San Bernardino and Fresno, Calif., and Waterloo, Iowa. In the eyes of Denver police, every bit of movie footage may be saving a life.

Co-ordination test is given before cameras. Eyes closed, suspect must touch nose.

Poker chip test measures motor skills. The suspect must pick up one chip at a time.

PARADE'S SPECIAL

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

BANK ROBBERIES. Bank robberies in this country have jumped 30% in the past 8 months. Why? Because banks are moving to the suburbs and robbery in the suburbs is easier. According to the FBI, "By the very nature of their location such facilities are considerably more vulnerable to robberies than regular banking establishments. Suburban or shopping center buildings have few security features...less police protection...escape routes are usually better."

TRAFFIC ADVICE. From the Washington, D. C., traffic safety department: "Ladies, many accidents can be traced to the disgruntled disposition of the driver, brought on by irritation before getting into his car. Kiss your husband good-by as though you are crazy about him. It will make him a much safer driver."

DIAL LOCKS. How would you like to stop carrying keys? If Eigel Neorremark of Copenhagen has his way, that's what will happen in a few years. Neorremark has invented a telephone dial type of lock which he claims is more secure than many door locks now in use. Instead of using a key, the home-owner merely dials a telephone-type combination of figures, and the lock opens. Neorremark's dial, which carries numbers from 1 to 7, offers an almost infinite number of possible combinations. The lock is made of 20 parts without screws or weldings. The Danish police have tried to "break" the combinations, to date have not succeeded.

TV FOR NEWLYWEDS. Great Britain's commercial television network, Independent Television (ITV), is producing a new series, All About Marriage, for newlyweds, on such subjects as honeymoons, sexual intercourse, birth control, infidelity and divorce. The first programs in the series are entitled, "Is a Honeymoon a Good Idea?" "What is Normal Sex Life?" "Sexual Difficulties Found in Females and Males."

FOOD FACT. Favorite food of American schoolchildren is still the hamburger. Coming up strong, however, is pizza. So declared school lunch supervisors who met recently in Atlantic City.

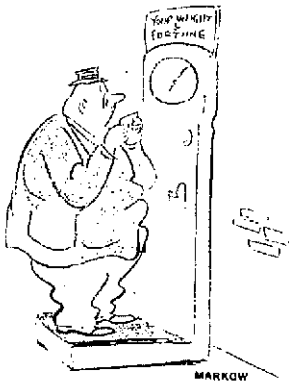

WHICH ARE YOU? Some people do their best work in the morning, others in the afternoon. According to Dr. W. P. Colquhoun, a Cambridge University psychologist, it generally has to do with whether you're an introvert or extrovert. After much testing, Dr. Colquhoun believes introverts are much more efficient in the morning, extroverts in the afternoon.

SUB ROCKETS. Submarines equipped with rockets for emergency use -- wouldn't that be a good idea? Suppose a sub were sinking rapidly because of some accident. The rocket motors would be fired, shooting the sub to the surface. Thiokol has come up with a study of solid propellants for use in emergencies by disabled subs.

ATOM SPY. Klaus Fuchs, the German-born atom spy who worked for England and relayed key atomic secrets to the Soviet Union, hopes to visit England again, but the allied military authorities will not give him travel permission. Western authorities in West Berlin control East German travel to Britain, France and the U.S. They are refusing travel permits to East Germans in reprisal for the Berlin Wall. Fuchs, now 52, left England in 1959 after serving 9 years of a 14-year term for betraying nuclear secrets to the Russians. At present he is in charge of the Nuclear Research Institute at Dresden.

BALDWIN HILLS RESERVOIR IS ALMOST EMPTY AFTER BREAK IN DAM SENT MILLIONS OF TONS OF WATER SMASHING DOWN ON HOMES

2 Bodies Found; Fear More Dead in Baldwin Hills

By ANDY PARK and ROBERT HEARD
I, P-T Staff Reporters

Millions of gallons of muddy water cascaded down the Baldwin Hills Saturday afternoon from a broken dam and swept through an expensive new housing area, destroying approximately 200 homes.

Two bodies were recovered in the Baldwin Hills disaster late Saturday, but unofficial reports early today indicated the death toll could possibly reach six.

Los Angeles Mayor Samuel W. Yorty termed it "a disaster of the first proportion—a major disaster in every sense of the word."

* * * *

EARLY TODAY rescue workers were combing the flattened area in which the Village Green apartment complex was hardest hit. It was feared many residents were trapped in the debris of their demolished homes.

More flood disaster pictures and stories are on Pages A-2, A-3, A-5 and A-9.

One Marine Corps helicopter pilot, recently returned from combat action in Viet Nam, termed the rescue work "more hazardous than in the mud around Saigon."

Capt. Robert Gaunt of the Los Angeles police department, directing rescue activities from a command post hastily set up in Dorsey High School, 3537 Farmdale St., estimated that:

—Two hundred homes were wiped out completely, swept from their foundations.

—Some 1,500-2,000 additional houses were damaged by muddy floodwaters that sometimes poured into second stories.

Gaunt, who had surveyed the area from a helicopter, said water spewed from a crack in the dam minutes before it gave way. Police warnings given from loudspeaker-equipped cars brought about evacuation of the area by thousands of persons.

The human toll would have been much greater without the warning, he said.

* * * *

HE GAVE THIS picture of the area of greatest damage: A pie-shaped section about one square mile, with the 900-acre-foot reservoir in the Baldwin Hills at its apex. Bisecting the piece was a giant furrow carved in minutes by the great surge, which fanned out at the end of its downhill run.

It was a balmy, seemingly peaceful afternoon in the community between downtown Los Angeles and International Airport when, a little after 3 p.m., the sloping 100-foot wall of the bowl-shaped reservoir exploded with a cannon-like roar.

The cause? No one knew.

But the effects were instant and terrifying.

The mud-brown surge raced over the matchsticked houses in the $80,000 to $100,000 class at upper levels, then boomed on to less expensive houses on lower slopes.

Then, on the flat, it smashed into complexes of apartment houses.

Along the way, it rolled cars, both moving and parked, like toys; swept houses off their foundations, then ripped out the foundations. Swimming pools were scoured out, leaving only holes behind.

Within an hour Mayor Yorty declared it an emergency area. Later, Gov. Brown declared it a disaster area.

President Johnson ordered Army engineers to assist victims of the disaster.

* * * *

THE FLOOD SWEPT down into a catch basin at the foot of the reservoir's earthen front. But the catch basin was filled in moments, and the water, spurwing 50 feet in the air, shaking the earth with its fury, leapt out of the catch basin and into a residential section below.

In the area ahead of the water 30 motorcycle policemen were roaring through the streets, warning people from the flood's path. Most people got out in time.

But cars were caught as the water poured three-quarters of a mile down the canyon, spreading through the residential section. Motorists and policemen abandoned their vehicles and climbed to rooftops.

The flood was two massive tides—each 10 feet high—as it spewed across Coliseum Road, at the foot of the Baldwin Hills.

It swept down two north-south streets into the block-square Village Green apartment development.

Whole rows of apartments literally vanished in the flood. Roofs ripped from two-story structures, flipped through the air, and landed crazily in trees hundreds of yards away.

A woman screamed at rescuers from one of the

Reservists View Havoc From Air

By WILLIAM JONES
I, P-T Staff Reporter

The first silent words you breathe when you come upon the scene of disaster are, "My God, what's happened here?"

Five hundred feet beneath the hovering Seahorse helicopter from Los Alamitos Naval Air Station it looks as if some giant has taken a chunk of city and dunked it in a sea of mud.

Through the early night haze, the flashing red lights of police cars on the rim of the muddy bowl shine like Christmas ornaments.

In one large parking lot of a shopping center, some 50 automobiles of shoppers are crazily scattered about in the mud like beans spilled from a bag.

All are abandoned.

* * * *

LESS THAN an hour ago, 16 orange-suited Naval and Marine reservists and I clambered aboard the helicopters at Los Alamitos. The whirlybirds were airborne 20 minutes after the alert.

At top speed, the 'copters flew north, banked left over East Los Angeles, flew over the brightly lit downtown area and then came upon the scene.

* * * *

GROWING darkness, the twirling red lights on the tails of other helicopters and two huge radio towers made the pilots extra alert.

Cmdr. James Mann of Lomita, who commanded the five 'copters from Marine Squadron 764 and Navy Squadron 773, led us around the towers for a view of the scene below.

* * * *

SOME POLICE cars below were attempting to get into the mud bowl. In spots, they looked like boats, making patterns in the swirling mud as they moved forward.

Cmdr. Mann led us over the reservoir, which looked from above like a giant pond perched on a hill.

The break looked as if someone had cut a giant slice of cheese.

First Lt. Paul Bronson brought our own helicopter down toward an area marked off by red lights,

Amputee in Lucky Landfall

By H. E. DULUDE
As Told to I. P-T Reporter Andy Park

I have lived through two Topanga Canyon brush fires but I thought that this was the end of my life today.

I am thankful we all are safe and that General Motors builds their cars so airtight.

We heard helicopters overhead warning everyone to evacuate the area about 2:45 this afternoon (Saturday). My wife, Rosanna, and I were in our home at 5169 Village Green when we heard the warning. My sister, Mrs. O. Giguere, had come to visit us from her apartment next door.

I went out and started the motor on the car and told the girls to hurry up.

Rosanna went back into the house to get a scarf and as she came back out of the house, she looked up the street and screamed, "The water is coming!"

Rosanna got in with us and I tried to outrun the water. I didn't.

The next thing I knew my new white Chevrolet was hurled into the air by a horrible force of water hitting us.

I am an amputee and have special controls on my car, and for some reason, I kept trying to drive while we were bobbing up and down like a cork in that "ocean." We just float-

Sinatra Jr. Assists FBI, All But $6,000 Recovered

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The FBI announced Saturday night it had recovered most of the remaining Sinatra kidnap ransom money and other evidence in its swift smashing of a three-man amateur gang accused of abducting the young singer.

FBI agent in charge William G. Simon said an additional $18,500 of the $240,000 payoff for the safe return of Frank Sinatra Jr. last Wednesday was located, leaving only about $6,000 to be accounted for.

Simon called a press conference in the fast-breaking case a short time after actor Frank Sinatra Sr. revealed his 19-year-old son had furnished a description of the abductors' hideout which figured in the seizure of three suspects Friday and early Saturday.

The star said FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover told him the case "was solved and he is certain all the suspects had been apprehended."

The kidnap victim was taken by FBI agents to county jail where two of the suspects—Barry Worthington Keenan and Joseph Clyde Amsler—were being held in lieu of $50,000 bail. The third suspect—John William Irwin—was expected to be returned this weekend from San Diego where he was captured.

Young Sinatra was also taken to visit the Canoga Park hideout where he was held for most of the 54 hours following his abduction from a motel in the Lake Tahoe resort country last Sunday night.

Simon revealed for the first time that Keenan, son of a wealthy stockbroker, also had some of the ransom. It was found in his white Chevrolet Impala—a key vehicle in the case—and at the homes of his mother and a friend, Simon said.

Keenan also had purchased a station wagon for $1,000 and a motorcycle for $600 and this money has been recovered, Simon added.

FBI agents in Reno, Nev., found a loaded .38-caliber revolver beside U.S. 50 which they believed was tossed out by the kidnapers while transporting Sinatra to Los Angeles.

The latest disclosures fitted the pattern of widely-scattered clues in what law-enforcement officers describe as a bumbling, amateurish abduction.

In a news conference, Frank Sinatra Sr. gave some hitherto undisclosed

CD Unit Link to Refugees

The City of Paramount's Office of Civil Defense has been named the emergency communications center for the Baldwin Hills disaster, it was announced late Saturday by Councilman John R. Waters, Paramount civil defense director.

Waters said civil defense workers will be on duty at the Paramount City Hall 24 hours a day for the duration of emergency conditions. The center will relay messages to persons in the Baldwin Hills area, and from flood refugees to their relatives anywhere in the United States without charge.

* * * *

THE TELEPHONE number at the City Hall is ME 4-2123.

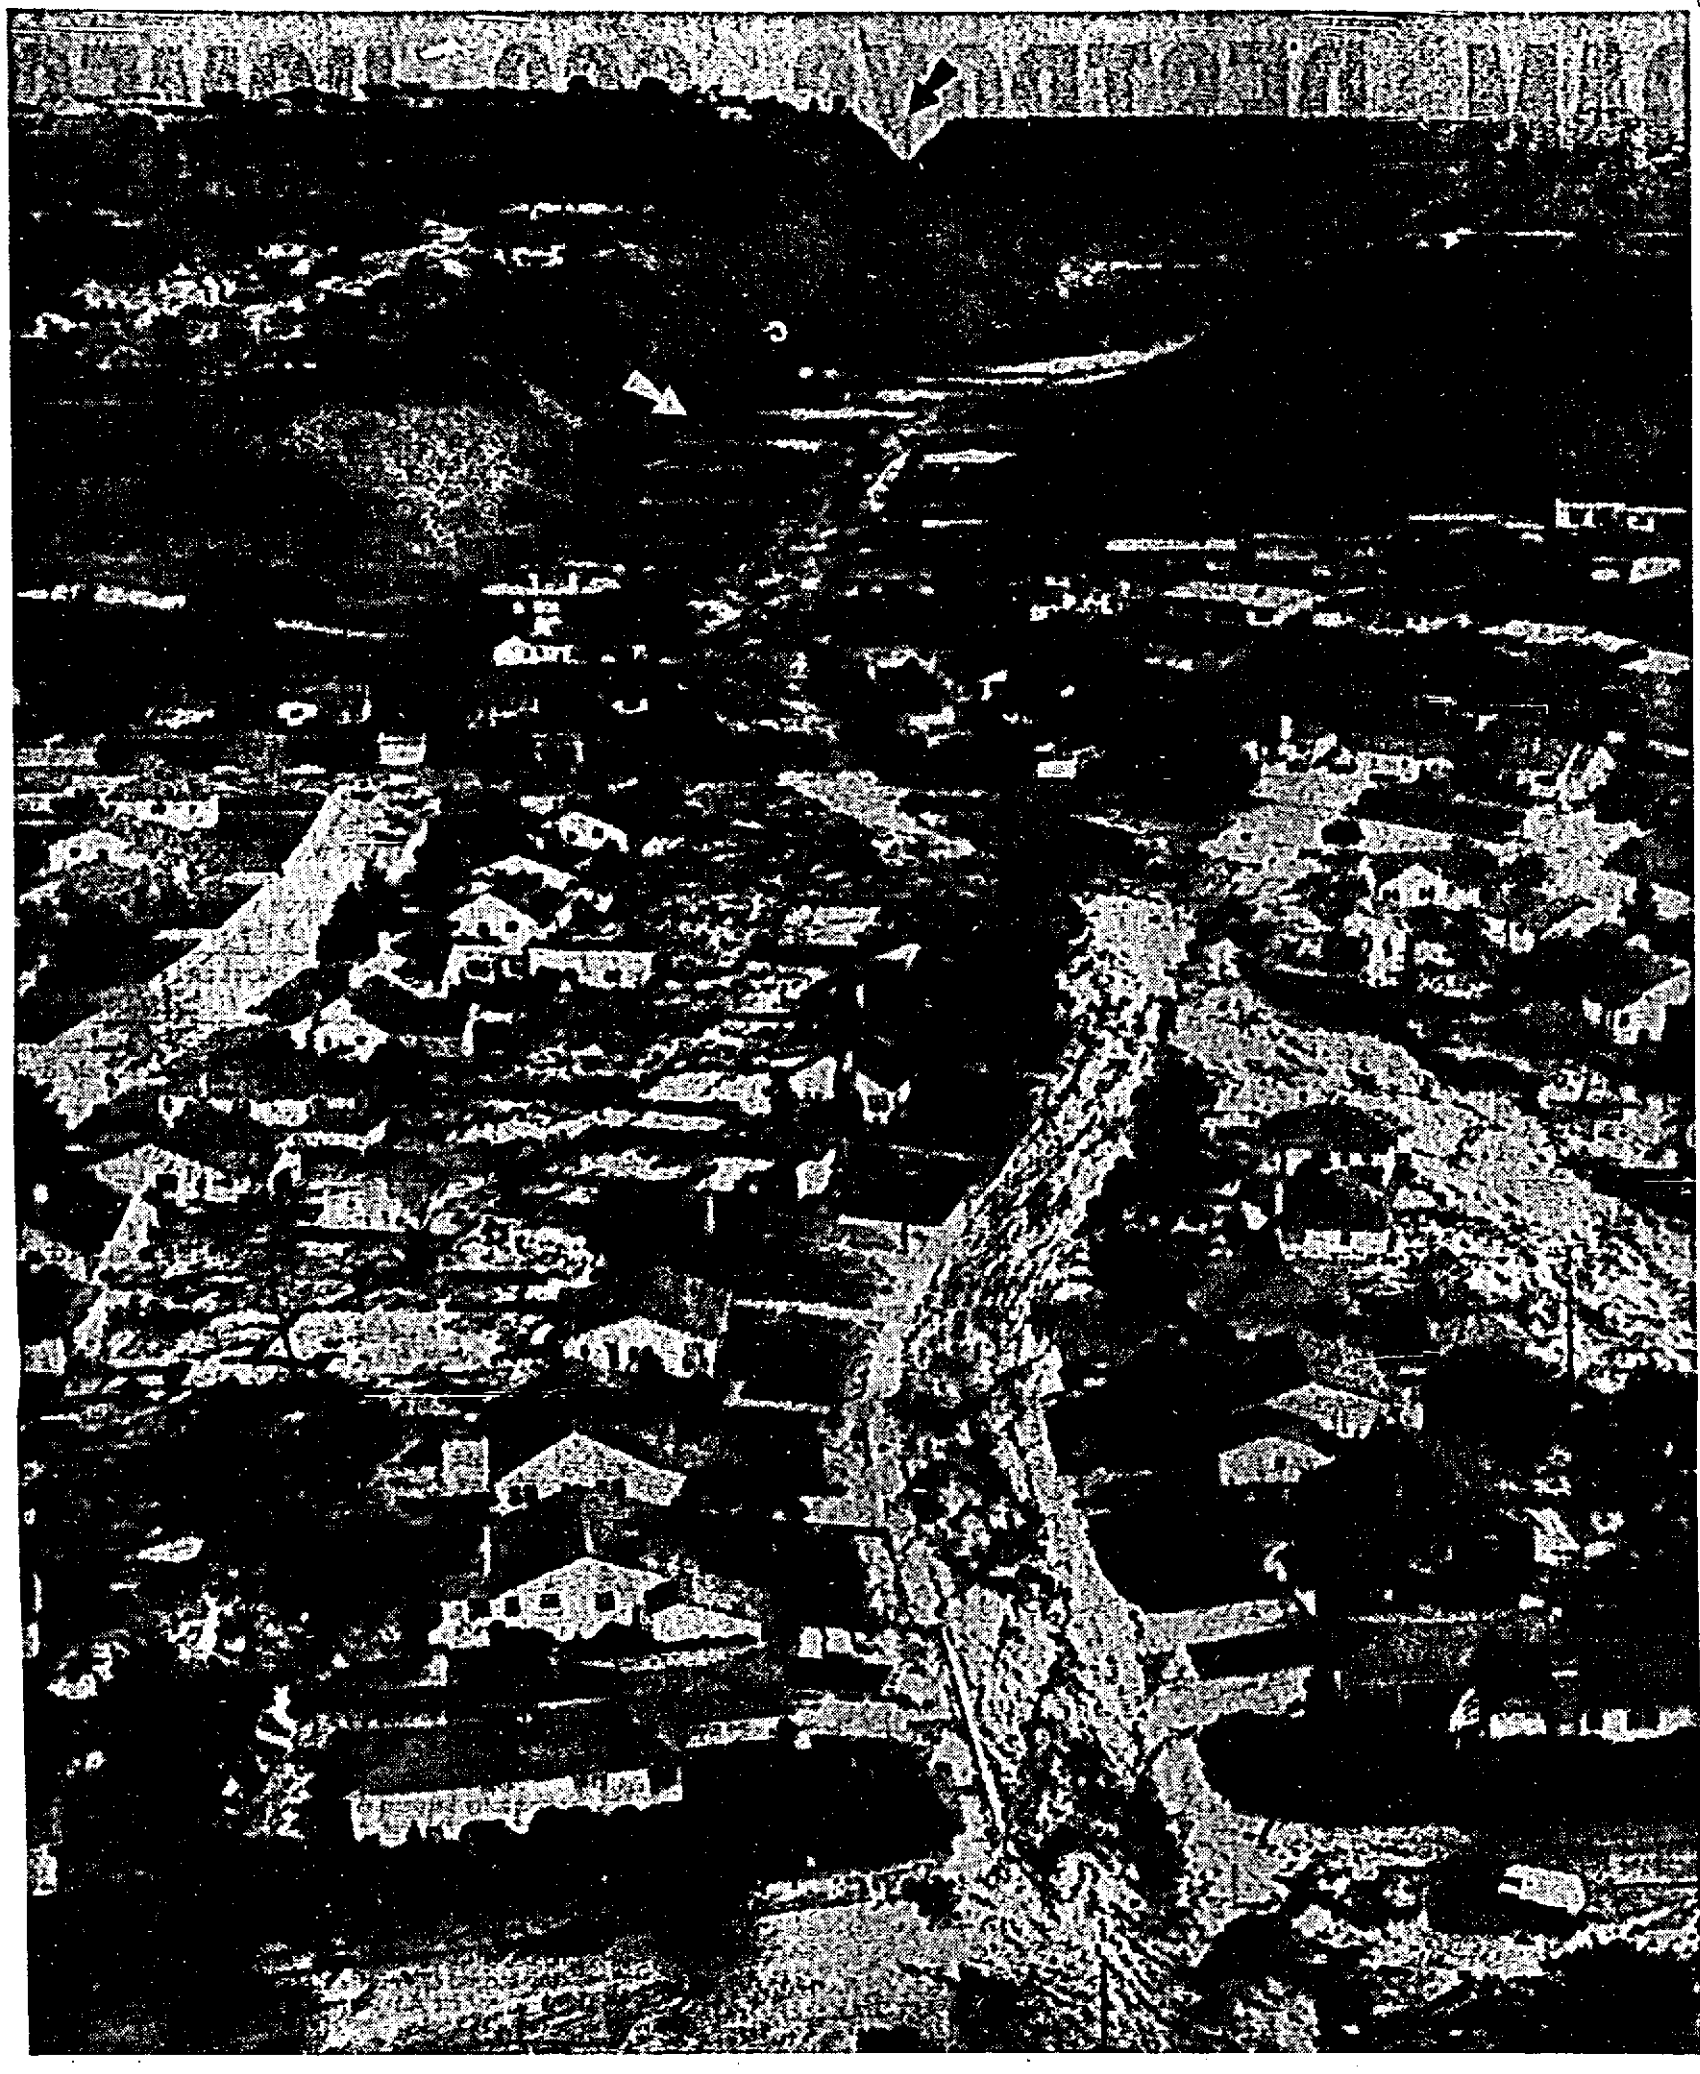

Waters said his office rushed several radio cars into the flood-ravaged area.

Broken Dam Destroys 200 Homes

apartment houses: "My husband is gone. He's gone! I saw him get in the car, and he was swept away."

* * * *

AT RODEO ROAD and La Brea, on the edge of Culver City, the great mass of muddy water caught cars on the busy intersection and sent Christmas shoppers running for shelter.

It was at this intersection that a car containing two elderly women was swept into a sewer excavation. One was rescued. The other, as yet unidentified, died in her auto.

The water plunged on—enough of it to fill a 13-acre lake—until it hit Ballona Creek, a mile from the reservoir, and poured west toward the sea.

The water began to subside in the stricken area almost immediately.

What was left behind was a shocking scene.

Whole blocks had been swept bare of homes.

Intersections had disappeared—leaving only a muddy expanse of acreage.

Men searched frantically for lost wives and missing children. Wives pleaded with police to find husbands who had become separated from them.

A small dog ran in and out, whining, at the intersection where one woman was drowned. No one knew to whom he belonged.

* * * *

HELICOPTERS FLEW OVERHEAD, their landing lights shining down into the miles-square area of desolation, seeking survivors on rooftops. Rescue crews began to move in bulldozers and rubber-tired tractors to pry at the sodden wreckage in the hunt for possible victims.

Nearby schools were turned into evacuation centers. Red Cross and Civil Defense workers sought to get separated families back together.

As the water sank cars appeared from the flooded intersections.

One police car came out of the water with its red lights still flashing. Officers said 29 motorcycles were lost when officers jumped off them and fled to rooftops just ahead of the swirling waters.

An investigation was immediately launched into the cause of the disaster.

An official of the Department of Water and Power said there had been no earthquakes recently, and no rains heavy enough to have endangered the 13-year-old reservoir.

One theory under investigation was that subsidence caused by oil well drilling beneath the surface had weakened the earth structure.

A CLOSEUP VIEW

Like a Monster's Abandoned Lair

By ROBERT HEARD

It was as if the top of Mt. Baldy had rolled down the hill.

Damage was heavy on the upper reaches of Cloverdale Street, but when the water from Baldwin Hills Reservoir picked up speed about four blocks and 200 feet down, it struck like a blockbuster.

The intersection of Cloverdale and Sanchez Drive disappeared. In its place was a gulch 25 feet deep and 75 feet wide for two blocks downhill.

Slabs of asphalt were piled 12 feet high in some places on side streets as the waters fanned out.

* * * *

DEEP, sucking mud covered all streets half a mile below the reservoir for a distance of eight blocks.

I wallowed through it in darkness Saturday night. The shin-deep mud in the center of the streets pulled off one of the heels of my shoes, and I had to put some of my notes inside the shoe to keep the nails from driving into my foot.

Policemen swarmed over the area, knocking on doors and warning the few persons they found to turn off their gas.

Broken water mains spewed geysers into the clogged debris and the water rushed on down Cloverdale, aggravating an already pathetic scene.

Weeping men with flashlights roamed the worst-hit areas, trying to find their houses.

Cloverdale was impassable. I circled around to the west, uphill, and found two boys, Dave Burgess, 18, who was visiting Craig Crippen, also 18, at his house at 3941 Ridgeley Drive.

* * * *

WE CUT over backyards and hit Cloverdale again at Stillwater Drive. Policemen stopped me for the third time. Their orders were to arrest anyone in that area.

Finally they let us proceed. We climbed the hill to the west of Cloverdale all the way to the reservoir and looked down at what had been an exclusive housing area.

By the lights of rescue helicopters overhead we could see dimly a scene that sent chills up our backs.

It was as if some supernatural monster had passed this way and left behind a destroyed ghost town.

Water Commission Will Probe Disaster

LOS ANGELES (CNS)—Stunned water and power commissioners met in emergency session Saturday night as the damage toll mounted from the Baldwin Hills dam disaster.

The commissioners, called into session by President Nathan O. Freedman, took immediate steps to set up an expert committee which will inquire into the cause of the break, which sent water pouring down into the residential area.

The commissioners' chief concerns, however, were the victims of the flood and what could be done to aid the homeless.

Nerves were strained as the emergency meeting got under way after 8 p.m. when all five commissioners arrived from the disaster scene.

Commissioner Clifford H. Martha questioned Freedman's decision to call the session, explaining that he was too disturbed to rush into any action.

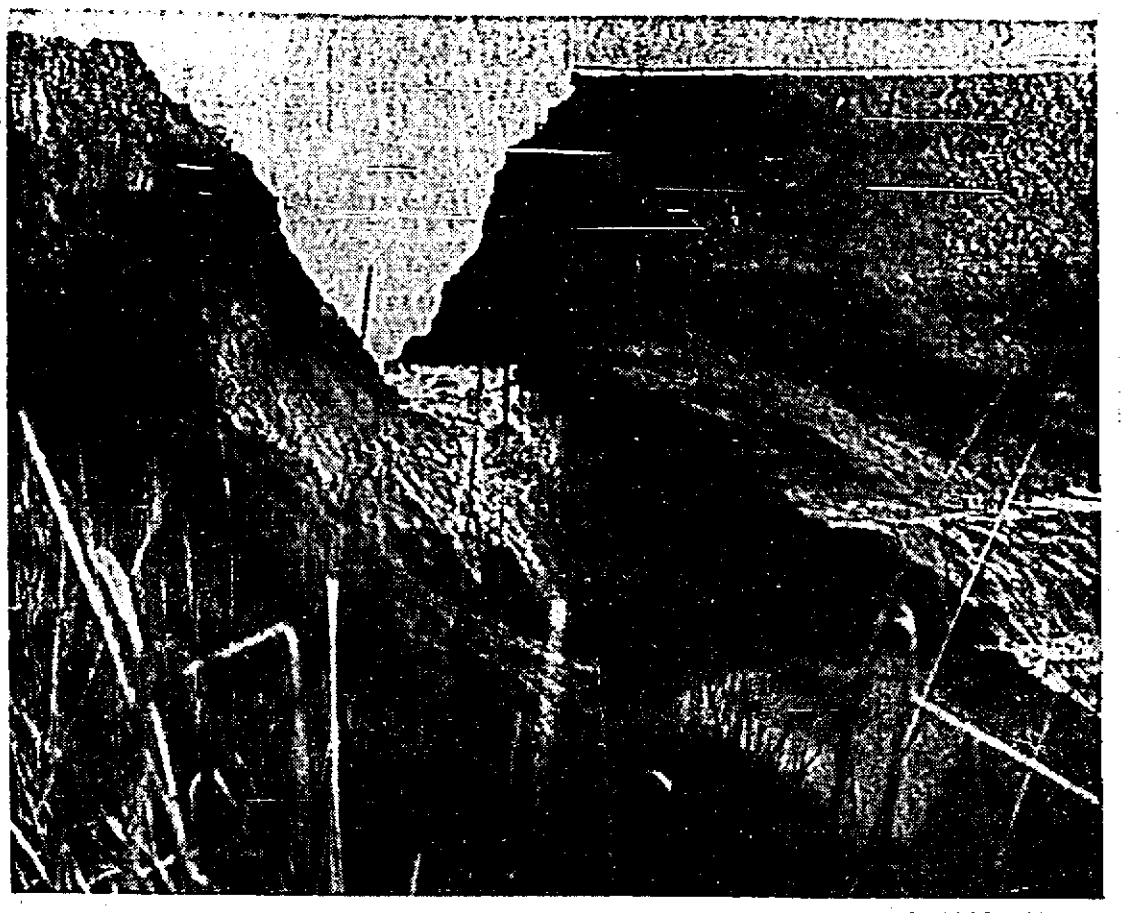

"It's a monumental catastrophe," he said.

LBJ Order to Open Baker Tax Returns

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson will sign an executive order opening to Senate investigators the federal income tax returns of Robert G. Baker, former secretary to the Senate Democrats.

The Senate Rules Committee has asked for access to the returns to help in its investigations of possible conflict-of-interest activities by present and former Senate employes.

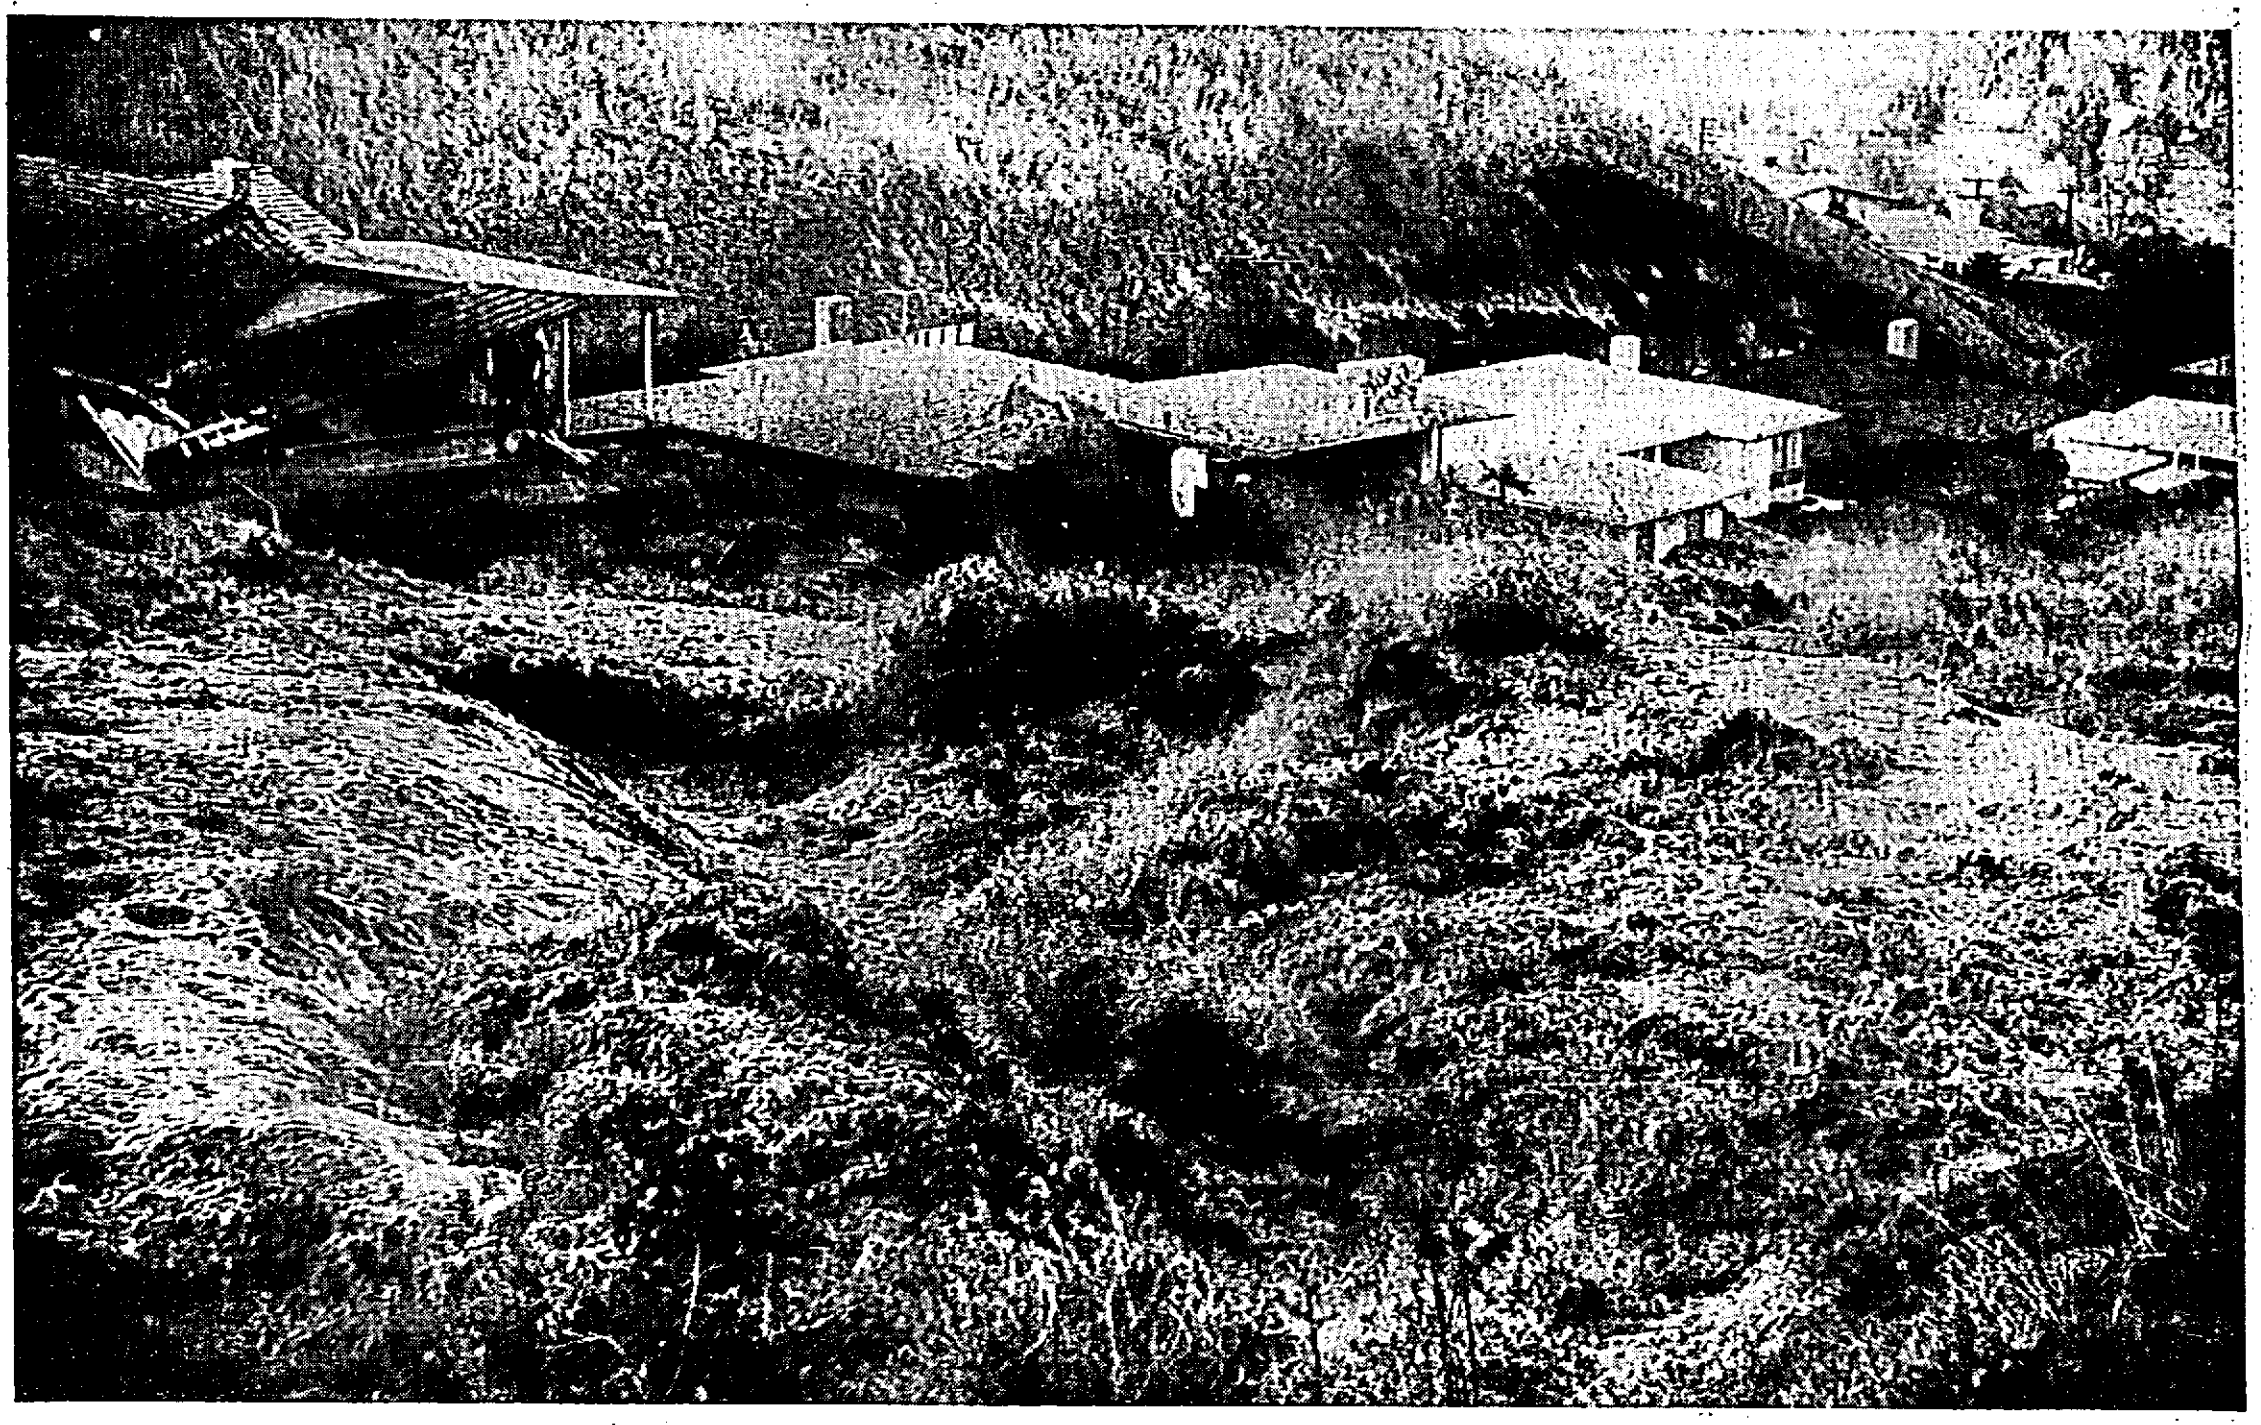

Baker resigned his $19,600-a-year post under fire Oct. 7. A former Senate page boy, he had been given the secretary post while Johnson was the Democratic leader of the Senate.

A Cataract of Destruction

Tremendous power of the water which smashed through the Baldwin Hills Reservoir dam (left) can be seen in the picture below, taken shortly after homes on hillside in foreground were obliterated by the raging torrent. These homes were closest to the catch basin which contained floodwaters for several minutes before it overflowed. At right, water courses down through heavily damaged residential areas. Picture at bottom of page shows the depth of the water after it reached busy streets below. Spectators stand on roof to escape the surging flood.

L.A.C. Says:

Fabulous County Worker Pension Fund

The new county jail is now being occupied. It cost $17 million to build—but county taxpayers will pay almost $36 million, including interest, for it to the County Employe Retirement Association in repayment of the $17 million it advanced to build the project. It will be remembered the voters turned down a bond issue for this purpose—largely because they felt it was too elaborate and costly. But the supervisors went ahead and built it by a financing deal with the association.

In addition to the jail, the retirement association fund has financed for the county the $29-million Hall of Administration, the $5-million Central Heating and Refrigeration plant, the $14.6-million Hall of Records, the $1.5-million Knollwood Golf Course, and now the $17-million jail. These items alone for county financing without a bond issue total over $66 million. But it is only a small part of the $400 million in the fund built up for county employe pensions.

The need for a jail was apparent. It was argued that its cost should have been far less than the $5,000 each for its 3200-occupant capacity. It is probable a less expensive construction would have been used had not the easy financing been available. It raises the question as to public bodies placing such debts on the taxpayer without a vote of the people. This $17-million obligation plus interest is just as costly and definite an obligation as a bond issue, but it was not approved by the taxpayer who must pay the bill.

The fabulous fund also brings out the county employe pension benefits which are so high above those provided for their employers, the taxpayers. Under this system County Manager Hollinger, now 54 years old, could retire on a pension of $15,000 a year. He now makes $32,808 a year. If he continues in his job for another five years, he can retire on a $24,000-a-year pension. He started work for the county at the age of 16 for $90 a month. He is an efficient, valuable executive whose present salary is not high enough. But his pension is high above that provided for all but a few private-industry executives.

This fund is added to annually in the amount of about $52 million, of which the county pays $31 million. The county share is equal to over 10 percent of the county general tax bill for property owners. These contributions are added to by the earnings of the fund from interest on bonds, stocks and such projects as the county buildings.

The employe pensions are based on the last three years' pay they receive. A lifeguard can retire at age 55 and get 20 percent of his pay if he has 10 years service. For 20 years he gets half pay, and 60 percent after 30 years. For regular, non-safety department workers the pensions run from 15 percent of pay for 10 years service up to 51 percent for those with 35 years. If they retire at age 60, the top is 67 percent and at 65 they can retire on up to 75 percent of their best three years pay.

The fund is believed to be one of the best-managed of employe pension plans. While the benefits are in most cases high above Social Security payments, the employes contribute a larger amount—around 7 percent to 10 percent—of their pay. The county pays from 11 percent to 19 percent as its share. It is estimated the county share is about 28 cents on each $100 of assessed valuation.

It is a good plan for the county workers. We are not criticizing it. But we are critical of the use of this or any other form of financing by the county for purposes that should be provided from bond issues voted by the people. Such easy financing is dangerous because it makes it possible to undertake projects which the voters may not approve. There should be safeguards providing that any such indebtedness should be subject to voter approval whether by bond issues or this form of private financing.—L.A.C.

Johnson Chooses Latin-Policy Boss

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson made his first major manpower shift Saturday night, naming fellow-Texan Thomas Mann to guide U.S. policies—economic, political and military—on Latin America.

The White House announced Johnson will send to the Senate Monday his nomination of Mann, who now is ambassador to Mexico, to become assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs. He will succeed Edwin M. Martin.

The announcement capped another busy Saturday for the new President.

* * * *

JOHNSON aimed another message at Capitol Hill — this one sharply protesting "the drastic reduction in foreign-aid funds" voted Saturday by the House Appropriations Committee.

He issued a statement denouncing the slash to a $2.8 billion appropriation as a step toward "weakness and retreat."

The President also acted to widen public and congressional support for the long stalled $11-billion-tax-reduction bill.

And he set as the central object and foremost goal of his administration the achievement of a lasting peace.

THOMAS MANN
Ambassador Steps Up

White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger issued Johnson's foreign-aid protest and announced the appointment of Mann at a hastily summoned news conference.

He read to newsmen a statement saying:

"It is the President's intention to place Ambassador Mann in charge of the overall policy coordination for all aspects of Latin-American policy under the direction of the President and the Secretary of State."

* * * *

MARTIN, Salinger said, "will be appointed to a major ambassadorial post in Latin America as previously planned."

AEC Tests Reactor for Space

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission announced Saturday that a nuclear reactor being developed to generate electricity for spacecraft was operated at full power during a ground test at Santa Susana, Calif., early last week.

The AEC said full power means tests at 450 thermal kilowatts and 1,300 degrees Farenheit.

More tests at power levels up to 600 thermal kilowatts are planned, the announcement said.

* * * *

THE REACTOR is called SNAP 8. It is the first to be built and operated in this particular phase of the AEC's Systems for Nuclear Auxiliary Power from which the program takes its name.

The California tests involved the reactor only, the AEC said. Later tests will involve both the reactor and power conversion components operating together as a unit.

The reactor, being designed and constructed by Atomics International, a division of North American Aviation, is aimed at providing a spacecraft in flight with 35 to 55 kilowatts of electricity.

The AEC said the reactor weighs about 600 pounds and is fueled with highly enriched uranium. Its core is contained in a vessel about the size of a five-gallon can.

United Air Lines and IAM Stand Firm, Tie-up Looms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — United Air Lines said Saturday it will attempt to continue operating if union mechanics go on strike as scheduled at midnight Wednesday.

The move by United and an answering accusation by the Internationla Association of Machinists (IAM), the mechanics union, appeared to lessen hope of avoiding a major airline strike at the height of the Christmas passenger rush. It indicated a "stiffening of attitudes," a government mediator who has been close to the situation said.

The mediator, Howard Gamser of the National Mediation Board, said, however, that both sides still were scheduled to meet again in his office Monday in a continuing attempt to settle the labor dispute. "Bargaining has not been called off," he said.

HER HUSBAND DROWNED
Mrs. Bonnie Young, who was saved when she and her husband were swept from their home by the rushing floodwater, is handed a cup of coffee at refugee center in Baldwin Hills. She told rescuers she saw her husband carried away by the water as she struggled to reach safety.

Water Explodes Dam 'Like Giant Cannon'

Associated Press Staffer Robert M. Burnett was within 100 feet of the Baldwin Hills Reservoir when it ruptured, sending water roaring on homes below. Here is his eyewitness account.

By ROBERT M. BURNETT

LOS ANGELES (AP)—It was like an explosion.

One moment the 100-foot-high sloping earth wall was leaking muddy water from a top-to-bottom crack. It gushed in a 10-foot-wide brown muddy stream from a fissure at the bottom.

The next, there was a roar like a great cannon, then a rumbling and shuddering of the ground as the face of the slope erupted.

A mighty jet of water and mud and fragments of earth shot out over a ravine into which the leak had been running, followed by a steady rush of water.

* * * *

FROM MY backyard vantage point overlooking the ravine and looking up toward the cracking wall, it was terrifying. The explosion-point was at the bottom, opening a huge hole into which upper wall portions fell.

I ran to a phone and when I started talking my voice was trembling.

I remember that a bystander shouted, "There she goes!"

A river of water kept pouring out, but I could not see where it was going.

* * * *

I DROVE down the hill a few blocks to another vantage point.

From there I could see that the water had spread out over the lowland at the foot of the canyon, over an area of many blocks.

I phoned in the report, then went on down to where the flood poured out of the canyon mouth.

Muddy spray was leaping 35 feet in the air as the rushing torrent carved a gully through what had been the residential area.

DISASTER CHRONOLOGY

Hundreds Flee After Warning

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Here is the chronology of the first harrowing hours of the Baldwin Hills Reservoir disaster. Times were taken from sheriff's and police logs and from Associated Press reporters at the scene.

11:15 a.m.—Leak spotted by caretaker at the reservoir.

11:30 a.m.—Leak verified by sheriff's department helicopter.

Noon—Mudslides reported on Cloverdale Avenue directly below reservoir and water rushing down La Brea Avenue. Crews begin draining reservoir water.

1:45 p.m.—Department of Water and Power engineers and police decide on evacuation. City engineers quoted as saying the reservoir "may go any minute or it might not go at all."

2:00 p.m.—Red Cross and Civil Defense authorities alerted and aid requested.

2:20 p.m.—First Sigalert broadcast on all radio and television stations. Sixty motorcycle officers and patrol cars begin warning occupants of houses below reservoir and helping them out of the area.

3:38 p.m.—Reservoir wall breaks.

3:43 p.m.—Fifteen homes disappear from a terraced canyon slope below the reservoir as a mass of water roars down from the break in the wall.

3:58 p.m.—Water on streets below reported 4 feet deep, current 15 m.p.h.

4:02 p.m.—Water 5 feet deep, current 20 m.p.h. Cars are swept off streets and piled on top of each other. Homes along Cloverdale Avenue, directly below the reservoir, are wiped out.

4:13 p.m.—Water begins to recede slightly.

Iceland Flag on New Isle

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (UPI) —A group of eight men said Saturday they landed on the new volcanic island in the Atlantic to plant the Icelandic flag.

They said they made the expedition Saturday but called it a "dangerous venture" because of new eruptions. One of the group said he was trapped to the waist by a flow of thick, oozy ashes before being pulled out to make an escape.

The month-old island off Iceland's southern coast is the first new one in the Atlantic in more than 100 years. A spokesman for the group said they hoped it would be called "Vesturey," or Western Isle.

Laughter, Tears Mix at Red Cross Center

Angelenos who had just lost their homes in the Baldwin Hills disaster still could laugh at themselves.

For instance, the couple overheard talking at Dorsey High School, one of four hastily-set-up evacuation centers:

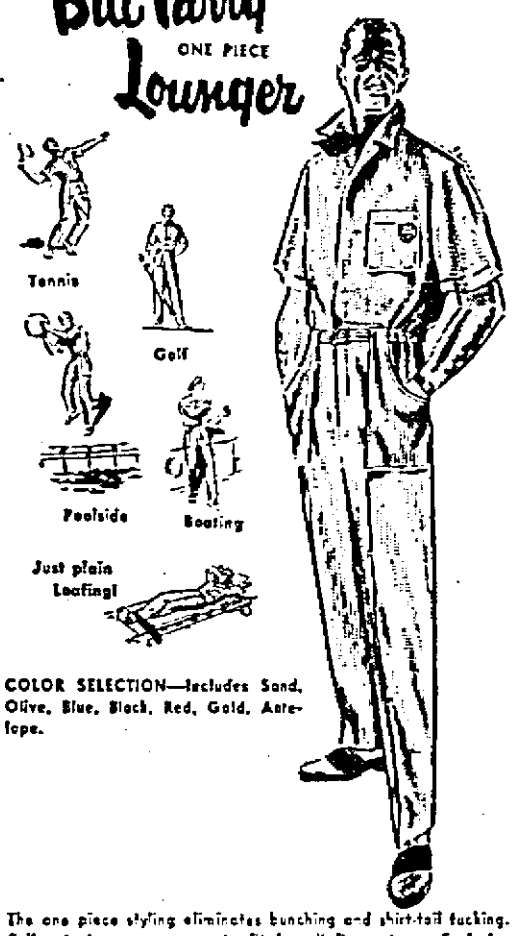

Said she, surveying the milling thousands: "I haven't seen so many people since our last party." To which her husband replied, "And there are more policemen here — than at our last party."

But tear-stained cheeks were more the order of the day.

Children separated from parents wailed . . . adults sought out their missing relatives . . . and the Red Cross served supper for the hungry, set up cots, prepared to care for the homeless.

One of the homeless, a man who said he had just finished building his home Friday, noted dryly: "I didn't have flood insurance. Its cost was prohibitive — because of the dam."

Computers to Track Unlicensed Dogs

Court's Ruling on Czar's Heir Due

HAMBURG, Germany (UPI)—Within a month or two, a Hamburg court is due to give ading 62-year-old Anna Anderson what may be her last chance to legally prove she is Anastasia, daughter of the last, murdered Czar of Russia.

In January or February the State Court of Appeals is expected to hear her final argument, and if the court turns her down, Miss Anderson may be finally defeated. She could appeal to the West German Supreme Court — but only to complain of a legal error, not to show new evidence.

Thus could end a 25-year court battle that reportedly concerns a fortune of millions in addition to the question of Anna Anderson's true identity.

The late Kurt Vermehren, Miss Anderson's attorney until he died in a car crash last year, said between $38 million and $112 million sit in a London bank, waiting for the heir of Czar Nicholas II.

Gordon Davies, a director of London's Barings Bank where money was deposited by the Czar before he, his wife, his son and daughters fell before a Bolshevik firing squad on July 17, 1918, refused to discuss the amount it holds.

"We will pluck the fruit from the tree when the time comes," says Carl Wollmann, Miss Anderson's current lawyer. "Right now, we are not interested in the money. We are interested in establishing her identity."

Elia Kazan's Wife Dies

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mrs. Molly Kazan, 56, wife of Elia Kazan, motion picture and stage producer, died Saturday.

Mrs. Kazan was taken to Bellevue Hospital from her Central Park West residence Friday night after suffering a cerebral hemorrhage. Her condition remained critical until her death.

The former Molly Day Thatcher, she married Kazan in 1932. They had four children.

Her husband is Yale Wexler, owner of the Wilshire House Hotel here. The boy will be named Jordan. The Wexlers have another son, Gregory.

Legislation Expected in Wake of United States Study of Smoking Habits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A wave of legislative proposals and administrative decrees is expected in the wake of the impending report on the Surgeon General's Committee on Smoking Versus Health.

Although the findings of the special 10-man committee have been a closely guarded secret, it has been almost a foregone conclusion that the committee will report a definite link between smoking and some diseases.

For one thing, Surgeon General Luther M. Terry has announced that a second committee will be formed after the first one reports.

The first committee was named only to assimilate all of the pertinent studies and findings, evaluate them and formulate conclusions.

The second committee, Terry said, will consider recommendations for action. And as one tobacco executive ruefully noted:

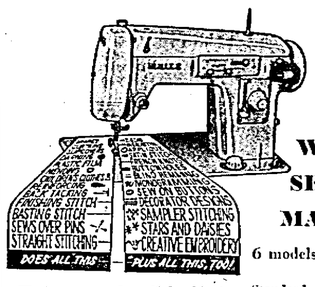

"Presumably the surgeon general wouldn't have anticipated the need for a second committee if he didn't think the first would come up with a report describing some reasons for action."

The studies the committee is using as a basis for its report leave little room for any conclusion other than the one anticipated by the surgeon general.

The studies almost unanimously show that there is at least a statistical relationship between smoking and susceptibility to such things as lung cancer, coronary disease and circulatory ailments.

The most recent of these studies was made public earlier this month. It was a study by Dr. E. Cuyler Hammond, the most prolific of the probers into the relationship of smoking and health.

It was the latest in a series of studies aimed at overcoming the objections of proponents of smoking to the various aspects of earlier tests.

President Sends Warm Message in Hopes of Defrosting De Gaulle

PARIS (UPI) — President Johnson has sent a personal message to French President de Gaulle in an apparent new attempt to thaw out frozen relations between the United States and France, U.S. officials disclosed Saturday night.

The message of personal greetings will be given De Gaulle by U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk when he pays a courtesy call on the French president at noon Monday, the officials said.

It was not disclosed whether the message reiterated Johnson's invitation to De Gaulle to visit Washington. French officials have indicated De Gaulle probably would not make such a trip during 1964.

Rusk told Western allied leaders in Paris Saturday that President Johnson favors a diplomatic "pause" in the immediate future and has no plans for summit talks with Premier Nikita Khrushchev in 1964.

• • • •

AMERICAN sources said Rusk brought up the idea of a pause in a Western Big Three meeting with British Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville at the French Foreign Ministry.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Khrushchev Set to Reduce Arms

MOSCOW (UPI)—Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev in a speech published Saturday announced plans to reduce Soviet military expenditures and cut Soviet armed forces in what appeared to be the first shot of a new offensive for general and complete disarmament.

The 17-nation disarmament talks resume next month in Geneva.

The military cuts appeared to be caused by his $46.2-billion, seven-year crash plan to revolutionize the Soviet chemical industry and free Russia of the possibility of new crop failures. This year's agricultural failures led Russia to buy nearly $1 billion of Western wheat.

Khrushchev's announcement Friday to the closing session of a meeting of the full Communist Party Central Committee reflected the Kremlin's confidence the Johnson administration would continue the Kennedy policy of easing international tensions.

Viet War Takes 8 Yank Lives in Week

NEW YORK (AP)—Eight American servicemen were killed or are missing and presumed dead in two air crashes last week in far-off South Viet Nam. That makes 144 Americans dead in that country's civil war in the past two years.

ALBRO

"I knew why he was in Viet Nam—it was for me and the boys," said Mrs. Ronny L. Woodmansee, mother of three, in Austin, Tex., Saturday. "I knew his luck couldn't hold too long. The sadness comes at me in waves."

Her husband, an Army lieutenant, was one of four killed when a helicopter crashed Thursday while trying to remove the wreckage of a plane downed in the guerrilla-infested Mekong delta.

One man aboard the helicopter—Pfc. Charles S. Albro—survived the crash. "I feel so helpless," said Albro's wife, a nurse's aide, at their home in Milton-Freewater, Ore. She said she could not be more thankful that he survived.

In the second crash, four Americans and three Vietnamese were killed in a light Army plane which hit the side of a mountain. There were no survivors.

Pills Kill 'Queen of the Blues'

DETROIT (UPI)—Singer Dinah Washington, 39-year-old "queen of the blues" whose throaty renditions of jazz classics made her a top recording artist, died Saturday of an apparent overdose of pills.

The singer's body was found in bed by her seventh husband, professional football star Dick (Night Train) Lane. Her personal physician, Dr. B. C. Ross, said he believed Miss Washington had "ingested pills of an unknown type."

Homicide Det. William J. Chubb said an unmarked bottle of 50 orange and blue pills was found next to the bed. The contents were not immediately known.

Miss Washington, whose biggest hit was, "What a Difference a Day Makes," had been taking pills for a "nervous condition," according to Mrs. Ethel Harrison, 67, who lived with the Lanes.

Faces Reckoning

NEW YORK (UPI)—Onetime "boy wonder" Earl Belle, whose paper financial empire collapsed in 1958 caused "untold losses" to American investors, returned to the United States Saturday from a five-year exile in Brazil where he got into trouble on bad-check charges. He faces prosecution in the United States on fraud charges.

Belle, now 31, arrived here aboard a jetliner from Rio de Janeiro at 10:40 a.m. EST, accompanied by an agent of the International Police Organization (Interpol).

A police spokesman in Brazil said Belle had written $70,000 worth of rubber checks to exchange houses in transactions involving the purchase of Brazilian cruzeiros. He was given the alternative of facing Brazilian prosecution or returning to the United States, and he chose the latter, the spokesman said.

U.S. Ends Boycotts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States reopened diplomatic relations with the Dominican Republic and Honduras Saturday but kept the pressure on their junta governments by stalling the return of ambassadors and continuing to withhold U.S. aid.

The action ended more than two months of diplomatic boycott policy toward the two countries, instituted after their constitutional governments were overthrown by military uprisings.

Johnson Calls Slashed Aid Bill a Straitjacket

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson said Saturday the $2.8-billion foreign-aid bill drafted by the House Appropriations Committee would put the United States on the path of "weakness and retreat."

"The proposed reductions in foreign-aid funds would put our foreign policy in a straightjacket," Johnson said in a statement.

"I urge the Congress, therefore, to appropriate the funds essential to conduct strong and forward-looking foreign-assistance programs in the U.S. national interest," Johnson said.

• • • •

THE HOUSE committee approved the reduced bill earlier in the day. The $2.8-billion total represents a cut of $1.7 billion below President John F. Kennedy's request.

Johnson's statement was distributed to newsmen who had been recalled to the White House after having been told earlier in the afternoon that there would be no further announcements Saturday.

The President said:

"I cannot believe the Congress intends to require the United States of America to follow policies of weakness and retreat."

Johnson's sharply worded statement recalled that made by President Kennedy last August when the House approved a $3.4-billion authorization for foreign-aid spending. Kennedy called those cuts in the authorization short-sighted, irresponsible, and dangerously partisan.

In his statement, Johnson said, "The drastic reduction in foreign-aid funds proposed in the House, if sustained, would be a sereve setback to American leadership and to U.S. interests in many parts of the world."

• • • •

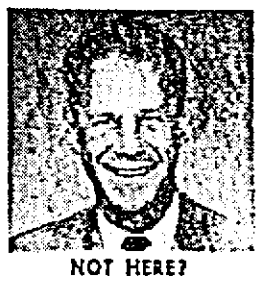

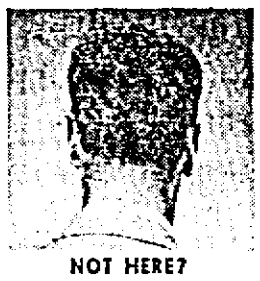

JOHNSON said the appropriation would curtail sharply the Alliance for Progress program. He said it would mean "the United States would be providing for all of Latin America less than the Soviet Union is putting into Cuba alone. This is no way to combat communism in Latin America."

Johnson said under the committee's bill the United States "could not keep its commitments and pledges" to international organizations.

"This is a startling proposal," he said. "It would undercut our efforts in the United Nations to insure that the Soviet Union and other reluctant nations live up to their pledges to the United Nations."

Air Travelers to Get New Magazine Free

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new magazine, to be produced by American Heritage Publishing Co., Inc., will be put on U. S. airliners early in 1965 for free distribution to passengers.

The Air Transport Association said the magazine would offer "both informative and entertaining fare aimed specifically at air travelers."

BUT OTHER helicopters were there. We flew on to a giant, floodlighted field, the baseball diamond of Dorsey High School, and landed.

In another Los Alamitos helicopter, Lt. Edwin Stewart flew off with a doctor and an ambulance attendant in search of a reported heart victim in the area. They returned later, unable to find the cardiac victim, but carrying out to safety an elderly man trapped by the flood.

* * * *

AS WE waited on the baseball diamond, we could see fire trucks and ambulances cruise the nearby muddy streets, their spotlights throwing eerie lights on the abandoned homes as they passed.

Near us were several police cars, transmitting messages to the choppers.

One officer pointed to another helicopter parked by us and said, "That guy brought in a couple of bodies."

No one said a word.

* * * *

COMPLETE darkness had fallen, the sun disappeared behind a flaming ribbon of red on the horizon. It was now impossible for a helicopter to move into the flooded area.

A short while later, we got the word, "Go home." Pilots revved their engines and we flew back, gazing silently out of the craft and staring at the Christmas lights beneath.

At Los Alamitos, each had a steaming cup of black coffee and then the weekend warriors disbanded for the night.

ed right straight down the street.

The car hit a pole at the intersection of La Brea Avenue and Rodeo Road and it deflected us between two buildings, a grocery store and a restaurant.

The bumpers snagged on another pole and I looked up and saw police officers on the roofs of buildings on either side.

Officer R. J. Holoubek jumped into the water and swam toward us shouting, "Close the windows, close the windows!"

Behind him, on top of the restaurant, other police officers started to form a human chain out to Officer Holoubek.

Holoubek opened the doo rof the car with one hand and grabbed the hand of an officer reaching out to him from behind. One by one, they pulled us to the roof.

After the water started to recede we were placed in a red-carpeted charter bus.

Owner Darell Harvey told us that the bus was used as a party bus for a cocktail lounge decorated in the Gay 90s style. It was the only funny thing that happened to us all afternoon.

Harvey drove us four blocks away to the Susan Miller Dorsey High School, which is being used as an evacuation center.

I have never seen anything like what happened today. Before I retired my wife and I lived in Topanga Canyon and twice we had to flee from brush fires. But at least you can escape a fire—what can you do when tons of water and mud surround you?

We are wet, we are sitting here on a bare gymnasium floor and our home and all our belongings are gone. But thank God—and thank Officer Holoubek—we are alive!

Five Naval Air Station 'Copters Aid Rescue

Five helicopters from Los Alamitos Naval Air Station east of Long Beach were in a group of quickly assembled aerial rescue units sent into the Baldwin Hills disaster area.

Among the others were two choppers from El Toro Marine Corps Air Station, Santa Ana, and a pair from the Coast Guard's air detachment at Los Angeles International Airport.

Control of the big life-savers was given the Los Angeles police department.

The Coast Guard here also sent a 16-foot fiberglass outboard motorboat for use in water rescues.

Day shift Los Angeles police headquartered in San Pedro were held on duty into the night as their normal relief men were sent to the scene for "an indefinite stay." Emergency drinking water pumps and lanterns were dispatched from San Pedro.

And the Coast Guard in Long Beach issued a special warning to mariners:

Stay away from the Ballona flood control ditch's exit point into the Pacific. Baldwin Hills debris — including large chunks of houses—was floating seaward and creating a major hazard for a mile beyond Plaza del Rey.

Liability for Damage Poses Major Question

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Who will pay for the damage done hundreds of Los Angeles homes by floodwaters from a broken reservoir?

The Los Angeles City Department of Water and Power, owners of the reservoir, said it hasn't yet been established if the utility will be held liable.

An official said, however, that the department is covered by $114.8 million in insurance, placed with 12 major carriers.

A spokesman for the Insurance Information Institute said that private dwellings are generally not covered by floodwater protection, because of the high costs of such coverage in Southern California.

France-Albania Pact

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — France and Communist Albania signed two trade treaties Saturday in Tirana, the French Embassy here announced. One set general conditions of trade and ship and air activities between the two countries. The second outlines what goods will be traded next year.

Reprieve Won on Off-Street Parking

Builders were given a brief reprieve Tuesday for complying with higher off-street parking requirements in new residential construction. Long Beach City Council agreed that the new ordinance will not be made operative until Feb. 1, 1964, although it is scheduled for first reading next Tuesday and adoption one week later. Buildings for which foundations are poured on the Feb. 1 date may be completed in compliance with the present parking ratios. Councilmen also informally directed that the building department go ahead with processing applications for construction permits at the normal pace during the interim period. After Feb. 1 builders must provide a ratio as high as 1¼ off-street parking spaces for each apartment in larger dwelling units in most sections of Long Beach. The maximum now is generally a ratio of two spaces for three apartments.

GIRLS JOIN BROTHER FOR HOLIDAYS

Two Fischer Quints Leave Hospital

ABERDEEN, S.D. (UPI)—The first two girls of the Fischer quintuplets went home from the hospital Saturday.

The two, Mary Magdalene, the second born, and Mary Margaret, the last born, cried lustily as they were taken to join their quint brother, James Andrew, in the lavender-colored nursery at the Fischer home.

The father, Andrew, and his wife, Mary Ann, took the little girls — born exactly three months ago—home in the family's new car. The tots were bundled against the 10-below-zero cold in blankets knitted by their great-grandmother.

—Associated Press Wirephoto

MRS. FISCHER carried one of the girls out of St. Luke's Hospital. The other was held by their grandmother, Mrs. Elmer Brady, Hecla, S.D. Brady was at the Fischers' home baby-sitting with James Andrew and the Fischers' five other children.

Neither Andy Fischer nor his wife spoke to reporters as they left the hospital or when they arrived home, where the five older children were standing outside to greet the new arrivals. But Mrs. Fischer flashed a smile.

An attorney for the Fischers said Andy planned to spend the rest of the day putting up and decorating the Christmas tree in the 10-room house where the family is making its home until a new house can be built next spring.

Stanley Siegel, the attorney, said "help has been secured for Mrs. Fischer, but right now Mrs. Fischer and her mother are taking care of everything."

Siegel declined to say who had been hired to help the parents care for the quints or the salary involved.

Hospital authorities said Mary Magdalene and Mary Margaret were sent home Saturday "simply because they were the largest of the four girls." They declined to say whether the other girls, Mary Catherine and Mary Ann, would be home by Christmas. But there was believed to be a possibility they would leave the hospital next Saturday.

Procter & Gamble Told It Must Sell Clorox Co.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Federal Trade Commission Saturday ordered the huge Procter & Gamble Corporation to dispose of Clorox Chemical Co., the largest producer of household liquid bleach.

The commission gave as one reason that the merger of the two firms, six years ago, produced economies only in advertising discounts available to Procter & Gamble. The FTC said these economies are a burden, rather than a benefit, to the consumer.

In Cincinnati, Howard Morgens, president of Procter & Gamble, said:

"We will, of course appeal this decision to the federal courts.

"The decision represents an attempt to make new law. It goes beyond any previous interpretation of existing anti-trust legislation."

At the time of the merger, Procter & Gamble had total sales of $1.1 billion and had substantial percentages of markets in such items as detergents, toilet soap, lard and shortening, and shampoo.

The FTC decision noted that total sales in the entire household liquid bleach industry were equivalent to less than 10 per cent of Procter & Gamble's total sales.

Tip From Sinatra Jr. Aids FBI

details of the case.

The entertainer disclosed a description by Frank Sinatra Jr. led FBI agents to the San Fernando Valley home where the kidnapers held their victim for two days.

The younger Sinatra was taken to the county jail where Kennan and Amsler, both 23, were being held. He spent about a half hour there, presumably to try to identify the suspects.

"I would like to say that I hope the results of this case, due to the efforts of the FBI, will discourage anything like this in the future," said the father. "I do pray that this is the case."

He also said, "When Frank was first kidnaped I was worried and distraught. But the more phone calls that came in the more heartened I became.

"They wanted money, not Frankie," said the singer.

Sinatra said he had not seen the kidnapers but was positive the man he talked to by telephone in negotiations for the ransom was the suspect known as John Irwin. He added that Frank Jr. actually had not been able to identify any of his abductors by pictures.

Sinatra explained Frankie had been "blindfolded all the time and was hardly spoken to." He said a previous report that FBI agents took infrared pictures of the ransom pickup early Wednesday shortly before his son's release was not correct to his knowledge.

KIDNAP SUSPECTS IN COURT
Joseph Clyde Amsler (left), 23, and Barry W. Keenan, 23, wait to be arraigned in a Los Angeles court Saturday. They and a third suspect are accused of kidnaping Frank Sinatra Jr.

Not Ad Libbed

WEST LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Frank Sinatra Sr. answered questions Saturday at a news conference about the kidnaping of his son and was asked his opinion on whether the abduction was done by professionals.

"Well, it certainly didn't look like it was ad libbed," the singer replied.

the FBI, also revealed for the first time the ransom bills had been chemically treated. Serial numbers also were taken down.

The kidnapers demanded old money, he said.

The trio—a house-painter, an abalone diver and a vacuum-cleaner salesman—were seized by agents moving swiftly and secretly into three Southern California cities in a period of 15 hours culminating early Saturday.

The arrests apparently completed the roundup of the gang.

At one time, as many as seven or nine suspects were believed involved in the abduction of the young singing star from a Lake Tahoe lodge last Sunday.

"We do not anticiapte filing any additional complaints to obtain warrants of arrest in this matter," said Thomas Sheridan, the chief of criminal complaints for the U.S. attorney's office here.

"Thank God it's over," said Frank Sinatra, father of the 19-year-old victim, when he was informed the federal agents had wrapped up the case in slightly more than five days. He praised the FBI, which had conducted its investigation in complete secrecy — excluding local police from participation.

Keenan's family hired an attorney immediately and began proceedings to have the suspect released on bail.

Although the FBI did not comment, Irwin was suspected as the ringleader of the plot, but physical descriptions given by Sinatra and his roommate, trumpet player John Foss, showed two men answering the descriptions of Keenan and Amsler carried out the abduction.

Background information on the three suspects:

—John William Irwin, 42, a house painter, Hollywood, born March 24, 1921, Tucson, Ariz.; navy veteran; married to Lupe Minjarez

JOHN W. IRWIN
Suspect Ringleader

Irwin; arrested at 9 a.m. yesterday in Imperial Beach, Calif., by FBI agents who recovered $47,938 in ransom money from him; police record dates back to July 1947 when he was charged with assault and battery in Dover, N.J.; other charges include desertion and nonsupport, and drunk and disorderly conduct in Maine, Massachusetts, New Jersey and California.

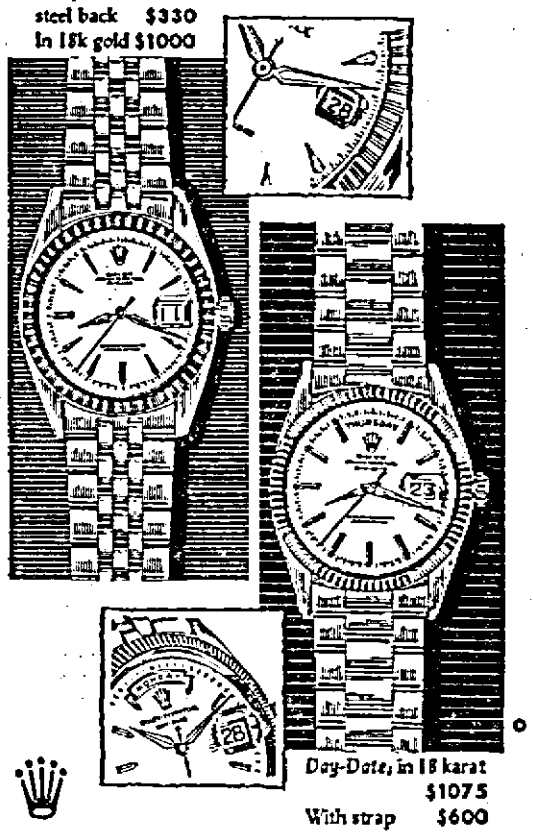

—Barry Worthington Keenan, 23, son of Mrs. Arthur Schaeffer, Los Angeles, and John J. Keenan, stockbroker and resident of exclusive suburb Flintridge (parents divorced); a vacuum-cleaner salesman; born June 26, 1940, Los Angeles; 1958 graduate of University High School in same class as Nancy Sinatra, sister of kidnap victim; attended Santa Monica City College; arrested about 11 p.m. Friday in La Canada, Los Angeles suburb, by FBI agents; police record shows arrest in Los Angeles on burglary charge Oct. 8, 1959 (no disposition); charged with petty theft in Beverly Hills, Calif., and proceedings suspended when he paid $25.10 in costs.

—Joseph Clyde Amsler, 23, Playa Del Rey; has been professional boxer and abalone diver; born Sept. 24, 1940, Kansas City, Mo.; arrested Saturday shortly after midnight in Culver City apartment house by FBI agents who recovered $168,927 in ransom money; police record shows arrest at Santa Monica in September 1960 on two counts of violating Alcoholic Beverage Control Act; sentenced to fine of $52.50 or 10 days in jail on one count; $15 fine or two days in jail on second count; in April 1962 placed on year's probation and fined $26.25 for trespassing.

Submarine Defense Tab $2.4 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of guarding against a mounting number of submarines has climbed to a record $2.4 billion this year, the Pentagon disclosed Saturday.

The fiscal 1965 military budget, most of it now in the hands of the White House and Federal Budget Bureau is believed to recommend holding next year's outlay for antisubmarine warfare (ASW) to about the same level.

The Johnson administration's drive for economy throughout the federal budget appears to have only a small part, if any, in the apparent decision against an increase for the overall ASW program.

• • • •

SECRETARY of Defense Robert S. McNamara appears to be holding to a position he took last winter. When Congress started work on the current military budget, he said, "I don't think we are suffering for lack of funds in ASW". Rather, the problem is essentially technical, he said.

"Simply stated, it is how to see through water," McNamara said then.

Most Navy research and development experts agree that more money isn't the answer now.

But there are Navy officials who believe that more ships, attack submarines, detection gear and weapons of existing design would increase the overall capability, even without any major new scientific breakthrough.

• • • •

THE PENTAGON'S estimate of $2.4 billion for the fiscal 1964 ASW program is divided this way:

—For forces, weapons, vehicles and equipment the primary use of which is ASW and for development and testing of new items: $2.05 billion.

—For forces and weapons with a mission which is primarily but not predominately ASW: $114 million.

These include such things as antiaircraft defense ships and service and support.

—Additional equipment and installations ashore for development and test work which contribute to ASW but are not related directly to ASW: $224 million.

Housing Act Repeal Move Gaining

By GEORGE ROBESON

Efforts to repeal the Rumford Fair Housing Act have been meeting stiff opposition from leaders of church and state in the past three weeks, but the circulation of petitions in the Southland reportedly is succeeding.

The petitions, if signed by at least 468,259 Californians, would put on the November ballot a measure that would allow sellers or renters of residential property to refuse to sell or rent to any person for any reason. If approved by the voters, the measure would nullify the Fair Housing Act, named for its author, Negro Assemblyman W. Byron Rumford, D-Berkeley, which became law Sept. 20.

• • • •

THE RUMFORD Act prohibits racial or religious discrimination in the sale, rental or lease of 60 to 70 per cent of California's housing, including apartment houses of five or more units and any other housing—including single-family residences—financed by state or federal housing programs or FHA.

Both sides in the dispute claim the same principle—human rights—to support their stand. Each side cites the Fourteenth Amendment and each calls the other's position "discriminatory" and "unconstitutional."

Circulating the anti-Rumford petition are the California Real Estate Association and the California Apartment Owners Association. Locally, the drive is headed by the Long Beach District Board of Realtors and the Long Beach Apartment House Owners Association.

• • • •

ON THE other side, opposing the petitions, are Gov. Brown, several state legislators of both parties, the Episcopal Church, the Southern California Council of Churches, the Catholic Archdiocese of San Francisco and the Northern California Board of Rabbis, as well as others.

The California Real Estate Association says the Rumford Act has removed "a basic American right—the right to manage and dispose of one's own property as he sees fit"—without a vote of the people. As an infringement upon property rights, they say, it is an infringement upon the human rights of property owners.

Further, the CREA says, the law is discriminatory in that it does not apply to all housing uniformly—it applies only to apartment houses and publicly financed housing.

• • • •

BACKERS of the Rumford Act stand on the same ground and say that the law apparently is the only way to end racial discrimination in housing and eliminate Negro ghettos and de facto school segregation. It would permit a man, of whatever race or religion, to live wherever he wants to and can afford to.

The Rumford Act enforces a basic human right, its proponents say. It takes away a basic human right, say its opponents.

Gov. Brown has called the initiative move of the CREA "one of the most dangerous and inflammatory initiative measures I have ever seen," and said it will "pit race against race." He urged citizens not to sign the petitions and said he hopes a bipartisan committee will be formed "to shame these people" into dropping the initiative.

• • • •

STATE Real Estate Commissioner Milton G. Gordon Wednesday told a meeting of the Long Beach Realty Board that the initiative "will hurt the image of the realtor, and the harm it does will be more than we can contemplate." He warned that the campaign "will attract extremists of both sides" and that the realtors won't be able to answer for all of them.

He said the law should be given a trial period of a year or two. But opponents say it is a bad law, and a bad law does not deserve a trial. What it needs, they say, is a vote of the people.

• • • •

GOV. BROWN negotiated a temporary cease-fire in the word battle between the two sides. After a closed-door meeting last week with leaders of the CREA and the Apartment House Association, Brown announced that the two associations "had agreed to review their plans" to get the initiative on the ballot. He said no further statements would be issued by either side for "five or six days" while everybody thinks things over.

That could mean that the battle will start anew Monday. Meanwhile, there has been no halt called to the circulation of petitions. Long Beach Realty Board spokesmen said they are finding the local response about the same as last September when petitions were circulated to keep the Rumford Act from becoming law in the first place. At that time, when the local Apartment House Association was circulating petitions, 11,500 signatures were gathered here.

• • • •

THE LOCAL realty board has not begun counting signatures on returned petitions, and has had no conclusive reports from the apartment-house owners' group or the Harbor Area Home Builders Association, another ally. But the public response has been called "enthusiactic" by Melvin L. Mould, outgoing president of the Long Beach Board of Realtors.

The response has been something less than enthusiastic from any of the state's realtors, however. Several realty boards have placed themselves in opposition to the initiative, and the issue has created a schism in California's realty profession.

The deadline for filing the petition is Feb. 5. The CREA is seeking far more than the required number of signatures because many of the names will be thrown out. In the earlier referendum move, a sufficient number of signatures was gathered — but nearly a third of them were invalidated.

• • • •

THE CREA did not back the referendum move because it would have only postponed the Rumford Act until the people could vote on it. The initiative measure would not only nullify the Rumford Act and the earlier Unruh and Hawkins Acts, but also would prevent the enactment of other similar laws in the future.

In instructions to realtors at a meeting in November, Realty Board President Mould told petition circulators not to discuss the initiative measure on a racial basis with any persons they asked to sign. He said it should be approached as a human-rights issue, instead.

And, added James Odegard, president of the Long Beach Apartment House Owners Association, "This is not the time for philosophizing. If they aren't ready to sign the petition, drop the matter right there."

CAB Orders Frontier Air Return Subsidy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board ordered Frontier Airlines, Denver, to refund $25,730 of the subsidy paid to it in 1961.

The Board said it found six instances of overstatement of operating expenses, one of understatement of operating revenues, one of overstatement of depreciation expense, and seven other disputed items.

The board dismissed Frontier's petition for a hearing or oral argument.

Orange Planning Chief Ends Long Stint

INSTALLATION SET
James B. Graham will be installed Worshipful Master of Service Lodge 594 F&AM at 8 p.m. Friday at the Masonic Temple, 3610 Locust Ave.

SANTA ANA — Harry E. Bergh will retire this month as the chief fortune teller of the nation's fastest growing county.

The 64-eyar-old Orange County planning director, only the second in the county's history, will step down Dec. 31 after 37 years in public planning and more than 40 years in government service.

Succeeding him to the post will be Forest S. Dickason, assistant planning director and a 10-year veteran with the County Planning Department.

The builder of much of the foundation on which Orange County is constructing its future, Bergh is leaving at a time when the county is in what he terms, its "giant hour."

• • • •

"WE HAVE already seen great changes take place in this county," he said, "but they are minor compared to the changes which are yet to come.

"Orange County faces its great opportunity, a unique opportunity; an opportunity to develop leadership, to develop teamwork between private enterprise and government, an opportunity for total planning."

Undoubtedly, Bergh's most impressive mark as planning director is the county shoreline development plan.

In 1949 he secured state approval—and state financial help—of the county's revised shoreline plan which he had updated. Corona del Mar State Beach Park and Bolsa Chica State Park are among the waterfront parks acquired as a result of his work.

• • • •

BERGH also made numerous studies after joining the county in 1947 which pointed up the possibilities of recreational harbor developments of the tidelands along Seal Beach, Surfside, Bolsa Chica and Huntington Beach.

These studies were the the forerunner of present day development such as the Huntington Harbor project.

Before coming to Orange County, the South Dakota native worked with highway survey parties in Oregon, was a staff member of the Los Angeles County Planning Commission for 17 years and was land planning consultant with the Federal Housing Administration.

• • • •

LATER, as planning director for Palm Springs, he completely overhauled that city's zoning ordinance and land use plan.

In leaving the Orange County post, Bergh warned that the county's greatest danger is "apathy, too many distractions, so much business."

Bergh explains that this danger of complacency results "in accepting things as they are, overlooking where we are going and not apprehending what each development step means in the total picture of the future. Imaginative solutions are needed."

• • • •

AS EXAMPLE of shortsightedness, he pointed to "piecemeal zone change attrition in the county which has meant the loss of future industrial areas through pressures for immediate real estate marketing gains."

Of the county's master plan for regional parks, he said, "this is all very well as far as it goes . . . but the next thing is to find a way to put this plan into operation."

Following his retirement, Bergh and his wife Dorothy plan "leisure and then, perhaps, a tour of the southwest by auto."

But work is his main master plan. He intends to launch a new career as a private planning consultant.

Christmas Dinner for 7 Costs $3.20

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—You can buy enough Christmas dinner to serve seven persons here for only $3.20—if you don't mind eating Canadian codfish on the holiday instead of turkey.

The government price-control agency made up the dinner packages for sale in the Mexico City slums. Other items on the menu in addition to codfish include lentils, chickpeas, rice, beans, corn meal, chili, frankfurters, sausage and coffee.

Pioneer Film Producer Dies

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Lewis Weiss, veteran motion picture producer and distributor, died Saturday in Hollywood after a heart attack. He was 74.

Friends said Weiss was one of the early motion picture pioneers, and was credited with first introducing Tarzan as a motion picture character.

Weiss produced many westerns and comedies during the silent film era, produced sound feature films, and at one time produced serials for Columbia Pictures, friends said.

We'll See Earth as Martians Do

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The chances are good that some day the people of earth will see photographs of their home planet as a Martian or man on the moon might see it — an intensely bright gray-blue ball floating majestically in space.

They may be color films taken by Apollo astronauts from the vicinity of the moon, 240,000 miles away. The first such photos may appear in print in the next five years.

Farther in the future may be color television pictures taken from spacecraft on expeditions to the nearer planets. At the moment the national Aeronautics and Space Administration has no approved and financed program to make photographic studies of the earth from deep space.

• • • •

BUT THERE IS NO doubt, according to officials, that such pictures will some day be made. As Dr. Jocelyn R. Gill, NASA astronomer, said, "I cannot imagine a time when we will not look back at our earth as we venture farther and farther into space."

Mercury astronauts have taken color photographs of the earth from altitudes of around 100 miles, and the Tiros weather satellites routinely transmit television pictures from more than 400 miles.

These pictures are grand panoramas, covering thousands of square miles, and they clearly show the curvature of the earth's surface. But they are far too close to capture the entire globe spinning in its space setting.

NASA has in the study stage a plan to put weather satellites in orbit at an altitude of 22,300 miles, where they will appear to hang stationary above fixed points on the earth.

• • • •

THESE SATELLITES, when and if they are launched and assuming development of improved space television cameras, will be able to get almost half of the planet in a single picture.

Apollo astronauts are scheduled to fly around the moon in 1968 on a photographic and observation mission preparatory to landing attempts later. They are expected to come back with pictures of the earth as well as the moon.

These photos, officials believe, will show the planet in the round just as pictures taken from earth show the moon to be a giant ball.

Y Flags Mark Tie Between Long Beach and Venezuela

Fraternal ties between the Y's Men's Clubs of Venezuela and the Y.M.C.A. of Long Beach were emphasized in the presentation of two sets of flags to Donald Marks, representative of the International Committee of the Y.M.C.A. to Venezuela, by Scott Wartenberg at a ceremony at the Armed Services Y.M.C.A.

One set of flags will be presented by Marks in the name of the Y.M.C.A. of Long Beach to the Y's Men's Club in Caracas, and the other will be for a new club to be formed at Maracaibo, Venezuela. Flags of 34 countries are in each set.

Marks and his family are on their way from Sault Ste Marie, Canada, to Venezuela for a five-and-a-half year assignment as representatives of the YMCAs of Canada and the United States. He will assist in training Venezuelan nationals to be YMCA secretaries and leaders. He is one of 47 such technical advisors in youth program loaned by the YMCAs of these two countries to 34 nations.

The Long Beach Y's Men's Club special international projects is the supplying of the stand and flags for Y's Men's Clubs throughout the world.

More Phones Ring in State

NEW YORK (UPI)—California, which has more telephones outside the Bell System than any other state, gained nearly three times more non-Bell phones this year than any other state.

The U. S. Independent Telephone Association, trade group of the non-Bell companies, estimated the California increase at 140,175 phones to over 1.8 million.

The only states to gain 40,000 or more were Texas (47,950), Illinois (46,800) and Florida (40,200).

Counting all telephones California trailed New York 9.4 million to 8.8 million at the end of 1962.

County Still Needs 2,055 Storm Drains

L. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

To meet all of its flood control needs, Los Angeles County still must build 2,055 storm drains at an estimated cost of $1.2 billion, the Board of Supervisors will be told Tuesday.

A single undertaking to meet all 2,055 projects would take about 20 years, but is not practical, according to the County Flood Control District.

Even a program limited to all "critical or urgently needed" drains is impractical, because it would cost about $555 million and take about 12 years, the district report says.

M. E. Salsbury, chief engineer of the County Flood Control District, said a "substantial number" of the critical projects, however, could be built over a seven-year period at a cost of about $200 million.

Financing a program of this size would require a tax of about 8 cents per $100 of assessed valuation, Salsbury said. This is based on 30-year bonds at 4 per cent interest.

• • • •

THIS WOULD BE similar to the two prior storm drain programs of the district. County voters in 1952 approved a $179 million bond issue, and in 1958 voted $225 million in bonds to build storm drains. The former program has been completed and the latter is nearing completion, Salsbury said.

The current report, ordered by the Board of Supervisors last May, was prepared in cooperation with officials of 70 cities of the county and with the county engineer's office.

Salsbury said the two big programs present problems because they are spread out over so long a period that it is difficult to estimate costs.

Supervisors are expected to forward copies of the report to the Los Angeles County Division, League of California Cities, asking the league for its comments.

Copies also will be sent to all cities in the county.

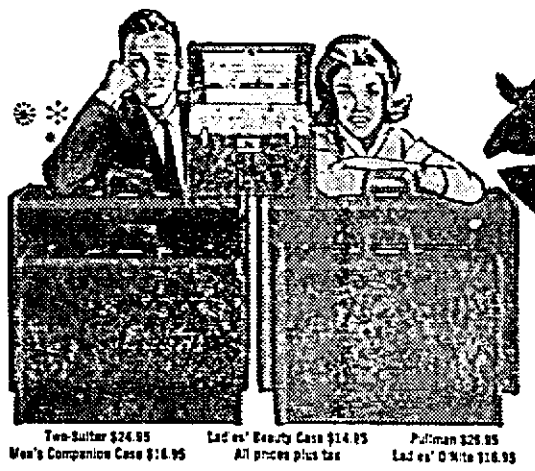

Thresher Fund at $23,545

PORTSMOUTH, N.H. (UPI)—A total of $23,545 has been donated to a fund for the wives and children of the men lost aboard the nuclear submarine Thresher.

Most of the contributions to the fund, which began last summer, have come from the Portsmouth Naval Shipyard where the sub was built.

The Thresher was engaged in post-overhaul deep diving tests when it went to the bottom of the Atlantic off the coast of Massachusetts last April 10 with 129 men aboard.

Air Station's Future Up for Vote Tuesday

By WILLIAM JONES

Last-minute verbal shooting erupted Saturday on the weekend eve of the hottest election in the history of the city of Los Alamitos.

Opposing factions broke off taking potshots at each other only long enough to forecast a record turnout of voters for the municipal election Tuesday.

Simply, the issue is whether a large apartment development, a condominium, is to be constructed near Los Alamitos Naval Air Station.

• • • •

NOT ON THE ballot, but the more significant question is the future of the multimillion-dollar Naval Reserve base, largest in the nation, says the Navy.

It contends that noise and the crash hazard would kindle the temper of the apartment dwellers to the point where they would seek to shut up or shut down the air station.

For this special election, another first in city records, three rather than the usual nine precincts have been established.

• • • •

THE PRECINCT sites, with the precincts they displace listed, are as follows: Precinct 1 (1, 2 and 7), Fire Station, 11062 Los Alamitos Blvd.; Precinct 2 (3, 4 and 5), Chase residence, 11161 Essex Drive, and Precinct 3 (6, 8 and 9), McClellan residence, 12101 Pine St.

In last-minute developments Saturday:

William Brown of the Los Alamitos Committee For Fair Zoning charged that a $590,000 damage suit filed Friday against the city by the land owner of the proposed development "is a tactic to intimidate citizens to vote yes."

The suit by Henry Van Ruiten, owner of the 26-acre Meadow View Dairy, claims the referendum ballot is illegal, unconstitutional and in excess of the city's police powers.

• • • •

PUBLIC Relations Consultant Robert Geier, who has been retained by Van Ruiten in the election campaign, fired back that "Brown is bluffing himself . . . our lawyers looked into the matter, prepared the suit and find a definite basis for it."

Geier said that if Van Ruiten is not allowed to develop the apartments it would be a denial of his property rights without just compensation.

Capt. W. P. Tanner, commander of the Naval Air Station, said the Navy opposes the development "because it would be too close for safety and comfortable living."

"We want to avoid," he said, "development of a very undesirable situation."

• • • •

LOS ALAMITOS voters on Tuesday actually will vote on two separate ordinances.

The first question asks whether Los Alamitos should creat a "Planned Development Zone" for multistory apartment dwellings, condominiums.

The second asks whether Van Ruiten's Meadow View Farms should be rezoned from general agricultural to Planned Development.

Joseph H. Hyde, chairman of the Fair Zoning Committee, argued that condominiums would inflate land prices to the deteriment of schools and industry; result in higher taxes; create heavier loads on schools, and increase the cost of city services.

• • • •

VAN RUITEN replied that "Planned Development is a healthy type of growth, is economically desirable, and in the minds of those who have made a study of this, would be of advantage to our city."

He claimed opposition to the entire idea of condominiums is a "thinly-veiled attempt not to prohibit Planned Development, but to prohibit" just one such development, his own.

Arguing on the second question, Hyde stressed safety and the noise nuisance.

"This condominium would be located within 365 yards of the main jet approach of the Los Alamitos Naval Air Station and 65 yards of the main taxiway," he said.

• • • •

"IF A malfunction occurs during a landing approach and the plane goes out of control, it would crash into the proposed condominiums, causing deaths and injuries to families occupying them, plus extensive property destruction.

"The only sound (noise) survey taken (at the base) showed that when jets with afterburners go into operation at the Air Station in about two years, residents of the proposed condminiums could be expected to complain bitterly and start organized efforts to have the Air Station removed."

If the air station were to be removed, Hyde added, "it would be an economic disaster for this city."

• • • •

VAN RUITEN countercharged that the Navy "has not paid any compensation for the restriction in use of the property which it claims is necessary to accommodate these problems. However, it has asserted that the city should restrict such use by zoning.

"It is a basic constitutional guarantee of this country that one man cannot throw stones into the back yard of his neighbor and then get his city to tell his neighbor to stay out of his back yard if he does not want to be hurt . . ."

Both sides in the campaign have cast different meaning on a recent court case in which it was held that Orange County could not rezone property to preserve a flight corridor for El Toro Marine Corps Air Station without payment to the landowner.

Van Ruiten said, "If Los Alamitos does the same thing, it is very likely that it also will be forced to pay a substantial amount of compensation.

• • • •

HYDE contended there is no similarity between the El Toro and Los Alamitos cases.

"At El Toro, residential zoning was in force and tract plans approved. The landowner had been given assurance that his houses could go up—and then came the change, the rezoning.

"Here in Los Alamitos, the Meadow View Farm is now agricultural and no tract plans approved.

"By defeating the request for condominiums, the owner of Meadow View will continue to have the right to operate his dairy."

Methodist Bishop Hurt in Car Crash

BERKELEY (UPI)—Donald H. Tippett, resident bishop of the Methodist Church in Northern California and Nevada, suffered a broken collar bone in an auto accident in Germany this week, it was learned here Saturday.

A spokesman for the Methodist Church in San Francisco reported Bishop Tippett would be hospitalized for about one week in Augsburg, Germany, before continuing his tour of Europe, the Middle East and Northern Africa.

Pacific 'Big Lift' of 15,000 Troops to Korea Postponed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government has decided to postpone the airlift of a 15,000-man Army infantry division to Korea, apparently for economy and diplomatic reasons.

The Associated Press learned Saturday that the second big overseas lift exercise, recommended for next March, will not be staged before summer or fall—if then.

Confirming this, the Defense Department said, "A 'big lift' type strategic mobility exercise to the Pacific Command will not be held during the 1964 fiscal year." That year ends next June 30.

• • • •

THE PENTAGON did not say whether the transpacific lift would be attempted in the 1965 fiscal year—or whether budgetary or other considerations might scratch both the Korea operation and one to the Middle East next year.

Although it has not been acknowledged publicly, it is known that the Joint Chiefs of Staff recommended that the 4th Infantry Division, stationed at Ft. Lewis, Wash., be flown in Air Force transport planes to the Far East in March.

The tentative plan was to send the division's troops to Korea by air while moving heavy stockpile equipment from Okinawa and the Philippines to Korea by ship.

Like the spectacular "Big Lift" of the 2nd Armored Division from Ft. Hood, Tex., to West Germany in late October, the operation across the Pacific would include a composite strike force of jet fighters, reconnaissance planes and air transports.

• • • •

THE DEFENSE Department gave no reason for the postponement but informed sources hinted strongly that President Johnson's economy drive was a major factor. The airlift to Europe cost about $20 million and the projected operation to Korea was expected to be more expensive.

In addition, some U.S. officials were reported concerned that such a movement might rekindle fears about possible U.S. troop withdrawals from overseas.

The Germans became greatly worried about this after the first big lift and the United States had to rush some of its top leaders to reassure the Bonn government.

Fire Drives Trio Overside; Boat Burns, Founders

Three persons escaped unhurt Saturday when a 40-foot cabin cruiser burned and sank six miles off White Point, the Coast Guard reported.

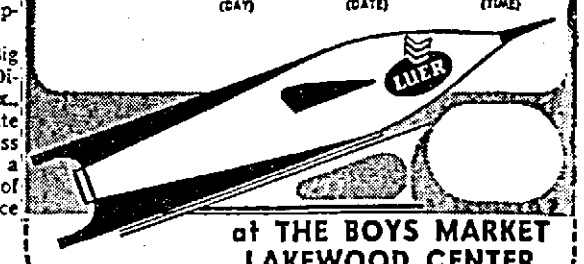

Edson R. Stroll, 34, of Los Angeles, owner of the $18,000 boat Playpen, said the fire started in an alcohol stove and quickly flared out of control.

Stroll and the other occupants, Joan M. Patrick, 24, and Allen Seldon, 34, both of Los Angeles, escaped on a rubber raft and were picked up by a passing boat which radioed the Coast Guard.

A cutter succeeded in extinguishing the fire but the cruiser was so badly damaged that it sank before it could be pumped out, the Coast Guard said.

America Appears as Many Countries to Political Editor of Korean Paper

By ROBERT HEARD

The political editor of Korea's second largest newspaper thought he had a pretty good idea what America was like before he came here three months ago. Now he's not so sure.

"I have a very confused picture of life in your pluralistic society," said Doug-bok Lee, 26, of The Hankook Ilbo in Seoul. "Foreigners think of America as one country, with one policy, but it seems to me America is several countries."

DOUG-BOK LEE
Visiting Editor

Lee is one of 12 journalists from 11 nations who were invited by the U.S. State Department to participate in its 4½-month Foreign Journalist Project. He has toured most of the states, taken a seminar at Indiana University and will be a staff writer for The Independent, Press-Telegram until Dec. 27.

A graduate of Seoul National University and speaks fluent English after years of listening to the Armed Forces radio network.

• • • •

"YOUR FEDERAL government in some ways appears to be a shaky one on top of your 50 states," Lee said. "Your political parties are not disciplined, and they get their leadership from the bottom up instead of from the top down as in Korea."

He concedes this makes for more political independence for the individual, but he thinks it bolsters those who champion states rights over federal power. This leads to something akin to political anarchy, he believes.

To support his case, he cited the assassination of Kennedy. As part of his cross-country tour, Lee visited Dallas the first two days of this month.

"I talked to people in the hotels and I went to the assassination site," he said. "There is an atmosphere, a mood in Dallas that leads up to the motive, the cause of the assassination. I felt this strongly.

"It also led to the killing of Oswald, and it is Oswald's murder that I find totally incomprehensible."

The U.S. was isolationist until World War II, Lee says. After that, internationalism and liberalism took over. "But now there is a tide running against this," and it is led by Sen. Goldwater, Lee thinks.

On the subject of American politics, one thing drew Lee's unstinting praise: the transition of power to President Johnson and the rallying behind the new leader by both parties. "This was quite impressive to me," he said.

After observing a session of Long Beach's City Council, Lee fondly pointed to the similarities between its conduct of business and that of its counterpart in Seoul before the military coup in 1960. The only major difference was Seoul's lack of a city manager.

• • • •

THERE ARE 11 political parties in Korea, Lee said. But two of them control more than 70 percent of the legislature. None of the other parties is Communist or "socialist-inclined," he said, because the Korean Constitution prohibits such parties. Each party must set forth in its platform its support of "liberalism and competitive economy," he said.

Election laws are extremely strict in Korea, Lee said. For example, a candidate for political office cannot visit a voter's house (for fear the voter will be intimidated or bribed). But, within this stringent code, politicans practice the maximum amount of mud-slinging permissible, he said. They stay right "on the fringe" of the law, Lee said.

Lee admires much about American civilization, but he views us as too materialistic. Our preoccupation with "things" is intensified by television commercials, which are "very dangerous" and "in bad taste," he said.

• • • •

LEE VISITED Indian reservations in New Mexico en route to Long Beach. When asked if he noticed many racial similarities between the American Indian and Koreans and other Orientals (on the theory, accepted by many scholars, that American Indians came from Asia via Bering Strait thousands of years ago), he replied with the Korean theory of racial origin: Koreans are Aryans who emigrated eastward from centrol Asia at the same time the European Aryans emigrated westward from central Asia.

"Our people believe our ancestors crossed Siberia until they came to the Pacific Ocean," he said. "Then they moved south toward a more temperate climate. When they settled in Korea, they gave it its original name: Chosun, which means 'Land of the Morning Calm.'

"Perhaps some of them did move north and cross the Bering Strait after they first struck the Pacific."

Air Reserve Major Plans to Retire

Major Jack L. Tennant, director of personnel for the 2478th Air Force Reserve Sector at Long Beach Municipal Airport, will retire this month after 26 years of active military service.

He is a veteran of World War II and Korea and holds many awards and decorations.

During World War II, Major Tennant was a B-24 Liberator pilot and was shot down over Austria in 1943. He was a prisoner for the remainder of the war in Europe.

He plans to reside in Westminster with his wife, Marilyn, and their two daughters.

JUBILEE OF FREEDOM

New Name for L.B. Rose Float

Long Beach's float in the Tournament of Roses Parade has been given a new name—Jubilee of Freedom.

The title originally selected—The Gem of the Ocean—just didn't quite fit, members of the City Council's Public Relations Committee have agreed.

For one thing, there is nothing on the float depicting the ocean. Committee members also noted that the new name will conform more closely with the general theme of the tournament, Symbols of Freedom.

Dominated by a huge diamond of flowers, the float will remind parade watchers of Long Beach's 75th anniversary.

THE WEEK IN REVIEW

LBJ Pushes His 'Budgetary Stringency'

By HARRY SHARPE
United Press International

President Johnson declared war on unnecessary federal spending last week, causing waves of anguish among congressmen of both parties and fear in some defense communities.

He coined a new phrase —budgetary stringency — and told cabinet officials and heads of all government agencies that henceforth it must be their credo.

• • • •

SPECIFICALLY, he ordered them to cut expenses in the fiscal 1964-65 budget which must be completed next week. They must do this, he said, by reducing programs not of the highest urgency and getting rid of deadwood personnel.

Only hours later Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara announced the closing over the next 3½ years of 33 military installations in 14 states and three unnamed foreign countries — a net cut of 7,500 in jobs and a saving of $106 million a year.

There will be further reductions, including some in the nation's 11 naval shipyards. But he promised that all civilians losing jobs will be offered new ones and he estimated that 80 percent would stay on the payroll. Retraining also will be offered.

• • • •

MOTIVATING the President was the problem of keeping the new budget at the lowest possible level in the face of $3 billion of "built-in" increases voted by Congress or to meet other commitments. He also desperately wants to win support of economy-minded congressmen for the late President Kennedy's $11.1 billion pump-priming tax cut bill which comes up in the Senate in January.

White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said the President was keenly aware that non-government unemployment may rise as some federal projects are cut off. But he said Johnson had emphasized that there would be no skimping on imperative national needs. Salinger added that any cutback in government payrolls could be achieved through normal attrition.

Members of Congress, whose bailiwicks will be hurt, barraged the White House with pained protests, even though many had been demanding just such economy moves. Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., introduced a bill to block any shutdown in distressed areas. There also was talk of Senate and House Armed Services Committee investigations.

KEATING

But McNamara refused to give ground. He said the decisions would not be reversed—that he had been given economy instructions by both Kennedy and Johnson. He previously had ordered a 25,000-man cut in defense personnel. He said 70,000 jobs had been eliminated and $442 million saved since he started the surplus-base cutback program in 1961.

• • • •

THE PRESIDENT told defense and cabinet officials he wanted "full value for every dollar spent." But he also said that "not for one moment" would the nation's military strength be weakened. He also called in bi-partisan congressional leaders to explain his drive and seek their cooperation.

Edwin Neilan, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, met with Johnson, praised his campaign, endorsed the tax-cut bill, then urged local businessmen to support rather than protest the economy closing of federal installations. He said he would urge business to try and provide jobs for men and women displaced and even move in new industries.

The tax-writing Senate Finance Committee finally completed hearings on the House-approved tax bill and began considering amendments. The Senate will take it up after the President submits his budget. Any cuts would be retroactive to Jan. 1.

• • • •

LIKE PRESIDENT Kennedy, Johnson sees it as a potent anti-recession weapon. He has given it top priority with civil rights legislation when Congress meets for its second session Jan. 6. The lawmakers are expected to take a holiday recess starting Dec. 20 or 21st.

The President told Democratic leaders to impress upon the House and Senate that civil rights "cannot be ignored for another 100 years or even 100 days." On still another legislative front, he will meet with farm organization leaders next week to discuss major farm problems, including new wheat and cotton bills to maintain farm income.

On the foreign policy front, the President told top-ranking defense officials the U.S. must continue "with all our energy" to combat communism in South Viet Nam and in the Caribbean.

• • • •

HE ASKED his foreign policy advisers to make a special review of policy toward Fidel Castro's Communist-dominated Cuba and report whether more economic sanctions are advisable, how to curb Castro arms exports to Latin American countries, and what steps should be taken to support anti-Castro groups.

Cuban exiles in Miami told the Organization of American States (OAS) that Soviet submarines and fishing trawlers were smuggling Cuban arms to pro-Castro rebels in Latin America. OAS delegates went to Caracas, Venezuela, to investigate charges of aggression against Castro and to inspect seized caches of Cuban weapons.

At St. Paul, Minn., Secretary of State Dean Rusk warned in a speech that neither the Soviet Union nor Red China have abandoned their aims of world revolution. He cautioned against believing the ideological split between Moscow and Peking would lead to a complete break.

• • • •

RUSK THEN flew to Paris for six days of talks that will set the Johnson tone for the NATO defense alliance in the immediate post-Kennedy era. The President met at the White House with top-ranking members of the diplomatic corps for a "get-acquainted" policy views.

The Warren Commission investigating the assassination of President Kennedy received a thick report on the tragedy from the FBI and also hired former U.S. Solicitor General J. Lee Rankin as its general counsel. The report was said to establish that Lee Harvey Oswald, self-styled Lenin-Marxist, alone and unaided fired the shots that killed the President.

Senate and House continued eulogizing the late chief executive and prepared to pass a bill requested by President Johnson for the minting of a 50-cent piece bearing Mr. Kennedy's likeness.

Mrs. Kennedy let it be known that she plans to observe a one-year period of mourning during which she will have no public engagements. There had been reports that she would campaign for President Johnson next year.

• • • •

SHE AND her two children will spend the Christmas holidays in Palm Beach, Fla., with the Kennedy family and upon their return move into a 12-room colonial-style home in Georgetown near where she and Mr. Kennedy once lived. Mrs. Kennedy bought the house. The asking price was $190,000.

Meantime, members of Congress worried over the present presidential succession law, introduced various measures to close the gap when a vice president succeeds to the presidency through assassination or other emergency. Hearings will start in January.

The men who now guard Johnson's life will face a major test Tuesday when the President goes to New York to address the United Nations.

On the political front some Northern Republicans were saying they believed Johnson's accession to the White House severely had weakened Republican Sen. Barry Goldwater's presidential chances. They noted that Johnson is from the South where Goldwater's chief strength lies.

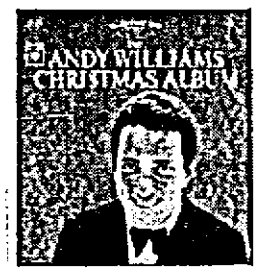

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower denied published reports that he had asked former Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, Mass., now U.S. Ambassador to strife-torn South Viet Nam, to run for the GOP nomination. Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon went to Gettysburg to talk to Eisenhower after the reports were published. Lodge wrote from Saigon that he was not a candidate, but he didn't foreclose a draft movement.

In other news spheres, Defense Secretary McNamara announced Air Force plans to launch a manned orbiting laboratory as big as a small house trailer, in 1967 or early 1968.

Dean Vivian Looks Back on Long Life as Prospector, Oil Scout, Chemist, Teacher

By ROBERT WILCOX

When Robert Evans Vivian started teaching in Bakersfield in 1918, the town had 90 saloons, seven houses of prostitution and a teacher got 25 percent more pay just for being there.

When he'd starred as a 140-pound college end, the forward pass had just been invented and the football suit looked like a golfing outfit with a turtleneck collar.

He'd spent 50 years as a prospector, inventor, oil scout, chemist, teacher, college dean.

But now it was 1957, he was 65 and retiring after 18 notable years as dean of the USC College of Engineering. It was time to spend his twilight working years in relative ease.

• • • •

VIVIAN fingered five attractive offers to "fade away" like an old engineer should. Typically, he picked the sixth—a grueling 12-hour-a-day task of training Long Beach State College's first bright-eyed contingent of 130 engineers. "At least I won't have to go over somebody else's mistakes, he rationalized.

Vivian moved his three-man faculty into temporary classrooms. Immediately he began harrassing "those people on the hill" (the administration) for more manpower, more space.

Today, six years later, the inexhaustible septugenarian has 950 students, a division faculty of 25. More than 100 prestigious employers come hat-in-hand each year to bid for his products.

• • • •

NEXT YEAR, Vivian will inaugurate the second complete engineering master's degree program in the state college system. It will be rivaled in the Los Angeles area only at USC and UCLA.

Dr. Carl W. McIntosh, LBSC president and "on-the-hill" commander, recently marked the point in time of Vivian's arrival:

"The establishment of our engineering programs may some day be looked back upon as the turning point where the state colleges stopped being teacher-training schools and became colleges in the truest sense of the word."

Vivian would rather look forward. He expects to double his student ranks in five years.

• • • •

THROUGH the years since 1912 when Vivian took his first engineering job as a "blueprint boy" ("$40 a month all in gold and silver") he's seen engineering grow out of its roughneck days into a full-fledged profession.

They say you can tell today's aspiring engineer by the number of books under his arm. At college, he's the upper crust. He works hardest (132 units), gets better starting pay ($620 a month). Firms which once sneered at book learning now beg him to come to work, often pay him while he studies.

He's an expert in one of the world's fastest-moving fields. Vivian sometimes glances guiltily across the cluttered office he commands as dean of the college's Division of Engineering. "See that pile of pamphlets over there," he laments. "I should be reading those right now if I expect to keep up."

• • • •

THE OFFICE walls display some of the scores of professional awards he's won. Glittering from a table are samples of a lifetime mineral collection that once earned him his students' nickname of "The Old Prospector."

Vivian has a simple educational creed. "I don't think you can teach anything unless you've had practical experience," he says. "You must know what you're talking about."

How much experience can one man get in a single lifetime? Born in Illinois, he went to work at 19 when he brought his ailing Methodist preacher father to California for his health.

He engineered for gas at the Signal Hill oil field, swung into action at midnight as a trouble shooter for a telephone company, sought oil in Central California as a wildcat scout, prospected for gold in the Mother Lode country.

• • • •

HE WORKED full time as a janitor and window washer while he Phi Beta Kappaed his way thorugh USC in chemistry.

He briefly considered a legal career before heading north to Bakersfield High School to teach. His sweetheart, Belle, came out from Illinois to marry him in 1919.

Vivian worked a night shift as a sheriff's office chemist, in 10 years saved enough to go to Columbia for his Ph.D. There he went back on two shifts again when an associate embezzled his funds.

He left Columbia in 1928 and worked nine years for a chemical company before taking a 50 percent pay cut to come to USC in 1942.

• • • •

THERE HE became a living legend. Students dubbed him the "dynamite dean" in reference to his post-World War II excursions to inspect European explosives plants. He gave more than 7,000 engineering degrees. He startled his faculty by letting the students grade the professors.

In his classes, he was too kindly to be considered a "tough" grader. He taught both his sons but this was accidental and a little embarrassing. "I wouldn't want anyone to think I influenced them into becoming engineers," he says.

Vivan joined five engineering societies, was listed in "American Men of Science" and three "Who's Who's" — America, engineering and education.

Hungary Ready for U.S. Parley

WASHINGTON (AP) — Communist Hungary told the United States Saturday it is ready to start discussions on all issues pending between the two countries, including the future of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty.

The Hungarian offer may mark a new phase in the on-again off-again negotiations with the regime of Premier Janos Kadar. It was submitted by Peter Mod, Hungary's deputy foreign minister, in a 35-minute conference with Undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman.

State Department officials cautiously termed the meeting a continuation of talks Mod had three weeks ago with President Johnson and Harriman while the Hungarian was in Washington representing his country at President Kennedy's funeral. Harriman and his guest, officials said, discussed "general problems."

Diplomatic sources strongly indicated, however, that Mod's visit may indicate a new Hungarian approach to solve differences between the two countries. Relations with Hungary have been especially strained since the crushing of the Hungarian revolution in 1956.

Township May Get Mrs. Kennedy Name

SOUTH HACKENSACK, N. J. (AP) — Mayor Frank C. Zindle has written to the township committee urging it to change this community's name to Jacqueline Township, in honor of Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy.

Referring to the assassination of President Kennedy, Zindle said that the name change "would honor the magnificent, noble and stately manner in which Mrs. Kennedy conducted herself during this grief-stricken and unbelievable period."

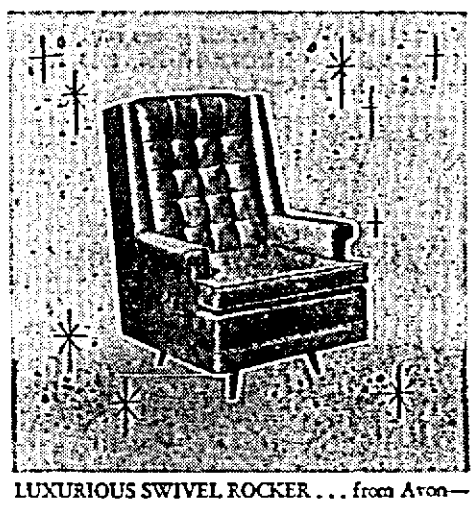

If the township committee approves the proposal, it would be placed before the voters in the election next November.

Fewer Cowboys Today, but Boot Sales Are Booming

FORT WORTH (UPI)—The cowboy is disappearing, but the boot lingers on. More cowboy boots are being worn today than ever before in history by everyone from newsboys to the President of the United States.

That suits John Justin just fine. He is the world's largest producer of custom-grade cowboy boots.

"A guy doesn't have to be a cowboy to like boots. Once you wear them . . . they are habit forming," he said.

"I haven't worn a pair of shoes for two years."

Justin, a former mayor of Fort Worth, is a typical corporation executive, down to his kangaroo-hide boots. (Remember the kangaroo "Banker Style" shoes?)

Below his second story office, 250 employes were busy combining modern automative techniques with hand craftsmanship to produce 250,000 pairs of boots a year.

A sweet smell of leather, calf, goat, alligator, water buffalo, ostrich and kangaroo skin perfumed the air.

"We sell boots from around $30 a pair up to $250 for the real fancy jobs with lots of hand tooling and exotic leathers," Justin said.

The small orange brick plant on the edge of downtown Fort Worth also makes Wellingtons, Jodphurs and "square dance shoes."

This shoe is a small production loafer style shoe on a cowboy boot last, heel and sole.

"Las Vegas gamblers love them. They can stand for hours," he said.

Working boots remain the biggest part of the business, but the Hollywood cowboy is a good customer.

"My firm has supplied most of Hollywood's cowboy stars with their boots from Tom Mix on," he said.

President Johnson has also been known to wear boots on his ranch. (12½ B, made to measure.)

"New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller wears a 9½D," Justin said.

Justin fitted Rockefeller along with the other state governors in 1960, at the request of then Texas Gov. Price Daniel.

"Ross Barnett of Mississippi was the hardest to fit," Justin remembered.

Justin was asked how long the boots would last. He shrugged his shoulders and smiled.

"We have a Fort Worth electrician who can run through a pair in a week. He is so hard on boots, we use him as the company tester."

Most customers, Justin said, wear their boots a considerably longer time. Some customers become so attached to a favorite pair that they keep sending them back to the factory for repairs. About 200 pairs, looking as if they had walked across the country, were lined up for fixing.

"Lots of these fellows can afford new ones, but they keep sending back their favorites. We have to charge them almost $20 for repairing them. By sending $10 more they could buy a new pair. We tell them that and they say, 'No. I like these.'"

The repairing takes about as long as the original manufacture. Five weeks is par for a new pair. Up to two weeks is spent on the last, which shapes the leather to the foot.

Justin is big and rugged with silver hair combed straight back, friendly blue eyes and could pass for a cowboy star. He has won prizes for his trail rides.

He quit as mayor of Fort Worth "because my business needed me."

Justin has been in charge of the 84-year-old firm founded by his grandfather, H. J. Justin, since 1949.

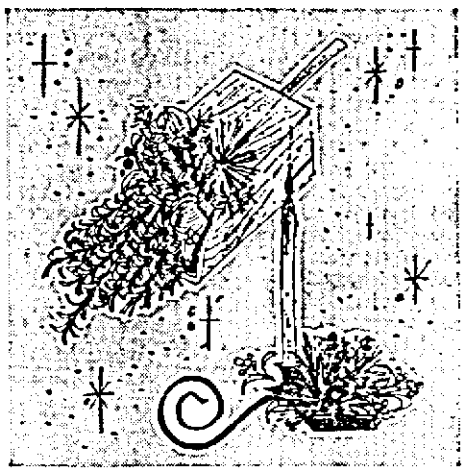

His father, whom he succeeded, warned him boots were a "dying business."

"Sales are up 71 per cent over 1949," Justin chuckled.

KEEPS MEN WORKING

Canadians Building House Given Bonus

OTTAWA (AP)—Canadians who build a house this winter will get a $500 bonus.

This is part of a government plan to keep men working in the worst season of the year.

Applications for 25,000 dwelling units have been received under the plan so far, and officials say this means jobs for 75,000 construction workers plus 90,000 in associated industries.

The bonus is paid to the first owner of a house.

Government forecasters seem confidnt this and other winter work incentives will curb the seasonal onslaught of unemployment.

Beach Combing

with MALCOLM EPLEY

SHARP eavesdropping ears provide a plus for the Christmas shopper. Some overhearings, down Pine Ave. on a Friday afternoon, follow.

One young fellow to another: "I spent all my money on myself. I guess she'll have to take me for Christmas."

One sailor to another, just after breaking through a bevy of perfume-scented gals at a crowded corner: "For a minute I could hardly get my breath."

Haberdashery salesman to young customer: "Maybe that's enough. It's better not to get overloaded and keep your credit good."

Young gal to another: "He's awful to buy for. I won't say he has everything, though."

Feminine bank teller to male customer: "Oh, I wouldn't shortchange you—not right before Christmas."

Woman at Fifth and Pine: "Oh, oh. I forgot to get my parking ticket violated."

SHOPPERS, particularly the gals, seem to me to look a little sharper than usual this season. Could it be that a recent survey showing how few women dress up for shopping is having some effect?

Dorothy Sutherland of Lakewood writes that she took the survey to heart, has been dolling up a little more, and feels a lot better for it. But she sends along an addendum pointing out that when she "puts on the dog" she never sees anybody she knows. But let her dash out for a quick purchase, hair in rolls and clad in an old housedress, and the street teems with acquaintances.

That figures.

THIS is an appropriate time for voicing appreciation and a caller thinks it ought to be done for the Long Beach Public Library's question-answering service.

I can attest personally to the resourcefulness and willingness of the library people. For my own edification, or that of readers who have put some toughies to me, I've called over there many a time and have always received the finest treatment, even when my question entailed a lot of deep digging.

And I've sent some roughies over there. Fore example, the library staffers worked hard and long for me once to find out the significance of the words, "Shall I Wasting?" in the Whippenpoof song. And once they did a full-scale research for me on the background of the Long Beach street name, Ximeno.

Sure, I welcome the chance to thank the library people. They're ready and willing.

OUR obituary editor got an odd call from a prominent Southern California college the other day. The college gave us a name and wanted to know if that citizen had died here recently.

The editor checked his records and reported that yes, the man had died.

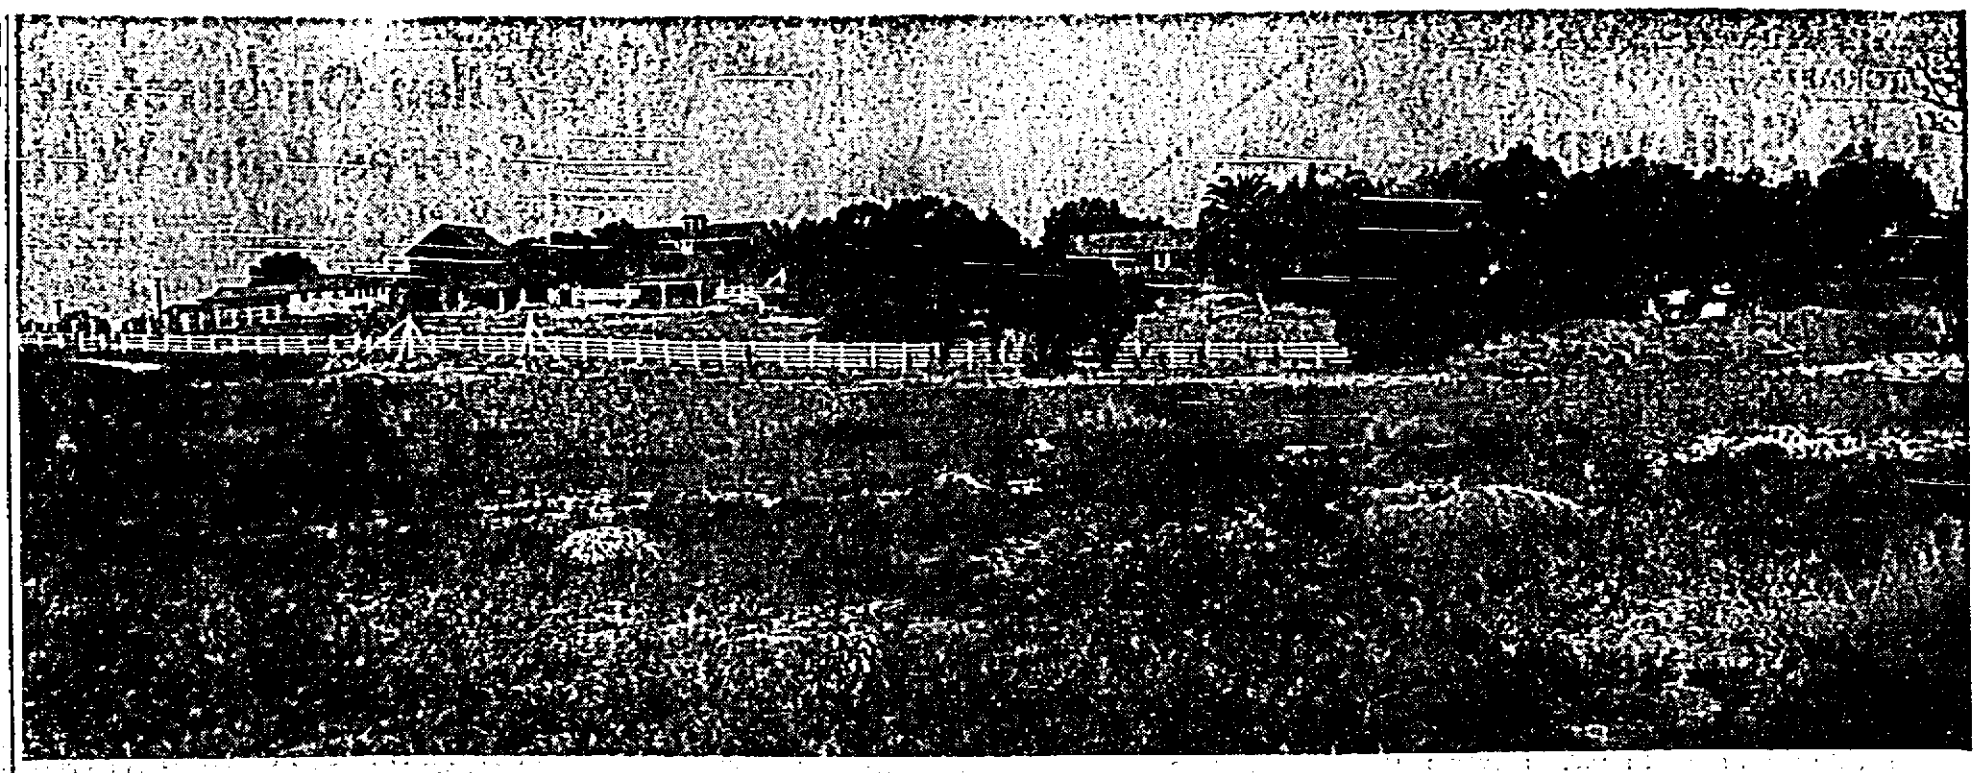

The college caller was most appreciative, explaining that they were glad to have this verified so the attendance records of the son of the deceased could be cleared and adjusted.

Evidently, there just weren't taking the young fellow's word that he had missed classes because of a death in the family.

Our obit man was a little incensed but I think it was okeh. When I was in college I knew a student who was quite a weekend playboy and had trouble making classes. His grandfather's funeral was held on Mondays periodically all that school year.

HISTORIC BIXBY RANCH LAND TO BE SUBDIVIDED FOR EXECUTIVE HOMES

$50,000-PLUS EXECUTIVE HOMES

$30-Million Bixby Ranch Development Planned; City's Last Residential Area

Independent-Press-Telegram

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1963

By ANDY PARK

The last remaining segment of undeveloped residential real estate in Long Beach will become a subdivision of executive-type $50,000-up homes beginning in 1964 if the City Council approves a proposal Tuesday to allow Nathan and David Shapell to develop the famous Bixby Ranch property east of Long Beach State College.

The $30-million development is slated to turn the property surrounding the historic Rancho Los Alamitos into a tract of 277 lots averaging 8,000 square feet each.

The adobe ranch home, dating from 1784, will be preserved near the center of the development in an 8-acre enclosure to be landscaped into an "historical site" with adjacent gardens and ranch buildings protected.

* * * *

THE SHAPELL brothers, along with Max Webb, owners of the S&S Construction Co., 7841 Berner St., have submitted to the City Council a tentative tract map outlining 274 residential plots with three others set aside for future multiple-residence dwellings.

The area to be developed lies between the eastern boundary of the LBSC and the Los Cerritos Channel, running north and south parallel to Studebaker Road; and between Anaheim Road and Seventh Street.

Plush $50,000 to $150,000 homes would be built south of the diagonal Bouton Creek feeder channel, which runs northwest to southeast across the plot and empties into the Los Cerritos Channel.

* * * *

DEVELOPERS plan to retain as many as possible of the area's famous pepper trees, placing these in street parkways within the area or on residential lots.

The topographical configuration of the land will be retained, the developers say, affording a commanding view of the city and Alamitos Bay from hilly lots within the tract.

A number of the lots will be sold separately, allowing the owner to employ his own architect and contractor, but rigid restrictions will be placed on construction plans to maintain the value of the area.

Construction date is tentative, pending public hearings and City Council and Planning Commission action, but the developers hope to begin in early summer, 1964.

* * * *

THE UNUSUAL action of filing the proposal before the full City Council rather than first going through Planning Commission channels was taken, spokesmen for the Shapell brothers said, "because we feel that the historical and economic importance of this particular area makes it incumbent upon us to reveal our plans to entire community first."

Completion of the project is expected to take two to three years.

The proposed development will take another cut from what was once the 45,000-acre Rancho Los Alamitos that has figured in the area's history since Spanish land-grant days.

* * * *

IN MARCH 1941, the first part of the ranch was placed on the market for residential development.

In 1784, Pedro Fages, Spanish governor of California, gave 300,000 acres to a soldier who had served under him, Manuel Nieto. Los Nietos Land Grant comprised, roughly, an area "bounded on the north by the foothills and on the south by the ocean, lying between the Santa Ana River and the San Gabriel River," which, at that time, emptied into the ocean near Wilmington.

The grant was reduced to 150,000 acres when it was discovered that it encroached on the property of the San Gabriel Mission.

By 1804, when Manuel Nieto died, the estate—now known as Rancho Los Alamitos—had shrunk to 29,000 acres, which went to a son, Don Juan Jose.

* * * *

IN 1834, the rancho was sold by Nieto's son to Gen. Jose Figueroa for $500 and in 1843 the famous La Casa de los Cerritos—the main ranch house—was built. It is a museum at 4600 Virginia Road.

In 1842, the land was sold by Figueroa to Don Abel Stearns for $5,954. Stearns defaulted on a mortgage in 1864 and a San Francisco moneylender, Michael Reese, became the owner.

John W. Bixby rented the property in the 1870s from Reese's estate and in 1877, Mr. and Mrs. Bixby moved to the crumbling rancho and began to rebuild and rehabilitate the structure.

In 1881, Bixby, with a business partner, purchased Rancho Los Alamitos.

* * * *

BIXBY'S SON, Fred, took over operation of the rancho when John Bixby died in 1887.

Fred Hathaway Bixby lived until 1952 in the adobe home at the rancho. He was instrumental in developing many sites in the city of Long Beach, including Recreation Park.

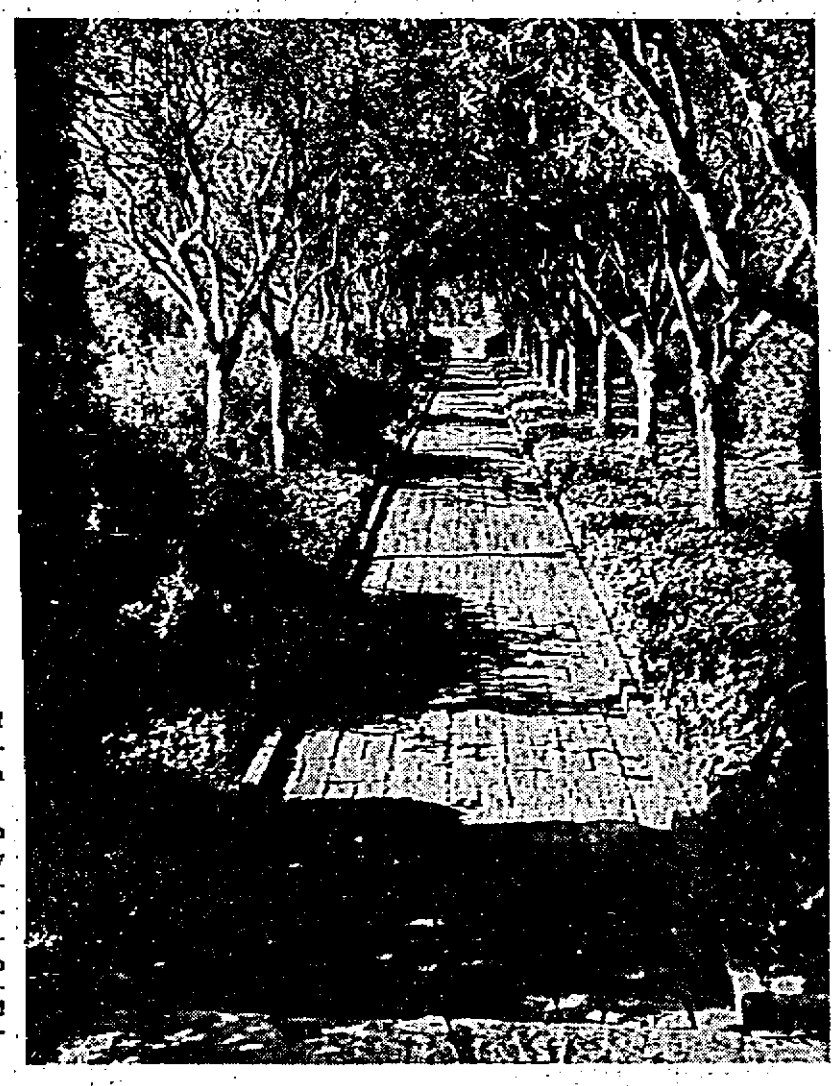

In 1941, Bixby opened the first part of the historic grounds to residential development. Since then, the modern tracts of College Estates, east of Studebaker Road, and College Park Estates, south of Seventh Street, have been developed by S&S Construction Co.

On Sept. 8, 1961, in an elaborate ceremony, the city of Long Beach became the official custodian of the homesite and immediate surrounding area—La Casa De Rancho Los Alamitos — in a dedication of the biuldings and grounds as an historial monument.

* * * *

THE SURROUNDING ranch grounds have been held in trust by the Fred H. Bixby trustees, who are participating in the proposed 1964 subdivision.

The proposed development, the latest in a series by S&S for the Bixby trustees, will bring to more than 10,000 the number of Southern California homes constructed by the firm.

TREE-LINED WALKAWAYS GRACE RANCHO GROUNDS

In addition to the College and surrounding areas.

Mayor Edwin W. Wade, commenting on the proposal, said:

"We, of the City Council, are certainly interested in any $30-million development for the community. I feel sure the council will cooperate in any way possible. We are running out of land for these types of major development."

* * * *

REPRESENTATIVES of construction and allied trades unions expressed enthusiastic approval of the plans, pointing out that "more than 4,000 suppliers and up to 50 different crafts of workmen are employed in any major homebuilding project.

City and County tax officials conceded that "broadening of the tax base by the introduction into any community of high-value homes is beneficial to the overall tax structure."

The developers point to the expected completion of the San Diego Freeway only a few miles north of the proposed subdivision as an added incentive to homeowners to invest in high-value exclusive homesites and structures.

The setting aside of plots for future multiple-dwelling residence within the 101.8-acre development site, outside of the perimeter of the one-owner homesites, could provide for much needed auxilliary housing for Long Beach State College, according to the developers.

The City Council will officially receive the proposal at its Tuesday meeting.

L.B. Shipyard Measures Up

CITIES WHERE DEFENSE installations are located received a rude jolt last week when Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara ordered 33 facilities shut down and hinted that others will be closed as time passes.

No shipyards were closed in this week's cost-saving action, but the Secretary stated that an extensive study of the entire naval shipyard complex is under way. Efficiency, according to the Secretary, is the standard of measurement. If such is the case, Long Beach Naval Shipyard must be listed among those installations most likely to survive.

THE LONG BEACH facility, incidentally, has won its place on that list against staggering odds. Until recent years, land sinkage in the harbor area was so bad that the shipyard appeared doomed. However, because of the yard's splendid record, its strategic location, and its closeness to a supply of skilled workers, everybody concerned felt that it should be kept open if at all possible.

Long Beach launched a titanic battle against subsidence—and won. Sinkage slowed down and finally came to a halt. The shipyard, as well as other harbor facilities, was able once more to operate without the hazards and difficulties which sinkage previously had imposed. All this was achieved, of course, only at great expense. Surely millions of dollars and years of effort were not invested in the shipyard to prepare it for closing!

A VOTE OF CONFIDENCE in the Long Beach facility is reflected by the transfer of overhaul work from the San Diego naval repair facility, which was one of the 33 defense installations affected by McNamara's order. Actually, the transfer will halt a recent decline in work assignments at the Long Beach Naval Shipyard and, in the opinion of Rep. Craig Hosmer, "make it harder to close it down in the future."

As of now, it would appear that one result of the week's cost-saving activities in the Defense Department was the bolstering of the Long Beach shipyard's position. The shipyard has met a test and by any fair standard of judgment should be able to meet those of the future.

Allen Outburst at Hecklers Scores Point With Buckley

WHEN LIBERAL Steve Allen and conservative William Buckley debated in Los Angeles five days before the assassination, there was not the restraint on political dialogue which the tragedy wrought.

And so the debate was in the best tradition of the American way. Buckley, as the attacker of the administration, would seem vicious and cruel in the re-reading of the transcript if it were not for the fact that his harshest terms were figurative rather than literal, that his barbs were typical of anti-JFK sentiment and, importantly, that his post-assassination writings absolved him of any suspected meanness.

HOUSER

Coincidentally, both Allen and Buckley chose to use Groucho Marx in planking their foreign policy discussions. Allen shamed Buckley for calling Pope John's encyclical on social justice "a venture in triviality" and ascribed it to Buckley's Groucho-like desire to shock.

Buckley ticked off his appraisal of foreign policy failures, concluding it was "as if foreign policy were written by the Marx Brothers."

At this point, in the front row shadows of the Hollywood Palladium, a man's figure popped up from a seat and moved back and forth in a familiar, exaggerated stride, then waved at the audience. It was Groucho Marx himself.

IT WAS A BUCKLEY audience and Allen was heckled, booed and groaned at for his Kennedy defenses until he finally had had enough. Responsible conservative voices are absolutely necessary, he said, and Buckley epitomizes the distinguished, responsible, intelligent conservative as opposed to what Richard Nixon calls the kooks and the nuts. With several thousand in one room it is inevitable there will be a few kooks and nuts and I ask them to shut up! These debates are sponsored by a responsible conservative organization and the loud-mouthed representatives here are doing them no credit.

Buckley, at his turn, approved of what Allen had said but turned the maneuver to his own advantage. The only thing Steve Allen said effectively, declared Buckley, was "Shut up! But you'll notice he did it alone—he didn't call upon our moderator to refer the matter to a committee!"

Without abating his anti-administration theme, Buckley did his best to forestall the catcalls against his opponent. Any who suspect Steve Allen of being pro-Communist are either evil or witless, Buckley said. California is a principal exporter of loose talk, he continued, and there are some in the right wing who cherish a great ignorance of realities; they hurt the innocent—some because they are malicious, some because they are uninformed—and this applies to both right and left.

ALLEN CONTENDED the present debate was really insoluble because the conservative has nothing to defend "because he has not yet put a team on the ball field." Conservatives generally and Barry Goldwater specifically should advocate with "a lesser degree of belligerence and a greater part of wisdom . . . the conservative's suspicion of foreign entanglement and security in isolation is a euphemism for selfishness . . . there no longer are any faraway countries and morally there never were . . . a contributor to the dilemma is our delusion of omnipotence—we do not run the world and can't dictate, even to our allies . . . they say knock down the Berlin wall without realizing the consequences, without considering that this would be invasion of the Soviet sector. . . ."

Buckley, responding to Allen's claim of propaganda victory by the Berlin wall, asked, "Whence the victory?—that West Berlin is still free? This means only that all of Berlin is not lost. . . . It is the stamina of Charles De Gaulle on which West Berlin survives, not the profile of courage from Boston. . . . Failure to move against Cuba was a conspicuous symptom of our degeneracy; apparently nothing will move us unless Castro finds a few Buddhists to persecute . . . the policy of containment has become the official paradigm and is not sound because it is dogmatically defensive—repressing the enemy's salients rather than striking our own.

"IN CUBA we don't rouse ourselves off the beach. In Berlin we don't tear down the wall but learn to live in its humiliating shadow, but our rhetoric of defiance and liberation continues basso sostenuto . . . and we (subscribe to the message) of Orwell's incandescent novel that war is peace. And the horror of it is that men of intelligence and good will rise to defend it."

Sen. Abe Ribicoff Considers Religion No Political Handicap

WASHINGTON—Shortly after the funeral services for the late great Gov. Herbert Lehman of New York, Sen. Abe Ribicoff, (D-Conn.) reminisced to friends regarding the question of religion and politics.

Like the late Governor of New York, Ribicoff is Jewish, and like Lehman he served as both governor and now as senator of his state. Lehman had served as governor of New York longer than any other man in history, then went on to the Senate.

PEARSON

"When I decided to run for governor of Connecticut," Ribicoff recalled, "I went to see Gov. Lehman. My state is one in which the Jewish population is only 4% and I wanted to get Lehman's advice.

"He told me: 'I have never found that my religion hurt me or helped me. People take you for what you are.'

"I followed Gov. Lehman's advice and I found it to be correct," Sen Ribicoff continued. "Before my inauguration as governor I stopped by my synagogue to pray. The newspapers all mentioned it, many of them on the front page, but there was no criticism. People regarded it as the normal thing to do.

"When my mother died, I held a period of mourning in the governor's mansion. It was the first Jewish mourning ever held in the governor's mansion and many rabbis came from other parts of the country and even abroad. There was no criticism. People respected my religious faith.

"And I have always found that the only Jews whom non-Jews do not respect are the Jews who are ashamed of their religion."

Sen. Ribicoff also told of his conversations with the late John F. Kennedy at the 1956 Democratic convention in Chicago, when there was a contest between the late Sen. Estes Kefauver and Sen. Kennedy for the vice presidential nomination. Adlai Stevenson had just been nominated for President, and Ribicoff said he got a call to come to Stevenson's private headquarters in the Stockyards Inn.

"There I found those who set the policy for the Democratic Party debating who would be the best vice presidential candidate. There was considerable discussion as to whether Jack Kennedy's religion would hurt the ticket. Quite a few of the Democratic leaders were Catholics but not one Catholic spoke up for Kennedy.

"Finally I said: 'It seems ironic that a Jew has to stand up for a Catholic while the Catholics remain silent. But I have never found that religion hurts a man politically.' And I told them of my own experiences."

Though Kennedy lost out to Kefauver in the 1956 vice presidential contest at Chicago, Sen. Ribicoff felt that this helped to pave the way for Kennedy's subsequent nomination and election as President.

"Religion as an issue was pretty well dispelled in that 1960 election," Ribicoff said, "but recently hate and suspicion have been revived in some parts of the country, and it was a tragedy that this fine young man who had shown so much tolerance toward his fellow men should have been struck down just as hate began to creep across the United States."

• • • •

THIS COLUMN'S investigation bears out Sen. Ribicoff that the hate campaign has been increasing recently in some parts of the South and Far West. It appeared to be reaching a climax at the time of Kennedy's death. Some of it has been anti-Catholic, some anti-Jewish, some anti-Negro, and most of it anti-U.N. and anti-cooperation with the rest of the world. It was bitterly opposed to Kennedy's policy of co-existence.

Part of it has stemmed from the fact that men who once wore the uniform of the United States, like retired Adm. John Crommelin, have broadcast charges of "Communist-Jewish conspiracy"; or that Gen. Edwin Walker has flown the American Flag upside down. This has a growing effect on those who do not know that Crommelin was kicked out of the Navy, and Walker was censured by the Army.

The fact that these men can still call themselves admiral and general carries weight in some circles.

Also carrying weight is the American Legion, which unwittingly has lent itself to some of the hate program by sprinkling its certificate of Americanism indiscriminately around the country—even to one legion post which has been openly anti-Semitic.

Just outside Long Beach, Calif., the Signal Hill Post 490 has been exposed by Sherman Williams of The Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram for being a cover for the California Rangers, one of whose officers, George Joseph King, son of the retired admiral by that name, was recently convicted of selling illegal weapons.

The Signal Hill Post's newsletter last June recommended that members read two publications: The Cross and Flag, published by the openly anti-Semitic Gerald L. K. Smith; and Common Sense, a violently anti-Semitic publication by the late Conde McGinley.

The newsletter commented: "We came across Gerald L. K. Smith's message and we liked it very much. It teems with the truth."

Because of these activities, the California Executive Committee of the American Legion called on the Signal Post to terminate its charter or stand trial. After this, believe it or not, the national headquarters of the Legion in Washington gave the Signal Hill Post a certificate for "outstanding service in the field of Americanism."

Another case where the Legion lent itself to hate is that of its executive committee in Montana which adopted a resolution charging the Cooperative League of the United States, a highly respectable farm organization, with being "alien and foreign to our way of life and a threat to our economic well being."

It also linked the Cooperative League with Khrushchev and Communism, and charged that it destroyed "national patriotism" and sought to "communize trade and commerce."

Head of the Cooperative League of the United States is ex-Congressman Jerry Voorhis of California, who is no more communistic than the man who defeated him for Congress, ex-Vice President Richard Nixon.

Boomlet Started for Kin of Ike

I, P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—Every Republican who's anybody is being mentioned as a possible candidate for presidential nomination these days, and that includes Milton Eisenhower, the former President's brother.

The Milton-for-President boom is being whipped up by Malcolm Moos, the White House egghead-in-residence during the Eisenhower years of 1952-60. Minnesotan Moos, a widely respected writer of books about politics and government, wrote speeches for Gen. Eisenhower.

An interesting sidelight of Malcolm's boomlet is the reaction of Milton, now president of Johns Hopkins University at Baltimore. In the past, when newsmen queried him about becoming a candidate for political office, Milton invariably replied that he was quite happy being a university president, his occupation for more than a decade.

This time, Milton said that it would be inappropriate to comment about politics during the 30-day moratorium connected with the national mourning period for President Kennedy. Much is being read into his failure to issue his denial in the terms used in the past.

REPUBLICAN PARTY insiders are watching closely the activities of the Republican Citizens Committee. This is an organization dear to President Eisenhower's heart. It was put together after he left office with his blessing. Ike is a great believer in citizens groups, since they helped elect him to office. Anyhow, the insiders believe that the citizens organization will give the first tipoff as to which candidate Ike prefers.

ANN WHITMAN, IKE'S personal secretary in the White House recently left the citizens organization to go to work for Gov. Nelson Rockefeller in New York.

THERE HAS BEEN an unexplained delay in the release of the surgeon general's report on smoking and health. Supposedly due last summer, then in November, the report remains in a mystery status.

The Surgeon General's office states that it is not finished, but evidently portions of it have been shown here and there, complete with statistics and fearsome color photographs on the effects of lung cancer.

No statistic yet furnished seems to have diminished the consumption of cigarettes, but this report apparently has produced cold chills in those that have seen it.

One congressman told us this week that he had been a pack and a half man for more than 20 years, but had stopped, absolutely, without recourse to crutches of any kind, after leafing through the report.

THIS MAY GIVE YOU some idea of the boom in Georgetown real estate values. Some years ago, a friend of ours was offered a house on N St. in Georgetown for $65,000. For a lot of reasons, including money, he didn't buy the house—for which he is now kicking himself. The house was sold the other day to Mrs. Jacqueline B. Kennedy. The price was in the neighborhood of $150-160,000.

Gun Law Won't Deter Criminal

EDITOR:

Since the assassination of President Kennedy, and the subsequent events in Dallas, Texas, there seems to be a movement afoot to establish stronger laws pertaining to the sale and ownership of guns.

Why the discrimination?

In all the wars that this country has ever fought, approximately 550,000 men lost their lives.

In a much shorter period of time, approximately 1,500,000 men, women and children have been slaughtered on our highways by cars.

This would seem to indicate that cars are three times more dangerous and deadly than guns.

• • • •

AS OF THIS writing, I haven't read or heard of anyone campaigning for stronger and better laws that might curb, or eliminate, this unnecessary carnage by automobiles.

Granted, deaths by cars are accidental, whereas most deaths by guns are by design. That does not alter the fact that a person killed accidently by car is just as dead as a person deliberately killed with a gun.

Regardless of how strong or rigid gun laws are, the criminal element will still possess them by some means or other.

If, by some miracle, guns would be completely abolished, it would not stop assassinations or murders. A determined person, a psycopath, or a martyr would find other ways and means to accomplish his purpose due to his complete disregard for his own life.

No One Training to Succeed LBJ

WASHINGTON—Much talk is being heard today and serious consideration is being given here to what may soon become a major issue throughout the country. For the nation has suddenly come to realize that it has no Vice President.

LAWRENCE

It's true there is a line of succession to the presidency, but both the Speaker of the House and the President Pro Tem of the Senate have their own duties to perform and cannot give their time now to all the tasks performed by a Vice President. In short, nobody today is in training to take over the presidency in an emergency.

Sen. Jacob Javits of New York, Republican, has come forth with a proposal that a constitutional amendment be adopted authorizing a joint session of the two houses of Congress to elect a Vice President the moment a vacancy in that office occurs. But the defect in his proposal is that it would permit either a member of Congress or a cabinet officer to be chosen. No cabinet member, however, is placed in office by the vote of the people.

The reason why so many persons have brushed aside their worries over the recent change in the presidency is that Lyndon Johnson became Vice President after he had served the preceding eight years as majority leader of the Senate. Confidence in him arises today out of the fact that he has demonstrated in a position of leadership in Congress skill in handling national and international problems. But would the people have the same confidence today if three weeks ago the successor to President Kennedy had been a cabinet member, with little knowledge of the problems of the executive branch except the operations of his own department and with no over-all familiarity with legislative questions?

The fact is that the present law of succession is inadequate and perhaps even dangerous. It provides no method of selecting a Vice President. The existing law merely designates the Speaker of the House and the presiding officer of the Senate to be next in line when a vacancy occurs in the presidency, to be followed by members of the cabinet in a specified order. No reference is made to a vacancy in the vice presidency. It has been suggested that a return to the law prior to 1947—which put cabinet members in direct line ahead of anyone in Congress—would be desirable, but this is opposed in both the Senate and the House, where the feeling is that the selection itself should be made by the people's elected representatives in Congress.

To choose, as is proposed by some, an acting President and wait an interval of even a few months for a general election would produce deep uncertainty in public policy and might even cause some foreign adversary to precipitate a crisis, if not a war, which might be difficult for the temporary official at the head of the executive branch of the government to handle.

What is needed, of course, is a new Vice President immediately that there is a vacancy in that office. He should be selected by Congress from its own membership, and probably would always be a leader of his party. He would then go in training for the presidency in his capacity as Vice President. He would, as in the past, succeed at once to the presidency in an emergency. But he would presumably be a man trained in leadership by his experience in the post to which he had previously been elected by the members of his own party in either house. Under such a plan, the selection could be made from either the House or the Senate, and the choice would be by majority vote of the members of both houses, who themselves have been elected by the people.

A constitutional amendment is also needed to cover all phases of the problem that arises during any period of disability which a President might experience due to illness or accident. The current system has long been discussed but no action has been taken by Congress, though several proposed amendment have been introduced and considered by congressional committees.

Unfortunately, Article II of the Constitution is not clear. It says that "the Congress may by law provide for the case of removal, death, resignation or inability, both of the President and Vice President, declaring what officer shall then act as President, and such officer shall act accordingly, until the disability be removed, or a President shall be elected." But the big question is what is meant by the phrase "act as President." Would he possess full authority, and could a President, upon recovery from a "disability," vitiate what had been done by an "acting President?" It seems clear that a constitutional amendment is necessary to clarify the whole problem.

Airport Proposal Hearings Urged

By GEORGE WEEKS

Long Beach city officials will ask the Board of Supervisors and the Federal Aviation Agency to hold extensive hearings on the proposed establishment of a county airport at Wilmington Avenue and Del Amo Boulevard.

A resolution detailing the reasons is due for action Tuesday by the City Council. It has already been approved in principle.

The county airport project is still in an early stage, following the board's decision to operate the Compton Airport for 15 months.

But city officials were stirred to action by notice from John A. Lambe, county director of aeronautics, of an application to the Federal Aviation Agency for approval of the Wilmington-Del Amo site for eventual development.

The proposed location, in unincorporated territory, is only four miles west of Long Beach Municipal Airport. Instrument landing systems of the two might very well conflict, City Manager John R. Mansell said.

• • • •

MANSELL AND Nicholas Dallas, city director of aeronautics, also cited these figures as evidence of the economic importance of the Municipal Airport to the entire area:

The Federal Aviation Agency currently ranks the airport as the third busiest in the country, surpassed only by Chicago's O'Hare Field and Los Angeles International Airport.

Last year 340,000 flight operations were recorded from the Long Beach facility.

Exclusive of Douglas Aircraft Co., the public and private investment in the airport complex exceeds $66 million.

Firms located at the airport provide employment for more than 15,000 persons.

Leisure World's Demos Push JFK Memorials

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

A project of Leisure World Democratic Club, Seal Beach, for wide distribution of both printed copies and recordings of the late President John F. Kennedy's inaugural address is meeting with enthusiastic response, club president Ben Silverman announced Saturday.

The club started a fund to provide suitable copies of the speech for the nation's schools and libraries and to seek to have the speech recording made available at a price within reach of the school child. The fund is being handled and administered by United California Bank, Seal Beach.

Silverman said Rep. Richard J. Hanna, D-Calif. (Fullerton), had written his "wholehearted endorsement" of the program. Silverman said he also had been advised of Gov. Brown's approval. He said the Leisure World club seeks contributions from other Democratic clubs as well as from organizations and individuals of any political faith. Any funds over the project cost would go to a John F. Kennedy scholarship fund.

Silverman said his club launched the fund out of its regard for the inaugural speech as "a statement of national purpose ranking with the finest speeches made by our leaders in the past."

PAMELA RANDOLPH STEERS TO AUTO SHOW

$4 Million in Autos to Be Displayed Here

More than 100 automobiles, with an aggregate retail value of over $4 million, will be on display at the 1964 Long Beach International Auto Show Jan. 17 through 26, the Long Beach Motor Car Dealers' Association announced Wednesday.

Executive secretary N. L. McLaughlin said that cars are being shipped to Long Beach from six other nations, to be shown alongside American cars.

Exhibting nations will include Germany, Italy, Japan, France, England and Sweden. The only other car-manufacturing nation, Russia, has not yet participated in major American shows, he said.

THE 10-DAY SHOW, producer Mickey Levine says, will include a twice-daily stage presentation by radio, television and screen stars. The Mills Brothers will head the cast of entertainers.

Individual cars displayed, McLaughlin said, will range in retail value from about $1800 for compacts to more than $10,000 for custom-designed vehicles.

Some of the more unique features, McLaughlin said, will be use of jet propulsion, television and other accesories not normally seen by the average car buyer.

The show, which will extend through 10 days at the Arena, is expected to attract more than 50,000 people.

Tippit Fund Hits $246,000

DALLAS (UPI) — Police stopped counting for the weekend Saturday with $246,018 in hand and 10 sacks of mail still to be counted for the widow and three children of the policeman slain trying to catch President Kennedy's accused assassin.

The nine-man tabulating crew at police headquarters will resume their work Monday for Mrs. Marie Tippit, 39, and her children.

In Fort Worth, the fund slowly grew for Marina Oswald, the widow of the accused assassin Lee Harvey Oswald.

An estimated $12,000 had been contributed from all over the country and abroad. Mrs. Oswald and her two babies remained in seclusion under the protection of the Secret Service.

French Secret Army Officer Trial Set

PARIS (UPI) — The last major commander of the Secret Army Organization which led a last-ditch fight to prevent Algerian independence will go on trial before a special state security court Dec. 26, reliable sources said Saturday.

The commander is former Col. Antoine Argoud, who was kidnaped from a hotel in Munich, Germany, and delivered bound and gagged in a truck to police headquarters in Paris Feb. 26.

Waiters End Strike at New York Cafes

NEW YORK (AP)—A waiters' strike that closed more than 100 Manhattan restaurants, some of them internationally famous, was settled Saturday. Normal business was expected to resume—at higher prices.

The strike flared Dec. 7 at the Lobster, the Press Box and Keen's Chop House. Other well known establishments such as the Colony, "21", Brussels, Le Veau d'Or, Le Cafe Chambord at La Cote Basque, Sardi's and Lindy's closed down in a "one-struck, all-struck" move.

All are members of the Restaurant League of New York. The settlement emerged after some of the eating places broke ranks and reopened while negotiations were still under way. One of these was Lindy's.

• • • •

THE SETTLEMENT was announced by Vincent D. McDonnell, newly appointed chairman of the State Board of Mediation.

Vincent Sardi Jr., chairman of the Restaurant League and head of the management negotiating team, said the undisclosed terms of the agreement meant a certain increase in restaurant prices. This is a matter to be decided by individual restaurants, he added.

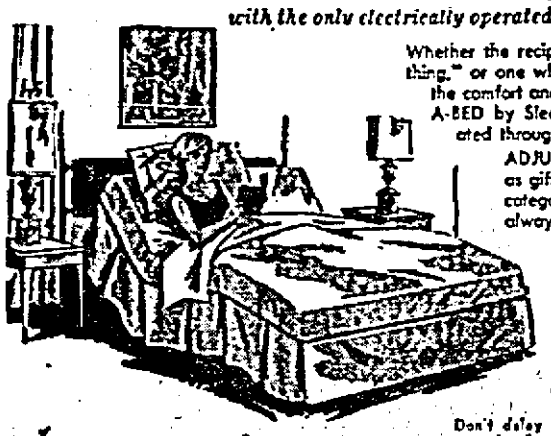

The waiters are members of Local 1 of the Dining Room Employes Union. Their president, David Siegal, voiced concern that some restaurant patrons might deduct the increased prices from tips.

SIEGAL SAID he would recommend ratification of the agreement to the union membership at a meeting Thursday. Terms were withheld pending ratification.

Spy Executed

SEOUL, Korea (UPI) — Hwang Tae Sung, 56, former vice minister of Communist North Korea, was executed Saturday by a firing squad. He was convicted of entering South Korea secretly in 1961 as a spy.

No Money Down on Sears Easy Payment Plan!

Free ALLSTATE Tire Mounting!
Free tire rotation of Sears tires every 5000 miles!

P-95 ADDITIVE... as new as tomorrow! Every ALLSTATE tire is now made with this new, revolutionary, exclusive blend rubber to provide better traction and give you longer mileage.

SEARS PASSENGER TIRE GUARANTEE
Every Sears tire is guaranteed against all failures (no limit of any kind as long as there is tread on it). If it fails for any reason during this guarantee period, return it to your nearest retail or mail order store and we will, at our option, repair it without cost to you—or in exchange for the tire, replace it with a new tire, charging only for the tread wear.
In addition, we guarantee the life of the tread of each tire for a given monthly period. If the tread wears out before the time period expires, an extra set dollar allowance will be given on the purchase of a new tire of similar kind. The extra allowance is a reduction from the current exchange price (regular retail price plus Federal excise tax less trade-in at time of return).

Passenger Car Tires Are Guaranteed Against All Road Hazards
• Holes in the road
• Broken concrete
• Broken glass
• Rocks and stones

Sears Tires Break Cross Country Records

Coast to coast, and border to border — a record breaking 9,000 miles of grueling road travel over a 12-day period has clearly demonstrated the superior wear and performance features of Sears ALLSTATE tires. In the USAC sanctioned test, completed September 3rd, a set of ALLSTATE tires, mounted on a Studebaker Avanti, was driven from Los Angeles to New York, back to San Diego, and from Tijuana to Vancouver and return with a tread wear of only 20%. Bill Carroll, automotive engineer and writer, captained the run with Paula Murphy and Barbara Nieland, top west coast sports car racing drivers, completing the endurance trio. The growing importance of automobile tires in the field of automotive safety has prompted Sears to go more deeply into the field of analysis and testing. The first in a new series of consumer-use tests.

'HAMS' TO TRACK SATELLITE

Long Beach Will Be Given Share in S. Cal. Regional Library Study

Long Beach will share in a regional library study which—although it wasn't planned that way—may furnish added factual material to support a campaign for a new main library.

A joint project of numerous libraries in the Los Angeles-Long Beach and San Bernardino-Riverside-Ontario areas, the survey is intended to develop, along with other data, projections of population and related information "pertinent to library development in terms of types and levels of service."

At the request of Miss Blanche Collins, city librarian, the City Council has authorized Long Beach participation in the state-financed survey.

JOINT application is being prepared for a grant from the $850,000 allocated in the current state budget under terms of the Public Library Development Act.

Librarians in the area have designated the Los Angeles Public Library to receive and account for the grant. Long Beach will receive no funds directly, but the study here is estimated to cost $2,000.

The investigation will be made by consultants selected by an administrative committee chosen by librarians in the region. None of the participating cities will be required to implement the findings.

City officials acknowledged privately, however, that the consultants' report could strengthen the arguments which so far have fallen short of persuading voters to give a two-thirds majority for a main library bond issue.

IT ALSO could assist library administrators in improving services, according to Miss Collins.

Among the other items of study are book collections, audio-visual materials; number, characteristics and utilization of personnel; administrative structure; availability of materials at all service outlets; methods by which participating libraries may ascertain special holdings of other libraries; augmented regional reference resources and services; cooperation between public libraries and academic and special libraries.

Tideland Oil Proceeds to L.B., State Up 51.5 Pct.

Net proceeds to the city and state from harbor tideland oil production under the Long Beach Oil Development Co. contract increased by 51.5 per cent last fiscal year to a total of $16,694,451.99.

Courson attributed the gain of $5,675,684.13 to higher production brought on mainly by water injection. Also an important factor was reduced capital outlay for the injection program.

In the previous year the city-state share was $11,018,767.86.

• • • •

GROSS PROCEEDS last year rose 24 per cent to a total of $23,447,469.74. LBOD received $4,201,385.96 as its fixed overhead allowance of 14.45 per cent. Reimbursable expenses of the company under the contract amounted to $8,179,497.39, or 28.13 per cent.

Since the start of production in 1939 the harbor tidelands have yielded gross revenues of $542,841,476.23, Courson reported.

From this figure the city and state have obtained $302,726,312.72 in revenues. Of the balance, $78,440,574.74 represents LBOD's overhead allowance, and $161,674,588.77 is accounted for as reimbursable expenses.

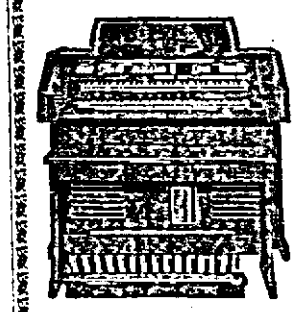

• • • •

COURSON SAID the audit report has no connection with bids received last week for a new contract to replace the present LBOD agreement, which terminates in March.

But Chief Deputy City Auditor Robert E. Shepherd did remark that the high bid for continued production—91 per cent of net profits—is "better for the city" than the current contract based on a percentage of gross receipts.

GETTING TO KNOW Santa by feel, blind Jimmy Nakumura, 10, a fourth grader at Lee School caresses St. Nick's luxurious beard.

BLIND AND PARTIALLY blind visited Santa's Animal Fair here. Carrie Dillard, 2, is held up to "see" by Santa's Helper Linda Jones.

FOR BLIND BOY

Fair Cast Early Christmas Spell

Jimmy Nakumura, who is all of 10, doesn't think people should succumb to the Christmas spirit until Dec. 21.

Before then's just too early, he asserts.

Well, you can just imagine how Jimmy must have felt when, 13 days before the holiday, he got to feeling pretty Christmasy.

It darn near scandalized the boy.

Dolefully, he confessed that he just knew he was happy. "I know because if I'm not having fun, I usually start to cry," he declared.

• • • •

BUT YOU REALLY CANT blame the youngster. It wasn't his fault that he started feeling so good so early in the season.

Along with 10 of his blind classmates from Lee School and 22 "partially sighted" youngsters from Lafayette School, Jimmy paid a visit to Santa's Animal Fair Thursday. The fair, located under a huge green tent behind the Long Beach City Hall, is being presented by Downtown Long Beach Associates and will be open to youngsters and their parents until Dec. 24.

It was during the visit that Jimmy fell victim to the spell of Christmas.

You see, he got a chance to chat with Santa Claus (Woody Cammett), ride a 25-passenger miniature train, meet Santa's pretty helper (Linda Jones) and feel a ferocious-looking tiger (made of papier mache).

So you really couldn't blame him after all, could you?

A COOPERATIVE papier mache tiger attracts Debbie Martinez, 8, Mindie Lee Beach, 8, and Jimmy Nakumura. Fair is open to Dec. 24.

France Holds Off China Recognition

PARIS (AP) — France has informed the United States it has no plans for early recognition of Communist China, diplomatic sources said Saturday night.

They reported French action followed some published reports that such recognition may be forthcoming soon.

YMCA Plans Holiday Events

A Christmas party next Saturday will kick off a special two-week holiday schedule at the Downtown Young Men's Christian Association.

Activities will include swim lessons, movies, games. Two trips for boys—one to Griffith Park in Los Angeles, the other to Knott's Berry Farm—are planned.

Gov. Connally Home Today

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—Satisfactory progress in his recovery from bullet wounds and then a blood clot in his right leg will allow Gov. John Connally to go home from the hospital this afternoon.

The Texas governor shot by President Kennedy's assassin, was reported Saturday by his doctors at St. David's Hospital to be making a good response to treatment for the blood clot.

An indirect result of the wounds, the blood clot formed in the superficial vein in his right calf where a tube was inserted to feed Connally intravenously.

Taipei Terminal

TAIPEI, Formosa (UPI) — A $1 million (M) Terminal at Taipei International airport is scheduled to be inaugurated Friday.

All Grudge Grenades of Omaha Avenger Believed Rounded Up

OMAHA (AP)—Federal men and police have recovered what they hope is all the grenades of Carl Nielsen who said he planned to send some to those on his grudge list.

Nielsen, 39, of Omaha, was charged with violation of the Federal Firearms Act. He is in jail awaiting psychiatric examination.

Officers who searched Nielsen's home said they had uncovered a fantastic arsenal of 82 rifles, and 27 pistols, plus the 33 grenades.

• • • •

SOME of the grenades had been rigged into boxes so a flip of the lid would detonate them.

Among the firearms were two new sniper rifles with telescopic sights, a machine gun and a variety of pistols dating back to cap-and-ball handguns of Civil War vintage.

The last six grenades were found Friday night by Federal Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Unit men and Omaha detectives. Postal inspectors earlier had entered the case when Nielsen indicated he might have mailed some of the boxed grenades wrapped as Christmas presents to persons against whom he had a grudge.

The list of 22 persons included relatives, a judge, attorneys, a doctor and others.

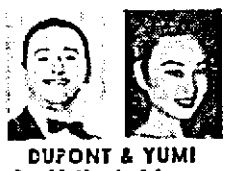

• • • •

NIELSEN was picked up Thursday after two women said he was annoying them. Some of his grenades and pistols were found on his person and in his car.

He subsequently admitted shooting at two churches.

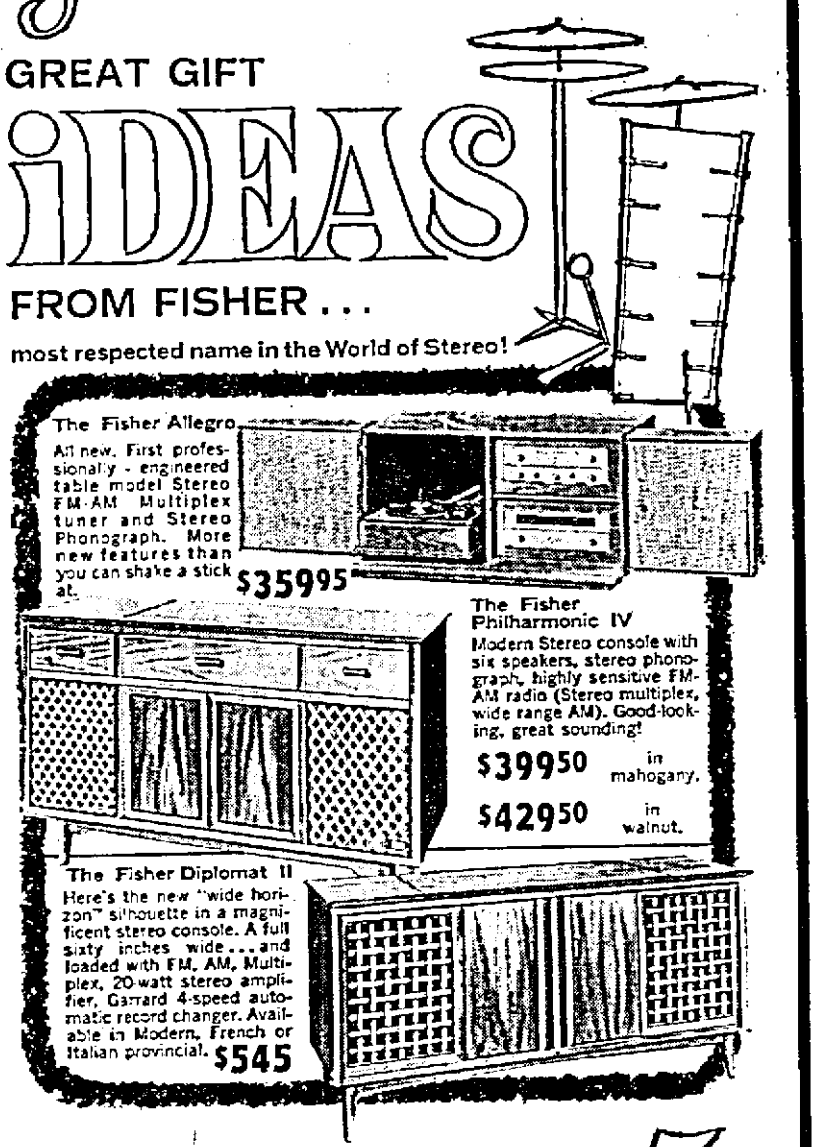

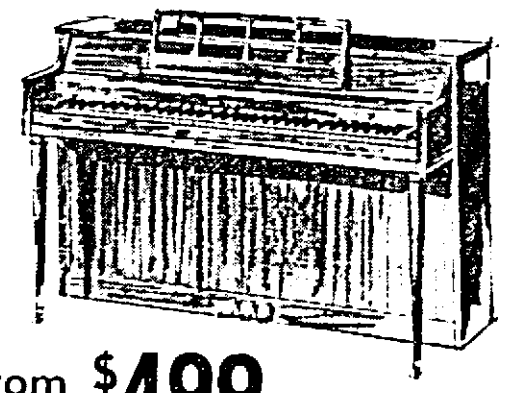

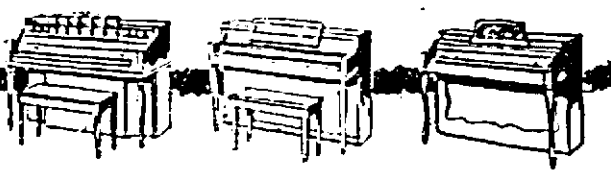

Nielsen's grudge list included his father, Peter Nielsen, Mesa, Ariz.; Mrs. Blanche Daugherty, Portland, Ore.

GIVE A PINT of blood through the Red Cross this Christmas, urge Mrs. Willard Harris (left) and Mrs. Rufus Davis who head drive for donors.

Slate 'Save a Life Sunday'

"Make a gift of life this Christmas season."

With this message to the public, Mrs. Willard Harris and Mrs. Rufus Davis, co-chairmen of blood recruitment, open a campaign for holiday blood donors at Long Beach Chapter, American Red Cross, 319 W. Broadway.

"We face a critical shortage of life-giving blood each holiday season," the chairmen said. "Hospitals have more patients, but Red Cross has fewer donors."

Sunday, Dec. 22, is designated as Red Cross "Save-A-Life Sunday," with the Long Beach Red Cross blood bank open from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

On New Year's Eve, donors will be accommodated from 1 to 4:30 p.m.

Hours for additional holiday blood banks at 319 W. Broadway are: Dec. 23, 3:30 to 7 p.m.; Dec. 24 and Dec. 26, 1 to 4:30; Dec. 30, 3:30 to 7; Dec. 31 and Jan. 2, 1 to 4:30 p.m.

Blood banks will be closed on Christmas and New Year's days.

Regular blood bank schedules to be maintained on all other dates will be Mondays and Tuesdays, 3:30 to 7; Wednesdays and Thursdays, 1 to 4:30.

Jerusalem Excited Over Pope Paul's Planned Visit

By WEBB McKINLEY

JERUSALEM, Jordan Sector (AP)—The forthcoming visit of Pope Paul VI to the Holy Land has charged the cool, clean air of Jerusalem with excitement and a renewed sense of history.

People are looking with fresh interest at the narrow streets where Jesus walked and at the hills where he taught and died. The January pilgrimage of the Pope somehow puts a different light on them and narrows the span of centuries.

"Will he come here?" asked a young French priest with a fond glance at the face of the Church of St. Anne over the spot where Mary is believed to have been born, and the nearby pool of Bethesda. "It is so lovely . . . and so important. Don't forget, it was here that the Lord cured on the sabbath."

• • • •

THE POPE ARRIVES three weeks from today in Jordan's capital city of Amman, 80 air miles from the eastern end of the Mediterranean. He will quickly be on sacred ground. His drive westward to Jerusalem will take him down from the stark mountains of Moab into the valley of the Jordan River, where Christ was baptized.

As he crosses a bridge over the narrow, muddy stream he will pass within a half mile of the Dead Sea, lowest spot on earth. A few miles farther on he will come within sight of Biblical Jericho, oldest city in the world and now a winter resort scented with orange blossoms.

The drive will then take him up into the barren Judean hills until, 55 road miles from Amman, he comes in sight of the Holy City, its spires reaching up from the hilltops.

If the Pope were an ordinary pilgrim he might first go to the top of the Mount of Olives. There, near the rock from which Christ traditionally ascended into Heaven, he could see in panorama the beauty and tragedy of the Holy City.

• • • •

BELOW, descending toward the Valley of Kidron, lies the Garden of Gethsemane where Jesus went to pray with his disciples the night he was betrayed. West across the valley, behind the medieval walls of Jerusalem, is the golden dome of the Rock Mosque, third most sacred shrine in the Moslem religion.

Rising in the distance behind it are the tragic hill of Calvary and at its little summit the Church of the Holy Sepulcher on the spot where Christ was crucified and buried.

The Pope could see, looking beyond that, more walls and the area called no-man's-land separating the Israeli and Jordanian sectors of the city. The two nations are technically still at war with each other.

During his three-day pilgrimage, he is expected to cross into the newer or Israeli side of Jerusalem and visit the Christian shrines in Israel, at Nazareth and the Sea of Galilee. He will then return to Jordan, a two-way crossing normally only allowed to diplomats or United Nations personnel.

• • • •

ONE OF THE POPE'S first acts on arriving in the Jordanian sector from Amman probably will be a visit to celebrate Mass at the Holy Sepulcher—like Jerusalem itself, a victim of conflict and division.

Roman Catholic, Greek Orthodox, Assyrian, Coptic and Armenian churches hold jealous guard over this ancient church, originally built by the Roman emperor Constantine in the 4th century and several times destroyed and rebuilt.

A year ago the Greek Orthodox, Roman Catholic and Armenian churches at last agreed on a unified plan to repair the tottering structure, most recently damaged by an earthquake in 1927. Scaffolding props up its walls and reconstruction work goes on, with signs warning passersby to beware of falling stones.

In token of the old conflict of the sects, a Moslem family has since 1789 been entrusted as the only keeper of its keys.

• • • •

THE PEOPLE ALSO will travel to the little town on a hilltop where Christ was born. The 11-mile drive, circumventing the border of Israel, winds past olive, pomegranate, fig and apricot trees, past a little roadside shrine marking the tomb of the Biblical Rachel, beside a wide valley still called Shepherds Field, and up a final climb to Bethlehem.

Despite its fame, Bethlehem is still a little place and it is both sacred and profane. It has a "Manger Square Cafe" and dozens of signs beckon tourists into shops to buy souvenirs. But on the main square is the Church of the Nativity, first built only three centuries after Christ was born. The stars in the clear air above it shine brightly during the Christmas season.

There on Jan. 6 the Pope is expected to make a major speech, a plea for peace and unity — a call like that of "Peace on earth, good will to men" which the shepherds heard in their field 20 centuries ago.

Scout Summer Camp Building Under Way

The building program at the Will J. Reid Scout Reservation in Barton Flats is under way, William F. Bennett, chairman of the Camp Development Committee, Long Beach Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, said Saturday.

Roads and parking lots, in the area, have been developed an doiled to eliminate the dust problem and provide parking space away from the camp sites for troop leaders, parents of Scouts and camp staff.

The William F. Prisk Memorial Swimming Pool is under construction and will be ready for the use next summer. Boating on Jenks Lake will continue for this next year, but it will no longer be necessary for Scouts to hike a mile to the Lake to have an opportunity to swim.

A Casting Pond has been developed for the boys to practice casting and program areas will be improved before summer.

Funds for camp development were raised in a public drive here during the year.

New Force in Defense Thrift Wave

By CHARLES W. CORDRY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson's orders for federal thrift have put new force into an economy wave that already was rolling over the Defense Department when he succeeded to the presidency.

After three years of steeply rising arms expenditures and forced expansion, the department that spends more than all other government agencies combined was bent on leveling off and, if possible, reducing outlays.

That this can be done soon, however, apparently is not yet certain despite anxious discussions that have been going on in the Pentagon and White House preparatory to sending Congress the new federal budget next month. The fate of the tax-cut bill is likely to hinge on what this budget reveals of government cost cutting intentions.

• • • •

BEYOND ANNOUNCED Pentagon cuts in civilian and non-combat military manpower and pleas for greater efficiency, a measure of the new urgency was the Budget Bureau's unannounced suggestion that the Navy might do without some of the six nuclear submarines proposed in its budget. They cost about $60 million each.

The determined economy effort of Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara and his principal aids long has been visible here in cost-cutting programs in the procurement field and in studies of future size and composition of major forces.

The effort is beginning to be felt keenly in the forces in Europe, as was made plain to newsmen lately during a three-week tour of military headquarters and installations. There is concern that an obsession with reducing "support" forces can result in a weakening of "combat" forces.

• • • •

ON THE DEFENSE economy front, too, a restive Congress has shown its frame of mind by slashing more than $2 billion from military appropriations request for this year.

As much as anything else, this move has slowed the spending increase this year and influenced calculations for next. After a rise of more than $8 billion in the annual defense spending rate since the last year of the Eisenhower administration, Congress plainly seems to want a leveling off.

In this framework, finishing touches are being put on the military blueprint which will go to Congress in January in the new budget for the year starting next July 1.

The budget was largely cast when Johnson succeeded to the presidency. And, while he was familiar with its outlines as Vice President and has settled remaining issues, his major impact on defense policy and expenditure can be expected to come later.

He had what might be called minimum maneuvering room in the final preparation of the new budget.

• • • •

THE MOMENTUM of Kennedy administration defense measures and built-in pressures for certain increases have made it extremely difficult to prevent spending in the new budget from rising somewhat.

The spending figures now are expected to be between $50 billion and $51 billion plus.

In the present year, spending had been expected to be $51 billion in a total federal budget of $98 billion. But congressional cuts in appropriations are expected to hold spending down to about $50 billion.

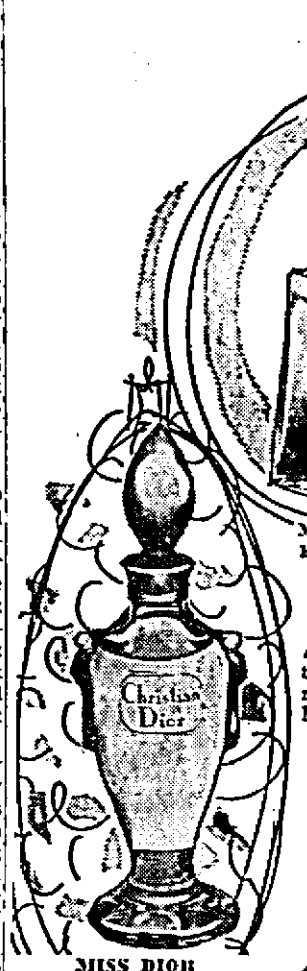

Offsetting economy efforts are such built-in, mandatory increases as $500 million for military, retired and civilian pay and at least another $500 million for operation and maintenance of the forces.

Officials believe, however, that the coming fiscal year will be the beginning of the level-off and that the international situation permitting, reductions will follow in future years.

Provine Emerges From 20s

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Blonde Dorothy Provine has emerged from the "Roaring 20s" where television has confined her for the past couple of years.

It was a long climb, but Dorothy jumped from the 1920s to the 1960s in a relatively short time. All it took was a haircut and a movie opposite Jack Lemmon.

For two years, Dorothy co-starred in ABC-TV's "Roaring 20s" at Warner Bros. Studio where she is under contract. It was a show that featured Miss Provine doing the Charleston part of the time.

• • • •

HER SERIES went out of production and Warner Bros. hired the pretty actress out to other studios.

Since leaving the series, Miss Provine has appeared in "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World," and now "Good Neighbor Sam" the latter film with Lemmon.

Her hair has been clipped so she appears to be of this decade, and her clothes don't appear to be from a church rummage sale.

• • • •

MISS PROVINE has a standard movie colony seven-year contract with Warner Bros. That means the studio can have her services for seven years, with the opportunity of releasing her at the end of each year. The actress has two and a half years left in her Warners pact.

That's not enough time for a studio, network and advertisers who might want an actress in a new series. Television likes to have a five-year hold on its stars so they can't bolt a successful series before it's had a long run. Miss Provine knows that.

• • • •

"THE STUDIO was rather angry because I wouldn't do another series," she said. "I would have had to take an extension of my contract to do one. I didn't want an extension. I didn't feel I was in a position to negotiate for two years hence."

Whatever Dorothy does on screen, she'll do her best to see that it's a modern role. She got tired of those old beaded dresses.

"I like the period of the 20s," she said. "But it gets boring after awhile, everything does."

Boone Admits Role Goof

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Pat Boone, family man and churchgoer, says he goofed in playing his first shady character.

As Boone fans will recall, eyebrows were lifted when Pat agreed to play a morally bankrupt beatnik in "The Main Attraction" opposite sexy Nancy Kwan.

"The public helped me realize my mistake by staying away from the movie," laments Pat. It was the first Boone movie that wasn't a moneymaker.

"I would have preferred staying in the wholesome movies that I first made, but they went out of style. I felt I had to develop as an actor so I took the part. It was too radical a change in my career.

"About the only good that came out of it was that some of the producers around town who saw it know now that I can do serious acting."

Pat now is concentrating on comedy.

BUILT-IN DEFICIT

Seattle Launch Repertory Co.

By SALLY RYAN

SEATTLE (AP)—Fifteen actors who fled Broadway to take Theater to the hinterlands have launched the Seattle Repertory Theater, a fledgling company with a built-in deficit and no stars.

They are presenting a 30-week season with five plays, ranging from Shakespeare's "King Lear" to Robert Ardrey's "Shadow Of Heroes."

Seattle businessmen and art patrons underwrote the venture, guaranteeing up to the $477,000 now budgeted for the first year's operation. That allows for a deficit the first season of up to $70,000.

BUT THE artistic director, Stuart Vaughan, sees the project as a new hope for the theater.

"Creative theater cannot emerge in New York's economic environment," Vaughan said. "New institutional theaters in cities throughout the country are the means for the theater to survive and flourish. The only hope for the American theater today is to change it."

The members of the company embarked on educational and promotional campaigns soon after they arrived in Seattle this fall.

The actors spoke to thousands of students in high school english and drama classes. Vaughan and his staff members made the rounds of the women's clubs, and spoke at 200 coffee hours.

HUNDREDS of women and high school students volunteered to sell subscription tickets, man information booths or hold parties publicizing the theater. Ticket booths were set up in department stores and supermarkets.

William S. Taylor, the general manager of the company, said more than $200,000 worth of advance tickets were sold. More than 10,000 subscription tickets, covering all five plays, were sold at prices ranging from $6.40 to $23. Individual tickets were $1.60 to $5.75.

"The response has been literally fantastic since we couldn't show them anything," Taylor said.

ONE REASON for it happening here is the 1962 Seattle World's Fair. It left the city with an 800-seat playhouse, and nothing much to put in it.

Ewen Dingwell, general manager of the Fair, mentioned the possibility of a repertory theater to actor Hal Holbrook when he played at the theater during the Fair.

Back in New York, rehearsing for a revival of "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" at the Off-Broadway Phoenix Theater, Holbrook mentioned his conversation with Dingwall to the revival's director — Stuart Vaughn.

Vaughan liked the idea too, and subsequently was signed to a three-year contract.

ONE OF VAUGHAN'S first decisions was to rule out the star system.

"You can't keep stars such as Jessica Tandy and Hume Cronyn, who were with Sir Tyrone Guthrie at Minneapolis this summer, for more than a season or two," Vaughan said. "When they leave, you have to start all over.

"We are after permanency. The goal is to put together a company of players who will want to become and will become permanent residents of Seattle—to help nurture drama and culture through their presence, as well as their performances," Vaughan said.

"All of us, including the actors, could earn more in New York, but this is something we have long wanted to see happen," Taylor said. "Seattle is the first city in the country that has actually gone out and hired professionals to come in and help establish a full-time repertory theater on a business-like basis."

'Fair Lady' Film Release Next Fall

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The end of filming is almost in sight for "My Fair Lady."

Audrey Hepburn has completed her role as Eliza Doolittle. Only one number remained for Rex Harrison—"I've Grown Accustomed to Her Face." The production would be finished after staging of two numbers featuring Stanley Holloway, "With a Little Bit of Luck" and "Get Me to the Church in Time."

Final cost of "My Fair Lady" is figured at $17 million, including 5½ million for the rights. Warner Brothers has announced release of the film for next fall.

Specialists in Pipes

By VERN ANTHONY
Southland Progress Editor

COMPTON — They became friends when active in church work some years ago; and Lewis M. Jones and R. E. Ferguson — both Mormons — still devote much time to church affairs. But today they share in control of perhaps the major pipe fabrication plant on the West Coast.

These men could play lead roles in a typical business story of individual initiative.

Jones is president of the Associated Piping & Engineering Co., 1707 W. Compton Blvd. Ferguson is a vice president.

Jones, a resident of Bellflower, started with Associated in 1943 as controller. The firm then was under other ownership. Fifteen years later, he resigned as executive vice president to "go on his own."

• • • •

LIKEWISE, Ferguson, who lives in La Mirada, left North American Aviation, where he had advanced over 15 years to position of general manager.

Henry Anderson, of La Mirada, another vice president, was with Associated 15 years before joining the new firm. T. J. Jones, a nephew of the president, is secretary.

The firm acquired, and still operates, Western Piping & Engineering Co., 2414 E. 53rd St., Los Angeles. This plant does pipe bending and coiling, largely for refineries.

The company took over Associated in Compton in Novemer of 1962, buying it from the Southwest Fabricating Co. of Houston, Tex.

• • • •

THE COMPTON PLANT includes three operational divisions: Power and Process Refining, Uni-Flex Cryogenics and Temp Flex.

The latter division makes bellows expansion joints for piping. The Cryogenics division processes pipe for handling and transfer of liquified gasses colder than minus 200 degrees F.

The Compton firm has widespread dealings with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA); with utilities; refineries, etc.

It recently undertook a job for a Navy power house on the island of Guam, along with the Dillingham Corp. of Honolulu. It has the pipe fabrication order for Union Oil's new unicracker project at Wilmington, to be installed by C. F. Braun & Co. of Alhambra.

• • • •

IT IS DOING a major job for the Edison Company's new Units 3 and 4 at El Segundo. Requirements for these steam plant units call for bending of huge piping up to three inches thick — a tremendous job.

The firm, which has some 200 employes, is closely involved with the government's space and atomic energy programs, including underground A-blasts.

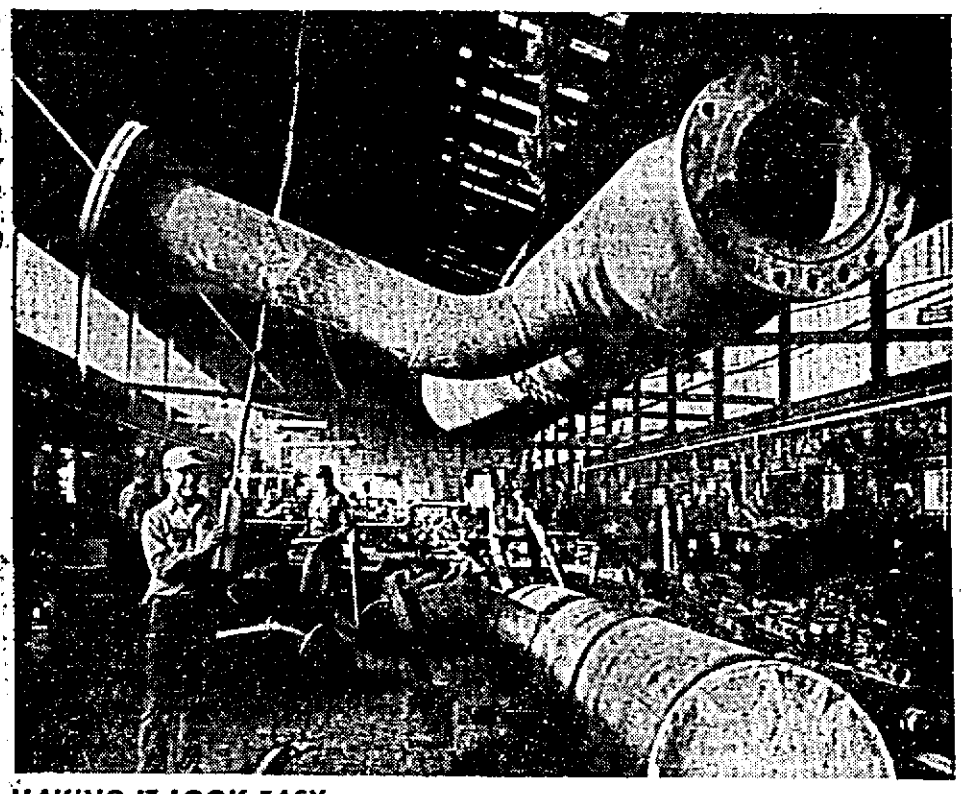

This calls for many delicate operations, some in a 'clean' room free of dust and humidity for fabrication and assembly of cryogenic vacuum-jacketed piping through which will flow liquified propellants for missiles.

• • • •

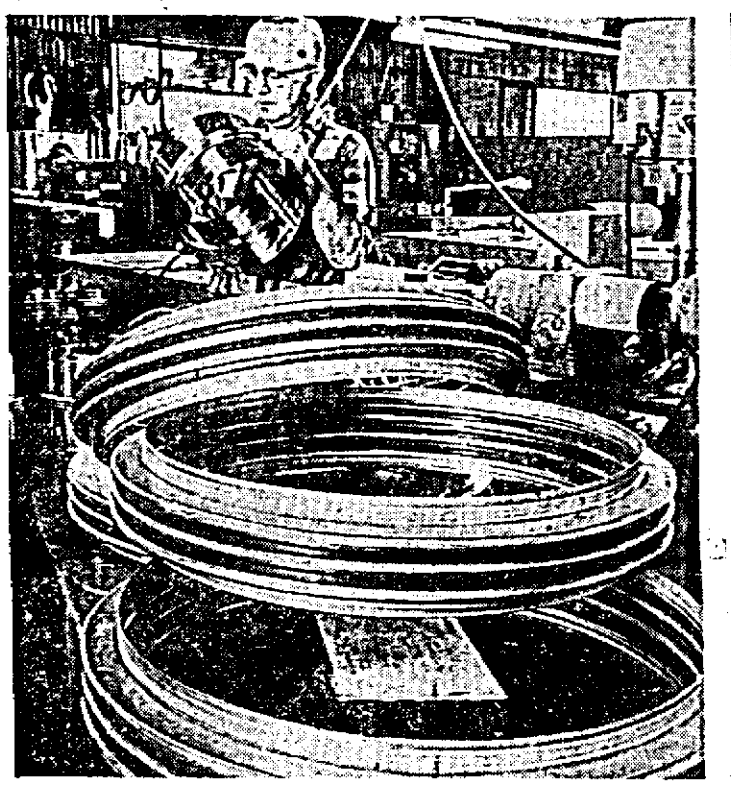

SOME SPECIFICATIONS call for expansion joints in order to absorb thermal movement in piping systems.

Products of the Compton firm find their way to such vital points as Cape Kennedy (formerly Canaveral) in Florida; to the rocket test site at Edwards Air Force Base; to Aerojet rocket test site at Edwards Air Force Base; to Aerojet rocket site near Sacramento; to the Rocketdyne Division of North American; Oakridge, Tenn.; Redstone at Huntsville, Ala., and to Los Alamos

MAKING IT LOOK EASY
Harold Anderson, foreground, controls powerful crane lifting big piping unit being fabricated at Associated Plant in Compton. Note how big pipes have been bent to specifications. Pipe up to three inches in thickness is shaped to order at Associated. Metal is heated intensely for bending, which is done by powerful machinery. Much of pipe work for Southland refineries is processed by this Compton Boulevard plant.

BELLOWS UNITS FOR PIPE EXPANSION
Intense cold of liquid fuel for missile operations using pipe such as some of that fabricated at Associated plant requires provision for expansion and contraction. Bellows such as these are placed between pipe joints to solve the problem. That's George Michalke, sheet metalman, examining expansion unit.

THREE-INCH-THICK PIPE BENT
Pipe bender John Garder does some figuring on huge pipe which has been bent at Compton plant. This is type of curved piping one may see at Edison Co. steam plants around Southland. Up to three-inch-thick pipes are fabricated.

Buffums' to Pay $64,000 in Bonuses

Christmas bonuses amounting to $64,000 will be distributed to qualifying employes of Buffums' five stores, Vaile G. Young, president of the retail store firm, announced. This is the largest Christmas present to employes in history.

Young said the bonuses will go to some 900 employes, both in selling and non-selling functions, and will represent a maximum of a week of pay to all employes who have qualified through length of service to the company.

This is the tenth year Buffums' employes have received the special bonus.

Extra Dividend

Bemis Bro. Bag Co. has announced that a 25 cents extra dividend on common stock has been voted payable Jan. 15, 1964, to stockholders of record Dec. 31, 1963.

$7 MILLION IN SHARES OF STOCK

Former Long Beach Federal Shareholders to Get 'Bonus'

By KEN CHILCOTE
Business News Editor

More than $7 million in shares of Equitable Savings & Loan Association guaranteed stock will be distributed to shareholders of the former Long Beach Federal Savings & Loan Association as a bonus, T. A. Gregory announced following an order obtained from the U. S. District Court.

Long Beach Federal merged with Equitable Savings and Loan Association in September. Gregory, who headed Long Beach Federal, is chairman of the board of Equitable.

The distribution, in the form of 585,821 shares of Equitable stock, equals 13 per cent of the savings accounts the recipients held in the Gregory association.

• • • •

THE BONUS comes from surplus funds of Long Beach Federal, which, under the merger, were replaced by new capital stock.

Under direct return of the surplus, Long Beach Federal would have been required to pay a heavy corporate tax and the recipients would have faced income taxes.

Equitable had agreed to distribute about $9,500,000 in stock to the Long Beach Federal shareholders; but because of restrictions imposed by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board in Washington the management sought court approval of the distribution plan.

• • • •

THE 7 MILLION, which will be released in stock to the shareholders, probably in January, will be on a basis of one share for each $91 in savings funds in the Long Beach Federal at the time of the merger.

The balance of the stock, some $2,500,000, will await court actiton and concerns mainly accounts over $10,000.

George Trammel, attorney for the Long Beach Federal shareholders committee, hailed the action as a "tremendous victory for the shareholders."

Builders Seek Permits Prior to Car Parking Law Deadline

By CHARLES SUTTON

Long Beach builders are "scrambling like mad" to get building permits before a tough new set of off-street parking requirements for new residential construction goes into effect Feb. 1.

The new regulations are embodied in a pending ordinance which city councilmen claim will relieve curb parking congestion, but which the builders say will raise construction costs in the city.

(One industry source, who prefers to remain anonymous, says the higher costs eventually will be passed on to the tenants of the new apartment buildings as higher rents. The same person goes on to say that Los Angeles County and certain cities have been living with parking ordinances as tough or tougher than Long Beach's new law for some time. "So we're really Johnnies-come-lately," he adds.

• • • •

UNDER THE NEW ordinance, the builders will be forced to provide roughly double the parking space they now are required to have for every dwelling unit outside the downtown area.

It's difficult to say exactly what percentage of the building permit applications being filed are prompted by the impending change; but architect William Lockett, says "everybody is scrambling like mad to get under the wire."

Lockett, president of the Long Beach district of the American Institute of Architects, explains that by "everybody," he means those builders who have plans for new apartment buildings already in the works.

• • • •

BUT ANOTHER industry source says it's also possible for a speculative builder to start from scratch and still beat the deadline by using a stock set of plans.

According to City Building Department statistics, applications for permits have jumped almost 80 per cent in recent weeks.

Edward M. O'Conner, head of the department, refuses to read anything into the increase, saying that sharp fluctuations are the rule, not the exception, in building trends.

He admits, however, that builders have been making inquiries about the Feb. 1 deadline, which some City Hall sources admit could change.

• • • •

SINCE 1952, when the first off-street parking law was adopted by the city, apartment house builders have been operating under a set of rules which requires them to provide the following ratios of parking space to dwelling units in the city:

One space for every two dwelling units in the downtown district;

Two spaces for every three units in the area south of Pacific Coast Highway and the Pacific Electric tracks;

And two spaces for every three units everywhere else in the city.

• • • •

STARTING FEB. 1, however, they'll have to live with the new, tougher regulations. These call for one off-street parking space for every two apartment units in the downtown area, which is no change from before; a 1-for-1 ratio for single or efficiency units, and 1¼-for-1 for larger apartments elsewhere in the city.

It's in the 1¼-for-1 ratio for larger apartments where the big change comes in. And that's where the builders will feel the blow.

It supplants a 1-for-2 ratio in the area south of Pacific Coast Highway and the Pacific Electric tracks, known as Area B; and a 2-for-3 ratio in the rest of the city outside of the downtown district, or Area C.

• • • •

THIS MEANS that where builders must now provide one parking space for every two units in Area B, they will have to provide 2½ spaces for the same two units under the new ordinance. And where they now must have two spaces for every three units in Area C, they will have to have 3¾ spaces for the same three units under the new law.

(In unincorporated Los Angeles County, builders are required by law to provide 4½ spaces for every three units, regardless of location or size.)

'Self-Service' Computer Business Operated in Oil Plant Basement

By ED KENYON

WILMINGTON — Hidden away in the basement of a red brick building in the huge Union Oil Co. refinery here is a small business that has brought self-service to the space age.

Laundromats allow you to do your own laundry in their washing machines; Computermat, Inc., allows you to do your own data processing on their electronic computers.

What is believed to be the first self-service computer service was started nearly three years ago in the Wilshire area of Los Angeles by computer operators Hy Kolkowitz, 45, now president, and Robert Curiel, 33, vice president.

• • • •

THEY BASED their hopes for success on the idea that there were many firms which either were too small or had too infrequent use for a computer to make the high costs of leasing one practical.

Other companies are in the business of working out computer problems for clients, and other companies leasing machines for their own use sometimes rent them out when they aren't in use; but Computermat is the first based on the do-it-yourself idea as a business, says Curiel, who manages the Wilmington office at 1664 Anaheim St.

• • • •

THE COMPANY opened its second office at Union Oil Co. about a year ago because the refinery needed a computer but didn't want to lease one.

"A man from International Business Machines contacted us and asked us if we would like to set up and maintain a computer center for them," says Curiel. "We said we would, if we also could rent

IN DEVELOPMENT OUTLAY

Port of Long Beach Second Only to N.Y.

The Port of Long Beach is second only to the Port of New York in port development expenditures by United States and Canadian ports since World War II, according to a study by the New York Port Authority.

During this period, the New York-New Jersey harbor area spent for new construction and modernization of ocean going ship facilities $383 million.

Long Beach spent $116 million.

Top Canadian port was Montreal with an expenditure of $93 million.

Port of Long Beach is one of the fastest growing ports in the world and is currently the leading dry cargo port on the West Coast.

Under way at the Port of Long Beach is a massive $150 million expansion program which will double the size of the port in less than 20 years.

The largest project in the expansion program is the 310-acre Pier J which will be completed in 1965. The pier will be used temporarily by the California World's Fair in 1967-68 then revert to commercial shipping operations.

Moore Sales Top $25 Million in 1963

Moore Realty sales for the year passed the $25 million mark last week, President E. Tennyson Moore announced.

That figure made the company one of the biggest home-selling organizations in California. It also represented a whopping 66⅔ per cent gain over the $15 million sales figure of 1962.

Moore Realty operates nine offices in southeastern Los Angeles and Orange counties, and will open a tenth, for its income property division, at Long Beach in January.

• • • •

FURTHER EXPANSION is contemplated for 1964, Moore said. The company plans to add two sales offices in Orange County during the year.

The large growth rate of the company in 1963 is attributed by Moore to three principal factors: soundness of the economic structure of Southern California, dedication of the company's experienced sales force, and development of new ideas in the sale of homes.

• • • •

KEY SALES PERSONNEL, many with 10 years and more with the firm, have kept abreast of the changing real estate market, Moore said, prospective home buyer efficient and economic service. As a result, he noted, 10 members of the sales force now have sales that total over $1 million.

Newest program in home sales, Moore declared, is the development of the "trade-in" plan, a program in which Moore Realty has been a leader. Under this plan, customers now can trade in "old homes for new" as readily as they purchase automobiles.

THE MACHINES are used for a variety of jobs. One firm has them digest mounds of data to compile monthly reports for the home office. Another keeps track of which sub-contractor is needed at what time on a housing tract construction site.

"The possibilities for the use of this equipment are almost endless," says Curiel, who lives at 9930 Tecum Rd., Downey. "As just one example, I've been trying to interest delivery companies in using the equipment to determine how to route their trucks most efficiently."

BUT EVEN CURIEL admits there are limits to the miracles the machines can do. One occurred when an engineer walked into the office one day with an armful of statistics on race horses in an attempt to figure out a way to beat the odds.

The information he got never helped him to win at the track, however.

"The statistics he fed the machine didn't take into account all the factors that make a given horse win a given race on a given day," says Curiel. "That's one thing the machine can't do — figure out the behavior of horses—or of humans."

NEBEKER PRESIDENT

Lakewood-Los Altos Realty Unit Elects

Gene Nebeker, Lakewood broker and city councilman, has been installed as first president of the newly-reorganized Lakewood-Los Altos Real Estate Association.

Nebeker served as chairman during a three-month reorganization from a loosely-knit group into an organization governed by bylaws and a board of directors.

The change was made necessary by the "growth and success" of realty firms in the Lakewood-Los Altos area over the past 10 years, Nebeker said.

• • • •

INSTALLING OFFICER Hal Gerling, who served as chairman of the group when it was formed in 1953, said there "were only nine brokers and 35 salesmen in the organization in those days. Today you have 35 brokers, 59 offices and 445 real estate salesmen in the association membership."

Gerling, a retired broker, now serves as president of Insured Mortgage Co. of Long Beach.

Other association officers installed at the luncheon ceremonies in the Long Beach Elks Lodge were Art W. Hancock of Walker & Lee, vice president; and Lloyd Chapel, also of Walker & Lee, secretary-treasurer.

Installed as charter members of the board of directors were Pete Banes of Lakewood Housing, Arville Gibson of Gibson Realty, Curt Gray of Moore Realty, and W. W. (Woody) Smith of Lakewood Center Realty.

Increased Building Seen for California at U.S. Convention

(Special to Southland Progress)

CHICAGO—Home and apartment construction in California will continue to increase each year up to a level of 500,000 units annually within the next decade, Robert A. Olin, Pomona, Calif., home builder, said at a press conference here.

He is president of the Home Builders Association of Los Angeles, Orange and Ventura Counties, which has set a new record for attendance at the 20th annual convention-exposition of the National Association of Home Builders which opened Wednesday and will continue through today. He is the leader of the delegation to the national NAHB convention.

• • • •

"ANALYSTS at this convention predict that within the next 10 years, the annual rate of home and apartment construction will be at 2,500,000 units," said Olin. "Since California home builders construct 20 per cent of the nation's housing unit each year, we can look forward to spectacular increases in building."

The best estimate for total housing units in the nation in 1963 by analysts here is 1,560,000, with California scoring a substantial 20 per cent.

Researchers predict that the market for the foreseeable future is practically unlimited for the home builder if the product can be made attractive and within the means of the families that need the housing.

• • • •

THE BOOM in housing construction of the next 10 years will be caused by two strong forces—the increase in family formations as the result of population growth and the replacement of older homes in massive slum clearance and similar programs.

Olin reported that the latest Census Bureau projection shows that the nation will have nearly 80,000,000 households by 1953 which compares with 55,000,000 today and with 37,000,000 in 1943 when the National Association of Home Builders was organized.

During the 1950's for every 10 units for new household formation another five units were built to take care of replacement of old homes.

"Researchers at this convention state that for every 10 units for new household formation in the coming decade seven units will be needed for replacements," Olin said.

• • • •

IN THE PAST 20 years, the nation's home building industry constructed 21,500,000 housing units in homes and apartments, enough to provide a new home for four out of every 10 families, said Olin.

"Private enterprise and federal agencies have cooperated in the past decade to produce this record, according to a statement given us by Sen. John Sparkman," Olin said. "I am sure this cooperation will continue in the future so that we can meet the housing needs of the nation. There are 9,000,000 families living in substandard housing today and another 5,000,000 living in deteriorating housing. The housing needs of the nation are tremendous."

Thompson said Local 353 offices would be moved shortly from the present location, 520½ W. Willow St. and relocated upstairs at the Redondo address. Major use of the hall by musicians, he said, will be for rehearsals and auditions. It is planned to rent out the facilities on occasion.

State Faces Stiff Competition for Aerospace-Electronics Contracts

By VINT MADER

In coming years California aerospace-electronics industries will have to battle for their share of federal spending "more than we ever have in the past," Lewis M. Holland, commissioner of the state Economic Development Agency told Long Beach civic leaders this week.

During the last 10 years these industries have absorbed 50 per cent of the increase in labor force arising from California's population growth of 600,000 per year, he said.

• • • •

HOLLAND, making his his appointment to head the state agency early this year, met prominent persons in the city's civic and business community and addressed a meeting sponsored by the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce.

Spending by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration is "committed to go along at the same rate as the last five or six years," but space defense contracts are "beginning to taper off and during the next decade will actually be tapering off," Holland told the meeting.

Some of California's industries, he said, have 90 to 95 first visit to Long Beach since per cent of their business concentrated "in this general field."

• • • •

"SO WE recognize a problem," he said, adding that the state is trying to help diversify industrial activity and to maintain the share of aerospace contracts.

Business and government in other states "recognize that California has had over the years what they call more than its share," he said.

"We'll be in good shape for the next three or four years. After that the best prognosis is that we will gradually taper off."

BELLFLOWER—A capacity crowd of 419 members and guests were present for the 42nd Annual Installation and Dinner-Dance of the Bellflower District Board of Realtors Wednesday evening to witness the passing of the gavel from Robert Y. Prigmore, 1963 president, to Paul M. Williams who will guide the board during 1964.

Smith, vice president of the board, is a relatively new member, having become associated with the board in 1958 as an associate member. In 1961 he became a Realtor member and has served on many board committees, among them the important Program Committee of which he is chairman.

Huge Space for Storage in Building

The West Coast's first appliance office-warehouse exclusively conceived and built for that purpose was unveiled last week in Los Angeles by Hotpoint district manager, R. A. McWhinney.

The 73,000 square foot facility, at 4353 Exchange Ave., can stockpile more than 180 carloads of refrigerators, washers, and dryers under a vaulted ceiling that permits refrigerators to be stacked four high.

A specially designed three-sequence operating department permits all paper work on an incoming order to be processed in less than five minutes from reception through credit check to shipping documents.

Two radio dispatchers provide Hotpoint customers with same-day service with one of 27 service trucks in the field. An efficiency check constantly maintained on the product service area by Hotpoint headqparters indicate an 80% first call completion record.

The building is constructed at truck height for loading and all doors have ten foot entrances.

Gracious Living in Suburbia Heights

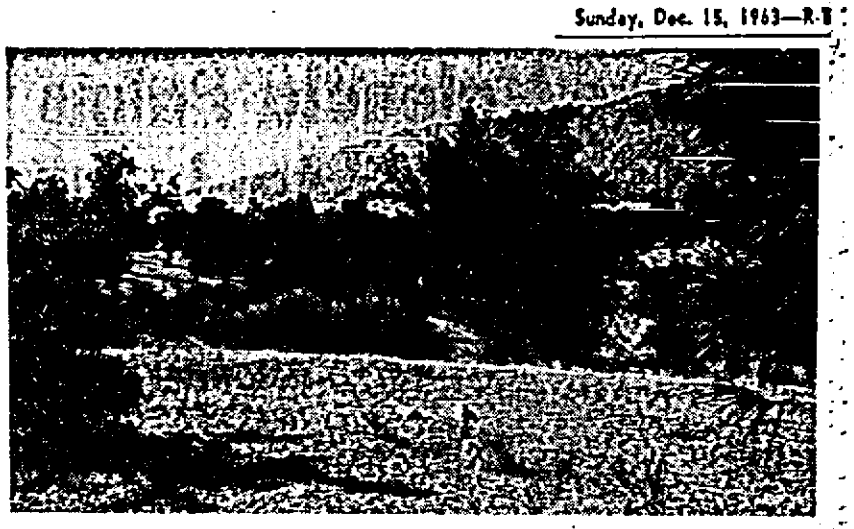

A full grown olive tree on every lot sets the theme for gracious living at Suburbia Heights, Buena Park development. The olive trees were placed to establish an overall landscape theme for the prestige community.

Norm Williams, director of sales, said visitors are most enthusiastic about the excellent location and exceptional design of the homes.

Priced from $33,950, each two-story home includes four or five bedrooms, three bathrooms, family and recreation room, formal dining room and separate breakfast area arranged in more than 2,300 square feet of usable floor space.

Located on the site of the old McComber Ranch at McComber Road and Luitwieler Avenue, on and off ramps of the Santa Ana Freeway put Suburbia Heights within easy access of downtown Los Angeles.

Features found in each Suburbia Heights home include built-in range, double oven and rotisserie and dishwasher, 100% continuous filament nylon carpeting on all levels, Del Paso tile entries, attic installed TV antenna, light control dimmer switches, bathroom ceiling heat lamp, ceiling height hooded fireplaces with log lighters, carpeted stairways, over-sized closets and wardrobes.

FOR HOME ON RANGE
Rugged countryside at W-Bar-B Ranch in Kern County, the Walker Basin region, is being sold in 10-acre and more parcels, priced from $395 an acre.

Home Sites on W-Bar-B Ranch

"The basic need for an occasional quiet retreat prevails in most of us," stated Donald Grant Smith, broker for W-Bar-B ranch sites in the Walker Basin region of Kern County.

"We know we have the perfect hideaway from the pressures of today's complex world at W-Bar-B," he continued, plus the fact these beautiful ranch sites are good future financial investments."

Once a part of the working horse ranch belonging to Vernon Schell, parcels of W-Bar-B are presently being offered for sale upon purchase of 10 acres per parcel and up.

• • • •

THE FOUR SEASONS are discernible at W-Bar-B and Smith stated a nice crisp, invigorating nip is now in the aid, ideal for hunting and outdoor hiking.

"In addition to excellent hunting here, the fisherman will find the area a fisherman's paradise."

W-Bar-B ranch sites are approximately 15 miles south of crystal clear Lake Isabella, with its good fishing, boating and water-skiing. The towering Sequoia Forest surrounds the area.

• • • •

THE 10-ACRE parcels start from $395 with 20 per cent down and monthly payments of 1%.

To reach W-Bar-B, from Los Angeles take the Lamont-Arvin turnoff on the Bakersfield Freeway (Hwy. 99), go through Arvin to Junction of Hwy. 466. Take right turn short distance to Caliente turn-off, then left through Caliente to Sand Canyon. Follow the W-Bar-B signs to Walker Basin.

Transportation and further information can be obtained by contacting Donald Grant Smith at 12135 Victory Blvd., North Hollywood.

Webb Rushes Homes in Sun City Projects

SUN CITY—Completion of Sun City homes and apartments was accelerated last week to bring about the delivery of more than 150 living units by Christmas.

The announcement was made by project manager Gordon Heath of the developing Del E. Webb Corp.

"In order for many of our new buyers to enjoy their retirement homes during the holidays, the Webb Corp. is making an extra effort toward completion of as many homes as possible," Heath declared.

At present, the Webb project officials reported, more than 350 men are at work on the accelerated program which is scheduled to maintain the heavy production and the rapid delivery of retirement homes and apartments.

• • • •

"ALONG WITH this speeded up construction program," Heath pointed out, "extra inspection effort is being made to maintain quality control and to continue delivering the finest home or apartment for the money in Southern California."

"The continuing success of the Sun City sales program indicates full production and increasing payrolls will be the norm for our future planning of the 14,500 acres the Webb Corp. is developing 22 miles south of Riverside on U. S. Hwy. 395," he stated.

Hunsaker Homes in Demand

S. V. Hunsaker & Sons, builder-developer of Sunshine Homes — "the most wanted homes since 1932" — claim they offer today's discriminating buyer not just more for his money, but a better way of living.

Proof positive lies in the fact that Sunshine Homes have become sales leaders.

Thomas Richey, marketing director, points out that "Buyer acceptance of our Sunshine Homes in Huntington Beach and Lakewood East is reflected by above-average weekly sales."

• • • •

"OUR HOMES are best sellers because they include not just the features that buyers expect in a house, but features they do not expect," said Richey.

Huntington Beach Sunshine Homes may be purchased for as little as $95 down, with 6% financing. They are located on Heil off Golden West in Huntington Beach.

Lakewood East Sunshine Homes require a $295 down payment on prices that start from $21,100. They are located on Del Amo Road, west of Pioneer Blvd. in Lakewood.

Easy-On-Feet Floor in Grant's Homes

The Belfontaine series of Stardust Homes in Fountain Valley is drawing a unique type of home seeker says builder-developer Robert H. Grant. "Our prospective home buyer is looking for a healthy way of life not only outside the home — but inside as well!"

Grant explained that Stardust Homes have a specia appeal in this respect because they're "easy on your feet!"

"The American housewife walks an average of 10 to 12 miles per day in the course of her regular work at home," said Grant. "This underlines the importance of floor composition and material."

THE NATURAL strength and beauty of genuine hardwood floors adds to the distinction of every Stardust Home where the floors are carefully constructed on solid concrete piers for lasting value and comfort underfoot.

According to Grant and reports received from the American Podiatry Association, "The human body is being tortured by lack of resilience in the modern floors of America. Placing thick carpets over non-resilient floor surfaces doesn't solve the problem. It is not a natural footing."

Warm, resilient and comfortable oak floors are only one of several aristocratic features presented at the one and two-story Belfontaine residences on Garfield Ave., one-half mile east of Beach Blvd. and two miles from the Huntington Beach State Park in Fountain Valley. Homes are priced from $22,600 to $26,495 with FHA and VA financing.

First Units Renting in Capetown West

The first 20 buildings of a 160-unit apartment complex in Huntington Beach have just been completed. Known as Capetown West, the development is located on a 10 acre sife just south of Hwy 39 on Slater Ave.

The $1.3 million Capetown West complex is made up of 40 single level buildings, each of which houses four two-bedroom apartments.

• • • •

THE APARTMENT-HOMES are in what is generally considered to be a moderate rental bracket, however, they offer many things found only in apartments with a much higher rental structure. They feature wall-to-wall carpeting, drapes, built-in kitchen, huge master bedroom, extra large wardrobes, and above all, excellent construction and soundproofing. The smallest apartment has 1000 sq. ft. of inside living area.

According to the builders, Capetown West's second phase of 80 apartments is now under construction, and will be completed about the first of the year. In addition to the Huntington Beach complex Lansing Investment Co., Inc. is also constructing a 68 unit apartment development in Escondito.

Walker-Lee Sales Over $114 Million

Walker & Lee, Inc., reports sales to-date for 1963 of $114,957,500, gross volume. This total represents sales in homes, acreage, industrial/commercial and income departments.

Frank R. Hart, executive vice president of the real estate firm stated that the 19 re-sale offices and 32 subdivisions are realizing gains of 25% over last year.

In this 11-month period, 4,687 homes were sold. Of this number 2,138 were resales and 2,549 were new homes.

• • • •

HART DECLARED the 4th quarter of the 1963 year for the company would see a gain of $2½ million over the corresponding time for 1962.

"This is a definite indication," said Hart, "that customer confidence in real estate continues to gain momentum."

In 1962, the 22-year-old firm of Walker & Lee achieved sales of over $100,000,000 which is believed to be a national record for a real estate firm concentrating in the residential field.

The firm is headed by DeWitt Lee and Frank R. Hart.

1964 Increases Predicted in Industrial Real Estate

OJAI, Calif. — "The year 1964 should be an excellent one for industrial real estate," Bill Brooks, of Long Beach, president of the Southern California Chapter of the Society of Industrial Realtors, said at the annual S.I.R. meeting here last week.

"The upsurge of inquiries and increased business reported by members of S.I.R. during the fourth quarter of this year is an indication of the confidence that business executives now have in the future industrial growth of the Southern California area," he said.

Brooks pointed out that the expansion is due to several factors, one of which is the wave of industrial demand that indicates that the gross national product will soon reach the $600 billion rate.

Capital outlays are advancing this quarter at almost a $2 billion rate and capital spending has increased from a low of $45 billion in 1961 to over $55 billion rate in this quarter. Many economists predict a $5 billion rise in 1964 which may increase if the proposed tax legislation is enacted by Congress, Brooks added.

Orange Coast Rips NE Oklahoma, 21-0

44,044 See White, Pirates Roll in Junior Rose Bowl

By KEN PIVERNETZ

The little man still has a place in football, especially if he's Billy White and he plays for Orange Coast College.

White, only 5-4 and 134 pounds, won player-of-the-game honors Saturday as the Pirates from Costa Mesa won an easy 21-0 decision over Northeastern Okla. A & M in the 18th annual Junior Rose Bowl game before a crowd of 44,044.

Northeastern, a three-point favorite at game time, was almost as inept as Columbia Basin, Wash., a year ago.

OCC should have scored at least two more TDs, but really didn't need any after the half.

• • • •

ONLY THE passing of White in the first half and some exciting running by Mike Hunter made the game interesting.

The Pirates' defensive unit turned in an outstanding effort and it was easy to see why nine Eastern Conference foes could only score 43 points this season.

White was six-for-seven in the first two quarters and wound up eight-for-14 for 115 yards.

The game was decided in the first half as OCC scored twice in the second quarter and then added one more with a minute left in the game.

How They Scored

SECOND QUARTER

	OCC	NEO
Orange Coast 3:28
Carr, 31 yd. pass from White	6
Haynes, conversion	1
Orange Coast 12:56
Hunter, 33 yd. punt return	13
Haynes, conversion	14
FOURTH QUARTER
Orange Coast 13:30
Hunter, 29 yd. pass from Jones	20
Haynes, conversion	21

Northeastern had only 32 net yards rushing and passing at the half compared to OCC's 205 and never got past the Pirate 35.

Orange Coast used nine backs in the game and all were impressive. The line play was exactly the same way—hard hitting with great pursuit and gang tackling.

The Pirates took the opening kickoff and drove all the way from their own 20 to A&M's three where Bob Haynes was stopped on the one when he tried to dive over right tackle.

• • • •

HUNTER, the former Anaheim star and a player who can hurt an opponent both as a receiver and with his broken field running ability, had the big play in the initial drive on a 24 yard sweep around left end that carried to the Golden Norsemen's 40.

It was a typical play that OCC used all day along with traps up the middle and White's effective, 'though not brilliant, passing.

The Pirates, with left guard Bill Epperson and left tackle Chuck Campbell leading the way, didn't have any trouble moving their slower opponents.

Pete Moseley's 66-yard quick kick kept A&M out of trouble in the first quarter and it wasn't until 3:23 had elapsed in the second period that the game's first score came.

White hit right end Gary Carr straight over the middle and Carr had no trouble outrunning Mike McElreath into the end zone.

After Haynes kicked the

Parseghian to Coach Football at Notre Dame

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI)—Notre Dame, never able to beat Ara Parseghian's Northwestern football teams on the field, hired him under a four-year contract as coach Saturday to try to restore the Fighting Irish to their former days of glory.

Parseghian, 40, quit with one year remaining on his contract as coach at Northwestern to take the Irish job. Wildcat athletic director Stu Holcomb said Northwestern willingly released Parseghian.

Parseghian, head coach at Miami of Ohio for five years where he had a 39-6-1 record, tutored the Wildcats for eight years, posting a 36-35-1 mark.

In four consecutive years against the Irish, Parseghian won every time, 30-24, 7-6, 12-10 and 35-7, from 1959 through 1962.

• • • •

"WE FEEL very fortunate in securing the services of such an outstanding coach as Parseghian," Rev. Edmund P. Joyce, C.S.C., executive vice president of Notre Dame and chairman of the Faculty Board in control of athletics, said.

Father Joyce also announced that Hugh Devore, "interim" coach of the Irish last year after the resignation of Joe Kuharich in March, had been named assistant athletic director.

"Coach Devore performed admirably in the assignment this year," he said, "and we're most appreciative."

• • • •

UNDER DEVORE this year, Notre Dame had a 2-7 mark. It fell one defeat short of equalling the all-time worst record ever marked up by the Irish.

The Irish have not had a winning season since a 6-4 mark in 1958. In 1960 they had a 2-8 record.

Parseghian becomes the 24th Notre Dame coach since the first in 1894.

3RD L.B. HOLIDAY IN 5 YEARS

Huskies Arrive Today

By JEROME HALL

Last time the University of Washington football team was in these parts for the Christmas holidays, ferryboats were running to San Pedro, four-legged goats were running around Chavez Ravine and Long Beach was planning a world's fair.

It's been awhile.

But the Washington football team, unavoidably derailed the past two years, today returns for the holidays, the third Christmas in Long Beach in the past five years.

• • • •

OFF A CHARTERED airliner this afternoon at Long Beach Municipal Airport will clamber 46 fresh faces in dark blue jackets, eager for a kiss from the Rose Bowl queen, a glimpse of sunshine and a trip to Disneyland, none of which Seattle offers.

In between, they'll spend the next 15 days tearing up the grass at Veterans Stadium, with intent to do the same on New Year's Day against the champion of the Big Ten, Illinois.

The Huskies will be four-point underdogs, but that should cause no distress since they were seven-point underdogs the day they dismantled Wisconsin by 36 points and six-point underdogs the day they demonsterized the Minnesotans by 10.

It was Washington, it should be remembered, that started the West on the way up in the Rose Bowl. Until the Huskies moved into their Long Beach hotel rooms in the winter of 1959, the Big Ten had won 12 of the previous 13 Rose Bowl contests.

The record now is three out of the past four in favor of the West and if Illinois can't reverse the trend, the shoe will be on the other leg.

But there are no holdovers from those husky Husky teams, other than the one-eyed crackerjack quarterback, Bobby Schloredt, who is now an assistant coach.

All the husky Huskies are unspoiled in the ways of the Rose Bowl and coach Jim Owens is going to see that they stay that way until business is completed.

Instead of a trip around the movie studios, Owens has planned a few extra laps around Veterans Stadium. Insdtead of a quick run down to the beach for

65 FOULS CALLED AS TULSA WHISTLES PAST 49ERS, 112-83

By AL LARSON

TULSA — T-Town, U.S.A. turned into Foul Town Saturday night as Tulsa University avalanched Long Beach State, 112-83, before 2,851 whistle-weary customers at Fairgrounds Pavilion.

It marked the most points ever scored against the 49ers in 14 seasons, surpassing the 106 registered by Los Angeles State four seasons ago.

Coach Dick Perry's 49ers rest today before resuming their Oklahoma invasion against Phillips 66 Monday night. They'll need the day off for the 66ers are defending national AAU champs.

It didn't take long to establish the tenor of Saturday's game. The officials charged a personal against John Rambo on the opening tip-off and foul No. 2 was whistled one second later. Before the contest was over, the men in stripe shirts had called 65 fouls—34 against Long Beach and 31 versus Tulsa.

• • • •

THE RUGGED Missouri Valley Conference outfit entered the game averaging 93 points, but for the first 10 minutes it appeared the Hurricanes would fall far short of this.

After scoring their field goal, Tulsa went eight minutes before cashing in No. 2. But in between the Hurricanes pumped in 18 free throws and managed to hold a slim 22-21 lead.

Ken Ammann squared matters at 24-24 with a basket—the last time the 49ers could honestly say they were in the game.

TU quickly shot ahead, 40-27, behind the fancy shooting of Carlos Gripado, a 6-6 junior from Pawhuska, Oklahoma. By halftime, Tulsa led, 55-42, but only because of its superior foul shooting. The T-Town boys sank only one more field goal (16-15) but held an 11-point bulge at the charity line.

The second half was never close as Tulsa got balanced fire power from Bob Fedorko, Bill Kusleika, Rick Park and Larry Berke. By the time coach Joe Swank pulled his regulars with 10 minutes still to play, each had hit double figures.

• • • •

PERRY WAS fit to be tied afterwards. "I just don't understand why we can't play defense. We work hard in practice but then in the game we just can't get the job done. The only man who does is Lyn (Hodge).

"Hodge did a great job on Kusleika, their leading scorer who was averaging 27 points before tonight. He was an all-Missouri Valley Conference selection last year and Lyn held him to 13 points. But we just can't get anyone else to

POST-GAME CONTRAST

Pirates Felt Best; NEO 'Beat Better'

By RAY CUNNINGHAM

The post-game contrast was evident. Surrounded by kisses and laughter was peewee Billy White, so excited he could hardly wait to hear what he was going to say. And all alone with a tan Stetson cocked over one eye was three-time loser Red Robertson, who looked as if he'd just swallowed a bagful of gravel.

Orange Coast College had just won the 18th annual Junior Rose Bowl game, 21-0, from Northeastern Oklahoma A&M.

The 5-4, 134-pound White, who doesn't appear to be much older than his number 11, was jubilant. His fine passing and general excellence were so instrumental in the victory that he was named "player of the game" in a close vote over teammate Mike Hunter.

Robertson, in his 19th season as coach of the Oklahoma squad, was heartsick with his boys' performance. "I'm just humiliated," he said. "We were terrible. I am just floored. I can't explain it."

• • • •

IT WAS HIS third trip to the Junior Rose Bowl and he has yet to win. It was evident throughout the game that he was disturbed and displeased as his boys went nowhere time and again. But he could do nothing. He was as helpless as the owner of a sick goldfish.

There was no doubt that Orange Coast soundly whipped the Golden Norsemen. But there were different explanations from the two teams.

As a group, Orange Coast players felt they were superior. Almost to the man they said that the Norsemen would have run into a lot of trouble if they'd been in the Eastern Conference.

And, almost to the man, Oklahoma players felt that they had beaten better teams this season but that for some reason they just couldn't get going Saturday.

Orange Coast's Dick Tucker, the polished young man in his second year of junior college coaching, gave North-

Goetta Posts Decisive 'Alamitos Futurity Win

By ERNIE MASON

With the big money waiting at the line of finish, Hugh Huntley's Goetta changed overnight from a charmaid to a princess Saturday afternoon as she made a mockery out of the second running of the $114,300 Los Alamitos Futurity.

Only two weeks ago Goetta was the toast of the quarter horse racing world, but two subsequent defeats stripped her of her charms until Saturday when she defeated the fastest 2-year-old sprinters in the world by a decisive one and one-quarter lengths.

J. W. and D. J. Burr's Maggie McGowan ran her usual steady race to finish second in a photo finish with D. C. Castrocova's Surgin Gold third, and the 6 to 5 favorite, previously unbeaten Tidy's Pleasure a badly chagrined fifth.

Tidy's Pleasure had no excuses, breaking alertly and holding as much as a one-length margin half way down the stretch. However, when Goetta got into high gear, Tidy's Pleasure slowly faded to be beaten nearly two lengths at the wire.

• • • •

IN POSTING the second most important victory of her career, and eighth out of 10 starts, Goetta earned $51,371 to boost her lifetime earnings to $186,058, second only to Jet Deck in total winnings. She turned the 350 yards in 17.6 seconds, fastest ever recorded for a 2-year-old and only one-tenth of a second off the world record of 17.5 held by Vandy's Flash.

A turnout of 11,106 racing patrons saw Goetta's backers pick up mutuel payoffs of $6.60, 3.80 and $3.20 across the board. It was the longest price against the Huntley miss in her entire career.

• • • •

MIGHTY Jet Deck became victimized by a bad break in the co-featured Hard Twist purse at 400 yards and finished out of the money for only the third time in 30 career starts.

The Western Stables' Scooper Chick, given a reprieve by Jet Deck's stumbling start, came on to win the Hard Twist by a convincing neck over Anna Dial, with Dariman third.

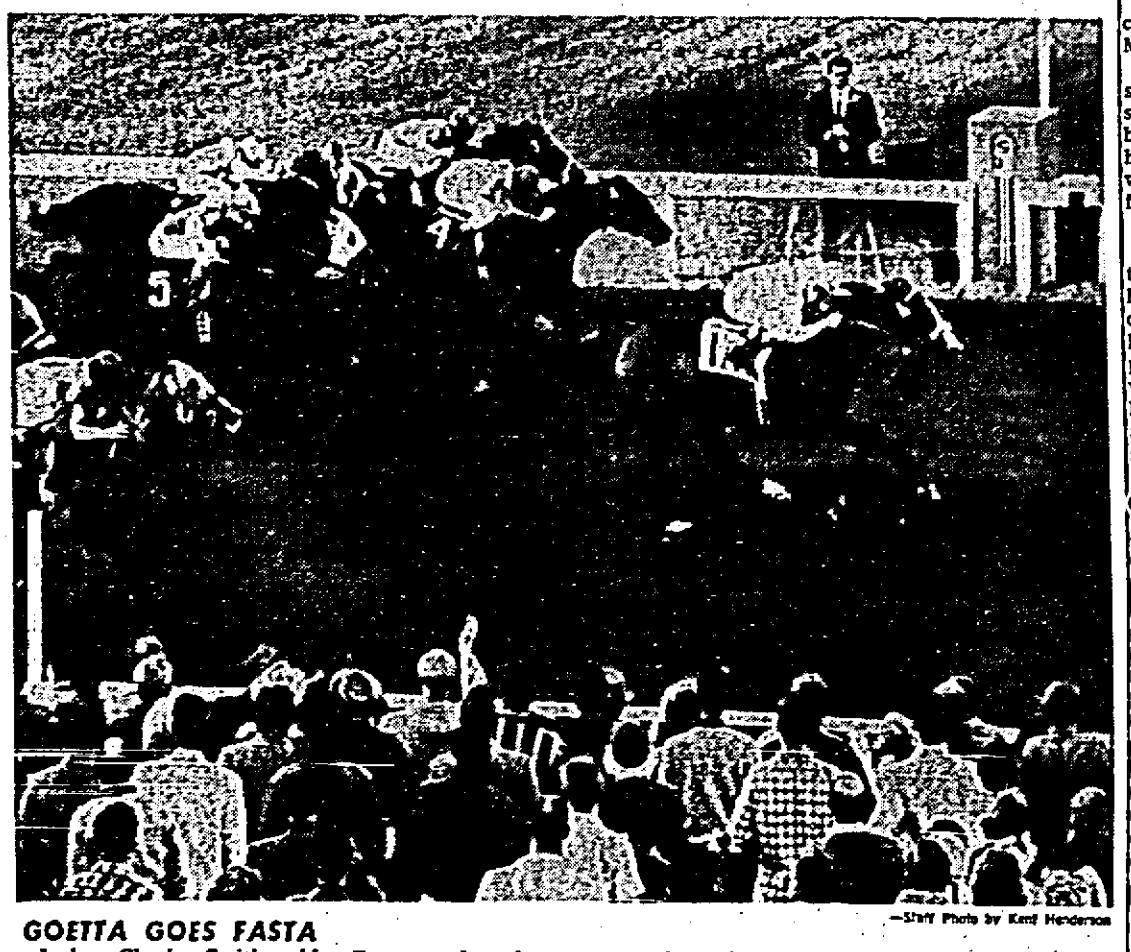

Scooper Chick was wasting no time with the champion quarter horse of all time eliminated, scooting the 400 yards in 19.9 seconds to equal the world record set here April 29, 1961 by Breeze Bar. The strong overnight second choice to Jet Deck, Scooper Chick paid a surprising win price of $13.60.

Coliseum Defends Parking

In the backwash of blistering criticism aimed at it during the USC-UCLA football game two weeks ago, the L. A. Coliseum has issued an informative and amusing communique on the number of parking spaces in its vicinity.

The statement begins:

"An exhaustive survey—made on foot, in cars and from the air—reveals that the Coliseum and Sports Arena has a total of 31,913 parking spaces within a six to 10 block radius of Exposition Park.

"Of this total, 19,850 spaces are free curb-side parking spaces available during events in an area that in acres corresponds to other large outdoor facilities in Greater Los Angeles."

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

Aw, come on, Bill Nicholas and Jack Tobin! You've got to be kidding about those 19,850 FREE curb-side parking spaces. I'll admit your exhaustive survey may have determined that there are that many spaces within your 10-block radius, but how many of those spaces are utilized by Coliseum or Arena patrons?

I'd be astonished if 1,000 FREE curb-side parking spaces are taken up by your patrons. Those spots are utilized by homeowners, their brothers, sisters, fathers and mothers who seem to come from nowhere about 10 a.m. the day of a game in order to park the family cars at the curb-side.

The object is obvious: Get the sucker to park in their driveway or on their front lawn for a neat $2.50 tab.

If you don't believe us, Bill and Jack, make a personal two-man survey the next time you have a major Coliseum attraction and find out how many of those FREE curb-side parking areas are NOT being used by your patrons.

Another thing. Your survey pointed out that 11,063 parking lot stalls (both the state-operated ones and those of private operations) are available. Have you ever tried to get OUT of those traps after a big game? I realize this is beyond your jurisdiction, but I thought I'd point it out.

Coliseum and Sports Arena parking is anything but a pleasure. Not that your operation is any different from Dodger Stadium, but the harassed baseball patron has some advantages:

1. He can leave after seven innings, usually without missing too much.

2. He can enjoy Walter O'Malley's beer (or wines, if he belongs to the Stadium Club) for an hour after each contest when the jam is alleviated.

O'Malley does have a major disadvantage, however. He doesn't have those 19,850 FREE curb-side parking spaces . . . and why do you think he built his Taj Mahal on the site of an old Indian burial ground? The Indians never gave anything away FREE.

GRABBING THE BRASS RINGS:

. . . The Nicholas-Tobin survey pointed out a further curious bit of information: Regular service Metropolitan Transit Authority buses delivered 816 passengers to the Coliseum, but 1,111 used MTA service to go home. (I thought MORE than 300 people got boiled at traditional football games that lured 82,426 fans!)

. . . April flowers, from the South Bend Tribune column of Joe Doyle (on April 18): "Coach Hugh Devore's move in opening spring practice to fans and students is certainly a welcome one. In recent years in football, there has been a growing gap between the athletes and the other students in colleges." (The gap at Notre Dame hasn't been so noticeable. Most of their athletes ARE students . . . at least that's what the Irish football record would indicate. And I hope this sarcasm doesn't make Frank X. O'Neil, John Rochford and Chuck Johnson TOO angry.)

. . . When the U. of Washington football team arrives here this afternoon, I hope none of the press asks big Jim Owens this question: "How does it feel to be in the Rose Bowl with the worst record in years?" (I understand a Seattle writer made that interrogation and almost had his head presented to him on a platter.)

. . . Early prediction: The Huskies to win another Rose Bowl game next Jan. 1. Owens means business . . . and that's good enough for me.

BACK IN Southern Calif. on recruiting assignments is Stanford's John Ralston, the tireless young man. John's not happy with his infant season's 3-7 record, but he's not ready to leap off Belmont Pier, either. "I look back at some of our losses and admit they were the result of coaching mistakes," says John. "It takes time to honestly evaluate all the personnel and also for the coaches to function together properly."

. . . The sudden resignation of Cal's Marv Levy caught Ralston by surprise, too. An ex-Golden Bear himself, Ralston quickly answered Old Blues in this area when they wondered if John might be ready to listen to a Cal coaching offer. "Absolutely not," snapped Ralston. "I'm happy at Stanford. Period."

. . . Ralston's three wins put him in good stead with the always-problem alumni. He whipped two neighborhood foes—Cal and San Jose St.—and the famous Notre Dame Irish (before a national TV audience). He barely lost to UCLA, Washington and Oregon State. Just a bit of luck would have given him a tremendous 6-4 first-year mark.

. . . P.S. Don't look for Cal to name a head coach immediately. I think the Berkeleys could do much worse than hire Dick Stanfel, the ex-USF and Detroit Lion giant. Stanfel is rough, as Bear linemen learned this season. The Bears need teeth . . . and Stanfel will supply that commodity, or personally knock out the molars himself.

PIMENTEL, ASIS BATTLE AT L.A. SPORTS ARENA

Bantamweight title contenders Jesus Pimentel of Mexicali, Mex., and Rey Asis of Stockton, Calif., headline a fight card scheduled for Monday night in the L. A. Sports Arena.

Pimentel, who has registered 25 straight knockouts, is favored over Asis, a native of the Philippines who has never been stopped in 65 bouts.

Pimentel is rated the No. 1 challenger and Asis No. 4 for the title held by Brazil's Eder Jofre. The winner hopes to meet the champion.

Pimentel, who has never fought a ranked fighter before, was originally booked to box Mimum Ben Ali of Spain but the latter cancelled out of the match.

Heavyweight Eddie Machen was originally slated to headline the card, a charity affair sponsored by the Friars' Club, but the California Athletic Commission refused to approve Johnny Riggins of San Francisco as a suitable opponent.

Lakers Rally for Win Over Bullets

By DON HARDIN

If there is a spring loose in your watch, then it must be repaired with another.

Jerry West is about the best person to repair such a spring in the Lakers' attack.

West, the kid from Cabin Creek, took up the slack from Elgin Baylor's absence, as usual, Saturday night, scoring 38 points to help the Lakers to a 113-108 victory over the Baltimore Bullets.

In winning, the Lakers built up their lead in the Western Division of the NBA over the St. Louis Hawks, whom they meet tonight at 7:05 in the L.A. Sports Arena where they won Saturday night.

West, who scored only 11 points in the first half, repeatedly drew fouls, missed only one free throw out of 16 attempts in the second half while scoring six field goals to enable the Lakers to overcome a 54-46 halftime deficit.

• • • •

DICK BARNETT contributed greatly, also, to the Lakers' winning cause with 27 points. The southpaw got 10 of his from the charity line.

Gene Wiley, aided by Rudy LaRusso, held the Bullets' towering Walt Bellamy to 21 points, all but five of them coming in the final period when the Lakers just about had the affair sewed up. Wiley had nine blocked shots!

LaRusso, who has been having to share the defensive burden since Elg's afflictions, was tremendous in every respect.

Other than his outstanding defensive work, Rudy scored 19 points.

Rod Thorn, a likeness of West, led the Bullets with 29 points and Terry Dischinger had 23.

Baylor will suit up tonight but possibly will not play.

• • • •

OF COURSE, the Bullets are not the best drawing team in the league, but still the crowd of 5,671 was disappointing. Baylor's name alone means hundreds—even thousands—extra fans for a game. But, Elg stayed home because of a severe cold.

There were West Virginians, ex-Lakers and all kinds of relatives vying in the first half.

Thorn, from West Virginia University, scored 16 points. He was West's predecessor at that university.

Coach Fred Schaus of the Lakers also was that school's mentor.

Bruins Outclass Ranking Kansas; Troy Falls Again

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Unbeaten UCLA handed 10th-ranked Kansas its first defeat Saturday, 74-54, and completed a two-night sweep in the seventh annual Sunflower doubleheader series.

USC lost the second game to Kansas State, 82-58, drawing a blank for the weekend before 12,000 fans.

• • • •

THE BRUINS were never behind as they rode to a 33-27 halftime lead behind the shooting of Gail Goodrich. Then they rode with the ball-hawking, floor play and shooting of Walt Hazzard for their victory.

UCLA now has a 4-0 season record, Kansas 4-1.

Goodrich led the scoring with 23 points, 12 in the first half. Sophomore Steve Renko kept UCLA from making the second half a complete rout by hitting 16 points. He led the Jayhawks with 21.

Kansas State gained a split in the doubleheader by dumping Southern California.

The Wildcats were paced by Willie Murrell with 29 points, 17 of them coming in the first half. Murrell regained some lost prestige as he was held to 6 points in Friday night's loss to UCLA.

• • • •

MACK MOSS, Wildcat guard, chipped in 13 points and played an outstanding floor game, setting up several Wildcat scores off the backboards.

Both coaches substituted freely.

John Block, Trojan center, led USC scorers with 20 points.

Blades Barraged by Denver, 9-4

DENVER (AP) — Two four-goal periods helped the Denver Invaders to a 9-4 victory over the Los Angeles Blades in a Western Hockey League game Saturday night.

The victory increased Denver's league lead over second-place Seattle to five points.

It was the ninth consecutive home triumph for the Invaders.

Denver scored four times in the first and in the last periods, skating far out of reach of the visitors after Los Angeles closed the breach to 5-4 at the end of the second period.

Larry Keenan, Gary Jarrett and Steve Witiuk each scored two goals for the Invaders.

Hodge also wound up Long Beach's leading scorer with 17 points and was high in the rebound department as well with 11. Here was one of the big differences as Tulsa doubled LBSC's rebound production, 80-40.

Ammann was L.B.'s next highest scorer with 13 while Al Windfeldt got 11.

John Barnicoat, who went into the contest with a 19-point average, was strapped with his fourth personal with 9:54 left in the first half. He sat out much of the remainder of the game to put a big dent in the visitors attack. He totaled only six points.

Poly Wins Third Place; Dons Beaten by Glendale

By RALPH OLMO

Cold-shooting Dominguez High did very little right Saturday night and lost its own basketball tournament to Glendale, 49-44. It was the Dons' first loss this season.

Poly returned to the victory circle in the game for third place, whipping Anaheim 67-59. Crescenta Valley won the consolation crown and Redlands finished seventh.

Dominguez could convert only one field goal in the first 10 minutes and never led the tall Dynamiters, who were not good enough to finish better than ninth in the recent Pacific Shores tourney.

Herb Hargate was again a one-man scoring machine for Dominguez, contributing 25 points. The lanky forward was named the tourney's top player and led all scorers with 87 points.

Poly landed three players on the all-tourney team—center Mel Reed, soph forward Chuck Moore and guard Billy Richard. Others were Ed Palmer and Bill Paulson of Glendale, Bill Holt of Dominguez, Pat Watt of Anaheim, Gene Sutherland of Crescenta Valley and Doug Eckert of Palos Verdes.

The Rabbits had a 10-point lead at halftime, saw that margin reduced to four in the final period and then used baskets by Moore and Trent Gaines to move away to a comfortable bulge. Moore finished with 61 points in four games and Reed 58.

YAKIMA, Wash. (UPI) — More than a ton of apples will be sent to the University of Washington's Rose Bowl training camp in Long Beach, Calif., the Yakima Monday Morning Quarterback Club, local apple shippers and the State Apple Commission said Saturday.

Residents of this apple growing area imply their traditional health-giving product may have had something to do with Washington Rose Bowl victories in 1960 and 1961.

Green Bay Keeps Hopes Alive, 21-17

Man to Man

WYNN

KIRKLAND

By JERRY WYNN

The toughest job in football isn't coach or quarterback. It is being an official.

Just ask Frank Kirkland.

The energetic director of recreation at Long Beach Naval Base has been wearing a striped shirt on weekends for 14 years. This year, he is a rookie official in the American Football League.

A Long Beach native, Kirkland is well qualified to call the shots on the playing field. He was an all-CIF center at Compton High, an all-America jaycee at Compton College and played football and basketball at the University of Santa Barbara.

First, Frank, could you outline the individual responsibilities of a pro football official?

"There are five officials in a game. The referee is the senior member of the crew and the deciding factor; the head linesman is responsible for offsides, the chains and his side of the field; the back judge is opposite the head linesman and is responsible for motion calls, offsides and his side of the field; the field judge is responsible for timing and deep passes down the middle; the umpire is responsible for interior linemen and calls penalties for illegal use of hands."

How much does an official get paid?

"In the American League, we get paid by the season and average about $150 a game including pre-season. The National League hires its officials by the game. I think they get $250 a game and $125 for pre-season."

Is the pay too much or too little?

"Too little."

What is considered the toughest play to call?

"Pass interference. You have to be guided by the position of the ball and the player's bona fide attempt to get two hands on the ball. The rule book says you can 'go through a man.' But a lot of players try to cut a man in half and that's not the intent of the rule."

Have you encountered any dirty play this season?

"No. I have not had to call any unnecessary roughness penalties except for minor cases of piling-on. There has been no intentional or malicious roughness. There is a $100 fine in the AFL for being kicked out of a game and the players are aware of it."

Does the noise of a rabid home crowd have any effect on an official?

"Not at all. Sure you can hear the crowd, but it doesn't affect your decision. The reason for a lot of the booing is that fans don't know the pro rules."

How do AFL teams compare with the NFL?

"I truthfully think two or three of the AFL teams could fit in the NFL right now. I'd like to see them play a world series. I think a team like the Chargers could give any NFL team a game. I know they can offensively. I don't know defensively."

Who are some of the AFL players who have impressed you the most?

"Lance Alworth and Keith Lincoln of San Diego are top backs. Alworth is an identical copy of Jon Arnett in his prime. He has tremendous speed and mobility. Lincoln is just a real good hard-nosed player who loves to run."

What was the toughest call you ever made?

"I had a tough one this season in a game between Houston and Buffalo in Texas. It was an offensive pass interference penalty which cost Buffalo a touchdown. The receiver went straight at the safetyman, pushed off and then caught the pass."

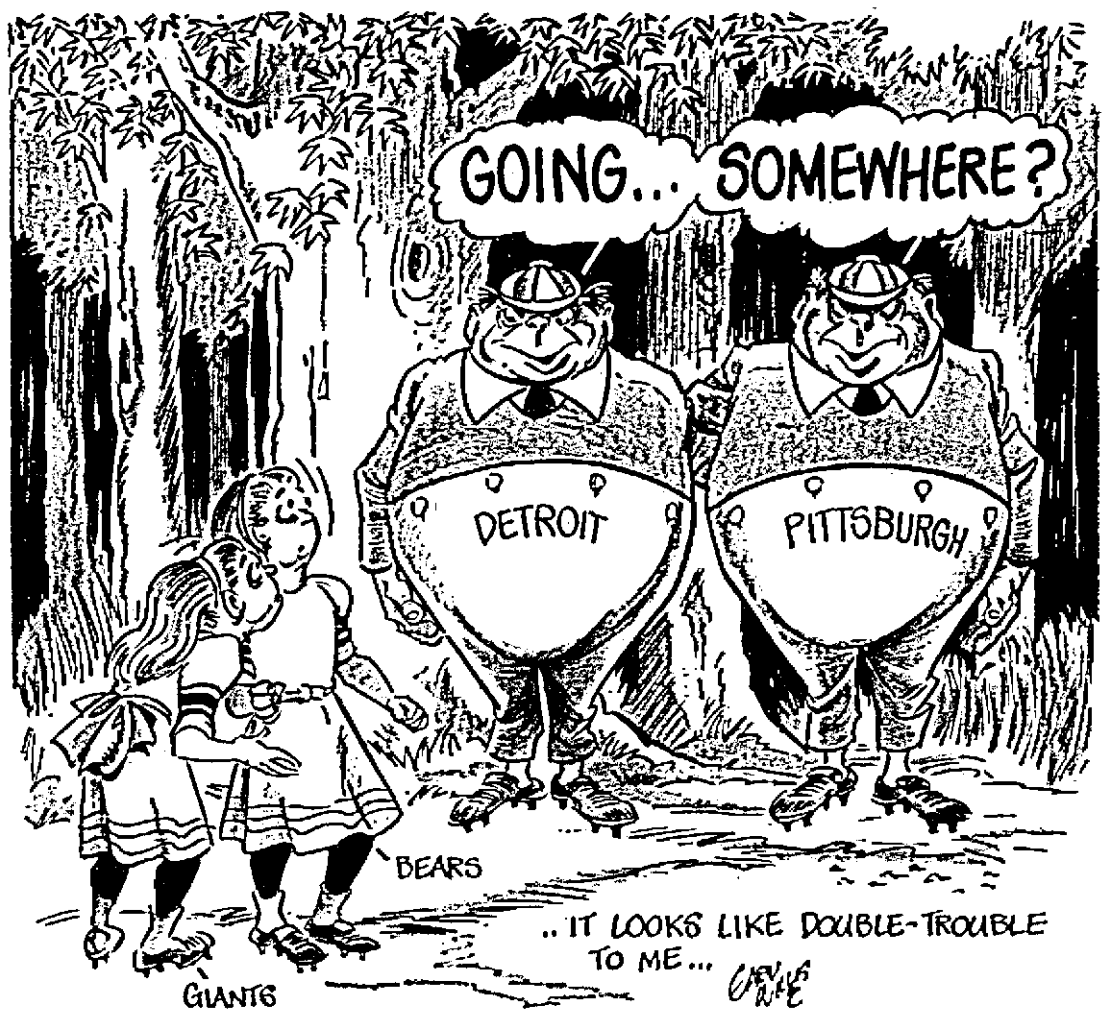

What kind of athletic program do you have at the Navy Base?

"The emphasis has gone from varsity to intramural competition. We have 55 teams playing basketball, 73 teams playing softball, 130 teams bowling and a golf league."

Is it true that no one loves an official except his family?

"Yes, and sometimes I wonder about them. It's like the wife of Lenny Dawson (Kansas City quarterback) said when she was asked if she objected to fans booing her husband. She answered, 'No, sometimes I feel like booing him myself!' "

Boo them or cheer them, but football has to have fine officials such as Frank Kirkland.

Starr-Led Air Game Decisive

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Green Bay Packers kept their championship hopes alive Saturday with a "long bomb" attack that edged the San Francisco 49ers, 21-17.

The Packers now have to depend on the Detroit Lions to defeat the Chicago Bears today to give Green Bay its fourth consecutive Western Division National Football League crown.

Fought to a standstill on the ground by an aroused defense, the Packers took to the air for the victory. Quarterback Bart Starr found Boyd Dowler behind the San Francisco secondary with passes that were good for 53 and 50 yard touchdowns. That spelled the difference.

* * * *

THE PACKERS had marched 78 yards to a score the first time they got the ball with Tom Moore piling over from the one. But the 49ers came back with an 80-yard ground drive of their own featuring J. D. Smith and the veteran Joe Perry. The score came when Smith piled over from the two.

On the ensuing kickoff, Green Bay fumbled and San Francisco recovered on the Packer 23. This attack stalled on the 15 and two minutes after the Packers got the ball, Starr faked and then hit Dowler with his first touchdown bomb.

San Francisco came right back to knot the count at 14-14 when Smith broke over tackle and went 52 yards to score.

* * * *

STARR'S NEXT bomb to Dowler came in the third quarter and put the Packers ahead to stay. Tommy Davis, who tied the National League record of 156 consecutive conversions with his conversion after the second San Francisco touchdown, kicked a 44-yard field goal in the last quarter.

HOUSTON (UPI) — Sophomore Mike Spratt scored twice on reverses of 31 and 20 yards to give the Houston Cougars a 21-7 win Saturday over the big but slow Louisville Cardinals.

Colts Favored in Finale With Rams

By JERRY WYNN
L. P-T Staff Writer

BALTIMORE — The Rams invade the world's largest outdoor insane asylum, Baltimore's Memorial Stadium, to battle the Colts today in their final game of the season.

There are no more rabid pro football fans than the citizens of the crabcake town on the Chesapeake, and a crowd of 53,000 is expected despite weather ideal for fireplace quarterbacks. It snowed here earlier in the week and there is a chance for more today.

Channel 2, 11 a.m.

Baltimore is favored by nine points to reverse the 17-16 defeat it took from the Rams at the Coliseum three weeks ago. With Johnny Unitas riding high in the saddle, the Colts since then have galloped over the Redskins, 56-20, and Vikings, 41-10.

Unitas never has been sharper. In his last five games, he has completed 65.7 per cent of his passes. His season's percentage of 57.9 exceeds his best of 57.1 in 1957. Against Minnesota, he passed for 344 yards to break his own season club yardage record with 3,158.

* * * *

MOREOVER, statistics can't do justice to the excellence of Unitas' signal-calling and ball-handling.

If Baltimore needs added incentive today, it has it. For it will be the final game for Gino Marchetti, the great defensive end who has announced his retirement after a career of 12 years.

The Colts also need a win to boost their record to 8-6 and give coach Don Shula a successful rookie year.

So it would appear that the Rams will have to be at their best today to produce the upset which would climax their best season since 1958. A victory coupled with a Detroit defeat at Chicago would enable the Rams to finish in fourth place with a record of 6-8.

Coach Harland Svare will pin his hopes on the sturdy shoulders of Roman Gabriel, the sophomore quarterback star, who for one half last Saturday was a 14-10 winner over the Packers. The Rams are at full strength with the exception of Jon Arnett, who still is hobbled by a pulled leg muscle.

'SEASON STARTS TODAY'

Tab Giants, Bears in Title Matches

By Associated Press

"The season," said Jim Katcavage, "starts at 2:05 Sunday afternoon."

This, of course, may be a mild over-simplification. But only a mild one. It took 92 National Football League games to set the stage for this one, the winner-take-all battle between the New York Giants and Pittsburgh Steelers for the Eastern Conference title.

There's no way they can end up sharing it. Someone wins and someone loses. The Giants are favored by 7 points.

The Giants can grab their third in a row with a win or a tie. The Steelers, who have had more than their share of ties this season, have to win to take their first conference title.

The Steelers pinned a 31-0 humiliation on the Giants in their first game this season, but bald old Y. A. Tittle, key to the Giants' offense, missed that game.

The Giants take a 10-3 record into the final regular season game, while the Steelers are 7-3-3. It developed into a two-team race last week when Cleveland was eliminated 38-10 by Detroit and St. Louis dropped out despite a 38-14 victory over Philadelphia. The Browns and Cards each have a 9-4 mark.

In the West, the defending champion Green Bay Packers won their Saturday game at San Francisco to stay alive. They are 11-2-1.

The Chicago Bears take a 10-1-2 mark into their season windup, a home game against Detroit, 5-7-1. A Chicago victory will clinch the Western title for "coach of the year" George Halas.

The Bears won the first match from the Lions, 37-21, on the strength of a 28-point second quarter. They are picked by six points this time.

The Steelers lost to Cleveland, St. Louis and Green Bay. They tied Philadelphia twice and Chicago once. New York lost to the Steelers, Cards and Browns.

"If we don't beat Pittsburgh once," said Giant linebacker Sam Huff, 'we don't deserve it."

Both teams are healthy. The Giants are expected to have fullback Alex Webster back in action for the first time in four weeks.

QUANTICO IN MISSILE BOWL WIN OVER S.D.

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI)—Dick Bainbridge, a third-string defensive end starting his first game, turned in two key pass interceptions Saturday to spark Quantico to a 13-10 victory over San Diego before 8,000 fans in the fourth annual Missile Bowl football game.

Bainbridge's first interception started the drive for the winning touchdown. His second halted San Diego on the Quantico 18.

Quantico scored the winning touchdown when quarterback Tom Singleton hit Herm Brausch with a screen pass good for 26 yards.

Birmingham Nips L.A. for Prep Grid Title

Craig Schusterick tossed a 25-yard pass to Bill Hayhoe to break a 14-14 tie and give the Birmingham Braves the L.A. City football championship over the Los Angeles High Romans, 21-14, Saturday at East L.A. Field.

Mira Entertains Eager Offers by S.F., Denver

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The San Francisco 49ers and the Denver Broncos entered into spirited bidding Saturday night for George Mira, Miami's great passing quarterback.

Lou Spada of the 49ers and Ray Malavasi of the Broncos opened negotiations with Mira shortly after the Hurricane quarterback put on a spectacular passing performance in Miami's 17-12 loss to fifth ranked Alabama.

"I don't want to rush into anything," Mira said. "I'll just sort of wait and see what develops. Maybe I'll decide tomorrow or the next day."

St. John's Scores Win in Camelia Bowl

SACRAMENTO — Quarterback Craig Muyres tossed two touchdown passes Saturday to lead St. John's of Minnesota to a 33-27 win over Prairie View of Texas in the Camelia Bowl.

The victory gave the Johnnies the 1963 NAIA small college football championship.

MIRA IN RECORD EFFORT, BUT . . .

Hurricanes 'Blow' to Tide

MIAMI (UPI) — Alabama, its offense faltering badly, sent its fastest back 102 yards to the end zone with the opening kickoff Saturday, then scored a touchdown and field goal on Miami fumbles for a 17-12 victory over the late-surging Hurricanes.

Miami, fired by passing flash Georga Mira, scored twice in the final period, but a last-minute drive for a third touchdown was shut off by a pass interception.

The nationally televised game was the last for Miami—and for retiring Miami coach Andy Gustafson—and Mira captured the national total offense championship.

Miami statisticians said that Mira's 301 yards passing and 23 yards rushing boosted his season total offense record to 2,326 yards, bettering Don Trull of Baylor, who had 2,276 yards.

The magical "Matador" completed 24 passes, enough to boost his career record to 368 completions and tie the major collegiate record of Loyola's Don Klosterman.

The Hurricanes outplayed Alabama offensively, but made too many mistakes to whip the Sugar Bowl-bound Crimson Tide — obviously hurt badly by the loss of quarterback Joe Namath, suspended last week for breaking training rules.

Runback specialist Gary Martin got the Tide started by grabbing the opening kickoff two yards inside his end zone, finding a bracket of blockers and storming untouched down the sidelines.

Tunney Beat Dempsey With Psychology

I was quite surprised the past week when Jack Dempsey admitted he may have been slipped a mickey before he went into the ring against Gene Tunney in the first of their two fights.

Oh, not at the fact that such things happen. We have revealed many such instances in the past.

Latest fighter to reveal he had been slipped something was Ingemar Johansson. He claims that before his second fight with Patterson—he was champion then—a drug was put into his food the day before the fight and he was ill all night. He claims he still was weak when he entered the ring.

Harold Johnson was drugged in his dressing room before a TV fight when he ate a drugged orange.

JACK DEMPSEY
"Tunney Made Me an Idol"

You can't trust anyone in the fight game. For instance, the boxing mob allegedly had a man planted in Max Schmeling's corner the night he fought Joe Louis for the heavyweight title.

The world was on the brink of war and the mob was afraid that if Schmeling beat Louis, he would take the title back to Germany and "freeze it."

Schmeling earlier had knocked out Louis before Joe became champ. It was the Brown Bomber's first of three defeats as a pro. Presumably, if Louis hadn't been able to handle the German again, the cornerman would have used some means to "stop" Max . . . such as putting something in his eyes while wiping off his face.

However, such action was not necessary. Louis knocked out Schmeling in the first round with one of the most savage attacks in ring history.

Incidents like these have been common in the fight game down through the years.

IT MAY WELL HAVE happened to Dempsey, but I still was surprised to hear him say it because in a private conversation with him a few years ago, he told me that the best thing that ever happened to him was to lose to Tunney. "I would have been just another ex-champion . . . and not a particularly popular one at that. But Tunney made me an idol and set me up for life," Jack said.

Dempsey was very unpopular during World War I and for a few years afterward. He was called a slacker when he didn't go into the service, but the "long count" in the second bout with Tunney wiped out all this feeling and gained immortality for Jack.

Many boxing men claim that Tunney beat Dempsey in their first fight with a great job of psychology, first by reading Shakespeare and then by flying from his training camp to the weigh-in ceremonies.

Flying was still considered extremely dangerous in those days and a man close to Dempsey later confided that the more Jack thought about it before the fight, the more it bothered him.

He figured that if Tunney wasn't afraid to fly before such an important fight, he certainly wasn't afraid of Dempsey . . . "and Jack's confidence steadily deteriorated between the weigh-in ceremonies and the time he went into the ring."

HAROLD F. PIERCE, who did some fighting in the Navy as Bruno Piaskowski, writes to say he was serving aboard the old coal-burning battleship, USS Utah, in 1925 when she made a midshipman's cruise of the West Coast.

"With us," he reveals, "was Spike Webb, the noted boxing coach of the Naval Academy. One day, he told us about Dempsey. 'No man in the world today can stand up to him,' he told us.

"But if Dempsey continues the way he has and doesn't fight before another year, there is one fighter that might take him,' Webb went on. 'That man is Gene Tunney. I trained him when he won the AEF light-heavyweight title overseas. He is a good, cool, smart boxer. He has studied every one of Dempsey's fights and has been practicing running backwards for a year. He could beat Dempsey a year from now if Jack continues his present life and inactivity.'"

Dempsey, of course, had been idle for three years when he finally met Tunney on Sept. 23, 1926, in Philadelphia.

A LOT OF HANKY-PANKY went on around that time. After Tunney decisioned Dempsey in 10 rounds to win the title, Jack was matched with Jack Sharkey in a comeback bout leading up to a return fight with Gene in Chicago in 1927.

The story, as told to us by a man in the boxing game, was that Sharkey reportedly was "promised" the heavyweight title at a later date by the guys who ran the boxing game if he lost to Dempsey.

Dempsey, of course, won the fight and then met Tunney a second time. In the 7th round, Jack finally caught up with Gene and knocked him down. He wouldn't go to a neutral corner immediately, though, and the referee refused to start the count until he did. That is how the "long count" of 14 seconds occurred.

Few people remember that after Tunney weathered the round, he took complete command of the fight again and pummeled Dempsey almost at will in the final three rounds and even had Jack on the floor. Dempsey probably wouldn't have been able to last the 15-round distance now used for title bouts.

ANYWAY, AFTER Tunney retired . . . Sharkey and Schmeling were matched to decide his successor.

Schmeling dropped to the floor claiming foul in the 4th round and his manager, Joe Jacobs, stampeded the referee into awarding the German the fight and title on a foul although doctors later claimed Max wasn't hurt that badly by the blow. From this incident stemmed the rule that a fight cannot be won on a foul.

The two were rematched. This time, according to many ringsiders, Schmeling actually outpointed Sharkey, but the latter was given the decision. A "promise," thus, may well have been kept.

Sharkey later lost the title to Primo Carnera when he was knocked out by the now famous "invisible punch." It was a fitting end to a series of strange developments.

SCHEDULE 2 TITLE BOUTS

The biggest attraction in wrestling is on the schedule this week for the final Long Beach card of the year.

It's Bearcat Wright against Edouard Carpentier in a heavyweight championship match. But there actually will be two championship matches, since the new tag team champions, Mr. Moto and Kintaro Oki, will be back to oppose Freddie Blassie and The Preacher.

PAT, it was 7-0 and the game was all over.

HUNTER SCORED the game's second TD on a twisting 53-yard punt return with three minutes to go in the half. Taking the ball on one bounce over his shoulder, Hunter got a great block from Dick Gordon at A&M's 40 and then turned on the speed to romp the rest of the way down the center of the field after starting near Northeastern's bench on the left sideline.

After that it was hard to tell if Orange Coast was that good or Northeastern that bad.

Northeastern's one big chance came early in the final period on a drive that started at its own 47 and moved down the field with George Kevern and Rich Enyart doing the most damage.

* * * *

WITH A first-and-goal on the OCC five, two plays could gain only two yards before Andy Sixkiller, a full-blooded Cherokee Indian, went around left end and into the end zone.

However, the left end on the play was called for facing sideways, instead of ahead on the line of scrimmage and an illegal formation call pushed them back to the eight and ended the threat as a fourth-down pass fell incomplete.

Northeastern, trying to gamble late in the game, gave up the ball on fourth down on OCC's 45 that led to the final TD of the game.

Sub quarterback Larry Jones from Gary, Ind., directed the seven-play march.

* * * *

HUNTER was a one-man show in the final minutes of the game, scrambling 18 yards to the Northeastern 35. Two plays later he caught a 29-yard pass from Jones for the TD with 1:15 to go. Haynes made his third PAT in a row.

Hunter was the game's top rusher and receiver. He gained 58 yards on seven carries for an 8.28 average and caught six passes for 78 yards besides scoring twice.

It was difficult to see how Northeastern was the No. 1-rated jaycee team in the country.

The Golden Norsemen's offense left a lot to be desired, their team speed couldn't equal the Belmont Bears and there wasn't anything speedy about star end "Speedy" Gonzales.

It was the third loss for Northeastern in the JRB, giving the Norsemen a dubious record, and after looking at the best of the rest the last two years, there shouldn't be any doubt as to what part of the country has the top caliber of junior college football.

BIGGEST MAN ON FIELD

Orange Coast College's 5-4, 134-pound quarterback, Billy White, was named "player of the game" for leading 21-0 Junior Rose Bowl win over Northeastern Oklahoma. White completed 8 of 14 passes for 115 yards and one touchdown.

eastern more credit than his players did.

"They had a good football team," said Tucker. "They were not underrated. After all, remember they had beaten the number one team in five different states.

"BUT TODAY we played our finest defensive game of the year, and we put it together with an excellent offense.

DICK TUCKER
Best Defensive Game

"Our whole team was superb, but offhand I'd say that defensive end Ken Madison, Hunter and Billy were at their best."

Madison, Hunter and White all thought that Orange Coast coaches had done a remarkable job scouting Northeastern and that the Norsemen didn't hunter, whose great punt runback gave the Pirates their second touchdown, had a lot of praise for Northeastern's all-purpose back Andy Sixkiller. And White said that he was bothered in the second half by the hard rushes of 212-pound Norseman tackle Howard Glen.

"He was on my neck all the time," revealed Billy. "And he really coldcocked me in the fourth quarter."

* * * *

TWO LINEMEN, 275-pound tackle Ron Cray and left end Mike Fazio, summed up most of the Orange Coast feelings, though.

Cray said the Oklahomans "just didn't pop. They were slow and didn't hit hard. They just didn't pop. That's all."

Fazio said, "I sure don't mean to be disrespectful, but they ran like they had sewing machines on their backs."

In the Oklahoma dressing room there was bewilderment. Almost no one, not even coach Robertson, would say that Orange Coast was the best team the Norsemen had faced.

Stars like Sixkiller, George Kevern and Pete Moseley all felt they were better than the men from Orange County, but they, like their coach, just couldn't understand how they lost.

The only one who did come up with an explanation was the heralded right end, Flo (Speedy) Gonzales. He said, "I guess they were better'n us."

O'BRIEN BIDS FOR FOURTH OLYMPIAD

Parry O'Brien, who "retires" from shotput participation each year, will be a full-time competitor in 1964, he revealed Saturday.

The Beverly Hills banker hopes to become the first American to compete in four Olympiads. O'Brien won gold medals in 1952 and '56, a silver medal in '60.

O'Brien opens his "target Tokyo" campaign Jan. 18 in the Los Angeles Invitational at the L.A. Sports Arena.

EASTERN CONFERENCE DEFENDED BY TUCKER

Orange Coast College's Dick Tucker, whose unbeaten Pirates ripped Northeastern Oklahoma A&M in Saturday's Junior Rose Bowl game, put in a plug for the Eastern Conference in a post-game interview.

"I don't go along with the feeling of many that the Eastern Conference is weak," said the 37-year-old mentor who has gained Jaycee coaching prestige in only his second season.

"I saw both Long Beach and Bakersfield this year," he said, "and both were tremendous. But I think that last year's Santa Ana team and this year's Orange Coast squad are every bit as good if not better.

"It may be true," he admitted, "that the Eastern Conference may not be as strong in the overall sports outlook, but in football I think our top teams are on a par with those of any other conference."

E. Sadowski Sold; Haddix to Birds

With the inter-league trading deadline set for midnight tonight, there was a scattering of activity on the major league front Saturday.

The Angels sold veteran catcher Ed Sadowski to Hawaii and purchased three first-year players who may later be optioned under the provisions adopted at the recent baseball meetings.

The Angels purchased 19-year-old catcher George Pena from Quad-Cities, 20-year-old pitcher Chris Maneff from Quad-Cities and 18-year-old outfielder Jay Johnstone from San Jose.

Pittsburgh traded southpaw Harvey Haddix to Baltimore for minor league shortstop Dick Yencha and an undisclosed amount of cash. The deal is conditional with the Orioles having the first 30-days of the 1964 season to decide if they want to keep Haddix.

Johnny Temple, who retired from baseball and the Houston Colt .45s at the close of the 1963 season, has signed as a coach with Cincinnati.

Prep Honors to Motley, Heckman, McKenzie

Wilson, Poly Head All-City Teams

By DOUG IVES

Poly High's multi-talented halfback, Marv Motley, and a pair of hard-nosed Wilson linemen, Bob Heckman and Doug McKenzie, have won the most cherished of Long Beach prep football awards.

The dynamic 155-pound Motley has been selected back of the year and the durable Heckman and McKenzie co-linemen of the 1963 season on the All-City high school team chosen by the Independent, Press-Telegram Board of Athletics.

Co-Moore League champions Wilson and Poly dominated the 12-man offensive and defensive teams, landing nine of the offensive berths and six of the defensive positions.

• • • •

MOTLEY, probably the best back Long Beach has seen since Willie Brown, gobbled up 1,204 yards and averaged 9.4 yards per carry in 10 games and tacked on 18 touchdowns and 22 pass receptions as well.

Despite his size, he ran with power as well as speed, and he blocked extremely well. Last season he was rated Poly's best blocker and this season he was ranked second.

Only three other players, Brown, Joe Pearson and Dee Andrews, all of Poly, ever gained more yardage than Motley in one season, and Brown and Andrews had the opportunity to play more games.

The highlight of Motley's season came in the second-round playoff game against El Rancho when he ran for 185 yards, scored four times and caught six passes in a fantastic effort.

Unfortunately, that was also the game Poly had its win reversed by CIF executive committee decree for a rule violation.

Heckman and McKenzie were noted for their defensive abilities on a Wilson team which broke a school record with six shutouts, but both were complete players who did everything well.

• • • •

THE CHARGE of the 195-pound Heckman from his center position and the might of the 202-pound McKenzie from his tackle spot were big factors in making the Wilson ground attack go.

Defensively, Heckman was the middle linebacker and had the difficult job of calling signals. McKenzie played tackle (and some end) on defense. Both were 48-minute players, a rarity these days, and the two were the only ones chosen on both All-City squads.

Joining Motley in the dream backfield were teammates Gene Washington and Earl McCullough, Wilson's Pat Cashman and Millikan's Bill Meyer. Poly's Ike McCraw and Millikan's Denny Moulton were the ends.

In the line, Poly's Rich Spindler won the other tackle spot. McKenzie and Wilson's Mike Wike and Lakewood's Harold Olmstead were picked at guards. Heckman, of course, was the center.

• • • •

DEFENSIVELY, Millikan's Jim Blecha, Poly's Pete Tingom, St. Anthony's Dave Evans, Jordan's Dave Borelli and Wilson's Rod Everling and McKenzie formed the sizeable six (average 219 pounds) up front.

St. Anthony's Tony Terry and Wilson's Tom Cadwallader were paired with Heckman at linebacker, while Poly's Russ Lewis, Jordan's Jim Keck and Millikan's Tom Beckley were the defensive backs.

Poly's Washington was the best passer since Wilson's Bob Bailey. He connected on 64 per cent of his aerials and set season records in total yards throwing (1,145) and in touchdown tosses (12). He's a junior, the only one on the offensive squad.

Cashman was called by coach Skip Rowland "my best running back ever" and his 843 yards and 6.7 average helped prove this. What made Cashman so exciting was the way he'd scrap and claw for extra yardage.

• • • •

McCULLOUGH was used less than some players but had the most sensational record. He averaged 13.3 yards per carry and caught seven TD passes. When used late in the year, he was tremendous on defense at a corner backer spot where some feel he is a top college and maybe pro prospect.

Meyer did everything for Millikan. He ran (476 yards, 6.1 average), caught 23 passes (tops in the city), played defense, kicked, punted and returned punts and kickoffs.

His teammate Moulton latched onto 20 passes, most by an end in Millikan history and Poly's McCraw was even slightly better with 30 receptions and a fine 23.2 yards per reception.

Spindler was Poly's strongside tackle, a position that held the key to Poly's breakaway offense; Wike and Olmstead were superb trap blockers and were strong on straightaway charges, too.

• • • •

DEFENSIVELY, the strapping Blecha was a pillar of strength; Tingom was tops for a good Poly defense; and growing boys Everling and Evans, both over 250 pounds, were too physically tough for many, if any, to handle.

Perhaps the most surprising line choice was Borrelli, a rugged 190-pounder who was playing his first year of football. Both Poly and Wilson backs had trouble going over his position.

Terry was a rugged middle linebacker who has both power and maneuverability, and would have challenged strongly for an offensive backfield berth had not injuries slowed his play there.

• • • •

CADWALLADER tipped the scales at only 160 pounds, but ask CIF king Loyola who gave them the most trouble and they'll say it was this youngster, who helped hold the Cubs to a two-year low of 10 points.

Lewis was the hardest hitting corner back in the league and his speed helped stop power sweeps by other clubs; Beckley, at only 130 pounds, was not publicized much but there is nothing on defense he didn't do well. The same went for Keck, who is more known for his quarterbacking.

Poly fullback Ellwood Stewart was the top vote-getter on the second team offense and Wilson end Jack Harris led on the second defense. Harris was plagued by injuries, as were Jordan back Jack Hadaway, Terry, and Wilson guard Mike Grijalva, all of whom might have been higher on the ratings were it not for physical ailments.

SMITH NAMED ON DEFENSE

Vikings' Williams Only Repeater on All-America

By KEN PIVERNETZ

Fullback Homer Williams of Long Beach City College was the only player to repeat as a first team selection on the 1963 J.C. Grid-Wire all-America football team.

Williams, who led the country in rushing this season, thus becomes one of the few jaycee players to be named twice. The last was LBCC tackle Mike Giers in 1960 and again last season.

Separate offensive and defensive teams were picked.

• • • •

VIKING TACKLE Jeff Smith won a first team berth on the defensive squad. Other area first team selections were tackle Jim Vellone (Cerritos), end Steve Joyner (Fullerton) and linebacker Ron Paterno (Orange Coast).

HOMER WILLIAMS
Led Nation in Rushing

Williams rambled for 1,227 yards this season to join a jaycee dream backfield of Don McCall (LACC), who gained 1,080 yards, and Tommy Bell (Cameron), who had 1,183. The quarterback, Bill Buckner of East Mississippi, completed 204 of 325 passes for 2,767 yards.

The Vikings wound up 7-2 under Jim Stangeland to bring his seven-year record to 48-15-2, best in the school's history.

• • • •

THE VIKINGS, if they can come up with some of the top local high school players, as in the past, should be strong again next season.

A better than average turnout will be back in the line, though the backfield loses most of its punch with Williams and Pearson gone. With San Diego out of the league, the Vikings pick up three teams from the Eastern Conference — Santa Ana, Fullerton and Grossmont—to give them a complete nine game schedule again.

FIRST TEAM OFFENSE
Ends—Wes Brandon (East Miss.), Florencia Gonzales (N.E. Okla.); Tackles—Jim Vellone (Cerritos), John Kirks (Pearl River); Guards — Clarence Lee (N.E. Colo.), Burkley Hankless (Wharton); Center—Tim Sheenan (Bakersfield); Quarterback—Bill Buckner (East Miss.); Backs—Don McCall (LACC), Tommy Bell (Cameron), Homer Williams (Long Beach).

MARSHALL DUFFIELD'S
New Customer Relations Program Completes 14th Satisfaction Report Since Initiating the Program Nov. 15th

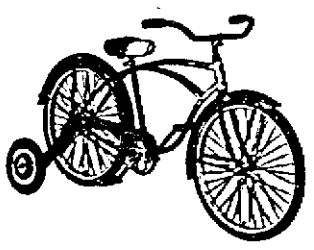

Al Shaw
Mgr. New Customer Relations Dept., and Gen. Sales Mgr.

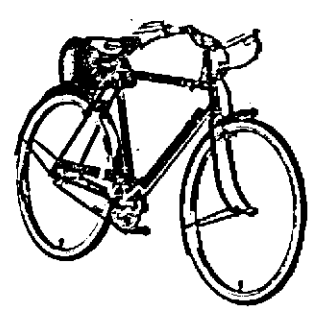

The other evening a customer came in who had purchased a 1962 Buick from our used car lot. Not having seen the car in daylight, she was unaware of a stain on the upholstery. Two or three other items including the gasoline gauge had not been fixed to her satisfaction. We replaced the upholstery in the front labor free, with charge for material only. The gasoline gauge was an involved electrical problem consuming considerable repair time. After three trips, and inconvenience to her, the problems were resolved to the customer's satisfaction. Because she was patient enough to give us a second and third chance to solve a more difficult complaint, we now have another completely satisfied customer. Sometimes a problem needs patience and understanding from both parties. If you have a problem, see or call Al Shaw.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

Let's Go Christmas Shopping

A woman whispered to me at a recent gathering: "What should I get my husband and my boy for Christmas?" My first inclination was to reply: "Just go into your favorite sporting goods store and start looking." Upon reflection, however, I realized that many women shy from a sporting goods store as do men from a lingerie section of a department store.

In this particular instance, the boy didn't have a rod and reel. So what, I insist, is a better present under a Christmas tree than a rod and reel—his very own and his first.

He doesn't have to have a $50 outfit, but he should have one that won't fall apart on his first trip to Belmont Pier.

For that reason, any wife and mother should make it a point to visit a sporting goods store, make known what she wants and I feel that she will meet a friendly clerk who will be fair, courteous and helpful in her gift selection. I know many of them and they are superb.

Fishing for the boy in question is much more than just a matter of catching fish. It provides an education in the ways of man and nature not to be found in textbooks. It molds character, instills a sense of responsibility, sportsmanship and humility. And it teaches patience and bolsters confidence.

A ROD AND REEL don't lose their luster after Christmas, nor do they lose their interest to the head of the household, mainly father. Perhaps he, too, would like a new outfit. Maybe he's ready to graduate from $7.95 reel and $6.95 rod to something that would hold a marlin if he had the chance to catch one.

If there are plenty of rods and reels in the family, then take a look at some of the items in the fishing line: De luxe tackle boxes, lures of all kinds, fly-tying kits, scientific anglers' tapered flylines, pack racks that range from $9 to $27.50 (they never had such beautiful racks when I was a Boy Scout or even a Scoutmaster).

Then there's a cover guard in which you may insert four rods when traveling. It holds even more if the guides are not too large. Shakespeare has a new soft professional monofilament that makes the old-style monos look like broom straws. The same company also has a new push-button reel for $15 and a remarkable open-faced spinning reel for $27.50.

Solunar tables that tell you when and where to fish cost only a dollar, and maps of many California fishing and hunting areas cost that or less.

If, however, you are still looking for rods, don't pass by the Feralite, by Fenwick, manufactured in Long Beach by Sevenstrand Tackle Mfg. Co. Then you can say, "Look, Mom, no ferrules!"

THERE ARE BUCK KNIVES that cut bolts without damaging the blades, for either fishermen or hunters, or possibly just plain campers. And speaking of the camping section, there are new types of tents—popups that you can put together in minutes and which house four to six persons, or smaller ones that sleep one, but with standing room.

In picking out the sleeping bags and rain clothes, it's best to consult the man of the house. After all, he can pick it out in advance and still act surprised at Christmastime.

There are combination tool sets and another combination—crowbar, axe and shovel—that is especially useful in camping and yet packaged neatly and lightly. Perhaps you want a smaller gift. Then, how about a waterproof match case.

Getting into the hunting section, again, it's best to ask the man of the house, or perhaps it's mother who wants a new shotgun so that she can go along and do her share of the shooting. The guns become more beautiful each year, and it's up to the individual what he or she wants to pay.

I personally hope to "oh" and "ah" Christmas Eve when I see that new gas-operated, 12-gauge 1100 series Remington, with a Poly-Choke and ventilated rib. About 75 percent of the recoil has been taken out of the gun.

THE HUNTING SECTION of a store is filled with useful items for the shooter. There are variable rifle scopes (2½x9), made by Weaver, or Bausch & Lomb or Browning. You might be better off to give a purchase order on such an item.

But there is no reason why you can't pick out compasses (get him home alive and quickly), binoculars, gun and sidearm cases, Crossman and Sheridan pellet rifles in all styles and to suit almost any pocketbook.

The archery section also offers something entirely different and the sport is growing so rapidly that the industry can hardly keep pace. I looked in on the archery counter of one store and found items all the way from $2.10 (Browning arrow) to $64.50 (Browning's top bow).

I would like to talk more about the new types of reels that should be on the market this month. One is: the Penn Senator 4/0 special, a ball-bearing beauty for either official light-tackle or short-range, medium-tackle use.

Another, the Mitchell 8000, a reel that automatically doubles its fast pickup when a fish strikes, is in short supply, but well worth considering later. Other Mitchell reels of spinning design have increased pickup ratios that will make fish wonder what in the world happened to the world above their own.

RACING ROUNDUP

ALBANY (AP) — Hill Rise won the $25,000 added Golden Gate Freshman Handicap—first half of a stakes doubleheader — at Golden Gate Fields Saturday, three and one-quarter lengths ahead of longshot Nevada Bin.

Tell No Tales won the $10,000-added Golden Gate Sorority Handicap, second stakes event on the program, running the six furlongs in 1:10 2/5. She paid $6.80 as second betting choice.

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (UPI) — Jets Pat put on a strong finishing rally and won the $10,000-added Coral Gables Handicap at Tropical Park.

PAWTUCKET, R.I. (AP) — Back from two out-of-the-money starts at Aqueduct, Hy Greenspan's Heliotwist got back in step when he won the featured Au Revoir Handicap as Narragansett Park closed the 1963 New England thoroughbred racing season.

Second choice of the crowd of 14,681, Heliotwist paid $8, $4.60 and $2.80.

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Yankee-Blaze was declared the winner of the $5,500 feature race at Pimlico after the stewards disqualified Lous Playboy for interference.

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico (UPI) — An unidentified person cashed in a $2 5-10 handicap contest ticket for $47,575.20 by picking six winners at Caliente race track.

ROMAN HI-JINKS ON NAPLES CANAL

Galley slaves and gorgeous gals are the features of this boat entered in the 18th annual Naples Christmas Pageant Saturday night by the Long Beach Rowing Club. As oarsmen pull under the crack of the "master's" lash, beauteous princess-types loll under a canopy. Un-Christmasy it may be, but it's one of the top attention-getters in the parade of brightly-lit and lavishly decorated boats that will parade again today at 6:30 p.m. In fact, it won first place in the Junior Division.

Bolivian Hostage Release

LA PAZ, Bolivia (UPI)—Leftist Vice President Juan Lechin, spokesman and leader of pro-Communist miners who have held 21 hostages including four Americans for a week, bowed to the threat of federal force Saturday and announced the hostages will be freed "to avoid a bloodbath."

Federal troops early Saturday encircled Catavi, where the hostages are held, and the accompanying mine site of Siglo Veinte. The hostages have been held as pawns for the release of two Communist labor leaders.

Lechin announced the miners have accepted the demands of President Victor Paz Estenssoro to free the hostages from their dynamite-mined improvised prison.

• • • •

THE THREE-STAGE plan called for by the president provides in sequence:

—Release of the hostages to an intermediary, probably a Roman Catholic priest, to conduct them out of the mining zone to freedom.

—Withdrawal of federal troops now encircling the zone.

—A government guarantee of a fair trial for Communist union chiefs Ireneo Pimentel and Federico Escobar.

Pimentel and Escobar are charged with murder, sedition and embezzlement of public funds. The 21 hostages were seized to force the government to release them.

Lechin's announcement of acceptance of government demands, a virtual unconditional surrender by the insurgent miners, came after Paz Estenssoro threatened to use force if necessary to gain the hostages' release.

Lechin did not say when the hostages will be freed.

• • • •

LECHIN MADE his announcement of acceptance in a statement handed to Msgr. Abel Antezana, archbishop of La Paz, who has been mediating in the miners-government dispute which threatened to explode into civil war.

Lechin first talked with union leaders in Catavi by radio and got their promise of acceptance.

The only government concession was the promise of a guarantee of a fair trial.

Paz Estenssoro said the federal troops will not be pulled away from Catavi and Siglo Veinte until the hostages are free. He had promised earlier that if there is a peaceful settlement there will be no punitive action against the leaders of the miner revolt.

SAIL AGAIN TONIGHT

Winners Repeat in Naples Pageant

By GEORGE ROBESON

A bubbling bunch of youngsters who waved "applause" cards at an audience of thousands won the Sweepstakes Trophy for the second straight year in the spectacular Naples Christmas Pageant Saturday night.

The kids, called the "Frivolous Floaters," were entered in the junior division for children and teen-agers. A motorboat pulled their little boats. One of the "trailers," for example, was a floating circus cage full of youngsters in wild-animal costumes.

Leaving nothing to chance, one of the kids in the lead boat held up oversized instruction cards to the spectators who lined the Naples waterways. The instruction: "Yell" and "Klap." The crowd obyed enthusiastically.

The 27 competing boats vied in four divisions—junior, senior (for individual adults), commercial (entries from business firms) and civic organizations.

Winners in the four divisions were:

Junior — Long Beach Rowing Club, which entered a Roman slave gallery, first place; Leeway Sailing Club, second place; John Thomas, third place.

Senior—Val Hyang, with a Hawaiian float featuring hula girls, first place; Robert K. Light, second place; Fern Jessing, third place.

Commercial — Elda Barry's Vogue Modeling School, with a boatful of beautiful girls, first place; Portofino Apartments, second place; Kai Loa Shop, third place.

Organizations — Women's Division, Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, whose entry, entitled "Christmas Out of This World," had girls in red leotards crewing a huge gold rocket, first place; Seal Beach Yacht Club (with probably the longest entry — a main boat pulling 18 little Sabot sailboats), second place; Treasure Island residents, third place.

Choirs sang carols on floats under the five Rivo Alto Canal bridges. First prize was awarded to the choir from St. Bartholemew's Catholic Church, with the New Hope Baptist Church Choir and the Girl Scouts' carolers winning second and third places.

The parade, sponsored for the 18th year by the Naples Improvement Association, will be staged again tonight, beginning at 6:30. The boats will be the same, but a new group of choirs will sing carols on the canal floats.

Judges for Saturday night's competition were Councilman William Grant, Halcyon Ball, David L. Bryant and Robert Mulvey.

Late Report Cards

ROME (UPI) — The Education Ministry announced Saturday report cards for Italian schoolchildren will not be distributed until after Christmas.

Yank Defects in Korea

SEOUL, Korea, Sunday (AP)—An American soldier from Henderson, Ky., has defected to Communist North Korea, it was learned today.

He went over to the Reds while on patrol duty Dec. 6.

A U.N. Command spokesman identified him as Spec. 4C. Jerry Parrish, 19, 1st Battalion, 8th Cavalry Regiment, 1st Cavalry Division.

Parrish was on a six-man patrol along the western front, the spokesman said. He said the patrol was moving through a section of the demilitarized zone where American and North Korean troops have clashed sporadically since July. The soldier apparently split off from his comrades. The sergeant patrol leader said Parrish was the last man in a single file.

According to the spokesman, Parrish left a note behind on the ground.

It said: "Tell mother I love her. I'll be back home some day. Tell my friends goodbye."

He also left his M14 rifle, a cartridge belt and his canteen.

Parrish's mother was identified as Mrs. Virginia Craddock of Smith Mills, Ky.

TWO WOMEN SLAIN YEARS APART

Ask Death for Dual Killer

By BOB SCHMIDT—

Prosecutors Gordon Jacobson and John A. Marin will ask a six-man, six-woman jury Monday to send convicted murderer Robert Leslie Webster to the gas chamber.

The jury, which late Thursday found the 47-year-old ex-convict guilty of first-degree murder, will return to Superior Court Judge Beach Vasey's courtroom at 9:30 a.m. Monday to hear evidence relating to the two possible alternative sentences, death or confinement for life.

• • • •

ALTHOUGH the decision is at the sole discretion of the jury, a death sentence may be reduced to life imprisonment by Judge Vasey, by the higher court which automatically reviews all capital offense trials, or by Gov. Brown.

Monday's hearing will be conducted exactly like a trial, with witnesses testifying under oath for both sides before the jury retires to deliberate.

Webster, who strangled Diane Jane Harley, 38, last Sept. 4, was also convicted of first-degree murder in 1946.

• • • •

AT THAT TIME, however, the law did not provide for a separate hearing on the penalty.

Webster was tried before now-retired Superior Court Judge Kenneth E. Morrison in Santa Ana for the slaying of Carrie Bendel, a 19-year-old Long Beach waitress. The jury which returned the first-degree murder verdict did not recommend death for Webster, and Judge Morrison sentenced him to life imprisonment.

• • • •

HE WAS released on parole in 1955 after serving nine years.

Dep. Public Defender Hayes Mead, representing Webster, is expected to contend that Webster's possibilities of ever again receiving parole are nil and that society need not fear his being given another chance to kill.

Mead said he would plead that Webster be sentenced to life.

Dep. Dist. Attorneys Jacobson and Marin said they would attempt to show that Webster is a cold-blooded, brutal man deserving the supreme punishment.

• • • •

WEBSTER will hear several voices from his unhappy past as the prosecutors attempt to prove their point. Among the witnesses scheduled to be called are several from the 1946 trial, 17 years ago.

ASSEMBLYMAN JOSEPH M. KENNICK is congratulated as recipient of the outstanding public service award of Seaside Chapter, California State Employees Association. From left are Vincent Jones, chapter president; W. S. (Bill) Grant, only other recipient of the award; Kennick, and Joseph Blake, CSEA state board member.

State Employes Honor Kennick With Rare Public Service Award

Assemblyman Joseph M. Kennick, D-44th District (West Long Beach-Lakewood), has been presented the outstanding public service award by Seaside Chapter, California State Employees Association, the second such citation in the chapter's 30-year history.

Only other recipient is former Republican Assemblyman W. S. (Bill) Grant, who attended the Kennick tribute.

Joseph Blake, CSEA state board member, presented the award before 400 dinners at the chapter's annual Christmas dinner in Veterans Park Clubhouse. He cited Kennick's "continuing distinguished service to the citizenry of Long Beach and the citizen-state".

Water From Rocks In Moon Research

SEATTLE (AP) — Researchers are sweating water out of rocks at the Boeing Co. these days.

The experiments are an attempt to solve the drinking water problem on the moon where the crust is believed composed of basaltic rock similar to that found in the Seattle area.

The researchers have built equipment that heats crushed rock, reduces it to rubble and produces about 3 per cent of the rock's weight in water during the process.

Peace Corps to Send Film Libraries

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Peace Corps plans to send 203 film libraries to Africa, 57 to Latin America, 43 to the Near East and South Asia, and 42 to the Far East.

The libraries will be assembled from 12,500 educational film strips presented to Corps Director R. Sargent Shriver Jr. by Newton N. Minow, former chairman of the Federal Communications Commission and now executive vice president of Encyclopedia Britannica Films Inc. The film strips are valued at $75,000.

TOO MUCH HOMEWORK

Students Organize, Teacher Negotiates

RED BANK, N.J. (UPI)—History teacher Thomas M. Perry taught his senior class about the labor movement so well that he found himself facing their organized bargaining unit.

Thomas teaches at Red Bank High School and describes himself as a "fairly tough and demanding teacher."

That could be the reason the 31 members of the class showed up organized as "United Slaveworkers, Local 211." Some even carried placards which said "Boss Unfair."

The students presented Thomas with a seven-point petition including demands for a writers cramp break, more regard for the fact that students have other subjects, an end to excessive homework, a shorter term paper and more time to do it.

Thomas went along with the practical lesson in labor negotiations and sat down with the negotiating committee.

After deliberating, he granted one of the demands to give students more time to complete their term papers. The papers, however, will still have to be at least 5,000 words long.

FROM DIFFERENT sides of world, American Field Service students Harpa Josefdottir of Iceland and Suphan Koevenklioglu, Turkey, catch up on studies under symbolic globe in Poly High library.

Phones, Phonetics —Language No Barrier for AFS Students

AN AMERICAN TEEN-AGE custom, talking on telephone, gets enthusiastic response from Jordan High student Carlos Araya-Lunas from Chile. A natty dresser, he does not, however, take to teen-age fad of surfer-style casual clothes.

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON

When it comes to the culinary arts, America is a pretty mixed up place in the minds of Long Beach's current crop of American Field Service students.

But, all in all, nicely mixed up they agree.

"I never heard of Swiss steak until I came to this country," says Swiss miss Claire-Lise Stehle.

"French toast? What's that?" asks Cathy Matillon from France. "By the way, how do you make those French dip sandwiches?"

And then there's the student from Bavaria, Bernhard F. Kulla, who—munching contentedly on German chocolate cake—never heard of it in his homeland.

What about Busch Bavarian beer? "First time I ever heard of it was on American TV," says the German import.

AND THERE are a few other American practices that apparently got mixed up in the translation from there to here.

Take Turkish baths. "I plan to take one before I go home," says Suphan Koevenklioglu from Turkey. "Imagine, a bath with steam!"

Turning the tables, cute Iolanda Neirotti, called Dida by her local classmates, would like this side of the world to know that "in Italy we don't eat spaghetti every day!"

"And our people aren't Eskimos," clarifies Harpa Josefsdottir from Iceland. "What's more, we don't live in igloos."

Suave Chilean student Carlos J. Araya-Lunas points out that "they don't really have revolts every other day in South America. It's really quite peaceful . . . like here."

And exotic Aruna R. Taribagil from India, graceful in flowing sari, was quick to point out that family life in her own country is not greatly different from that in the United States.

"My family in Long Beach," says she, "has been wonderful to me. Before I came here, my ideas of America were, in some ways, not complimentary. The picture I got from movies and magazines was completely wrong.

"Now I can go back home and tell my people how wonderful life is here, how warm and understanding the people are . . .

"Which, of course, is the real purpose of the AFS program."

AND THAT pretty well sums up the opinions of all nine exchange students enrolled in local high schools who, like 2,000 other foreign students throughout the nation, are studying on an American Field Service international scholarship.

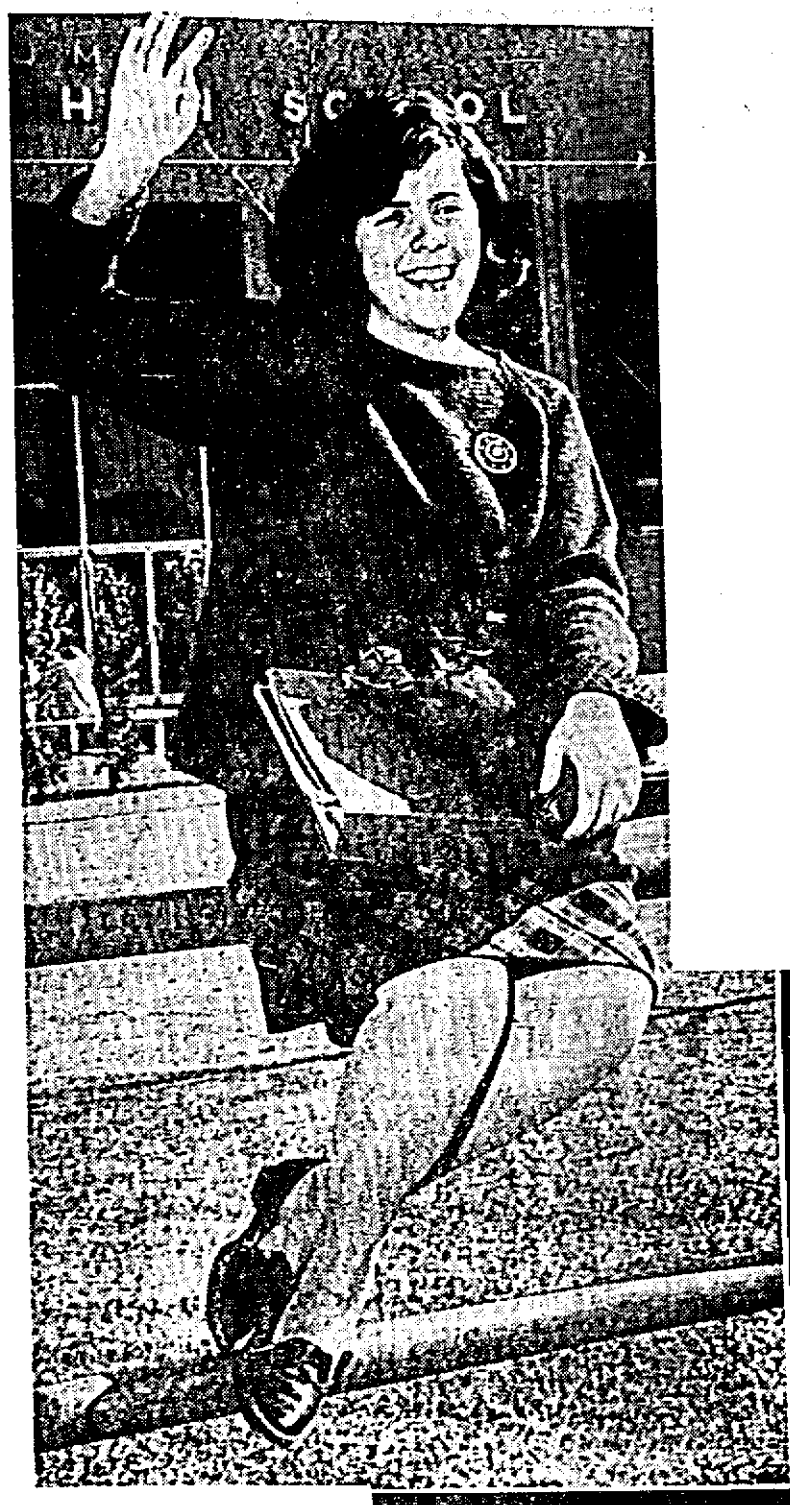

They're on a one-year lend lease educational program, living in local homes with families who have sons or daughters of comparable age and interests.

When the student imports get together for once-a-month meetings, sometimes in native costume, it has all the overtones of a small United Nations gabfest.

Most amazing thing of all: their ease of communication.

Each speaks three or four different lan-

Belles and Boats of Christmas Sea-son

By Iola Masterson
I. P-T Women's Editor

WITH A WOMAN'S eternal prerogative, Louise Neuner asks husband, Jim, "is that what I should wear?" She is pictured below preparing to go to Rick Racker's marveolusly gay Winter Wonderland formal ball, its 13th annual, last Saturday at International Ballroom, Lafayette.

Ah, ladies—she decided to where white!

While Jim debated, Louise changed her mind, I discovered, wore a gorgeous white bugle beaded crepe floor length gown. She admitted she knew all the time she leaned to the white. Ah, ladies!

Anyway, it was a most posh affair. The wonderland effect was created by a veritable forest of cloudlike pink angel hair trees, all a-sparkle, on the tables.

Cecelia, chairman, and husband, Dave Tallichet, greeted guests with assistants Louise and Jim (Neuner), Neena and Dermot McHenry, Pat and Bob Bergmann and Mary and Bob Lintz.

Each member entertained, singly or in conjunction with other members, at pre-ball parties and proceeds from affair will aid RRs work with Girls' Club at Franklin as well as campership funds and scholarships for eligible students at LB State.

Fashions were, to say the least, MOST fashionable. Myrna (Mrs. Charles) Bartell wore a floor length gown of flowing white chiffon with autumn haze mink bodice.

Susie (Mrs. Vernon) Lewis was in holiday red chiffon ball gown, cut a la Eugenie.

Sally (Mrs. John) Nisbet wore full length blue and green chiffon with green chiffon leaves filling in the neckline.

Wild Waves Say...

Georgianna (Mrs. Patrick) Hamilton wore floor length white brocade skirt with black velvet bodice accented with a pink belt, while Jean (Mrs. Patrick) Devlin wore Capri blue beau de soie, also full length, with beaded top.

That should give you some idea. And yes, all the men looked very elegant, too, as they danced to Joe Moshay's orchestra with their wives and friends' wives.

A PEEK IN at Pacific Coast Club Saturday netted a glimpse of another swank affair as members and guests danced to the lilting music of Sid Zaid's orchestra, society musical group from Hollywood, during annual Snow Flake Ball.

Here, again, at least three quarters of the women wore long gowns and looked dazzling. Noted were Mary and Bill Decker, new to our town but, I'm sure, beginning to think we're quite a city. Toni and Fred McDowell were present, noting their anniversary as they always do at this party, timed perfectly each year for them.

Others were the Larry Copelands, Virginia and Walter Hale, the William Sweeneys. Also there, with a group, was Aram Soroyan, uncle of the famous playwright, William. Aram is currently in residence at the club, I understand.

THE TREND was to wend one's way to Daisy and Dr. Oscar Shadle's home for 50 or so friends last Saturday. Daisy and "Doc" were in the midst of having a gala, informal combination open house and Christmas cocktail party in their new manse in El Dorado Park.

Among those spotted having a spry time were Dee and Sumner Trent, Leone and Norman Chu, Roberta and Todd Mulford, "Carly" and Bob Fox, Eleanor and Ray Kelso and Mary and Jerry Cope.

FORTUNATE guests of Dell Lewis at her traditional eggnog fete, being co-hostessed by her daughters, Dorothy Brady and Betty Munholland, had better keep their thinkers ticking, meaning not getting their wires crossed on which way to go.

For several years, party has been given in Dorothy (Mrs. Phil) Brady's home. But THIS year it will take place in Betty (Mrs. Jim) Munholland's, 275 Argonne Ave.

Assisting at annual favorite fete will be Dorothy Munholland, Barbara Clarke, "Brownie" Berkaw, Marie Hargrove and Julia Witz.

Over 200 are expected to gather around the 10-foot tree in the living room; by the tinkling silver fountain in the dining room or, weather permitting, out by the pool where an aluminum tree will glitter afloat on the pool.

PUSHING, prodding and hustle-bustling to completion his newest hotel is Deck Shelley, architect, who is "doing" The Parkway House in St. Louis, Mo. He's been a regular commuter to Missouri. But hopes are high the House will be far enough along so that he and his wife, Gladdie, and children, Jeff, Leslye and Rod, will be able to catch a jet for Hawaii to spend the holidays.

Completing the party of nine will be Dr. Bill and Jean Brown, neighbors on Treasure Island, with their children, Brian and Sandra.

Highlight for the youngsters will be participating in the International Surfboard Championships.

Keeping things running smoothly in homes here are various members of both families. In fact, having relatives stay here at the holidays took absolutely no urging at all they tell me.

Travelers will stay at the Sheraton Maui for Christmas and be at Coco Palms on New Years.

ACTIVE ALUMS of AOPi here are beginning to wonder. For three years in a row, and quite by accident, their "uptown" Founders Day and this city's Panhellenic tea have fallen on the same date.

So they have to split-up for representation at both events. Intrepid-on-the-freeway driver, Jane (Mrs. Malcolm) Epley chauffered the FD date, way out at Sportsmen's Lodge in Hollywood, for Jean Graham, Margaret Rockwell, Eleanor Cottle, and Eileen Folsom. Gwen Long led the contingent to the tea date here.

DECK THE BOW with boughs of holly and glisten both port and starboard with strings of glitter. That's what Dr. Dick and Nancy Daniels, and Sybil (Mrs. Quentin) Royer are doing, below, to the Daniels boat. The Royers craft is also having finishing touches put on it for today's first Huntington Harbour canals Christmas boat parade.

Boats will begin parading at 3 p.m. through the channels of our neighboring marina. Several boats, long familiar in L.B. waters, will be in parade.

It's all for fun to benefit the Orange County Philharmonic under the guiding hands of Sybil and her crew, co-chairmanned by Jane Dod and Virginia Belt. A buffet supper will end the festivity with a bang and tickets might still be available at main Huntington Harbour office.

Psst. Don't forget our own Parade of Lights around Naples and Alamitos Bay ends tonight, too.

All around-Christmas spirit puts to sea.

Leave the Bikinis to Sophia, Tillie

Dear Molly Mayfield

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

The richest boy in our school has invited me to a swimming party at his home. I've seen a picture of their pool, all surrounded by green plants, in the papers, and I can hardly wait to splash in it.

But, here's my problem: My last summer's swimming suit is pretty raggedy, and it's very conservative, too, as Mom bought it for me.

Don't you think I ought to buy one of those envelope-size bikinis that the actresses wear in the Italian movies? I'm sure that's the kind my friend's circle wear. If I can make a breath-taking impression maybe I'll be invited again. Right, Molly?

—TILLIE.

DEAR YOUNG LADY:

Wrong, Tillie. A bright, conservative bathing suit

Should I just go on smoul-your introduction to your friend's home. If you appeared in the attire of Sophia Loren, I suspect that would be the sure way to make his mother be certain that you were never invited again.—MM.

• • • •

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My girl friend left her pocketbook in my car the other night and I didn't find it until I got home. Maybe I shouldn't have opened it, but I did, and I found three letters from servicemen overseas, and they were calling her darling and angel, and saying how much they loved her.

It was quite plain she'd been writing them mushy letters, too. I took the letters and burned them and returned her pocketbook the next day without mentioning them. She hasn't mentioned them either. But the more I think of it the more burned up I am.

Why her boy friend is smoul-dering or clear the air?

—TOM.

DEAR TOM:

Clear the air by all means. The girl is entitled to know why her boy friend is smoldering—and she's entitled to have her say. Then you can kiss and make up, or blow your top, whichever course the situation calls for.

—M.M.

• • • •

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I have a king-sized headache. Soon after we were married I learned my wife was a kleptomaniac. She has been in and out of mental institutions and is now staying with her sisters. They insist I pay her board because they say she is a bad influence on their children.

I claim I can't keep her at home because she is a bad influence on our children, and paying for baby-sitters all the time keeps me pretty strapped financially.

Do you think I'm right?

—WORRIED.

DEAR WORRIED:

I can't imagine who in the world would think you were right. Kleptomania is a sickness. She very much needs a physician's care—and a husband's understanding.

When you married her you took each other for better or worse. Now she is a sick woman and you are pushing her aside. How can you act this way and call yourself a decent man, a husband of any account, or even a father to be proud of?

You owe your wife as much attention and help now as it is possible to give. By your own letter you are giving NONE.

SHAME is the word you should know by heart.

—M.M.

• • • •

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I hope you can help me with rather a special problem. The problem is female, 16 years old, blonde, 5-foot-2, weighs 105 pounds, and is, as I said, very special.

Her parents think, because I am 20, I am too old to date her. I refuse to slip around behind their backs. She has said she would do this. I'm a very unhappy lad.—JUST TWENTY.

DEAR TWENTY:

You might not like the idea, but go and call on her parents and explain that you really would like to date their daughter, and that you wouldn't think of trying to date her without their permission. Ask them if they would consent to let her double-date with you. Ask them if you might take her to a movie some night and get her home at any hour they stipulate.

I think you might soften up, nay, even impress her parents with this approach.

—M.M.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Come On, BeChair-itable!

DEAR ABBY: We have a problem for which there seems to be no solution. I asked my minister, and he just laughed and said, "That's a good one for Abby!" We are very friendly with another couple and we visit back and forth very often. When they come to our house they bring along an in-law who recently lost his wife, and is lonely. This in-law weighs about 400 pounds. He is a very nice person and we truly enjoy his company but, Abby, our furniture is beginning to break down under his weight. Can we diplomatically ask our friends not to bring this man to our home, and explain why? We have had to replace the springs in our best chair, and now the other one is going. Please help us.—DESPERATE

ABBY

DEAR DESPERATE: There are no words diplomatic enough to salvage a friendship after asking friends to leave a lonely in-law at home because he's too heavy for one's furniture. Go to a second-hand store and find the sturdiest and least expensive chair available. Buy it and call it "his" chair. No one will care what it looks like. They'll love you for it.

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: We are not kids. I am 25 and he is 29. He says he wants to marry me, but he wants to be sure we are compatible first. So he has suggested that we have a trial living-together period for about three months to be sure. We have gone together for 13 months and it never occurred to me that we wouldn't be compatible when married. He tells me that automobile dealers let you drive a car before you buy it, and candy dealers always give samples, and I can't think of a logical reply. Only I know he is wrong. Can you help me?—STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: A woman is neither an automobile nor a batch of candy. Tell him nothing doing. He will have to take his chances with you, just as you are willing (or had been!) to take yours with him. (P.S. Give this prospect some more thought.)

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: When should a girl's father stop kissing her on the lips? Many girls have this problem, but I don't want to solve it my own way for fear of hurting Dad. Please print this, as I know it would benefit many.—"SAY WHEN"

DEAR SAY: If Dad's embrace is innocently offensive, tell him so, and offer your cheek. There are no set rules. That's a family affair.

• • • •

CONFIDENTIAL TO KAREN: He sounds like a "swell" boy—with a head to match. Ask him to return your bracelet.

• • • •

What's on your mind? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

AFS Experiment: One Year Lend Lease . . . for World Peace

STUDENT GOVERNMENT is exciting new experience for AFS student Iolanda Neirotti (better known as "Dida" by Lakewood High classmates). Her schools in Northern Italy do not offer such extra-curricular activities. Interested in political science, she plans to become a political journalist. In America she's enjoying her first pancakes and packaged breakfast cereals; she especially likes Disneyland, Knott's Berry Farm and the freeways.

The Goals:

To break international barriers... to promote better understanding among peoples of different countries, races and creeds through education.

Staff Photos by Joe Risinger and Kent Henderson

guages. Most have had several years of English.

In a drone of dialects and accents—with some Americanized teen talk thrown in—they compare foods and fashions, studies and hairstyles, dating and family life.

Like most teen-agers, they have an affinity for hamburgers, Disneyland, the beach and talking on the phone.

They're amazed by California's freeways, traffic and casual manner of dress . . . by the nation's push-button living, instant foods and supermarkets.

Most express amazement over clubs, sports and extra-curricular activities in the schools . . . also the friendly, relaxed relationship between teachers and students.

WILSON HIGH student Bernhard Kulla, whose Long Beach "parents" are the Perry Griffiths, 4424 Vermont St., notes that in German schools, like those of most exchange students, electives are not offered.

He notes that "students may take as many as 14 subjects at a time—all academic—math, languages, the sciences, literature and the humanities.

Music and art, physical education and technical subjects—auto mechanics, typing, home economics and crafts—are seldom available to high school students in most AFS countries.

Which method do they prefer? Most vote in favor of America's practical approach to the three R's. Some aren't sure.

Iolanda Neirotti, Lakewood student who makes her home here with the William J. Moshers, 6619 Arbor Road, favors the U.S. approach: "In schools here you work on problems that help you meet life . . . you study about how to run a business, how to head a family, how to think of life as it really is. At home, we learn more the classics, more theory."

Claire-Lise Stehle of Switzerland, who attends Millikan and resides with Mr. and Mrs. Graddus Schrotenboer, 3228 Marber Ave., would like to reserve opinion.

Says she: "I think I like best the American system of specialization in areas of particular interest. On the other hand, students then are not as well grounded in the academics. I would like to again observe our own system before I make up my mind."

FRENCH mademoiselle Cathy Matillon, a student at Jordan High who resides with the Joe H. Arterberrys, 6100 Lemon Ave., especially likes the relationship between students and teachers. "At home it is on a more formal basis. Teachers there are not often concerned with your problems at home or elsewhere."

Suphan Koevenklioglu ("nobody here can pronounce my name"), whose father is a doctor in Turkey, votes in favor of electives. "I think it's great to be able to take whatever subject you want." Interested in chemistry and algebra ("I think I want to go into electronics"), he's enrolled at Poly High and lives with the Phillip Fawcetts, 1172 Cartagena Drive.

Japanese student Naoto Kira, who finds school life "exciting and friendly" at Millikan High, has brought along a Japanese custom to his foster home with the Leonard W. Towners, 6500 Espanita St. He takes off his shoes whenever entering the house.

"Homes in Japan are very different," says he. "We have a one-and-a-half inch mattress padding over our entire floor. And, well, you just don't wear shoes on that."

He finds his new-found friends here the best part of his one-year transplant to America.

"They can tell me about America . . . and I can tell them about Japan. It clears up misconceptions for both."

THAT SAME idea is echoed by Chilean student Carlos Araya-Lunas, a handsome addition at Jordan High who resides with the John J. Wankners, 5217 Brayton Ave.

"Before I came to America," says he, "I thought everyone here had two cars, two TV sets and was concerned only with money. I found out that Armenians are really like people at home . . . they work, help others and are much concerned with the finer things of life."

And this from Jordan student Harpa Josefsdottir of Iceland: "I really enjoy telling everyone about Iceland . . . it seems there is so little known about my country." One of her little-known facts: "All people in Iceland are called by their first names . . . no Mr. or Mrs. or Miss. When a child is born, his or her last name becomes the father's name with "dottir" or "son" added. When couples marry, the wife keeps her maiden name."

And so goes the exchange of ideas . . . the principal purpose of the AFS program.

MRS. ROBERT N. Haney, president of the local AFS chapter, terms the AFS scholarship program "one of the most remarkable educational experiments ever launched."

Since the local chapter was formed here in 1954, 60 young people, ages 16-19, from 47 nations each have spent approximately 10 months in Long Beach homes, attending Long Beach high schools, forming life-long impressions of the REAL America.

After these young goodwill ambassadors return to their respective homelands, they pass along their on-the-scene impressions to church, service, youth and other groups.

Charles Sleeper, district AFS representative, sums up the value of the program this way:

"In years to come, when these students become integrated into the political, business and social lives of their countries, it isn't too much of a dream to believe that one day we will see them making important, world-significant decisions.

"It would be difficult to believe that any one of them would end up dropping atom bombs on the other."

Advantage in Seeing

East wins the first trick with the ace of spades and returns a trump whereupon South is able to run off the rest of the tricks.

Had East simply led the ten of spades at trick two the story would have been entirely different. South would have had problems in every suit and would have probably wound up making either two or three hearts, but not any more, so East's lead at trick two cost his side at least three tricks.

In double dummy play declarer has the same advantage you readers have. He can see all the cards! Therefore he makes plays he would not attempt in a real game.

• • • •

WITH THAT advantage he wins the second trick with his king of spades, leads a diamond to dummy's queen, cashes the ace, ruffs a third diamond, finesses dummy's ten of hearts, cashes the king, and is finally ready for the key double dummy play. He leads a fourth diamond from dummy. East's best play is to trump and South must not overruff. Instead he discards a spade from his hand. East has to lead a club whereupon South gets back in dummy, leads his last diamond to get rid of his last spade. Thus, South winds up losing one spade and two trumps and makes four odd.

Chef of the Week

Dennis Patrick Ahern

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
L. P-T Food Editor

Nope, he wasn't born in Ireland!

But from his name, perhaps he'd even be hard to convince of that fact.

Dennis Patrick Ahern, today's Chef of the Week, was born in San Francisco. Ahern is Collector of Customs for District 27. It is the second largest district in the United States, clearing some $3,000,000 weekly. New York is first.

He was only permitted to bask in the breezes of San Francisco for 30 days before his family moved to Ogilby, Ariz. Located seven miles west of Yuma, it contained a railroad section house, four somewhat shanty type homes and a small general store which supplied the miners working 20 miles back in the hills. Ahern's Dad was section foreman for the Southern Pacific Railroad.

* * * *

AFTER FIVE months the Arizona heat was too much for Pat, and he was brought to Long Beach for the summer. Later, on several occasions, he stayed with friends here for short periods of time and decided then to return someday.

Ahern's father eventually bid on a section job in Pomona and the family moved there. Pat attended Sisters' Academy of Holy Names for the first eight years of his school life, before going on to Emerson Junior and Pomona High Schools. At both, he was active in student affairs.

On to Pomona Junior College he went, and aside from an outstanding athletic program, he served as Freshman Class president. He was again elected prexy in his sophomore year, but it only lasted 10 days. An election for Student Body president was then held, and Ahern got the vote.

He has a year and a half to his credit at UCLA, also.

While in Pomona, Ahern started the 20-30 Club Annual High School Baseball tournament. But during the depression, it began being dropped from high-school budgets, so Pat took over with renewed enthusiasm. His first strategic speaker was the late Will Rogers, whom he had secured through Sheriff Eugene Biscailuz—the second "speaker recruit" was actor Joe E. Brown. The result? . . . that baseball organization is still in existence today.

* * * *

AHERN left Pomona to manage the campaign for Congressman Jerry Vorhees. He was the first Democrat to be elected to the old 12th Congressional District of California. That was in 1936.

Two years later Ahern was appointed by Vorhees to take part in the "NYA", National Youth Arministration, program. It's noteworthy that President Lyndon B. Johnson also was a member. The late Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt was the architect of the project on the national level.

Ahern immediately secured the Biltmore Hotel in Hermosa Beach and took over as public relations manager and as coach of a baseball team. The program attracted some 500 boys and girls.

Nationally, it received only a 50% acceptance, so was temporarily abandoned in order to re-evaluate its merits. Ahern then joined Douglas Aircraft in Santa Monica. He worked from midnight until 8 a.m. During the day he coached baseball at Santa Monica High School.

* * * *

THEN, in 1949, the NYA program was resumed, and Ahern was again given charge of all physical activities in the State of California. It was headquartered on the Cal-Poly College campus at San Luis Obispo. Eventually it was necessary, due to expansion, to take over the huge complex of the Brown School for Boys at Atascadero. It took in eight square city blocks.

Ahern organized a baseball team, and secured the services of Jackie Robinson as his assistant. Jackie was finding it hard to continue at UCLA because of financial reasons — and, at that same time he was not admissible to the Major League because of color. Robinson became shortstop, and, though the team was given amateur standing, it chalked up six straight wins over professional teams.

Following World War II, at the direction of President Franklin Roosevelt, a committee of 21 citizens was formed to establish a Veterans' Center Board. Ahern was chosen to organize the Long Beach Division, and served as its head for three years. For having conducted the most economically run center in the United States, Ahern was given a national award.

In 1954 he was elected to the Long Beach City Council, and re-elected in 1957. He entered the Democratic race for Congress in 1960, but conceded the election to Craig Hosmer.

To reterogress a bit, Ahern, in 1958, took time out to manage the successful campaign for Senator Clair Engle. It was in 1960 that he was appointed by the late President John F. Kennedy to his present position.

Our "chef's" recipe today is for Catalina Omelet. The idea seems to have started as an excellent idea for using up the bacon, ham, cheese, or what-have-you, before returning home from a week-end at Catalina.

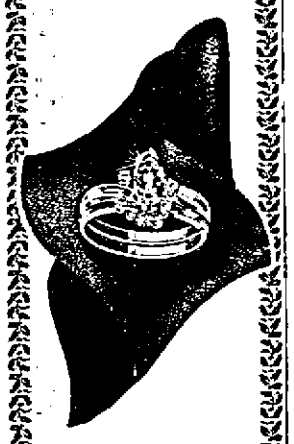

CATALINA OMELET
1 doz. fresh eggs
4 tblsp. olive oil or butter
1 cup cream or half-and-half
¼ tsp. paprika
Salt and pepper to taste
3 or 4 slices of bacon—or 1 cup leftover ham—or ¾ cup shredded cheese

If bacon is used, pre-fry and break into bits, remove from pan and set aside. (If bacon is used, use less oil or butter accordingly.) Add eggs, which have been previously well beaten with cream, paprika, salt and pepper. Reduce fire to low heat. When it begins to firm, place bacon, ham, or cheese on top, and turn or place under the broiler for a moment.

Kennyettes Bid Newcomers

Prospective members and guests will be entertained by Kennyette Club during its annual Christmas luncheon and card party Tuesday noon at Edgewater Inn. Gifts will be exchanged, according to Mrs. Glen Wainner, chairman. Reservations may be made with Sue Wood.

Such Toys as 'Dreams Are Made On'

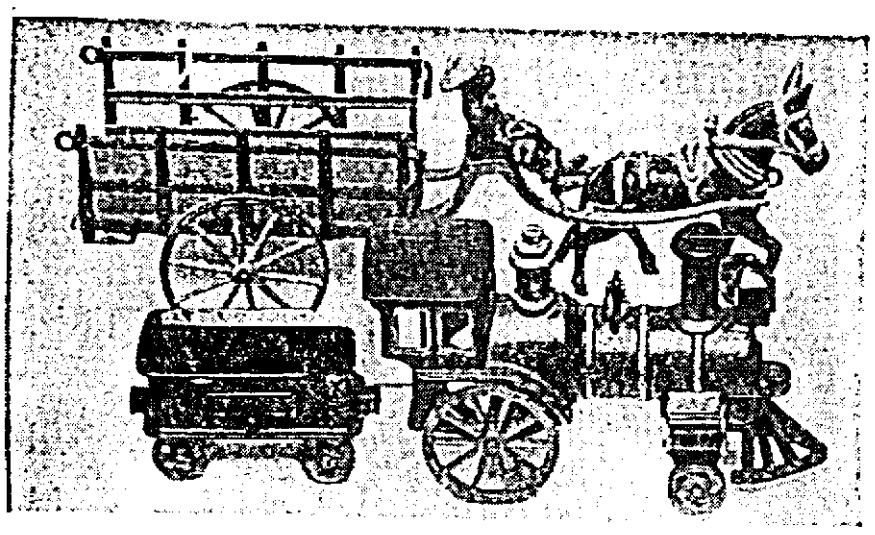

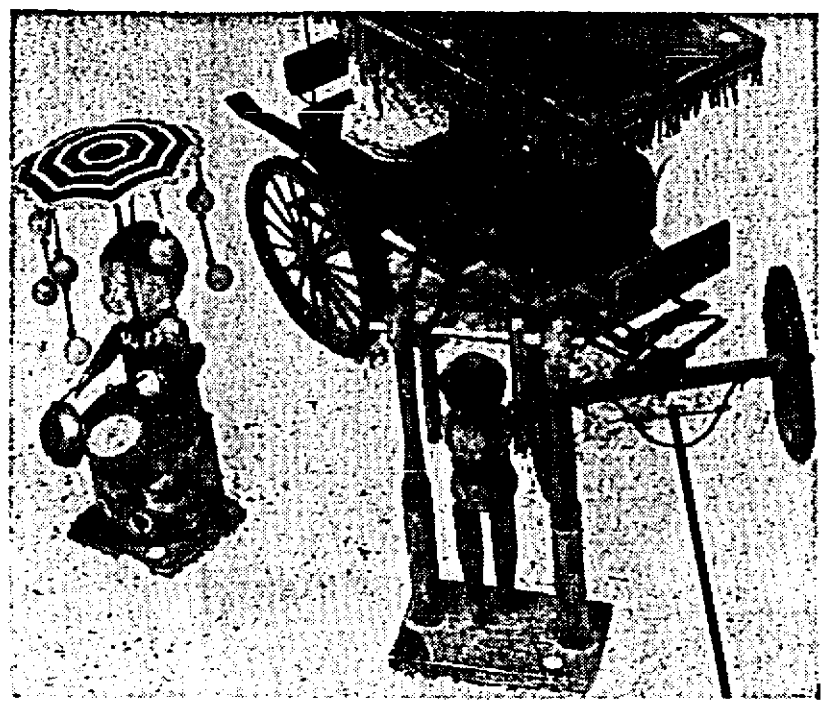

Old toys that rouse wonder in children but stir memories in grown-ups, and new toys that bedazzle are on display at Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd.

I, P-T staff photographer Curt Johnson has pictured a few of the exhibits assembled by museum curator John Weeks from collectors and commercial sources.

THE ORCHESTRA, with the St. Luke's Choristers and the Camerata Chorale, will present Part II of Bach's "Christmas Oratorio" and music from Humperdink's "Hansel and Gretel." Also on the program is much familiar music, some of it in attractive new arrangements by Vaughan Williams and the popular composer, Morton Gould. The audience and performers will join in a familiar Christmas carol under direction of the orchestra's conductor, Lauris Jones.

Tickets are on sale at Humphrey's Music Company, 135 E. Third St., or may be purchased at the box office the evening of performance.

Galli-Curci Won World's Acclaim

By RACHEL MORTON
I. P-T Music Critic

Another great celebrity has passed from among us — alas! Madame Amelita Galli-Curci died in La Jolla Nov. 27. I was privileged and honored to interview Mme. Galli-Curci when she lived in Rancho Santa Fe a few years ago, and my article so pleased her that she invited me for a return visit. I would like to recall for my readers some highlights from Major & Minor Notes of Jan. 5, 1958.

"I have never been in one the Doges palaces that line the canals in Venice, but the salon into which I was welcomed in Rancho Santa Fe must be a very like replica of one of these palaces. The air of old world aristocracy pervaded the beautiful home, not only because of the priceless objets d'art everywhere in evidence, but because of the rare personality of the little lady who dwells therein—Amelita Galli-Curci.

• • • •

"HOW TO DESCRIBE this woman? At first one was impressed with her dainty stature. She weighed only 90 pounds and was about 4 feet tall. But, of a sudden, she vitalized with charm, with warmth, with excitement, a personality that became strong and dominant. And lighted so from within, she was eternally young. Her large, sparkling grey-green eyes held me fascinated and she gesticulated constantly with her long, slender fingers. With this arresting personality, plus one of the greatest coloratura voices of all time, it is no wonder that she reigned supreme as an idol of the public for 30 years.

"She showed us a marvelous, life-sized portrait of herself by the famous Spanish painter, Henrique Mendina. (This painting has been willed to the Metropolitan Opera Company.).

• • • •

"IN THE MUSIC room were breath-taking things: a Carrara marble bust of GalliCurci, a whole wall filled with beautiful paintings, the work of Madame herself, who never took a painting lesson; a letter by Mozart framed; and a large portrait of the famous Italian actress, Ileonara Duse inscribed La Sua sorella d'arte; (My sister in art).

"Amelita Galli-Curci was born in Milan of a Spanish mother and Italian father. She began the study of piano at 5 and at 16 graduated from the Milan Conservatory. A frequent visitor at her father's house was the famous composer, Mascagni. One night when she was 18 she played and sang for him the difficult florid music from 'La Sonnambula.' Astonished, Mascagni introduced her to an opera conductor who immediately engaged her for two months with his opera company in Trianl. Her first role was Gilda in 'Rigoletto.' From these performances began her illustrious career. She never sang at La Scala and when I asked her why she said it was because she would not sing small parts as they demanded of her.

• • • •

"IN 1916 she made her debut as Gilda with the Chicago Opera Company and such was her reception that from then on she had the world at her feet (and such tiny feet!), and for fees of $3,200 a performance.

"For 36 years Homer Samuels was constantly at her side as incomparable accompanist, devoted husband and companion. They built their 'dream house' in Rancho Santa Fe but the dream lasted only a few years, when Samuel died."

A beautiful home was only recently completed by Mme. Galli-Curci in La Jolla and here her dream ended, too. Her last words to me were: "There are no closed doors — only closed episodes.

Artists Recorded History

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Page Editor

The Southern California scene in the 19th Century is depicted in prints and drawings from the Robert B. Honeyman collection which go on view Friday at Los Angeles County Museum. The exhibit will continue through Feb. 2.

The history and events of this romantic, dramatic period in California are shown in lithographs, drawings and watercolors.

Ruth Mahood, chief curator of history at the museum, points out the fact that artists of the 19th Century acted as reporters, photographers and newsreel men of their time. Some 100 works are included in the exhibition, titled "Prints and Drawings of Southern California."

The museum is open daily except Mondays and Christmas Day.

Lachaise's Sculpture Is Aggressively Vital

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

Los Angeles County Museum in Exposition Park is showing the largest collection of sculpture by Gaston Lachaise ever assembled. After the exhibit closes here on Jan. 19, it will travel to the Whitney Museum in New York City.

One hundred and sixty-four works include numerous drawings, some jewelry, small bronze figures, sensitive portraits and reliefs as well as the large, aggressively vital figures for which the French sculptor is, perhaps, best known. In these, each member is fully realized and articulated in itself to a fantastic degree as well as being an harmonious part of the whole figure.

• • • •

LACHAISE seems to wear two hats: as a portraitist he is great, achieving an evocative likeness along with classic simplification of detail. But in the female figures, the pulsating body is the thing, with living forces pushing all parts into an amplitude beyond the full round. The heads are summarized, detached, submerged in a remote atavistic dream.

Lachaise's woman is neither girl, nor wanton, and puts to shame the meagerness of the contemporary fashion figure. She is not an individual, as are the brilliant portraits like those of Georgia O'Keeffe. Lachaise harks back to the female forms of pre-history, to earth mothers privy to the deepest secrets of nature.

IT IS REALLY quite a marvelous show. Since he worked from 1895 to 1935, Lachaise not only reflects many of the developments of contemporary art, but, in many cases, originated them. I could have been lost completely in admiration had not a wicked imaginary colloquy been running through my head . . . concerning the definition of woman . . . between Lachaise and Betty Friedan, author of the recent "Feminine Mystique."

This exhibit cannot help but have a profound effect on the visions of contemporary artists and is an event not to be missed by anyone interested in the visual arts.

OUR COVER

Imagine, as a little girl, waking up on Christmas morning to find a whole town of toys at your feet. Not just one doll or a single dollhouse, but an entire town of tiny houses, shops, churches and little people. Such is the dream of Janet Ridgway depicted in Roger Coar's cover photo, after her day of helping decorate Geppeto's Village for Christmas. The village is one of Disneyland's miniature fable settings in Storybook Land. Like many other parts of the Magic Kingdom, the village is colorfully decorated for the yule season with evergreen garlands, trees and gay ornaments. Janet was able to get in on the decorating fun because her father works at the park. Next Sunday, Walt Disney will turn all of Disneyland into a magic Christmas toyland. For more about the world of toys, see Page 7.

THIS WEEK

Hardy men, wresting gold from the rugged West that was California in pioneer days, were far from home, family and the comforts that civilization then afforded. Far, too, from the happiness of the Christmas season around the hearthside. But Christmas was in their hearts and minds and they found ways to mark yuletide in their own rough and ready manner. For an insight into those pioneer Christmases, read "They Didn't Forget Christmas," by Maymie R. Krythe, in next week's Southland Magazine.

Learning of such interesting writings as this ancient bit on a Walker Lake rock is one phase of Long Beach CC GAD educational forums.

PRESENT dry lakes of California's deserts were full of water, clams and fish. Lush green grass and bushes fringed the lakes, making homes for many animals." Dr. R. F. Logan, specialist on arid regions was speaking in a forum at Rogers Junior High School Auditorium on "Man's Past and Future in Desert Areas."

"At this same time," he continued, "Pinto man, a hunting-and-gathering person, was living at Joshua Tree, near Twentynine Palms. In his leisure, when not hunting rabbits, squirrels and lizards, or gathering acorns and pinon nuts, Pinto man made pictures on the rocks and the cave walls. We can still see these wonderful records of early culture, which tell so much about the men and animals living on the wet California Desert, thousands of years ago."

A period of questions and answers followed Dr. Logan's presentation.

This is offered an unusually refreshing way to go to school — yes, school! Most people think of night classes as lasting a full semester, with home work, tests and grades —but not so with these free lectures and forums which are usually given in a series of four, and which families may attend. And those who attend sit in a comfortable auditorium, look at beautiful colored pictures and listen to fascinating information dispensed by an expert who can also answer his questions! All this is arranged by the General Adult Division of Long Beach City College.

RECOGNIZING THAT, for instance, some persons might find the desert a dry subject, lectures are offered on every conceivable topic.

Fred Dow, associate dean-forums, said that when Dr. Harvey Franklin organized the first forums in 1937, interest was focused largely on public affairs. Now it has expanded to include a large variety of subjects, many of which are illustrated. The forums program has grown in size as well as variety. In 1950, when Dr. Arthur Bietz gave his first lecture here, less than 100 persons attended. In 1962-63, those registered for his series numbered 2,000—in fact, registration for all the forums and lectures last year totaled more than 13,000.

"Some people might observe," Dow said, "that these forums are somewhat similar to colored TV. This is true to an extent. However, let me point out that TV won't answer their questions, and we don't have commercials!"

LA REINA RULE'S BROWSE ABOUT WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give genealogy on DIAZ —M.M., Wilmington.

M.M.: DIAZ, an ancient Spanish name, was formed from Diago, the old Spanish term for James, from Latin, meaning "supplanter." The Diaz shield, granted in Spanish Aragon, has six narrow blue stripes across a gold background. The most noted descendant was Porfirio Diaz, 1830-1915, who was president of Mexico.

DEAR MISS RULE: What is the genealogy on HAZELTINE.—R. H., Downey.

R. H.: HAZELTINE was first known as the English village-name Haseldene, meaning "hazelnut tree hollow," a geographical origin term. Early references to this family is Somerset, England, include William and Adam de Haseldene in 1327. The Haselden (Hazeltine) shield is silver, decorated with a black cross in the center. Robert Hazeltine married Ann Hunt at Bradford, Mass., in 1639.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give genealogy on MARTINDALE.—N.M., Seal Beach.

N.M.: MARTINDALE is a descriptive name taken from a town name in Cumberland, north England, where the Martindale ancestors once lived. This place was originally called Mere-Tun-Dael or "Pool-farmstead in the valley." Yorkshire tax lists of 1475 list Katerina Martyngdale, an ancestor. The Martindale shield is silver, emblazoned with a diagonal blue stripe crossed by two red bars.

DEAR MISS RULE: What is the origin of BADHAM?—M. M., Garden Grove.

M. M.: BADHAM began as the Welsh surname Ab-Adam for "Son of Adam." The poetical, Biblical given name Adam meant "man of the red earth." Ab-Adam became Badam in the 1600s. The Badham shield is gold, emblazoned with five gold stars on a red cross.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please explain TAVOLARA.—A. T., Long Beach.

A. T.: TAVOLARA, traced to its archaic medieval Italian origin, is revealed as being an occupational word. This surname began as Tavollaro meaning "table-maker," describing a skilled master-carpenter and maker of fine furniture.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give genealogy on KAISER. A. K., Long Beach.

A. K.: KAISER is a German surname meaning "king" or "emperor." Its origin was the Roman word "Caesar" introduced to western Europe by conquering Latin armies in the first centuries of the Christian era. In Germany, Kaiser usually referred to an ancestor who enacted the part of an emperor in a popular medieval religious pageant. After continental usage it became this actor's name. The Kaiser coat-of-arms granted at Nurnberg, Bavaria, has the crown of Charlemagne, the first Holy Roman emperor, centered on a red shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you explain JARED.—M. Y., Long Beach

M. Y.: JARED is revealed as a variation of the English surname Gerard denoting "brave spearman." The ancestry may also be traced to a forefather baptized with the Biblical Hebrew given name Jared meaning "Descendant." No shield is available for Jared.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please publish your analysis of RUSSELL.—M.K., K.R., Long Beach.

M.K., K.R.: RUSSELL, from from the French "Roussel," was brought to England in the 1000s. Roussel pictured a "reddish-haired" ancestor. Hugh de Rosel owned land in Dorset in 1066 and was marshal of the King's buttery (pantry) a position of great prestige. The Russell shield is silver, emblazoned with a red rampant lion. John Russell of Suffolk, England, brought his sons to America in 1630. One of them was among the first graduates of Harvard University.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give history on BOTKIN and BODKINS.—Mrs. M. B., Centralia, Wash. V. B., Garden Grove

M. B., V. B.: BOTKIN and BODKINS had their start in England as "Boto-kin," deciphered as "young messenger." The Bodkins coat-of-arms has three silver tailors' bodkins with gold handles on a blue shield. No shield is available for Botkin.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like your analysis of WITT.—R. W., Long Beach

R. W.: WITT is a north German and Dutch family name altered from De Witt. This name has two sources, either from Wido, a warrior title for "chieftain," or from Witu, a home location word for "at the forest." The De Witt coat-of-arms, granted at Amsterdam, Holland, has a silver chevron surrounded by three rosettes, with a silver dove holding an olive branch in its beak, perched on the point of the chevron.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give genealogy on WATKINS. —Mrs. B. W., Garden Grove, Mrs. H., Long Beach

B. W., H.: WATKINS evolved from Wat, one of various nicknames for Walter which meant "army ruler." Old London baptismal registers list the birth of Jane Watkinnes in 1547. One of the Watkins family shields is gold with three gold horseshoes on a red chevron across the center.

The World of Christmas . . .

It's a Toy World

THE WORLD of Christmas, for children, at least, is a small world, a land of toys filled with dolls, trains, boats, planes, buggies, games, guns, cars, bikes and tin soldiers.

Youngsters of yesteryear were content with a doll that said "Mama" or a teddy bear with button eyes, soldiers who merely stood guard or a gun that went bang!

In today's electronic world, however, it takes more to bring that special Christmas sparkle to young eyes:

Dolls that laugh when tickled, speak when spoken to, walk on command; or miniature mannikins with a wardrobe rivaling Zsa Zsa Gabor.

Guns, it seems, must knock down a bear at 20 paces with a beam of light or plastic pellet. Wooden soldiers have been promoted to giant robots for hurling guided missiles.

CHEMISTRY SETS, once calculated for ink-making and smoke bomb preparation, must now nearly approximate rocket fuel or atomic explosions before they can compete in the Christmas toy-buying rush.

And electric trains, long a Christmas stand-by for boys, are now largely reserved for dad's own amusement. Male small fry are concentrating on speedway racers with roadways instead of rails.

Simple wooden sailboats of the past have suddenly become mighty battleships, capable of blasting submarines (and water by the bucket) right out of the bathtub.

All this leaves dad (not to mention his empty pockets) with a yen for the good old days of wooden soldiers, rag dogs, penny whistles and dolls just for hugging.

Even the old-fashioned Christmas tree usually turns out in plastic splendor with footlights and baby spots suitable for a Broadway production.

AMONG THOSE who still remember the Christmas traditions of old, however, is a man named Walt Disney. And he's doing something about it.

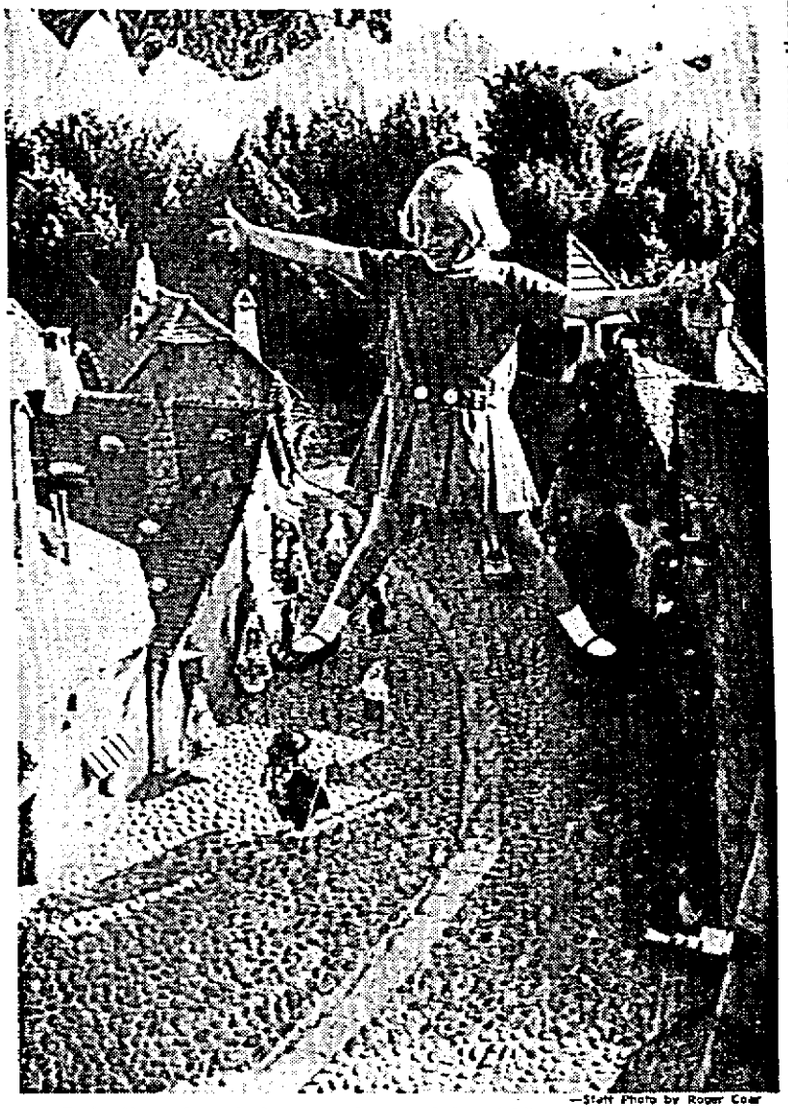

Next Sunday, for the ninth straight year, he'll turn out a world of Christmas toys unmatched around the globe. It's Disneyland's "Christmas in Many Lands" and "Parade of the Toys" beginning at 2 p. m. and ending at 5:30 with a candlelight procession of 1,000 carolers in traditional Christmas music.

Disney's toy world is filled with giant wooden soldiers marching down Main Street, mammoth dolls, a river-size battleship, galloping toy knights, French balloonists and 60 Disney animals—living toys.

From 25 nations around the world come marchers and dancers with floats representing the traditional toys of many lands. "Stuffed" elephants become live pachyderms.

THERE ARE German music boxes, Scotch dogs, Arabian camels, Japanese dancing dolls and bands and marchers from throughout the South-

Enchanting—there is just no other word for childhood in a toy village, as Southland's Cover Girl so happily demonstrates at Disneyland today.

Two happy parades next Sunday at Walt Disney's magic kingdom, "Christmas in Many Lands" and "Parade of the Toys," will attract giant toy soldiers.

Comic reindeer will dance down Disneyland's Main Street in the "Parade of Toys," which will be a daily feature from next Sunday through Dec. 31.

A Square Deal for Square Dancing Dolls

Honey Bunch the cockateel gets a bird's-eye view of the fitting of a square-dance doll's dress, Mrs. Margaret Cloyd's specialty.

By Leslie Jones

DOLLS ARE plentiful in most families in which there are little girls —which is most families. But, in the case of Mrs. Margaret Cloyd of Lawndale, dolls and their clothes helped her get a driving license. Anyway, that's how it all ended up.

The whole thing actually started in New Orleans, a generation ago. Mrs. Cloyd's grandmother, Cora Chalin, and Aunt Elizabeth (Ish) Pursglove, helped Margaret's mother, Cora Louise Fortier, get started making doll clothes. She made clothes for the Woman's Christian Exchange, on consignment.

Her mother eventually became associated with a woman who ran a doll hospital, and made clothes for the "patients" there. Also, she made doll costumes for an annual doll show.

Mrs. Cloyd thus inherited her interest and ability in making doll clothes from a long line of doll clothiers.

WHILE LIVING in Anaheim, she got the bug to buy an organ, and earn the money to pay for it.

She scanned the want ads for odd jobs she could do within walking distance. Some of her spare-time activities, done while teen-age Margo and little Helen were at school, included conducting elections in her home and serving as election judge, baby-sitting for square dancers, and doing alterations with her handy needle and thread.

The savings didn't accumulate fast enough, so she considered how she could increase her spare-time income. Then she remembered how her grandmother and her mother made use of their time.

GETTING HER material from many sources, she threaded her needles, started up her sewing machine, and turned out a long list of doll clothes and accessories.

She made brides' dresses, shifts, ballerina costumes, sheaths, shorty nightgowns, robes, coats, hats, "mink" stoles, pantaloons, gowns, slips, lingerie, shirts, pearl necklaces —and even bikinis.

Working whenever and wherever she could snatch a spare moment, perhaps while chatting with a neighbor or while waiting up for her husband, Lewis, to return from the swing shift, she sewed and cut and planned. Often, during the more lonely hours, she was kept company by the family's birds, Honey Bunch the cockateel, or Sweetie Pie the parakeet. Sometimes, they got in her hair—but she didn't mind.

MRS. CLOYD merchandized her products in many ways. A friendly, outgoing person, much of her "promotion" was through word of mouth, in the course of talking with neighbors. When a salesman stopped by, she usually ended up selling him something to take home to his daughter. She placed ads in newspapers and on market bulletin boards.

She did a good business. Even yet, the money was not coming in fast enough to pay for an organ. Just by chance, one day, she turned out a square-dance doll dress. There was so much interest expressed in this item that she did more. Soon, it snowballed. Now children from all over the neighborhood beat a little pathway to her door. She was amazed. In no time, she found herself several days behind on orders. Even a western wear store asked for some of her square-dance doll clothes to sell on consignment.

BUT IT MUST be said that the increase of business was not all due to the square-dance doll dresses. The children in the neighborhood had found out that they could get a square deal from Margaret Cloyd. In the first place, in return for half-an-hour to four hours of work on each item of doll clothing, Mrs. Cloyd kept her prices down, ranging from a mere 10 cents to seldom more than $2.

When even these low prices were beyond the pocketbooks of her little customers, she offered generous "terms"—a few cents down, a few cents a week. She kept good records —and she was teaching the children good business practices. Sometimes children got discounts by supplying their own material, and even patterns. Many a parent thanked her for encouraging their children to work for money for the doll clothes.

MRS. CLOYD was offering more than merely "wears."

By now, she was making enough to afford payments on an organ. But another objective had meanwhile taken the place of the organ. Worldly matters had finally won over. For years, she had been handicapped by not knowing how to drive. At last, she made up her mind to learn how, since California is no place for pedestrians.

Because her husband worked nights and had to sleep part of the day, and because she had no way to get to the Anaheim Adult Evening School, where inexpensive driving lessons are offered, Mrs. Cloyd had to take her lessons from a privately-owned driving school, where a car was furnished and the instructor came to her home. This cost more, but her square-dance doll clothes footed the bill.

After a year, Mrs. Cloyd at last has a driver's license. And, although now living in Lawndale (15635 Roselle) and far removed from them physically, she nevertheless has a place in the hearts of the children who made it possible.

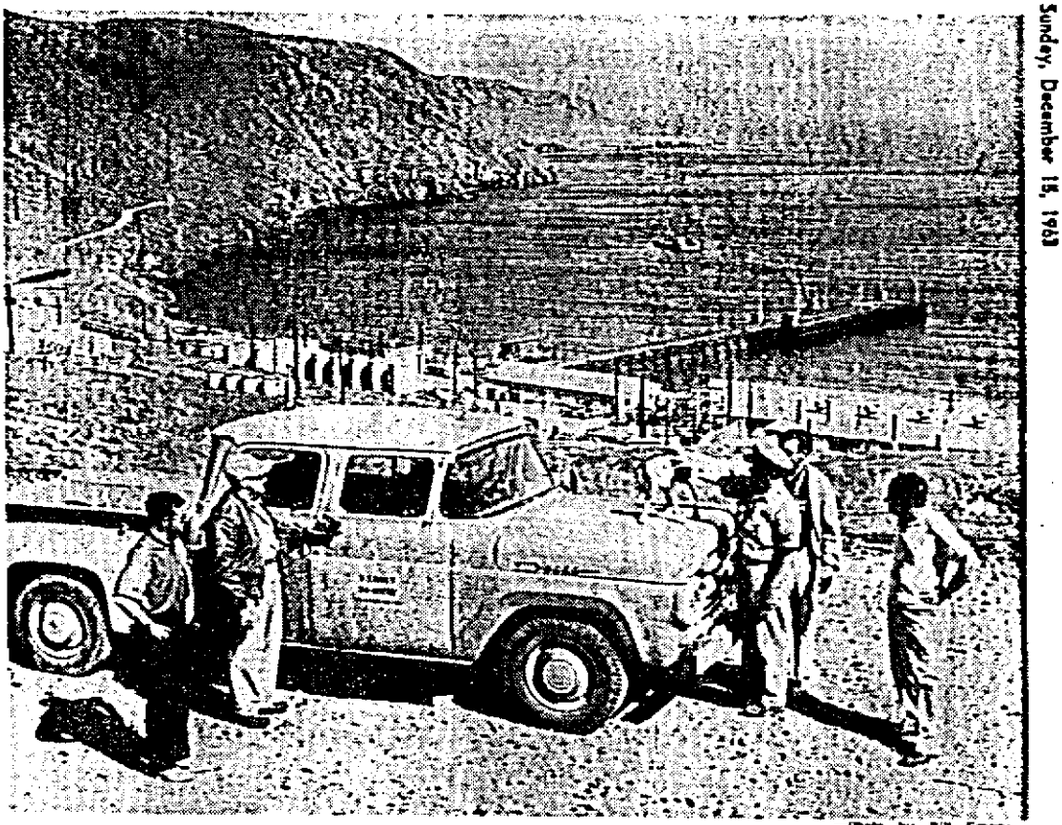

All dolled up in doll costumes designed and made by Mrs. Cloyd, one of her tiny couples begins to do a right-and-left through.

SAN CLEMENTE

Mysterious Island of the Sea Monster

By Bill Emery and Dick Cadieu

Wilson Cove is the Navy's center of activities on San Clemente Island, mysterious mountaintop jutting from the sea off the California shore beyond Catalina. This is a view of the Naval Ordnance Test Station there.

FIFTY-TWO miles south and slightly west of Long Beach lies an island shrouded in mystery both ancient and modern, where fish abound in startlingly clear water but are off-limits to most divers; where the treasures of sunken Spanish ships are believed to lie, and remnants of a 5,000-year-old Indian culture have been found.

This is San Clemente Island, second biggest of the eight offshore channel isles. It is the home of thousands of wild goats, site of a Navy station with several hundred personnel and the place where the Polaris missile got its super-secret underwater testing.

It even has its own legendary sea monster.

San Clemente Island, called Kenkope (Wild Waves) by the Indians, was renamed by Vizcaino in honor of the fourth Roman Catholic Pope, St. Clement. But for the most part its recorded history is scarce.

The 24-mile-long island, of volcanic origin, has gently rolling hills and valleys thick with waist-high wild oats, and is ringed by sharp cliffs.

THE EAST SIDE of the island falls to 647 fathoms in about a 70-degree drop, and rises out of the Pacific to a height of 1,965 feet at the southern end at the same rakish angle.

The water around the island is so clear that large fish can be seen on sandy bottoms 60 to 80 feet deep. Abalone, lobster, sheepshead, bass, and virtually all types of sport fish thrive in the kelp caverns close to shore.

Since the fish see few divers, they are curious to the point of rudeness about their rare human visitors.

But there is no use donning flippers and wet suit. Civilians can tour the island only with special military permission. And federal imprisonment wouldn't be the only risk faced by an unauthorized visitor.

Part of the island is under practice bombardment on the average of four days a week, another part is strafed by Air Force planes, and underwater demolition teams blast away at still another site.

PRIME ACTIVITY of the Naval Ordnance Test Station, which has about 450 men stationed on the island, is the testing of underwater weapons systems, including the Polaris missile. The Polaris tests, conducted in secrecy for about five years, culminated in the first successful underwater firing of the 1,500-mile-range missile in April 1960.

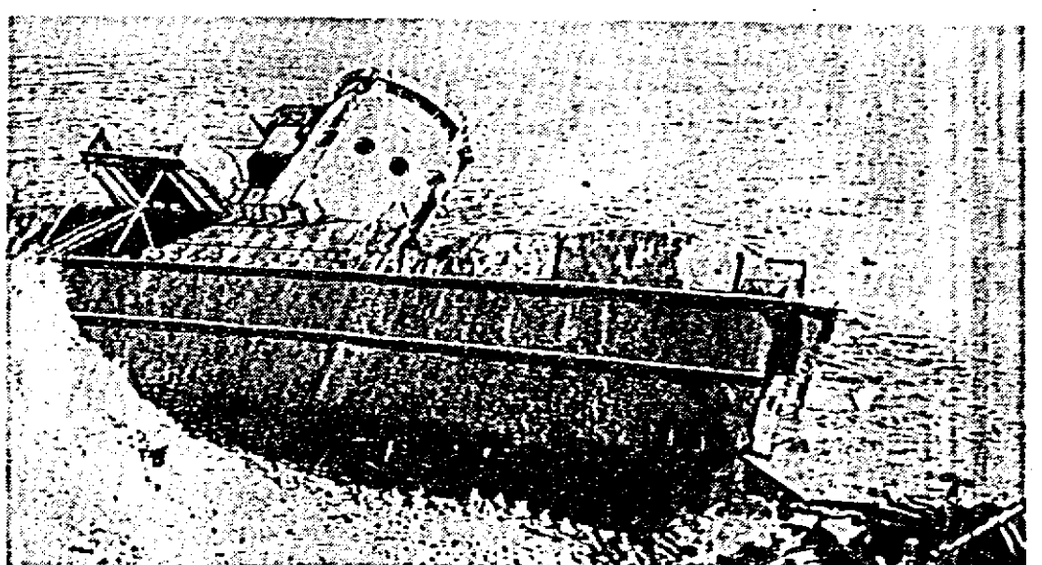

The ordnance facility, headquartered at Wilson Cove on the eastern slope, is involved in other scientific projects, and the $12 million Sherman Field air strip on the northern part of the island is used by carrier squadrons for touch-and-go landings.

Peak population of the now Navy-operated island was during World War II, when 3,000 men were stationed at a base in the island's interior. The base was abandoned at the end of the war in a matter of hours, and even the sheets were left on the bunks. Later, practicing invasion tactics, U. S. Marines used the buildings to further their training. The old 7,500-foot runway now is used only for launching drones flown for aerial gunnery practice.

THE ISLAND has several features all its own. There are three types of cacti—one of which is found nowhere else in the world. Of the two species of lizards, one is found only there.

The birds of the island include the meadow-

Anciently, Indians lived on San Clemente, and still more anciently, strange animals. The island's history also includes accounts of a sea monster. This rusting hulk is a reminder of military training landing operations.

HOME

Beyond a Door of Quartz and Glass

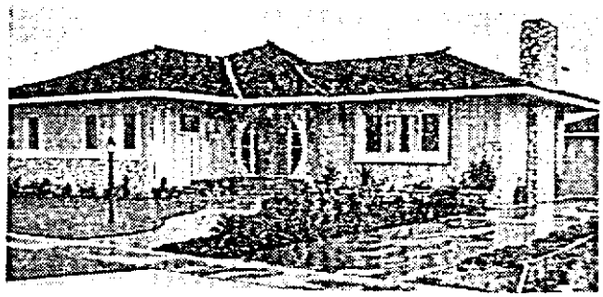

By Stella George

ON AN outsize lot, which measures 76x168 feet, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Akers built their dream home about a year ago in the Lakewood Country Club area at 3418 Warwood Drive. The location provides a permanent, unobstructed view of the tall trees and green fairways beyond.

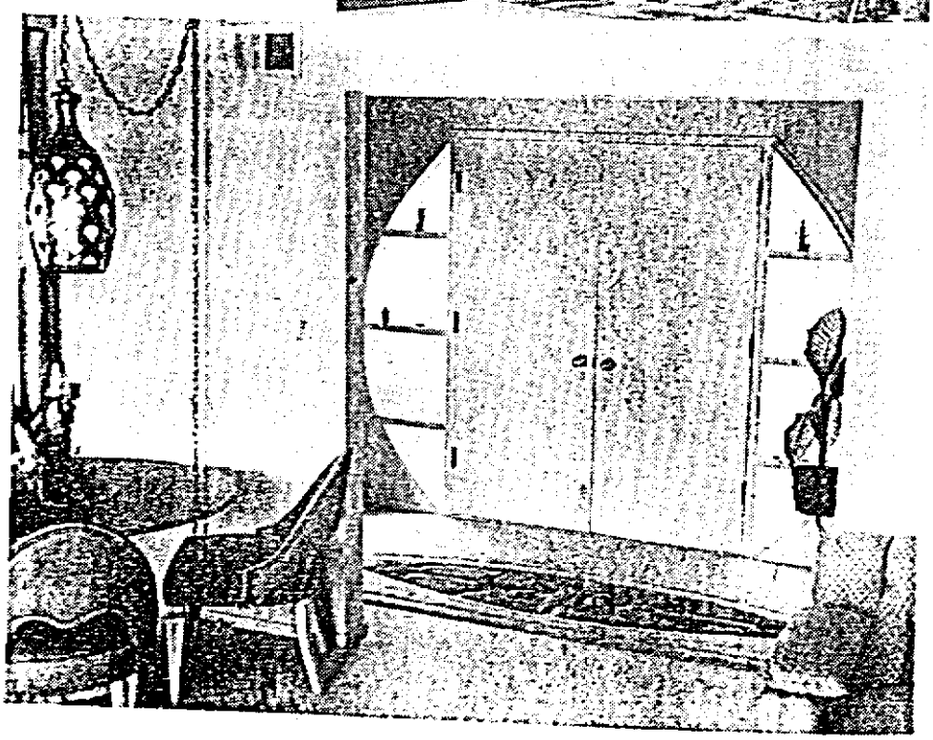

The home reflects the personalities and tastes of the occupants who modified plans to suit their own requirements, and planned the entire decorating theme of the interior.

A curved walk leads to the front door. Death Valley quartz, a clean, white rock, encircles an unusual doorway which has amber glass on either side. The quartz is also used in a firplace, an outside planter, and in the front trim.

THE GRACIOUS entry is unique since it is a small foyer and part of the living room itself. The entire home is carpeted in martini wool, but in the entry there is a colorful rug on top of the carpeting that lends a warm and inviting feeling to the surroundings.

The living room measures 40x22 feet. On the right, near the fireplace, is a persimmon-and-gold sofa facing a French Provincial coffee table. Across the way are two occasional chairs in antique white and with rollers so that the chairs may be moved to any desired position in the room.

A round game or dining table, surrounded by custom-made persimmon colored chairs upholstered in a silk finish plastic-type fabric is in front center of the room, with a hanging lamp overhead. Across the way is a hi-fi console. At the left end of the living room is a harvest table, TV, and other occasional chairs.

THE KITCHEN, with its up-to-date appliances, is a model of streamlined efficiency. There is a spacious dining area at the far end. A service porch adjoins.

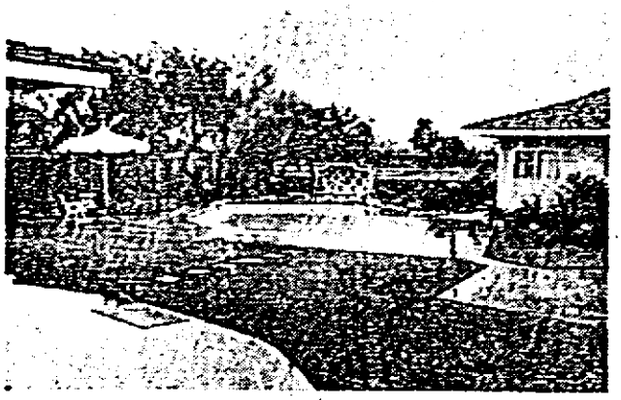

Furnishings in the master bedroom are Hawaiian modern. The king-sized bed is custom made with an antique white headboard. The dresser carries out the Hawaiian modern theme. Shocking pink accessories add a gay touch of color: the long velvet bench, the small rug beside the bed, and the occasional chair with pink and lilac upholstery. Venetian lamps are pink and lilac. Mrs. Akers' dressing room and bath is to the right of the master bedroom. The former has a pink settee, full length mirror and dressing table. Akers' bath is to the left, as tailored as the other bath is feminine.

The second bedroom is done with red mahogany furnishings. Next to this room is Akers' den—completely customed to his needs with desk, comfortable black leather swivel chair, sofa, and wall space on which to hang or mount maps and similar items.

AMONG THE many outstanding features of the home is the easy flow of the rooms and their location with respect to one another. For example, Mrs. Akers' dressing room and bath follows through to the service porch where the washer and dryer are conveniently located. This room, of course, adjoins the kitchen. With this arrangement, the typical morning tasks of a housewife are thus made easier. The problem of saving steps yet maintaining spaciousness in various areas is solved with such a plan.

A pool is at the far left of the lot. Immediately surrounding the pool is a wide deck area. The fence at the rear of the property is cut low in order to capture the view of the trees and golf course. A large patio directly behind the glass wall of the living room is excellent for entertaining. In their garage the Akers have built two baths with showers for pool users and a spacious den rumpus room.

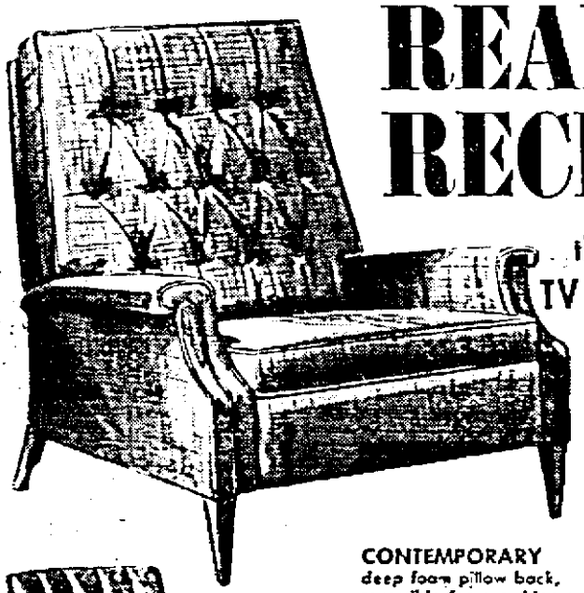

This comfortable and attractive home which is only sixty seconds away from busy Carson Street and the shopping areas has a true country atmosphere.

Pool and patio area: An unusually low fence, in rear of picture, permits a view of golf course and trees beyond.

Christmas at the White House

By Betty Hardesty

DURING the holiday season, the White House is ablaze with many lights and an enormous Christmas tree shines on the lawn. The North Portico sparkles with a beautiful cluster of colored bulbs and all the windows are lit up.

A fine Christmas tree in the East Room has been a tradition ever since Teddy Roosevelt's sons surprised their father with the first electrically-lighted tree.

When the Theodore Roosevelts came to the White House, there was no tree to add to the festivities. The President considered candles too serious a fire hazard. The next year, however, with help from the electrician, the children decorated a tree and hid it in a closet until time for the surprise.

THE EAST ROOM Christmas tree had no children to enjoy it during the Eisenhower administration, but throughout former years the White House glowed with festivities, gifts and laughter of children. Wonderful family parties took place during Andrew Jackson's term and those of Franklin Roosevelt as well as Theodore Roosevelt.

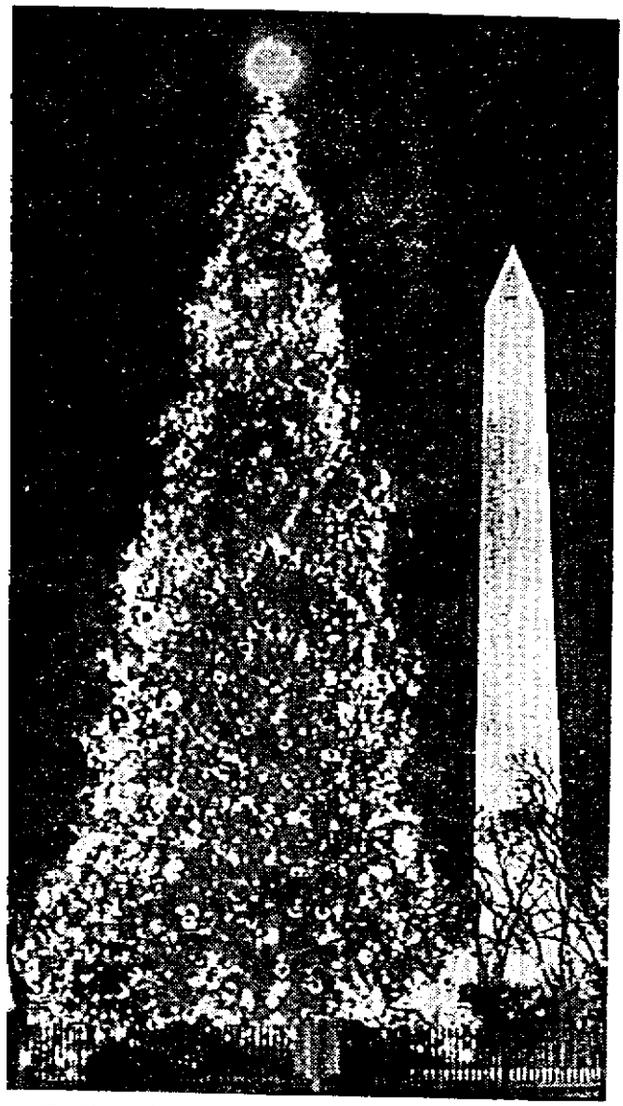

Jackson's nephew, Johnny Donelson, 6, was the cause of the first big party staged for youngsters — all the orphans of Washington D.C. Johnny had asked the President, "Did you ever hear of a Christmas when Santa did not come?" and Andrew Jackson had to thoughtfully answer, "Yes." He himself had been left an orphan without ever hearing about Santa or even owning a single toy.

President Jackson personally gave each child a gift and then played snowball fight with balls of starched cotton right there in the East Room.

CALVIN COOLIDGE'S sons were too old when they lived in the White House to believe in Santa so their Christmas was less boisterous. The story is told that frugal Cal gave his staff some gifts he had previously received himself.

Hoover was always self-contained, but liked a merry Christmas. There was fun when Santa, really his secretary, Larry Richey, jumped from the fireplace to amuse the Hoover grandchildren, Peggy Ann and Peter. President Hoover began a White House custom by ordering a reading of Dicken's "Christmas Carol."

Franklin D. Roosevelt liked this ceremony and dramatized it by reading it himself to make it a memorable occasion for the White House children's Christmas.

The National Community Christmas tree blazes with lights each year on the Ellipse south of the White House.

Wreaths in the windows and trees flanking the entrance are typical of the Christmas decorations that are to be found each year at the North Portico of the White House.

Today's Daring Executives

Dr. H. G. Hubbard of LBSC takes a close look at today's business executive and gets some surprising answers.

By Lou Jobst

THE Southern California executive is no staid, stick-in-the-mud in a gray flannel suit.

He's a swashbuckling business adventurer who is ready, even eager, to take chances.

This is the view of a pair of Long Beach area researchers, Dr. Harold G. Hubbard of Long Beach State College and Dr. Edward C. McDonagh, USC professor and citizen of Palos Verdes.

Drs. Hubbard and McDonagh took a long and searching look at the management man, Southern California species, during a study in which they interviewed 102 vice-presidents of metropolitan area corporations.

THE VEEPS WERE the cream of the executive suite crop, representing firms whose annual sales were between $25 and $50 million and employed 1,000 to 2,500 persons each.

They found the group's most significant trait to be "a desire for adventure which includes 'making things happen' and creating situations which lead to calculated risks."

Each of those interviewed was given a 100-item questionaire and then personally questioned for more than one hour.

The researchers were particularly interested in finding out at what age men decide upon a career in finance and business management.

THEY LEARNED that unlike physicians and lawyers who usually decide on careers prior to entering college, business executives usually do not decide what they want to be until they have nearly completed their higher education.

Where once the business executive was characterized by his conservativeness toward change, a personality that carefully sidestepped anything that might suggest the flambouyant or adventurous, this portrait is no longer true.

Hubbard and McDonagh termed the business climate of the "60's" the "era of aggressiveness" and told a meeting of the American Sociological Association that management should be out looking for the adventuresome young man.

In the center of it all is Disneyland's mammoth old-fashioned Christmas tree—snow-tipped branches 60 feet in the air loaded with multi-colored lights and ornaments.

Along Main Street are the traditional garlands of 60 years ago and over all the beams of a giant star resting atop the mighty Matterhorn Mountain.

Even space-oriented youngsters, along with their parents, will find the world of "old-fashioned toys," Disney style, an exciting addition to an otherwise streamlined world of Christmas toys.

Tree Trimming Party Surprise

Surprise Luncheon Bowls, ideal fare for a tree-trimming party, have a filling of diced ham and pineaple chunks in sour-cream sauce, with pre-cooked asparagus spears underneath.

By Mildred K. Flanary

Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

A TREE-TRIMMING party is a happy way to entertain during the holiday season. The tree can be contemporary or old-fashioned—no matter what the style, the spirit is the same! And an easily served buffet supper will add to the festivities for the hostess as well as the guests.

Surprise Luncheon Bowls are just the thing to tempt your guests. They can be eaten "bowl and all" and the bowls are made, almost like magic, in a large pyrex custard cup with cream puff dough. The crisp bowl holds a delicious filling of juicy pineapple chunks and diced ham sparked with a sauce of sour cream seasoned with mustard, a bit of lemon juice and parsley. Tucked beneath the filling are pieces of fresh-frozen asparagus—a perfect complement to the ham and pineapple. The bowls can be made ahead of time and the filling added just before serving. Garnish with a cranberry and a bit of parsley for a gay touch of color.

Surprise Luncheon Bowls

½ cup water
½ cub butter
½ cup flour
⅛ tsp. salt
2 eggs

To measure flour, dip nested dry measuring cups into flour, level off with straight-edged spatula OR sift if you wish.

Heat oven to 400° (mod. hot). Heat water and butter to boil in saucepan. Stir in flour, salt at once. Stir vigorously over low heat until mixture leaves sides of pan and forms a ball, about one minute. Remove from heat. Add eggs one at a time, beating until smooth and velvety after each addition. Spread batter evenly in bottom of six greased custard cups (10 oz.). Bake 40 to 45 minutes. Cool slowly away from drafts. Fill with filling (below).

Filling:

1 cup commercial sour cream
1 tsp. lemon juice
2 tbsp. finely chopped parsley
1 tsp. salt
dash pepper
½ tsp. prepared mustard
2 cups diced cook ham
2 cups cantaloupe (diced or balled) or pineapple chunks
1 pkg. (10oz.) frozen asparagus pieces

Combine sour cream, lemon juice, parsley, salt, pepper, mustard and ham in a saucepan. Heat and stir until smooth. Add cantaloupe. Arrange pre-cooked asparagus spears in individual salad bowls. Top with ham mixture. Garnish with parsley.

HEUBLEIN COCKTAILS

The Master Potter

Flowers, plants and medallions of Victorian ladies form design of this soup tureen, part of an old Wedgwood set.

By Helen L. Gillum

When Mr. and Mrs. Verne Holland of 3828 Alberan Ave. give a dinner party, like as not their guests are served on beautiful old Wedgwood. And, because of its unusual design and interesting history, this handsome earthenware dinner set is also apt to become the conversation piece of the meal before it is over.

The 12-piece setting is actually a family heirloom, for it has been in the Hollander family for about 50 years. Before that, it belonged to a newspaperman of Toronto, Canada, who won the china in a circulation contest. Some years later it was presented to Hollander's mother, who used it before the Hollanders came into possession of it.

The striking pattern draws much comment. It is in effect a design of not one, but many kinds of rambling flowers and plants transfer-printed in light grayish-blue on a white background. Big blue medallions of Victorian ladies and young girls also stand out on each piece. These, too, are dissimilar; four different portraits appear on the dinner plates alone.

SEVERAL YEARS AGO Mrs. Hollander queried the New York office of Josiah Wedgwood & Sons about this distinctive Wedgwood design. She was informed that the pattern was originally called "Botanical Plants," and was created in 1874. The intriguing medallions of female faces were added to the design in 1882. Just who are the comely maidens has never been determined. It has been suggested that they are likenesses of members of the royal family of that day, but this premise has never been substantiated.

Like most old-time dinner sets, the serving vessels of this Wedgwood are extremely generous in size — suggestive of the large families and family gatherings that were common years ago. There is a huge soup tureen with cover, an enormous platter that would accommodate the traditional suckling pig or 40-pound gobbler of holiday feasts, and covered vegetable dishes big enough to hold a dozen packages of frozen vegetables from today's supermarket. There is a smaller chop platter, a covered sauce boat and a gravy boat, the latter checked and darkened from repeated "settings" on the rear of the family range to "keep warm" until dinner was ready.

Josiah Wedgwood founded his factory in Staffordshire, England, in 1759. Much of the world's most beautiful basaltes, jasper ware, earthenware, ironstone, luster ware and some porcelain originated here. Queen Charlotte of England, Empress Catherine of Russia, the queen of Naples, Napoleon and Thomas Jefferson counted Wedgwood creations among their most prized possessions. It was Queen Charlotte of England who was so pleased with Wedgwood's perfection of cream-colored earthenware that she appointed him "Potter to the Queen," and officially designated his creamware as "Queen's Ware," a name still used by the Wedgwood factory today.

One of Wedgwood's greatest accomplishments was his matchless copy in 1790, in his famous jasper-cameo ware, of the classic Roman antiquity the "Portland Vase," owned by the Duke of Portland. From 1902 to 1912, bone china by Wedgwood, with the decoration and Great Seal by H. A. Chollerton, was used in the White House.

The Wedgwood factory has continued in operation under Josiah Wedgwood's successors down through the years. Its chief production is good quality earthenware, on which many of the old molds and patterns are still used. But it is genuine "Old Wedgwood" that continues to be the favorite among most collectors today.

Whiskeytown

By E. Margaret Bellaire

WHERE is Whiskeytown?

Now that the new dam there has been dedicated, anybody who has read the papers, listened to the radio or watched television news recently, knows that there IS a place in California named Whiskeytown, located in the deep, deep North, as the natives refer to that particular section of California as distinguished from the more prosaic Northern California known as Sacramento or San Francisco.

Whiskeytown is about 230 miles north of San Francisco, about 10 miles from Redding and Highway 99, the main road between California and Oregon.

It had its origin in 1849 as Franklin City and came by its present name after a long struggle, long before prohibition and well after repeal.

IT BECAME Whiskeytown about 1850 and when the post office opened in 1855, it's official name became Whiskey Creek. The post office closed in 1864 and did not re-open until 1881 but refused to acknowledge its undignified name. The long fight started.

The majority of the gold miners wanted the name Whiskeytown.

Washington remained stubborn. The official name now became Blair, then Stella, and still later Schilling, named after an old-time resident. The distasteful part about the name Schilling was that it bore the name of a popular tea.

In 1952, Washington yielded and changed the name back to Whiskeytown.

On the day the change in name became official, more than 3,000 letters went out from the little post office to collectors in all parts of the world.

THE MOTHER LODE gold country is several hundred miles away, but Whiskeytown has had its own exciting past. Lotta Crabtree sang to the prospectors. Joaquin Miller, "poet of the Sierra," fought Indians near there. Not far away lived William B. Ide, first president of the Bear Flag Republic which brought California into the Union. Stage coach robberies were numerous. People like Black Bart, Rattlesnack Dick or Sheetiron Jack were names to think about when climbing into a stagecoach.

It's a country which has been slow to lose its Wild West ways. The last lynching of a stage coach bandit took place near there in the 1890s. Two brothers who had killed a driver were taken from a jail by a mob and strung from a tree in nearby Redding.

Towering Mt. Shasta and Mt. Lassen are on guard, viewing the changes and dreaming of the ghost towns of Igo, Ono, Horsetown, as well as One Horsetown, Piety Hill, Mulestown, Damnation Peak, Rip Gut Rapids, Tarantula Gulch, Budweiser Gap.

And now it's California's newest boomtown—Whiskeytown on Brandy Creek.

This slim guide is the reason new Kotams tampon can give more protection, more comfort

New Kotams is designed with a slim guide that places the tampon exactly where needed to give you the most complete protection possible.

Old-style ways of inserting a tampon can be very haphazard with bulky applicators—or no inserter at all. Protection is often incomplete!

But with new Kotams it's virtually impossible to position this tampon incorrectly. The guide stem has a tapered grip that makes you hold it just the right way for perfect placement. The tampon is angled correctly, directed smoothly to the most comfortable and protective position. The stem then releases.

Deftly compressed, a Kotams tampon expands in use to 4 times its size. Try Regular or Super absorbency...soon.

HOW YOUR CHILD LEARNS

Speedup Possible

By Howard E. Kent

QUESTION: Does the average learner work as efficiently as he can?

ANSWER: No. Far from it.

The learner—the student typist, for example—usually works at what he considers a "comfortable" and convenient pace. He is capable of typing 50 words per minute, but he types 40.

Most of us could work faster and more effectively, but we are satisfied with a rate much slower than our minds or muscles permit.

Each of us has had the experience of working faster and better in response to a special incentive or the pressure of a deadline. A businessman planning a pleasant weekend trip to a resort somehow gets his work done a little faster on Friday afternoon.

QUESTION: Does pronunciation affect a student's spelling ability?

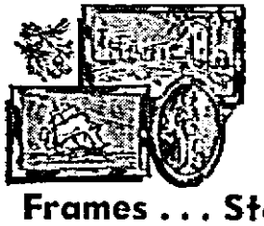

ANSWER: Yes. Any teacher who has conducted a spelling bee knows how important it is that the student hear and repeat the correct pronunciation of the word to be spelled.

A child who has only a vague idea of how a word is pronounced will be vague about its spelling.

One common error of spelling is that of leaving out or adding letters. A study by David R. Stone, professor of educational psychology at Utah University, showed that more careful pronunciation is particularly effective in eliminating this type of error.

Urge the child to look up the pronunciation of words as well as their meanings.

World War II housing as it looks today. Wartime force aboard the island was in excess of 3,000 personnel.

Isle of the Sea Monster

lark, and giant ravens that soar up the canyons in updrafts and do barrel-rolls and flips at the edges of cliffs.

A puzzle of nature is the San Clemente fox, a separate breed; no other species exists on the island. The only other animals are the wild pigs and wild goats believed to have been left by the Spaniards a century and a half ago, and some wild house cats abandoned in recent years.

On top of the northern end of the island, the Southwest Museum of Highland Park has been painstakingly excavating an Indian burial ground where prehistoric and Columbian Indian remains and artifacts have been uncovered. Scientists also found the fossil of a hippopotamus-like animal dating back 15 million years. The species previously was unknown.

WATER on the island is unusable because of its silt content, and repeated attempts to build dams and reservoirs have failed because of the porosity of the soil.

Water must be delivered from Long Beach once a week in 250,000-gallon quantities. Meat, produce and other foods and supplies for the base also come from Long Beach.

Since there are no schools, grocery stores or other family conveniences, there are no women or children on the island. The facilities are basic, and many of the personnel are flown to Long Beach via Standard Airways DC3s for the weekends.

The island has ample evidence of man's misfortunes through the years. Treasure maps show locations of Spanish ships known to have sunk near the island and a Navy landing craft lies battered and rusty at the northern point of the island near a lighthouse.

The wreckage of two planes is spread across remote sections on each end of the island; the remains of one of these was being reported so frequently day and night it finally had to be covered with a bulldozer so that Cmdr. Tom Wallace, skipper of the island, could get a complete night's sleep.

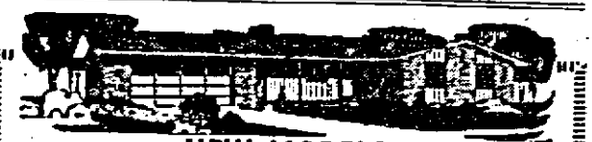

ON THE WEST shore, the rocks tell the story of a cabin cruiser that lost a battle with the heavy seas. All that's left are some pillows sealed in plastic and a varnished spar with the numbers CF3248AW.

As for the island's sea serpent, first mention of it was made in 1919 by Ralph Bandini in a book titled "Tight Lines." He described it as having a huge head and neck, eyes "at least a foot in diameter" and with "something that appeared to be a kind of mane of coarse hair almost like fine seaweed." The "monster" has been reported sighted many times since then, most recently in 1954 by a fishing boat captain who said he fired a couple of shots at it.

The island itself, though it may sound like a potential paradise for tourists and sportsmen, isn't apt to be opened any time soon.

Rear Adm. George W. Pressey, the Navy's director of shore activities, testified in August 1963 before a House Appropriations Subcommittee that San Clemente Island "is one of the few isolated areas in which there is no requirement for civilian use, which the Navy owns completely, and where we can carry on a great many research and weapon systems testing projects."

The island, he added, "will be continually and increasingly used in the future."

Garden Clean-Up

Garden clean-up is a November project which the members of the California Association of Nurserymen take seriously. The idea is to remove fallen leaves from lawns and flower beds before they become soggy from rain and smother plant life or provide hiding places for insects.

Faded annuals should be uprooted and bloomed out perennials should be cut back. Much of the raked up material can be composted, but be sure to burn any that is infested either with fungus or insects.

When the Rains Came C.O.D.

Illustrated by the Author

Refused his rain-making fee, Hatfield rowed away pondering the perfidy of man.

By Tim St. George

FOR MONTHS the San Diego area had been drier than a covered bridge, and the city's reservoirs were empty. Something had to be done but the city dads didn't know which way to turn. Then Charles M. Hatfield, a former sewing machine salesman, appeared with an offer to induce rain for $1,000 an inch, over three years; or for a flat $10,000 to fill Lake Morena to the brim—18 billion gallons within one year.

And with Hatfield the rains came cash on delivery.

Deals with rainmakers were considered then as something akin to a prescription from a witch doctor; but the San Diego council authorized Hatfield to start his mysterious operation.

HATFIELD WAS no rainmaker-come-lately. He was credited with providing Central California ranchers with enough moisture to save their parched crops, and with enough rain (for a fee) to refill the miners' sluice boxes in the Dawson City, Alaska, area. He also had taken an assignment to bring down an Italian deluge for Naples, which threatened to make a historical ruin of the city. So, after surveying the area, Hatfield decided to set up shop on the banks of the lake he intended to fill. As usual he constructed a latticed tower in which trays of smoking chemicals were blown skyward by a makeshift windmill.

The rains came. And how they came—as though determined to damp down the gouts of evil-smelling vapors which floated upward during that January in 1916.

The first sprinkles brought a glorious change for the bone-dry San Diegans. Even after one, two, then three inches fell, the scheme was considered a good bargain. But talk of hanging Hatfield's picture in an honored place among other California immortals soon changed to talk of another kind of hanging as Hatfield's rains became a deluge. With no cover having grown on the hills, the water washed down canyons and gullies, sweeping everything before it. The reservoirs filled, then overflowed. Ranches were inundated, cattle lost, the Tijuana race track flooded, and the San Diego Exposition washed out. As the damage mounted, the city council, already facing the risk of being considered idiots for having started this thing anyway, called on Hatfield to see if he couldn't turn off the celestial faucet. But Hatfield's rain continued.

BRIDGES WERE swept away. One isolated train had its passengers removed by boat, while all supplies for the city were being brought in by sea since normal transportation lines had been cut by the floods.

But that wasn't the end of the deluge.

Otay reservoir, full for the first time, began to overflow. Suddenly its earth-fill dam gave way and a gigantic wall of water carried at least fifty people to their deaths. Damage ran into the millions.

Hatfield dismantled his tower and put out his chemical fires and tried to collect his money. No one would honor the commitment. Hatfield's claim was never paid, largely because no one dared take responsibility for making the rain with all of the attendant damage. Hatfield rowed away from city hall, cursing the perfidy of man and giving thanks for the blessings of nature who responded to his incantations.

Though scientists scoffed at his effectiveness and declared him to be little more than a black magician, before Hatfield died in January, 1958, he lived to see many of these same scientists using somewhat similar methods to precipitate rain.

HATFIELD WAS a kindly but secretive man and even his death was kept from the public for four months. He had always been able to inspire public interest and respect, sometimes too much. In one instance, he had to appear in court and while he was testifying rain drops suddenly splattered against the windows.

Because the weather forecast predicted a sunny day, the judge smilingly looked down and said to Hatfield:

"I hope the change of weather isn't an expression of the witness' displeasure."

Wholesale Tonsillectomy Hit

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical-Science Writer

WHOLESALE family removal of tonsils is criticized by the California Medical Association in a new report.

"Just because one child in the family may need a tonsillectomy is no reason for parents to decide to have all of the children subjected to the operation at the same time," the report notes.

The decision to operate should be based on individual circumstances, it continues.

Incidentally, respiratory infections have been found to be just as common in children after removal of tonsils as before. In fact, one extensive study of 909 youngsters in England shows that those who had their tonsils removed had more colds than those who kept them.

ANOTHER STUDY indicates flu vaccine is effective in protecting elderly persons against the disease.

Earlier this year Asian flu struck a ward in Stockton State Hospital. Some of the patients, all elderly, had been inoculated, others had not.

Twenty-four of 30 patients who contracted influenza had not received the conventional two-injection course of the vaccine.

But only six of 29 patients who had received two doses became ill.

The report is in California Medicine.

APPEARANCE of little gray spots in the eye can be an early clue in the diagnosis of lead poisoning, a researcher reports.

Eight persons working for an industrial wire manufacturer were exposed to lead compounds for periods ranging from six months to one year. In all instances doctors found retinal stippling (spotting)—grayish lead pigment glistening in the eye. Laboratory tests backed up this sign—the patients were found to have lead in their systems.

When workers were removed from this exposure to lead, the little spots disappeared, according to a report in the New England Journal of Medicine.

ADRENAL hormones often are used in the treatment of asthmatic children, but a drawback is that they stunt growth.

Now a team of Denver researchers thinks another drug may offset the tendency to restrict growth.

The drug is a small pink tablet named stanozolol, or Winstrol. It's a synthetic male hormone given in conjunction with the other hormonal drugs.

Dr. Constantine J. Falliers and associates of Children's Asthma Research Institute and Hospital prescribed stanozolol for 12 boys and three girls 7 to 16 years old. All were of short stature, and doctors feared they'd mature into short adults.

After six months of combined medication, the youngsters showed "a marked acceleration" in upward growth. But the doctors say observation must continue for a number of years before long-term effects of the drug can be assessed.

A SIMPLE compound made from sugar cane and natural oils may offer a solution to the problem of detergent pollution in both surface and ground water, researchers disclose.

This approach to the problem of sudsy water pollution is being investigated by Dr. Cooper H. Wayman and other hydrologists (water scientists) at the Denver headquarters of the U. S. Geological Survey.

Addition of the sugar-base compound expedites decomposition of the detergent, they say. The chemical additive makes the detergent a desirable "meal" for bacteria, to bring about a rapid breakdown of polluting suds.

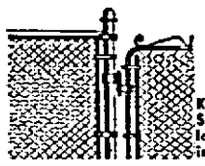

Sweetened by the sugar compound, detergents decompose within one day, Dr. Wayman reports. It makes no difference whether the detergent is discharged into surface water such as rivers, ponds or lakes, or into underground water.

Sugar detergents, the scientists sum up, offer a promising solution to this vexing problem.

Teen-Age Theater

By R. Winston Tucker

FOR THE LAST four years a group of Long Beach teen-agers have produced their version of Broadway musical shows. Forty-five hundred have applauded them for their performances.

It began in 1960 when 13-year-old Greg Killingsworth wrote a nine-page script for "Oklahoma Travelers," adapted from the musical "Oklahoma." Greg and seven of his friends then convinced Greg's grandmother that her garage presented the perfect setting for an expression of their talents. The reaction of the audience was enthusiastic and the participants decided that this type of fun was worth experiencing again.

Since then four shows have been produced at the home of Greg's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Killingsworth of 4606 Virginia Road:

"Battle of Bottleneck," "We Love You, Conrad," "Wildcat," and this year, "The Company Way."

At first, the garage was used, but later the teeners built the present Virginia Country Theatre overlooking the backyard. The shrub-and tree-enclosed area accommodates an audience of 200 and provides a pleasant setting under the stars for an evening of entertainment.

EACH SUCCESSIVE play reflected a little more of the professional touch. Gradually, tape recorders, microphones and speakers were added. Greg and his equally young technician, Ross Millie, designed and built a complicated light board with dimmers. Sets and scenery designed and built entirely by the members, have been improved — all this as donations permitted. The cast has included as many as 30 and recently double casting was initiated to enable more youngsters to participate.

Young Greg Killingsworth writes, directs and produces for Virginia Country Theatre.

Greg is a good looking, tall, slender, easy-to-like person with hazel eyes and light brown wavy hair. Is the theater important to him? Don't ask unless you are prepared to be a good listener. He has written, directed, produced and acted in each show and gets his ideas by listening to tape recorded music from numerous Broadway hits. The script is then written to match the tunes selected. Applicants are auditioned and after weeks of hard work, a dress rehearsal is held.

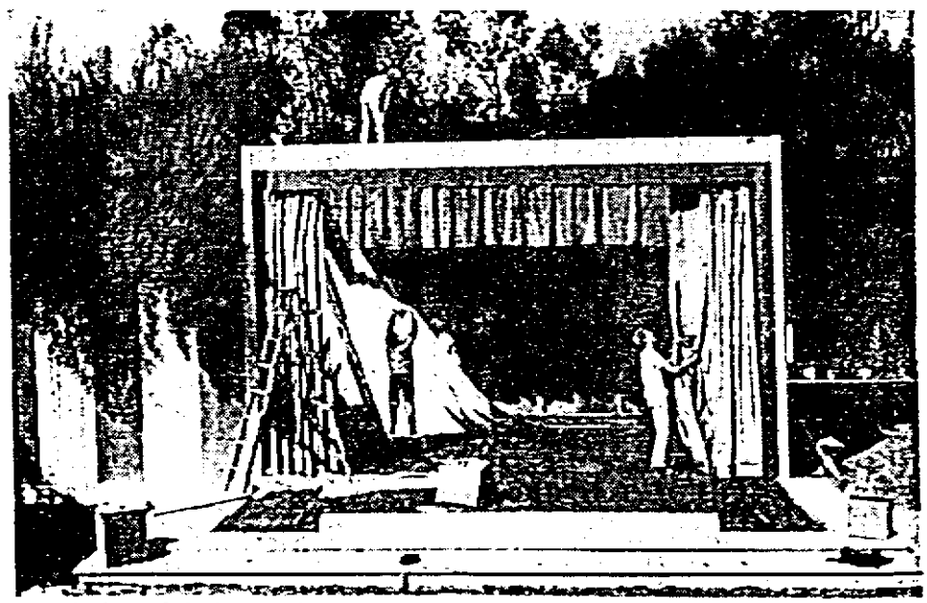

"TO ME, each succeeding performance is the most important," said Greg. "It quickly reveals whether or not we have accomplished our objective. Afterward, I crawl into bed exhausted and hitchhike a ride with the first sandman that comes along."

Ten performances are given outdoors during the summer months. Posters, placed in business windows throughout Long Beach, advertise the musical. There is no admission charge—just a handy donation box.

The Virginia Country Theatre was formally organized last January with a membership of 200. Its purpose: to provide an outlet for talented Long Beach teen-agers interested in the theater and to show adults what the younger generation can do.

• THE MEMBERSHIP is composed of an enthusiastic, friendly group of boys and girls who appreciate this opportunity for self-expression. They neither smoke nor drink, do well scholastically (group average, B-plus) and many are active in school affairs.

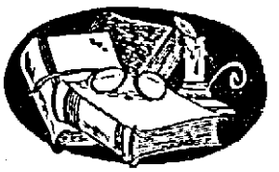

Greg expressed the feelings of the group by saying that "The satisfaction and fun we get from developing an idea into a successful and entertaining production more than compensates for all the hours of hard work. The favorable attitude of the audience and the capacity crowds that we have performed for suggests that the shows should go on".

Members of the Virginia Country Theatre are shown at work on the back-yard stage where the group of 200 teen-agers produces its versions of various Broadway musical shows.

Eleanor Roosevelt's Favorites

By Vera Williams
Southland Magazine Book Editor

HIGH on the list of books that enrich the season comes "ELEANOR ROOSEVELT'S CHRISTMAS BOOK" (Dodd, Mead, $6.). Mrs. Roosevelt loved Christmas, its peace and good will. She liked writing about Christmas, to which she made her own contributions, and collected her favorites to share with others. These stories, essays and verses, old and new, come from many lands where Christmas is celebrated. Included are Mrs. Roosevelt's own descriptions of family Christmases at Hyde Park and in the White House; her charming original tale, "Christmas"; carols from the repertoire of the United Nations Singers and such classics as Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" which FDR used to read aloud on Christmas eve, along with contemporary works such as "Amahl and the Night Visitors." Mrs. Roosevelt selected writings of such diverse authors as Heywood Broun, Rachel Field, Anatole France, Robert Frost, Washington Irving, Selma Lagerlof, F. Van Wyck Mason, O. Henry, Dylan Thomas, William Shakespeare, Hugh Walpole.

"THE JOYFUL CHRISTMAS BOOK" by Kathryn Holley Seibel (Van Nostrand, $5.95) is meant to convey the joy of Christmas for those who like to create the decorations and gifts described in how-to detail. Under Mrs. Seibel's guidance you can turn metal foils, wood veneers, copper screen, plastics and glass bottles into decorative Christmas pieces. Even wood shavings, rice, macaroni, fruit, vegetables, seashells and glass marbles are part of ingenious designs, some for Christmas and others that can be used around the year.

MANY MORE BOOKS, on a variety of subjects are out, all eminently suitable for Christmas giving.

Biography?

Abraham Lincoln emerges as a man, husband and father, a national leader in "LINCOLN IN PHOTOGRAPHS, an Album of Every Known Pose," by Charles Hamilton and Lloyd Ostendorf (University of Oklahoma Press, $19.50). There are 119 photographs of Lincoln—39 beardless, 80 with a beard. He sat for 30 different cameramen on 61 occasions. A half-dozen are issued for the first time from the original glass negatives or collodion plates, unaltered and uncropped. Also included are 105 heretofore unpublished photographs of people and places known intimately to Lincoln. The total number of pictures of all subjects: 790.

"FDR" by Robert D. Graff, Robert Emmett Ginna and Roger Butterfield (Harper, $10) in photographs and text spans the life of Franklin Delano Roosevelt. It brings back the dark days of the depression, the hopeful "100 days," World War II and the sorrow and shock of FDR's death.

"WATCHERS OF THE SKIES," by Willy Ley (Viking, $8.50) is an informal history of astronomy from Babylon to the Space Age. Following the stream of discovery from its source in prehistory, Ley considers step by step the problems that confronted leading astronomers of each age, tells how they met them and outlines what each contributed to the growing knowledge of the skies.

"THE GREAT PIANISTS FROM MOZART TO THE PRESENT" by Harold C. Schonberg, music critic of the New York Times (Simon & Schuster, $6.95) makes the artists of the piano come vividly alive as people and performers . . . of special interest is his appraisal of the pianists of our own time—Lhevinne, Rosenthal, Godowsky, Rubenstein, Horowitz and younger men.

"SHAKESPEARE, a Biography" by Peter Quennell (World, $6.95) provides an account of Shakespeare's life and literary development against the historical background of his age. Quennell believes that Shakespeare actually wrote the comedies and tragedies attributed to him; he thinks the Earl of Southampton probably inspired the Sonnets.

"THE SEEKERS: Gaugin, Van Gogh and Cezanne," by Lawrence and Elisabeth Hansen (Random House, $6.95) is the first biography for the general reader which relates the lives and the work of these artists. The Hansons present the trio as a complete aspect of art: Cezanne, the intellect; Van Gogh, the heart; Gaugin, a balance between the two.

"RECOLLECTIONS OF CHARLEY RUSSELL," by Frank Bird Linderman (University of Oklahoma Press, $6.95) reflects the close friendship of the frontier artist and his friend, a trapper and assayer and their concern for the era fast slipping away from them. Includes a gallery of Russell drawings.

"HENRY THOREAU: American Rebel" by T. Morris Longstreth (Dodd, Mead, $3.50) is a readable biography of the great naturalist whose life exemplified every individual's need for integrity and independence.

"MARY BAKER EDDY, A Biography" by Norman Beasley (Duell, Sloan & Pearce, $5.95) presents the life story and the accomplishments of the founder of the Church of Christ, Scientist.

"UNFINISHED SYMPHONY AND OTHER STORIES OF MEN AND MUSIC" by Freda Pastor Berkowitz, drawings by Joseph Schindelman (Atheneum, $4.95): 50 stories about pieces of music, 16 musical biographies, Scarlatti to Copland.

"AS I REMEMBER THEM" by Eddie Cantor (Duell, Sloan & Pearce, $3.95). Cantor recalls when he and George Jessel were discovered by Gus Edwards and he tells interesting things about his friends, Jack Benny, W. C. Fields, Bea Lillie, Groucho Marx, Al Jolson, Will Rogers, Greta Garbo, Judy Garland, Jimmy Durante, Fanny Brice, Danny Kaye.

DRAMA—The Burns Mantle Yearbook, "THE BEST PLAYS, 1962-1963" edited by Henry Hewes with Al Hirschfeld drawings (Dodd, Mead, $6.50), the 46th volume of the Best Plays series. Includes programs of various Shakespeare festivals, a complete listing of Broadway and off-Broadway productions, programs on the theater outside New York and abroad. For the record, the 10 best plays are "Stop the World—I Want to Get Off," "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" "Tohin-Tohin," "P. S. 193," "The Collection," "The Milk Train Doesn't Stop Here Anymore," "Anderra," "Mother Courage and Her Children," "Battle of a Simple Man" and "She Loves Me."

They'll Be Gadding Into Mexico

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

IF YOU PLAN a vacation to Mexico next year, you should not overlook Operation Amigos and the possibilities it offers for a memorable experience in travel.

Operation Amigos is a real bonanza in gadding because it affords the opportunity to visit Mexico City, Cuernavaca, Taxco and Acapulco group style—with friends — and at the same time assist in a worthy cause.

The trip is scheduled April 3-12.

Sponsored by the Children's Dental Foundation and the Junior League of Long Beach, Operation Amigos is designed to promote funds for the dental care of underprivileged children. The tour is being operated by Western Airlines, Mexico Travel Advisors, and the C. F. Beach Travel Service as agents for those making the journey.

A RATE of $349.50 per person includes transportation, hotel accommodation, and most meals and drinks.

While in Mexico City the group will visit the pyramids, the Shrine of Guadalupe, Chapultepec Castle and Park, National Palace and other points of interest. Entertainment will include the famous Ballet Folklorico, bullfights and Mexican folklore dances.

In Cuernavaca, there will be visits to the Palace of Cortez, with its Diego Rivera murals, and the Borda Gardens; in Taxco, the Santa Prisca Cathedral, House of Tears, and the world-renowned silver shops.

Two days will be spent in Acapulco, often referred to as the "Mexican Riviera."

Beach Travel (542 Locust Ave.) has all the details.

ALL TRAVELERS to Mexico are required to carry with them proof of citizenship (birth or baptismal certificate, voter's registration card, passport or naturalization certificate) and a Mexican Tourist Permit issued at any Mexican tourist office or consulate. A smallpox vaccination, not less than 14 days nor more than three years old, also is required.

Beginning Jan. 1, 1964 Mexican tourist cards good for 30 days, will be issued without charge.

STAY - AT - HOMES soon will be able to provide dining hospitality and other entertainment for traveling friends anywhere in the world—without themselves being present.

Such is the promise of a unique new service, "Be My Guest," established jointly by American Express, world's largest travel organization, and Be My Guest, Inc. of New York.

Starting soon, more than 1,000,000 American Express Credit Card holders will receive a colorful directory listing more than 800 dining spots in 200 cities throughout the U. S., Canada and the world.

All the holders need do to provide hospitality to their friends in far places is to determine when they will be where, choose the desired restaurant, and then either mail or telephone American Express. Be My Guest does the rest—sends the invitation which your guest merely presents at the designated eating place.

And that isn't all: prices in the directory, ranging from $4 to $25, depending upon the restaurant chosen, entitle the recipient to a full dinner of his own selection from the a la carte menu — from cocktails through dessert, and including tips and taxes.

CONTINENTAL Trailways Bus System of the United States has established a sales office in Tokyo (47, Mamiana-cho, Azabu, Minato-ku). Representative in charge will be Robert Strickland, 819 E. 37th St., Long Beach, for Japan, Korea, Okinawa and Taiwan. Strickland was formerly director of the American Orient Travel Corp. of Japan and is well known in travel and international circles in Japan.

About Australia

AROUND THE WORLD WITH DELAPLANE

"Can you suggest something different for a holiday-party punch? Something with champagne?"

BAR CINTRA in the Square de l'Opera in Paris serves what they call a "cup"—they pronounce it just like we pronounce cup.

First you need two bowls—Bar Cintra used a glass bowl inside a silver bowl. Put the smaller bowl inside the larger. Fill the space between with crushed ice.

The mixture in the small bowl: Two bottles of champagne. An ounce each of cognac, apricot brandy, peach brandy, creme de banane, maraschino. Add small slices of half an orange, banana, peach, and apricot. Let it stand and chill a couple of hours.

Serve this in six ounce glasses. Fill the glass two-thirds full of the bowl mixture. Then top it with another third of freshly opened, chilled dry champagne. It's a lot of work. But you make good points.

". . . Something simple but foreign for a holiday party?"

A SIMPLE ONE is akvavit. Freeze the bottle in a block of ice, leaving the neck clear to hang onto. You pour this in tiny glasses and give them Danish beer for a chaser. Swedish akvavit is the best. Tuborg or Carlsberg is the beer.

You should serve little squares of buttered brown bread with this. Top each one with tiny cold shrimp. Don't get the bread flavored (no rye). The akvavit has a caraway taste. So don't compete with it.

"Is there a limit to baggage on Pacific cruise ships?"

ALL SHIPS give you almost unlimited baggage allowance. You may have to let your trunks go in the hold. But the shipping line will give you tags to put on them so that they will be stowed where you can get at them during the voyage.

"Any information on dining in Portugal?"

Tavares is the oldest top-restaurant in Lisbon. Fairly expensive by Portuguese standards, which means dinner will go for $5 or $6 with wines.

Cortador is colorful. They carve the steaks in front of you and give you a murderous Spanish knife to cut it.

Gambrinus is old and colorful and good.

The best color spots are the fado places—restaurants where they sing the Portuguese fado. "April in Portugal" is a fado. Done with guitars and a mournful voice in tavern-type restaurants with smoked sausages hanging from the roof.

Machado's is best known to the tourist trade. Festa Brava is good.

The stuff to drink is a wine and fruit punch called Sangria. And if you like rich, garlicky soups, sopa alentejana is your dish.

Miniature bedroom furniture that any handy do-it-yourselfer can make will accommodate a doll up to 30 inches.

By Bill Meyerriecks

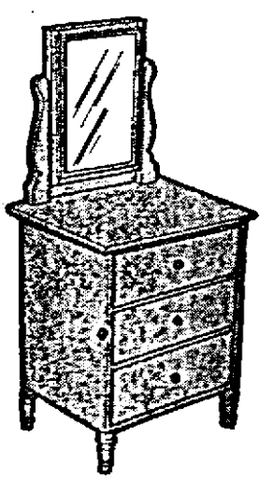

PINT-SIZED toy furniture has proved to be a popular item with Sketchbook do-it-yourself fans, and a plan for kitchen furniture (Plan S-131), consisting of two-thirds size range, sink, cupboard and refrigerator, is one of the most favored ideas.

This week's design idea, the Petite Bedroom Suite, for girl's favorite doll is a companion to the kitchen equipment in that it is in the same scale.

The doll bed is designed so that Dad (or Grandad)can put it together in one evening. The plan shows complete details of all parts, materials and assembly. And if you wish, you can make a more fancy canopy bed instead of the four-poster. You're shown how in the Sketchbook plan. Both the bed and dresser are made from standard lumber and any handy fellow can do it justice.

THE DRESSER is in scale, too, to store the many accessories that always clutter about when a little girl plays. It stands 30 inches high, 28 inches wide, with three full drawers and you can put a mirror on back as shown, but you can consider this as optional if you want. The dresser actually is a handy unit you can use anytime once the little girl grows out of the play doll stage.

The bedroom suite, Sketchbook Plan S-138, may be obtained by sending 50 cents with name and address to Building Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif. And, in case you missed the kitchen equipment Plan S-131, it may also be ordered for 50 cents from the same source. Be sure to state Plan Numbers desired.

This is the companion dresser to the doll bed shown above.

King Midas Christmas Tree

By Betty Coatsworth

MAKE A glamorous golden Christmas tree this year and friends will besiege you for replicas. For less than a dollar you will have a decoration fit for Buckingham Palace.

Materials: Eight long egg cartons; white glue (Wilhold is good); gold paint spray; one pound of plaster of paris; bean jar; one yard fancy white braid; 25 small gold balls, other decorations.

Cut lid and flange from eight long egg cartons.

With sharp knife slit bumps joining the cups.

Bend cups back, down the center, forming a row of six diamond-like designs, each with an oval opening. Glue the edges together securely.

REPEAT THE process with remaining cartons, but cut off cups till you have rows of five, six, five, four, three, two and one cups left.

In that order glue the rows together with structure lying flat. Glue one extra cup into the center of the bottom row as a stump to fit into the bean jar.

Insert a strong wire such as a coat hanger about 19 inches long with a hooked end directly up the center of the tree, with the hook at the bottom.

HALF FILL a 14 ounce bean jar with a mixture of water and plaster of paris thin enough to pour. Quickly place the wire hook into the plaster mix and put the stump into the jar, holding it straight until the plaster hardens. Caution: If the jar is more than half full, expansion may break it.

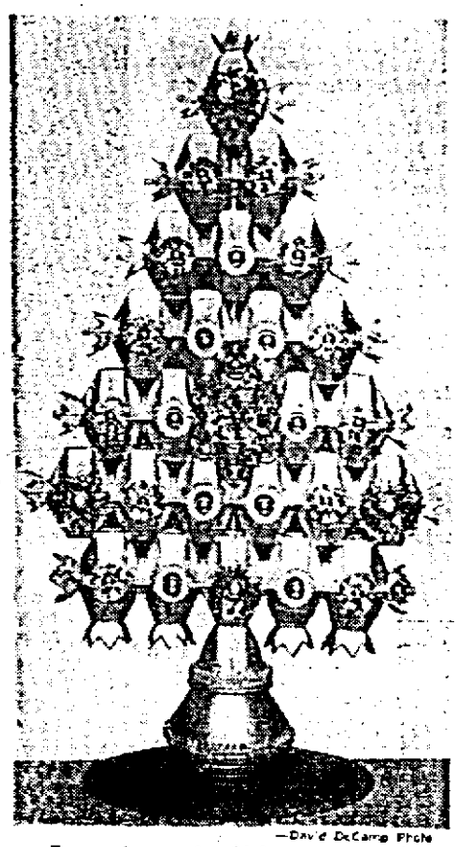

Cut 19 pointed decorations from the bottoms of discarded cups and glue one to each outside (border) and bottom cups.

Glue fancy white braid around neck and center of jar.

Spray gold paint on the whole tree and jar.

NOW HAVE FUN decorating. Glue a small gold ball inside each oval opening. Frame the opening with oval gold decoupage (may be pieces from gold paper doilies). Foil reflectors are effective. As a center of interest glue a large decoration in the center of the five-cup row and surround it with six balls glued into the crevices. (See photo.)

Friends can form line to the right to request these decorations touched by the magic hand of King Midas.

—David DeCamp Photo

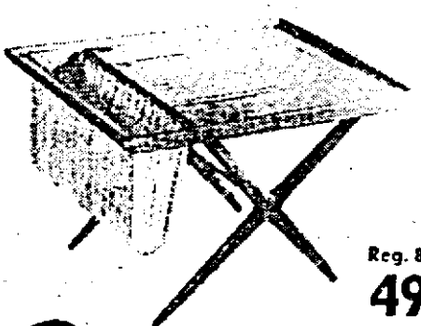

Egg cartons, not gold ingots, are used to make this elaborate, glittering tree.

Greener City

One of the greenest cities in Europe, Berlin is adding still more park space for recreation and beauty. The Berlin Tourist Office reports that a nature preservation program ("Naturschutz") has been announced and land presently undeveloped will be retained as nature tracts. More trees and flowers will be planted. More fish will be added to the rivers and lakes.

You Ask, We Answer

By Hoskin

Q. How long have people known that birds migrate? F.B.

A. One writer on this subject says: "The semi-annual migration of birds has attracted the attention of mankind from the earliest days. In the Old Testament we read the words of the prophet, Jeremiah: 'the stork in the heaven knoweth her appointed times, and the turtle (i. e. turtle dove), and the crane, and the swallow observe the time of their coming.' Both Homer and Aristotle refer to the subject, the latter discussing it at length and advancing the theory of hibernation to account for the sudden appearance and disappearance of certain birds."

Q. How many different items does a chain of variety stores usually stock? G. I.

A. Every chain decides this for itself on the basis of its own merchandising requirements. The number of items sold in individual stores in a chain naturally differs from one city to another, depending on local conditions. One typical chain with some 600 stores buys about 12,000 different articles, purchased from over 9,000 manufacturers. Many of the articles are produced to the chain's own specifications, under its own brand names.

Friendliness in Fur

By Eleanor A. Price

Champion chinchilla owned by M. Wilson poses with the prize ribbon. Chinchillas can be friendly little pets.

TO SOME the word chinchilla spells a fur business, and pelts still do command a price. To others the word means a fascinating squirrel-size rodent with a lovely coat that wins ribbons at fairs. To a few it spells a friendly little pet who likes to be cuddled, will snuggle in a pocket for a nap, who enjoys a gentle romp, a spin on a whirligig, or a bath in a specially prepared chinchilla powder. And there no longer is the deep concern about the temperature at which one of these animals can live, for it is known that it can survive 100 degrees or sub-zero so long as the drinking water does not freeze.

The chinchilla is vermin free, odorless, and usually gentle, although some seem overly spirited. Its feeding problems are simple, for it likes chinchilla pellets and a special weedless hay. The same dried grain and nuts enjoyed by a flying squirrel are also relished. Offer small pieces of orange or other citrus fruit now and then to help keep the coat smooth and glossy. Your veterinarian or pet shop will help you select vitamin supplements.

IF YOU make a pet of a chinchilla, you should start with a very young one. Let it adjust to its new airy cage and nesting box (which you must keep clean) before you handle it. Then start hand-feeding the pet. Hold food in its cage and let it come to get it. If it does not, put the food down and carefully withdraw your hand.

Continue to give it lots of attention and gentle handling. Never scoop it up suddenly. When it seems tame, it can run in the house, but keep it out of the kitchen where it might get hurt.

Female chinchillas breed at from six to 10 months of age, and the usual litter is two babies, although sometimes there are three or even four.

THE CHINCHILLA was first discovered in the high Andes in South America. Fur trappers were so ruthless the animal was at one time declared extinct. But in 1922 an American engineer, after many years search, found a dozen or so chinchillas in the mountains of Chile. He put them in a refrigerated cage and brought them to North America, according to reports.

In its native habitat the chinchilla is nocturnal and lives in a community burrow above tree-line in the rugged mountains of Chile and Bolivia.

SAN FERNANDO Valley Cat Club will have a show Dec. 28-29 in National Armory, 3800 Valhalla Drive, Burbank.

Showy Sedum

Comes now a plant which knows only limited use in California, primarily because it gets so little publicity. Many California Association of Nurserymen members will praise the showy Sedum highly, however, and so will you when you get to know it.

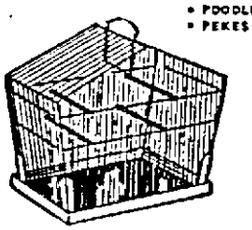

A succulent with gray-green leaves and clumps of 15-inch stems which are topped with flat heads of pink flowers in summer. If you remove the old stems at ground level after they bloom, new ones will sprout up to take their place, so showy Sedum's spot in the border is seldom bare and always neat.

Here's Help for 'Standpat' Iris

By Joe Littlefield

EVERY so often, iris clumps should be dug up, divided and the newer sections set out again; however, there are times when it is not desirable to take such action and here is a method that may produce better blooms next spring among the overdue iris:

Soak the iris bed, and this means now. After several days, scatter four pounds of bone meal per each 100 square feet of iris flower bed. Lightly scratch this into the soil. Spread a quarter-inch layer of steer manure over the planting area, regardless of whether some of the manure covers the rhizome tops, and slowly soaked down the manure. Keep the area moist for the next couple of days.

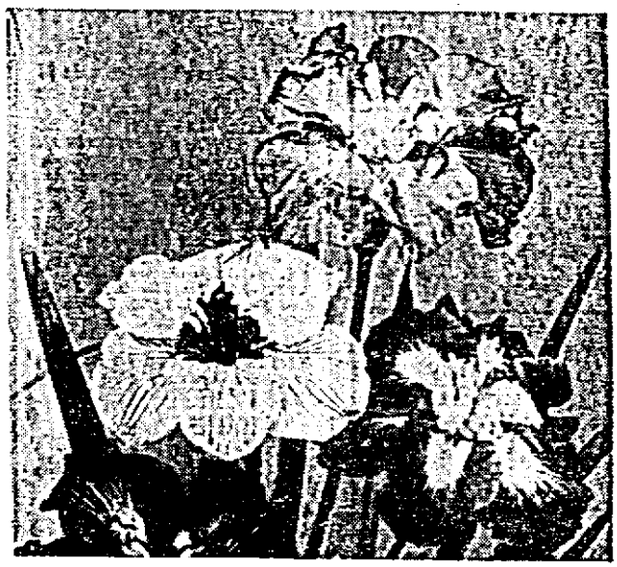

A month and a half from now, fertilize the area with a balanced complete plant food, with a formula reading of 6 percent nitrogen, 4 percent phosphoric acid, and 4 percent potash. Water well before feeding, then water again afterward. A 2-10-10 formula of liquid fertilizer is more specific in plant food for bulbous plants, fruit trees, and for flowers, because it is a fruit-flower maker, and may be preferable.

African daisies (Dimorphotheca aurantiaca) are annual late winter-spring blooming plants. Seeds may be sown like grass seed. Young seedlings should be thinned to about a two-inch spacing and, come blooming time, you'll have a mass of orange, yellow, apricot or white flowers, in a bright mixed mass.

And they're so easy to start. Select a sunny area of ground whether in the open or against a wall that you'd like to blanket with color. Soak the soil well. Next day take a garden rake and scratch up the soil as if to make a bed for grass seed. Then sow the African daisy seeds, and here's how to sow the seeds to insure even seed scattering:

Put a quantity of manure (about equal to a double handful) in a bucket. Scatter some of the seeds over the manure. Repeat this operation several times until the bucket is three-quarters filled, then mix with a trowel as if mixing a batch of cement.

Scatter the mixture evenly over the raked soil area. When covered over, rake lightly then scatter a thin layer of manure over it. Slowly soak down without puddling. Keep the area moist until seedlings have grown about an inch tall, scatter snail-slug bait to protect the young plants and water thereafter only as soil dries.

Beauty of iris blooms may be enjoyed, even if clumps are "standpats" of long terms, by special attention now.

Bold and Gay

Pinwheel, a new Gloriosa daisy being introduced by Burpee Seeds for 1964, is a bold 5-inch flower in a gay pattern of mahogany and gold. Plants are vigorous, grow to 2½ feet tall and, if planted early, will bloom the first year. They may be planted for massed bloom effect as well as for cut flowers. Developers say they will last for years, tolerating hot summers and surviving zero weather.

If you live in an area that will permit growing annual rye grass in winter, you may still plant the seed and have a green lawn until the early spring grasses begin to show up.

In preparing the lawn for seeding of rye grass, precaution should be taken to spray the area first with a fungicide containing copper to insure against any failure of the rye growth. Annual rye grass grows fast but should be protected in the sprouting stage.

Recommended seeding is one pound to each 100 square feet of surface. Either steer manure or a light covering of peat moss can be used for protective covering. If you live in a particularly dry area, watering every day will be necessary until the grass is rooted well.

Normal rainfall in some areas will be sufficient to leach out salts in soil and manures. Otherwise regular watering will be necessary throughout the winter. When rye grass starts to die out in spring spray the lawn with an application of an ether-copper solution to clean-up the insects that have over-wintered in the rye grass.

GARDEN CLUBS

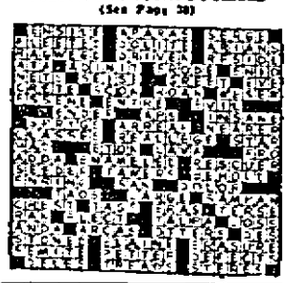

North Long Beach chapter, American Begonia Society, has scheduled its annual festival for 7 p.m. Friday in the social room of Community Savings & Loan Association, 3901 Atlantic Ave. Dinner will be served, potluck style, with turkey provided by the society. There will be a gift exchange. Members may invite guests.

"Forty Years of Fun With Roses' will be the subject of John van Barneveld of the Rose Hills Memorial Park and an authority on rose culture, at a second meeting of rose enthusiasts at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Orange County Public Library, 431 S. Manchester Ave., Orange.

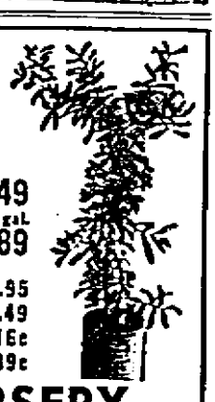

Van Barneveld's appearance before the group will be particularly appropriate in his capacity as consulting rosarian in this area of the American Rose Society and in view of the fact that a new Rose Society in Orange County is the objective of the hosting group. Mrs. Jean Cregar was chosen as temporary chairman at an initial meeting of the organization in November. George F. Roy Sr. is program chairman pro tem and Mrs. Loraine Spiess, temporary treasurer.

Anyone interested in roses or in becoming a member of the new society is invited. Charter memberships will be held open through February.

JOHN McKENNON
It's Beef Fondue

"Beauty is eternity gazing at itself in a mirror."

THOSE WORDS, written many years ago by author Kahlil Gibran, sum up very simply the quiet elegance of the newest dining room at the Lafayette Hotel. The loveliness of the Cafe Lafayette is not a shouting beauty, demanding to be appreciated. It is, rather, a restful beauty, conducive to gourmet dining which is the primary purpose of this continental restaurant.

Conceived by John McKennon, the hotel's personable, youthful manager, the Cafe Lafayette is one of two new rooms opened at the Lafayette last month. The other one is the Sans Souci show room which stages Las Vegas-style entertainment.

The Cafe Lafayette, Parisian in style, serves luncheon Monday through Friday from 11:30 to 2:30 p.m. and dinners from 5:30 to 11:30 p.m. Sunday dinners are served from 5 to 11 p.m. Catering manager Rainer Dickman, who developed the cafe's menu, can take pride in its accomplishments, which include Beef Fondue Bourguignonne, one of the most exciting epicurean dishes ever introduced in Long Beach. It includes strips of the choicest beef tenderloin, which the guests cook themselves at their table by dipping the meat (fixed to long forks) in a casserole. When cooked, the strips are dipped again in heavenly sauces (including mustard sauce, warm horseradish and perigourdine) which impart exquisite flavor to the beef. The $5.50 price includes Long Branch potatoes, and an outstanding salad of soft lettuce and tomatoes. Other extraordinary entrees include beefsteak Tartar, baked double breast of guinea hen a la Kiev, chicken cooked in wine, poulet Souvaroff, emince of beef a la Stroganoff and tournedos Rossini.

BERT'S EYE VIEW

O'Herlihy Happy With 'Travels'—Now

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

Dan O'Herlihy currently is happy with "The Travels of Jaimie McPheeters."

That, admittedly, is a big change of heart.

For O'Herlihy, who has the lead role of Dr. Sardius McPheeters in the ABC-TV Sunday nighter, previously was unhappy.

"The series was done crudely and in bad taste," he said.

"Now we have one of the best production crews I've seen anywhere."

* * * *

IT IS A production crew headed by executive producer Boris Sagal whose first executive action a number of weeks back was to scrap all existing scripts.

"Good scripts are what you need in any series," said O'Herlihy. "Now we're getting them with real quality. They're hiring the best writers available."

Those "best writers," according to O'Herlihy, are not concerned with getting across a particular message.

"We're an entertainment series," said O'Herlihy. "Who's interested in messages?

* * * *

"PEOPLE will say a program carried a wonderful message, which means what —that they've suddenly discovered an elementary morality?"

What is now true about "Travels," feels O'Herlihy, is generally verified throughout most of television.

That truth, as he sees it, is that the passing years find those people with real talent emerging and being put in charge.

There is a good O'Herlihy reason why this is occurring.

"My feeling is that the mentality of the television viewer is not as low as the hack producer and hack writer would think.

* * * *

"ALL I KNOW is that the better stuff I've done — the better the scripts—the more acclaim I've got from the public.

"That's what makes me think that I'm right and they (the hack producers) are wrong."

It was O'Herlihy's strong feelings that he was "right" that led him, in the first place, to become associated with a series.

Although for a period he felt perhaps he had made a mistake, that attitude was righted with the advent of producer Sagal.

There is another reason why O'Herlihy became involved with television.

* * * *

"FROM an actor's participation standpoint," he said,

SCALES NEW HEIGHTS

Maureen--at Last--Sings Classics

NEW YORK (UPI)—It took her a long time, but Maureen O'Hara has finally found a role she can sink her voice into.

In the movies she has done light-hearted comedies like "Parent Trap" and "Sitting Pretty" and heavy dramatic parts in "Jamaica Inn," "How Green Is My Valley" and "Sentimental Journey." She has had pure acting roles opposite swashbuckler Errol Flynn in "Against All Flags" and strong, silent John Wayne in "The Quiet Man" and most recently "McClintock."

In these and other roles, the flame-haired beauty has had occasional opportunity to sing —an Irish ballad here or there. And she has sung the same kind of music on radio and television guest appearances. She even did a record album "Maureen O'Hara Sings Her Favorite Irish Songs" (Columbia). Her Broadway debut was in the short-lived musical "Christie," a personal triumph although critics panned the show as a whole.

BUT UNTIL HER ROLE as Mrs. Susanna Cibber in the Hallmark Hall of Fame Christmas Drama, "A Cry of Angels," scheduled today (4 p.m. Sunday, channel 4 in color), Maureen never has been cast in a dramatic role as a real, honest-to-goodness singer.

Miss O'Hara plays a celebrated actress-singer of the 18th century who befriends famed German musician-composer George Frederic Handel during a difficult period of illness and sagging career. She will sing portions of "Beggars' Opera" and Handel's famed Christmas oratorio, "The Messiah."

The original teleplay by Sherman Yellen stars Walter Slezak as Handel. Emmy Award-winner George Schaefer is producing and directing the historical drama.

Miss O'Hara, as a five-year-old in her native Dublin, began singing and dancing in Irish festivals, then went on to acting in Shapespeare. At 14, she won admission to the drama school operated by the Abbey Theatre and briefly was a member of the famous Abbey Repertory Company. Then came "Jamaica Inn" and Hollywood.

"I TOLD THE STUDIO I was a singer," Miss O'Hara recalls. "I begged them to put me in a musical."

But the movie executives saw her instead as a gloriously beautiful dramatic actress and were content to keep her that way.

Undaunted, Maureen sought out a good voice coach and continued to improve her voice, even if it got little professional test.

She sang some on television shows such as "The Perry Como Show," "The Telephone Hour" and "The Dinah Shore Show," but in these guest appearances the quality and range of Miss O'Hara's lyric soprano voice was not amply demonstrated.

That's why she's so enthusiastic about her role in "A Cry of Angels." She is working again with a long-time accompanist, Mrs. Elaine Parkey, and when the show is completed the two plan to collaborate on a book about Irish music.

The Hallmark show, Miss O'Hara hopes, will lead to more and better singing roles.

"At least in the Christmas play," she says, "I'll have a chance to show I'm a bloody good singer!"

Negro Model in TV Series as Secretary

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UPI)—"I've learned more about myself as a person by being in the theater," said Cicely Tyson. "You have to delve deep within yourself in acting."

Miss Tyson, who currently plays the office secretary on CBS-TV's weekly offering "East Side-West Side" and who actually did once work for three years as secretary in a social work agency in Harlem, has carved out an acting career for herself in less than seven years.

While in the social agency, she began doing modeling during her lunch hour. Soon she was one of the top-10 Negro models in the country. That led to a movie contract, the Off-Broadway (and on-Broadway) stage, and lots of television.

• • • •

"I WAS SO shy as a kid," she said, "that when I got a small speaking part in a junior high school operetta, I couldn't say it. They took it away from me. I was never talkative. Now, they can't shut me up.

"I just went into acting headlong. My mother objected terribly."

She did, really?

"Oh yes—wow! She didn't speak to me for a year. The theater meant to her a life of sin. Degrading. But she came around after she saw me in 'Dark of the Moon.' I played Barbara Allen. People began saying to her, 'You have a talented daughter.'

"She saw it and was pleased. I don't know whether you know anything about West Indian parents—that's where she comes from. They want their children to succeed but it's not their custom to congratulate you too much. But I know she's very happy about me now—for people to call her up and say they enjoyed her daughter on TV.

"But it is a little shocking that I'm in the theater. We lived in a Spanish-speaking community, and my parents were very strict. My sister and brother and I never were allowed to go to the movies. I had never been inside a legitimate theater until I got in the business."

TELEVISION BUILDS 'PAPER STARS'

Public Does Not Respect What Comes 'Free,' Says Comedian

By DICK KLEINER

NEW YORK (NEA)—Television is building a flock of paper stars. That's the opinion of Dick Shawn, the brilliant comedian, who does just enough television to satisfy his agent and no more.

The "enough" includes a featured appearance on "The Judy Garland Show" today (9 p.m. Sunday, channel 2).

"Television success," Shawn says, "is just paper stardom. The public never has any respect for what it gets for free. I could buy three suits for $80 each but if I bought one for $240, I'd have more respect for it.

"The public gets television free, and really doesn't have any respect for television stars. The proof of this is the fact that television success lasts such a little while. Once a person is off television, that's it, unless he's had success in another medium first.

"You take people like Genevieve and Dody Goodman and George Gobel and Bob Newhart—they were big on television for a while, but now they're all having their troubles."

SHAWN FEELS there's more permanence to stardom achieved through other show business avenues. He has a good night club career, but is trying to reach the bigger time through the stage. He's been on tours with tried-and-true vehicles like "Do-Re-Mi" and "Bye-Bye Birdie." His ultimate goal is Broadway.

And he won't make a comedy record.

"I always said," he says, "that if you make a record of your act, you might as well throw the act away. Proof? Look at the hot record sellers—the Shelley Bermans, the Vaughan Meaders—they were big record smashes and now the public won't go to see them."

Shawn points to the techniques of the people he calls "the permanent stars" to buttress his reasoning.

"They never overexposed themselves," he says. "Crosby makes one picture a year. Fred Astaire makes even less. When they do appear, the public wants to see them. That's the only way."

So don't look for a Dick Shawn Show or a Dick Shawn record. He says he just won't do it.

COMEDIAN DICK SHAWN makes his point with the title star of "The Judy Garland Show" at 9 p. m. today (Sunday), channel 2.

Demonstrate Heat Detector

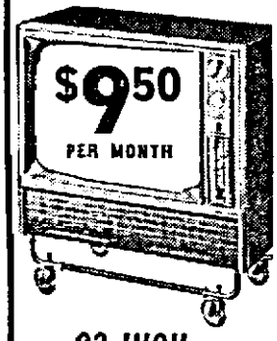

An infra-red detector capable of measuring the heat from a cigarette burning 100 feet away will be demonstrated by the pretty USC coed who developed it when she appears on the new "Science All Stars" TBC-TV series early next year.

Sheila McMorris, 18, now a freshman at the University of Southern California, designed and built the detector while still a high school student in Phoenix, Ariz.

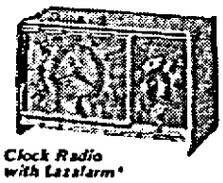

DEBRA PAGET is quizzed during a murder case handled by "Burke's Law" at 8:30 p.m. Friday, channel 7.

BUYING-SPREE EDIE

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Edie Adams has shucked her widow's weeds to become one of Tinsel Town's most glowing glamour girls.

Widowed almost two years ago by the death of Ernie Kovacs, Edie has battled her way back financially and in the courts for custody of her children. She also has been the object of overwhelming pity.

Not any more.

"Everyone has their troubles," she said during a rehearsal break for her semi-weekly television show. "And I'm in full revolt against the 'poor me' attitude."

* * * *

ONE OF HER first moves to kick over the traces was a buying spree—a flashy new bracelet, a luxury automobile and a jump suit made of sable. That's right, sable.

"There's nothing to pick up a girl's spirit like buying something she really doesn't need," Edie said, smiling happily.

"So I went out and got the most vulgar, terrible bracelet in the world. It's covered with diamonds and emeralds. Believe me, it's really something I didn't need. Then I traded in two of my old cars and got a new Bentley Continental—a shocking red one."

The car retails for a neat $28,000.

* * * *

EDIE CHOSE the recent premiere of "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World" to turn the glamour dial to full volume.

She stepped out of the red Bentley wearing the sable jump suit and flashing the gaudy bracelet. It was a sight onlookers won't soon forget.

Edie dates frequently now and has caught up on all her debts. Her video show is rolling along and she's constantly in demand for movies—her most recent: "Under the Yum-Yum Tree." For these and other reasons, Edie is a rejuvenated gal.

* * * *

"I'VE MADE some financial provisions for the children," she said, "and now I'm going to spend a little money. Why save it?

"You might as well spend money while you have it because you sure as heck can't spend it when you don't have it. I've been both places, believe me, and I like it better this way.

"In this business your earning years aren't very long, and I'd rather do the things I want to now than wait until I'm old and sitting on a porch somewhere—too far along to enjoy it.

TV Series 'Automatic' Publicity

"television — particularly a series—is the best publicity in the world today.

"In itself it's publicity."

As an actor, O'Herlihy extends his personal movie philosophy to his feelings about his television series.

"I never aimed to be a box-office star," said O'Herlihy. "I just want for people to say, 'He's in it so it ought to be good'."

Dan O'Herlihy, the Dr. Sardius McPheeters of "The Travels of Jamie McPheeters," is in a movie, "Fail-Safe," to be released soon.

It ought to be good.

What happened to the "Andy Griffith Show"?

It was one of my favorites. Now all the characters speak in a muffled voice which is absolutely ineligible. We do not enjoy the show anymore.

Could you pass it on to the performers? Maybe they should do something about it.

Mrs. Frances Feuer, Long Beach

Ok Andy, Don and the rest of you. Snap out of it. Get eligible.

* * * *

Since you "listened" to Jeannine Riley I'll forgive you for making an error in grammar.

You wouldn't say "The press agent was sitting with I" so by the addition of Jeannine should not change your pronoun from "me" to "I."

My English teacher harped on this all the time—modifying a verb or preposition use "me."

Mrs. Edna McKenny, Long Beach

Me stands corrected.

* * * *

"I think the sponsors that sanction their products to be advertised on ridiculous shows have little regard for the way their money is diverted.

Perhaps some of the products are of the same quality of the shows.

Frank A. Winslow, Long Beach

With the kind of show that you're talking about Frank, the quality of the TV commercial—if not the product itself—is usually better than the program.

* * * *

In your reviews of television programs during the Nov. 30 weekend, you did not even mention the excellent documentary program entitled, "We'll Bury You."

After having discussed this ommission on your part with some of my acquaintances, we all agree that your reviews will become less and less popular by failing to give a proper review of such a very informative program.

Edward J. Wiater, MD

I dig you, Doc. Consider the subject mentioned and buried.

* * * *

Jerry Lewis is allergic to hamsters, states an exciting item from the Jerry Lewis publicity bureau.

We have news for Jerry Lewis.

A lot of people are allergic to Jerry Lewis. Two hours of Jerry Lewis is just two hours too much of Jerry Lewis.

J. Paul Gleason, Long Beach

Who did you say?

* * * *

What happened to Joe Pyne from radio station KABC?

Jessie Butcher, Long Beach

Joe opined that he'd like to be released from his contract and KABC agreed. He's been replaced by Ben Hunter.

CALL HIM 'HAPPY HARRY'

Video Rural Mural by Ozark Lark

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Just call me Happy Harry. I dream up television shows. I got one here for next season I'm gonna call either "Beverly Junction" or "Petticoat Hillbillies." They love it already at the networks. That's where you'll find me most of the day. Especially at CBS.

Now get this idea for the series: Three starlets living in Beverly Hills discover a rich oilman in their backyard and do what everyone in Beverly Hills really wants to do—they move to the Ozarks and open a rural hotel. Don't laugh, Charlie. Read that closely. It's psychology.

Don't tell me. You think I'm putting you on. You watched "Petticoat Junction" last night and you know all about the three girls who live at the rural hotel, and that "The Beverly Hillbillies" has those Ozark people who moved to Beverly Hills, and that the shows are high up in the ratings.

Baby, all I can tell you is forget what you're thinking. You wouldn't say that "Petticoat Junction" capitalized on "The Beverly Hillbillies" just because the same company made them, would you? Well, the same with me—I've had my idea for years. That's the way things are here, Baby. Anything else is a pure coincidence.

I'M ALL SET UP and ready to go. I got me a publicity man, and any time anyone accuses me of turning out phony folksiness or backward humor, he releases a statement for me saying: "I don't make shows for the critics, only for the people—and people are people, and they haven't changed much no matter what the snobs say." Top that, Baby!

And if the critics knock me off, I'll say, "The critics have a terrible power over shows." And if they don't knock me off, I'll say, "It just goes to show that the critics don't have any power at all."

Charlie, my series is going to be really folksy, full of happy mountain people—not the ones that are starving. The happy ones.

No, I don't think we need to go on location to get any genuine flavor. We can work up the whole thing in the office at my home. It's just been redecorated—cost me $16,000. It's a swell conference room. And the cast I got in mind is all pretty folksy anyway. Some of them lived in the San Fernando Valley for years and know all about being rural.

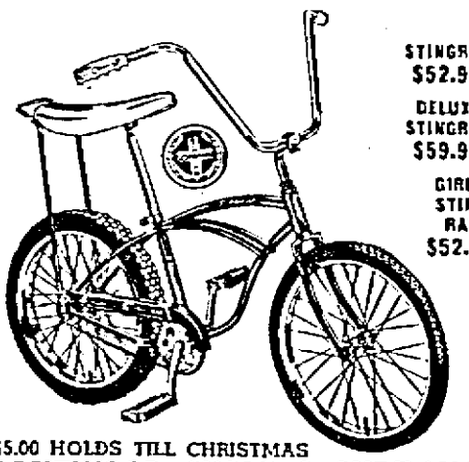

As for me, Baby, forget it. I been in touch with the film industry for yars. Remember Ma and Pa Kettle? I'll never be able to tell you what an effect they had on my life. They proved to me once and for all that people are people and they haven't changed much, as I always say. Don't ever forget that, Charlie. No matter what anybody asks you, give 'em that answer and you're all right.

Video Star Doesn't Own TV Set

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Show me a television star who doesn't own a television set and I'll show you a cured ham.

Such a one is Henry Jones of the "Channing" series.

Henry is celebrating his 25th anniversary in show business this year, a span in which he appeared in 400 video dramas. Having spent uncounted hours before the cameras he chooses not to waste any more time as a viewer. For this reason he is without a TV set.

Back in 1938 Henry made his debut on Broadway in "Hamlet." The title role went to Maurice Evans while Henry played the second gravedigger and doubled as Reynaldo. Both roles consisted of a dozen or so lines for which he was paid $40 a week.

Now he makes a small fortune portraying a kindly, wise dean of Channing College, a fictitious educational subsidiary of ABC-TV.

* * * *

JONES has a remarkably average kind of American face which has allowed him to play a tremendous range of characters.

And while it has been a boon to him in this respect, it has also hindered him from becoming a major star. With a name like Jones and a kisser that defies recognition, Henry has a problem: Either people remember his name or his face, but rarely simultaneously.

"That's why I took this series," Jones said dispiritedly.

"It's remarkable how many people see me on the street and flash me a look of recognition. But I can see their minds working and they figure they know me from someplace but can't remember just where, or what my name is. It's frustrating all around.

* * * *

"WITH ALL those other shows I've done being rerun there are plenty of times when I'm on the air opposite my own show. And it's not unusual for me to appear on three different networks on the same night."

A New Yorker, Jones has moved to Hollywood for the duration of "Channing."

Henry gives you the distinct feeling that he'd rather be in the East than in Tinsel Town, but the advantages of the show won him over.

"I get star billing on this show and the salary is better than I could earn on Broadway or in pictures," he said with alarming candor. "There are so few pictures being made that we character actors can't find enough work.

"And on Broadway I'm doomed to second or third roles instead of the leads.

"My exposure on television is beginning to work in my favor. Now the public is able to put my name and face together for the first time. It's taken 25 years, but it was worth waiting for."

Q. How old is Madame Chiang Kai-shek, and how many children has she had? — Elaine Hartley, Greenwich, Conn.
A. Madame Chiang Kai-shek, 65, is childless. The Generalissimo has had children by a previous wife.

A. True.

Q. Why are there so few women artists—painters, I mean—in the world today?—Lois Pinder, Youngstown, Ohio.
A. One theory holds that women are too practical to become artists, that their talents are channeled into home, family, love and security, that in contrast to men, they are not dreamers. Another theory holds that they are victims of their environment and a culture which does not foster artistry in women.

Q. In the film Lawrence of Arabia, actor Arthur Kennedy plays the role of a newspaperman. Isn't that newspaperman supposed to be Lowell Thomas, who accompanied Lawrence?—Carole McMillan, Bridgeview, Ill.

JUDY GARLAND: 97 POUNDS OF HEART

by LLOYD SHEARER

TV dilemma: Should the Judy Garland Show be a sophisticated one-woman spectacular or offer a "family of regulars"?

HOLLYWOOD.

Each Friday night at 9:30 a little left-handed lady with large luminous brown eyes and a throaty, vibrant voice, larger than life, slithers onto stage 41 at the CBS-TV studios here.

For an hour and a half she sings, reminisces, sips tea, chats lightly and cavorts with such guest stars as Lena Horne, Count Basie, Mickey Rooney, Mel Torme, Barbra Streisand and, on occasion, her own children.

From these carryings-on, her producer and editor put together 52 minutes of videotape eventually telecast on Sundays as the Judy Garland Show. For this one-hour package, sometimes stirring and memorable, other times mediocre and old hat, Judy Garland is paid $150,000—or about half of what CBS gets for the time and program.

Of her $150,000, Judy pays her cast and crew approximately $100,000, sometimes more. This leaves the tiny singer (5 feet tall, 97 pounds) with $30,000 to $50,000 each week, making her, along with Danny Kaye, probably the most highly paid star in TV.

Judy's basic deal with CBS calls for her company, Kingsrow Productions, to turn over to the network 30 one-hour shows at $150,000 per show. In addition, the network guarantees to re-run 8 of these shows at $75,000 each.

"The best part of Judy's deal, however," explains agent Freddie Fields, who negotiated it, "is that Judy owns the tapes, and they're worth at least three to four million. She can release them over and over again. She can sell the syndication rights, the foreign rights, anything she wants. For once in her hectic life, this little dynamo is going to be financially secure. And it's about time.

"Judy," he goes on feelingly, "is 41. She's done everything there is to do in show business, from vaudeville to one-night stands. She's earned fortunes for other people, but she's been victimized over and over again. Before we made this deal with CBS, she was practically broke. But television is going to give her what it's given others much less talented than she—security. These shows are going to bring in money so that she doesn't have to sing her guts out in concerts night after night to support her kids."

A STORM IS BREWING

Judy puts it more gently. "It's nice to think," she says, "that these shows will make me rich."

Even nicer to see is Judy Garland—after all the professional and domestic crises she's weathered—happy, healthy, relaxed and seemingly at peace with the world, especially while a storm brews 'round her lovely head.

This storm concerns the Judy Garland Show. Through no fault of her own, Judy's is not a commercially successful television program.

At this writing it has a Nielsen rating of 18, which means that of the 50,000,000 television families in America, approximately 18 per cent, or 9,000,000 families, watch the Judy Garland Show on Sunday nights. Admittedly that's a large number of families. But Bonanza, slotted by NBC against Judy at the same time, has a Nielsen rating of 35, which means that twice as many families prefer watching the Western to viewing Garland. Also opposite Judy on Sunday nights is a third program, Arrest and Trial, telecast by ABC. Arrest and Trial also has an 18 rating. In fact, its rating is a fraction higher than the Judy Garland Show, so as of this moment, Judy's show is running last in a race of three.

In a sentence, the Judy Garland Show is in trouble. The fault is not Judy's, and she knows nothing about this rating abracadabra. The man who goofed in this particular case is Jim Aubrey, the CBS chief who placed the show into the Sunday night 9:00 to 10:00 P.M. time slot opposite Bonanza.

He made the judgment, and the audience figures have proved him wrong.

Judy Garland—and this is the opinion of the men who have produced her show (she has had 3 producers to date)—should be spotted on Monday nights from 10:00 to 11:00, or even on Sunday nights from 10:00 to 11:00.

"She is basically," says Norman Jewison, who produced 8 of her shows, "a sophisticated performer who appeals to sophisticated, intelligent and literate people. She is definitely not the girl next door. She will never attract the mass meat-and-potatoes audience that Bonanza does, and it's foolish even to let her try."

George Schlatter, a talented producer who was removed by CBS from Judy's program after he had done the first five shows, operated on the following concept: "Judy Garland is someone special, one of the great, electric, incomparable talents of our time. I can't tell you," Schlatter says, "how co-operative Judy was when I worked with her. She did everything I asked, and more. She was prompt, tireless, painstaking. She worked like a Trojan. All this baloney about her being temperamental and high-strung—she showed none of that.

TV FINANCE

• Television is primarily an advertising medium, and only those shows which prove profitable to a sponsor remain on the air in prime time (7:00 P.M. to 11:00 P.M., with minor variations).

For an advertiser, the Judy Garland Show is reputedly one of the most expensive programs in television. Before it went on the air this past September, the show had 6 commercial minutes to sell. CBS sold them to 4 sponsors for $56,000 a minute.

The 4 sponsors who shelled out $336,000 for the time and talent on the Judy Garland Show were led to believe by their advertising agencies that this was a good buy, a wise purchase, that the show would attract a tremendous audience. It does not do so in terms of cost.

Unless CBS lowers its asking price from $56,000 a minute to something like $20,000, or makes other concessions, Judy's sponsors will probably cancel. The current word in advertising circles is that CBS has already lowered its asking price drastically. Thus, the Judy Garland Show continues, but the $64,000,000 question is: for how long?

"In her first five shows—and these haven't been telecast in sequence—I framed her as someone very special with a background of elegance and incomparable talent. I framed her performance as an event, because I think it is."

The CBS program chiefs—and let's not get into names here—feel that what Judy's show needs to gain a wider audience is a family of regulars such as Garry Moore offers. They feel strongly that the show should have two or three performers who appear every week.

Judy, who knows relatively little about television, is willing to listen to anyone. She went back to New York a few weeks ago and was advised by network executives that she must stop touching her guest stars, that people complained about such physical intimacy; so she has stopped. She was also told that she must talk to TV editors throughout the United States, so she has arranged an elaborate setup of long-distance conference calls whereby she talks simultaneously to 10 or 12 reporters throughout the country.

I was at her house one recent afternoon—a one-story modern 8-room Brentwood job worth $250,000, pool included—when she was giving out with such an interview.

Here are some of the questions and answers:

Q. How do you like TV compared to other media you've worked in?

A. I like TV better than any of the other jobs I've had in the past. It's hard work, but we've got it down to a pretty good routine now. I work four days a week and have Saturday, Sunday and Monday off. It's inspiring and fun and not too much work.

Q. I thought your television show was supposed to originate in New York. That was the original announcement.

A. I know, but we decided it would be better to do it from out here. After all, it gets so hot in New York during the summer. I would have had to take an apartment in Manhattan and my children would have had to be out on Long Island. This way we are all together. And besides, I have such a pretty new house. Oh, yes, my children watch the show. They come to the studio on Fridays when I tape it, and I must tell you this. The other week they were sitting down front, and they fell asleep while I was doing the show. My daughter, Liza—yes, she's out here, in fact, she's so busy I have to make an appointment to see her—I've done one show with her, and I'm doing the Christmas show with my other children, too.

Q. Is it true that CBS didn't like the first concept of your program and is now changing it?

A. Well, they're thinking along the family concept right now, that I should have a group of regulars, a Judy Garland family of performers, so that the program doesn't look like a spectacular each week.

Q. Judy, I've heard some people say that you look like a little old lady on television.

A. Well, I am a little old lady.

Q. Is it true that you won't allow people to watch you in your dress rehearsal?

A. I don't like a lot of people sitting in the audience during rehearsals because I'm too hammy and I wind up singing to them. I entertain the visitors, and then when it comes time for me to tape the show I'm dead.

Q. All the girls in my office want to know how you managed to diet so much—you must have lost 100 pounds.

A. That's my secret. Seriously, I just stay away from food. I drink tea.

Q. What do you do when you're not working?

A. I stay at home with my children. I play a little golf. I wait around for Tuesday and work to begin.

As all her fans know—and most of them are 30 or over—Judy Garland has not lived a particularly happy life to date. Child movie-star, poor picker of husbands and lovers, bedeviled and bewildered by agents and advisers, wracked by illnesses physical and mental, this great talent, this living legend, has somehow managed to generate from her own essence enough fortitude, enough determination, to fight herself out of life's defeats.

It is ironic at this point, when she is healthier and happier than she's been for years, that Madison Avenue and the advertising fraternity should interpret Judy and her show in the light of disappointment.

Heretofore, Judy Garland has never failed in any avenue of show business. If her weekly TV series ends in statistical failure because it has been incorrectly targeted by network masterminds, at least Judy will have the satisfaction of winding up with three or four million dollars to balm her low Nielsen.

For Colds and Flu...

DOCTORS RECOMMEND:

1. Rest in bed
2. Drink plenty of fluids
3. Take aspirin to reduce fever and relieve pain

REPORTING on a Government-Financed Study of Five Leading Pain Relievers, an article in The Journal of The American Medical Association showed that Bayer Aspirin was unsurpassed by any of them for speed and strength of relief. The report also showed that Bayer Aspirin was as gentle to the stomach as any product tested, including the higher-priced buffered product. On the other hand, the two combination-of-ingredients products tested upset the stomach considerably more often.

My Favorite Jokes

by LEE CARON

EDITOR'S NOTE: Lee Caron, born in Dallas but raised in Dayton, Ohio, bills himself as "The Tall Texan." Originally, Caron started out in show business as a dancer in Detroit. When he couldn't earn more than $7 a night hoofing, he switched to comedy. As a funnyman, Caron has appeared in many of the top night spots throughout the country, including the Savoy in Miami Beach, The Hilton in Chicago, the Holiday House in Pittsburgh. When he isn't telling jokes, Caron runs a prosperous farm and stable in Michigan, where he breeds quarter horses. Herewith some of his favorite jokes.

"Don't be so impolite," the angry wife said to her husband. "You've yawned six times while I was talking."

"I wasn't yawning," he replied. "I was trying to say something!"

A 7-year-old boy was sent to the grocery to get a dozen eggs for his mother. When he arrived at the store, he asked the grocer, "How much are your eggs?"

"Sixty cents a dozen," answered the storekeeper, "and thirty cents for the cracked ones."

"Okay," said the little boy. "Crack me a dozen."

A drunk was hauled into the police station. He shouted to the receiving officer: "What was I brought in here for?"

"For drinking," the officer explained.

"Schwell," said the drunk. "I'll have a martini!"

A kindly old gent said to the hotel desk clerk: "I was here last week in Room 720 and when I checked out, I forgot my umbrella. May I go up and get it?"

"I'm sorry, sir," answered the clerk, "but there is a couple in that room. They're on their honeymoon, and I can't allow them to be disturbed."

Ignoring the clerk's protest, the little old man went up to Room 720. He was just about to knock on the door when he heard a man's voice from within say: "Darling, my darling! That lovely blonde hair, and to think it's all mine. Those luscious red lips, and to think they're all mine. And . . ."

"And when you get to the umbrella," interrupted the old man in a booming voice, "THAT'S MINE!"

A mother was concerned about her son's behavior and decided to visit a psychiatrist. After listening to her story, the psychiatrist said: "I don't think you have to be concerned because he makes mud pies."

"Well, I don't think so either," replied the mother. "It's his wife who's beginning to worry!"

My wife's idea of frozen foods is a daiquiri. I don't know why she can't be like her mother and just open a can!

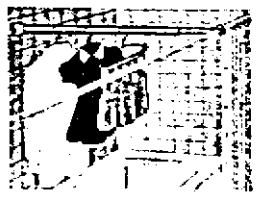

An Easterner was visiting a dude ranch and was fascinated by a cowboy rolling a cigarette. "It's terrific," he said, "the way you can roll a cigarette with one hand."

"Tain't nothin'," replied the cowboy. "Gettin' the filter in is the hard part!"

Definition of a pedestrian: A man who didn't believe his wife when she told him the family needed two cars.

CHRISTMAS GIFT TIP FOR THE LADIES:

How to Disguise a Necktie

by ROSALIND MASSOW

The American man has come to expect nothing new under the Christmas tree.

This year, fool him. Wrap his presents with imagination so that every gift is a surprise package.

Take the Christmas tie, for instance. Men have been getting an average of three every Christmas. If this yule's gift cravats were lined up end to end, there'd be enough to Christmas-wrap the world three-and-a-half times over. So how can you make yours look different? Don't use a tie box. It's a dead giveaway. Get a mailing tube and hang two or three ties inside with cellophane tape and then wrap it like a firecracker. He's sure to get a bang out of that!

Socks? Every man's got to get socks for Christmas. It's almost traditional. Get a deep box and weigh it down—with several cans of tobacco, if he smokes a pipe, or beer, if he's a beer drinker, or a paperweight if he collects papers. Roll each sock into a ball, cover with colored foil and tuck inside. Your gift should be a socko success.

No matter what else you give a man, a shirt is something he'll always appreciate. To disguise its recognizable shape, get an oatmeal container or any large cylinder. Cover the cylinder with foil and roll the shirt around the box; then wrap. No one will suspect it's a shirt.

When is a tennis racket like a big lollypop? When you wrap it in peppermint-striped paper. If there's a bowling ball in his future, cover it with red foil, like a big red apple.

If your gift is a record album, make it look like an oversized envelope complete with his address. Belt boxes can be tied with a tape measure, golf clubs can be made to look like stick horses, and mufflers can be camouflaged by taping shirt cardboards end to end and laying the muffler out on them. He'll never guess what's in the long box.

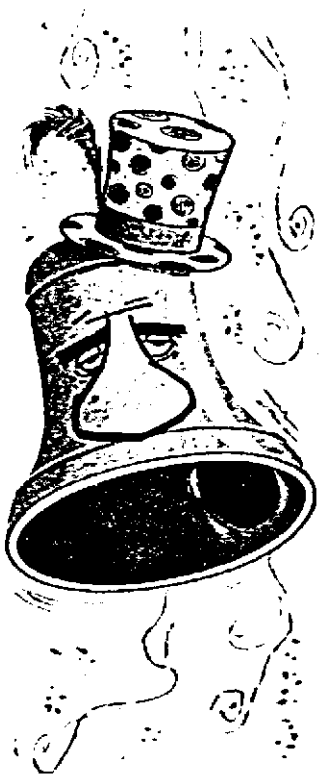

Gift wrappings should be not only creative, but neat as well. According to officials of the Chicago Printed String Co., one of the world's largest producers of gift wrappings, wrapping problems usually start with the paper. People cut off too much or too little. The rule is to size up the box and cut enough paper to cover it, and still leave a two-inch overlap. This will prevent bulky-looking packages. In selecting Christmas paper, keep size of parcels in mind. A large-pattern paper can't be used on a small box.

In the interests of economy, large rolls of paper can be bought with big bolts of ribbon in compatible colors. Non-woven ribbon can be slit into widths without fraying.

New automobiles, refrigerators, washing machines or horses needn't be wrapped. A classic example of what to do with a horse was suggested to a lady by a practical-minded salesman. "Just ride him in," he said.

If you've got good intentions but are all thumbs, the ready-made roses, bows and ribbon corsages shown above are available for your Christmas wrappings. The flat bow (top) is excellent for gifts that are mailed—it retains its shape. The kissing ball on the left is easy to make. Start with foil, tied in the middle with long ribbon and crumpled into a ball. Wind rubber bands all over ball and insert stems of ready-made roses under bands. This Christmas, Americans will have a gift wrapping bill of over $200,000,000, or $4.17 per family. Gifts will cost a record $8,394,000,000.

Candy-Topped Christmas Cake

by Beth Merriman
Parade food editor

Christmas is the time to show your skills as a dessert master. This filbert cake with shaped marzipan candies as topping is sure to make you shine. Marzipan is made with almond paste, available in one-pound cans at fancy grocery stores.

Della Robbia Cake

1 cup chopped filberts
1 teaspoon ground mace
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup butter or margarine
1½ teaspoons vanilla
1¾ cups sugar
5 large eggs
2 cups sifted all purpose or instantized flour

Toast filberts at 325° for 10 to 15 minutes. Combine mace, salt, butter and vanilla in large mixing bowl. Beat until consistency of mayonnaise. Beat in sugar gradually. Beat in 4 eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Stir in flour, mixing well after each addition. Beat in remaining egg. Fold in toasted filberts. Spoon into greased and floured 3-quart ring mold. Bake at 325° for 1 hour. Cool 20 minutes. Turn out on wire rack to finish cooling. Store in tightly closed cake box. Flavor of cake will improve with age. Before serving, drizzle with confectioners' (powdered) sugar icing and wreathe top with tiny marzipan candies.

Marzipan

1 lb. almond paste
½ cup light corn syrup
1 jar (1 pint) marshmallow topping
2 teaspoons vanilla
6 cups sifted confectioners' (powdered) sugar
Vegetable coloring oil (liquid)

Combine almond paste, corn syrup, marshmallow topping and vanilla; mix thoroughly. Add sugar, 1 cup at a time, mixing well after each addition (knead in the last 2 or 3 cups with the hands), until marzipan is satiny. Mold small pieces into fruit and vegetable shapes. Insert artificial leaves where needed while marzipan is soft. Let stand several hours to dry surface before painting with vegetable coloring, diluted and mixed as necessary, using artist's brushes. Roll "potatoes" in a mixture of cocoa and cinnamon instead of painting. Roll "strawberries" and "raspberries" in red sugar after painting. Makes about 5 dozen pieces. Store in covered metal boxes. Will keep indefinitely.

PP, Lafayette Hill, Pa.*

Easier snow shoveling: Wet, slushy snow will not stick to a new snow shovel made of laminated fiberglas instead of metal. It has no nuts or bolts to rust, weighs only three pounds—and is said to regain its shape instantly when banged, avoiding curled or turned-up corners that often make shoveling difficult. In permanent, molded-in colors: red, white, blue, amber and green. $4.50. C & K Plastics, Dept. PP, P.O. Box 41, Middlebranch, Ohio.

Cakes in tiers: You can bake miniature cakes—just the right size to be used for individual servings—with little three-tier aluminum pans. You simply lay tape inside the transparent 7-inch reel, turn on the recorder and the tape is automatically threaded and wound around the hub. There's also a plastic collar that snaps on the reel and serves both to keep out dust and permit convenient stand-up storage without a box. $1.50. The 3M Co., Dept. PP, 2501 Hudson Road, St. Paul, Minn.

A bright new note for the bathroom: You can add a decorative—and practical—touch to a bathroom with a new mural panel designed specifically for the tub-shower recess. It's available in a choice of nine scenes and designs and in 5' x 5' and 5' x 6' sizes. The 5-foot width allows 1-piece paneling of the standard 5-foot bathtub wall, eliminates the need for division moldings, provides an uninterrupted wall scene and reduces installation costs. A plastic surface finish resists heat, moisture and high humidity conditions. You can install the paneling right over old bathroom wall—and it's easily kept clean by damp-wiping. DENVER, COLO.

They're making a new kind of movie here, and the results aren't too popular with the actors. The films are "produced" by the Denver police, the "studio" is police headquarters and the "stars" are drunken driving suspects. In 3 minutes and 100 feet of film, police make a permanent record of just what kind of condition drivers are in at the time of their arrest. And this new and unusual law enforcement technique has proved a first-class weapon against a growing road menace.

The photos on these pages show how the system works: every suspect is brought before police cameras and put through a series of speech, thought and coordination tests. While cameras grind, he picks up scattered poker chips, walks a chalk line and answers police questions. Three days later he can see the films in a private showing. If he decides not to fight the charge, the films are forgotten. But if he pleads "not guilty," they are introduced against him in court. After seeing the films, fewer than 1 in 10 persons pleads innocent.

NEW SOBRIETY TEST NEEDED

The Denver system originated because police—in the face of rising arrest rates—felt the need for a more precise method of testing to supplement the old chemical and visual sobriety tests. Like most cities Denver used—and still uses—a "breathalyzer" test which measures alcohol content in the suspect's blood. He is considered legally drunk if it reaches .15 per cent. "But," says Capt. James Shumate, a police chemist who helped set up the movie system, "what chemical testing doesn't tell you is the tolerance of a particular person. I've seen youngsters who'd

CLEANEST, EASIEST, SAFEST Way To Rid Your Place Of

d-CON MOUSE-PRUFE is so clean, so easy to use. You just pull tab, and bait feeds automatically. You never touch a messy, "germy" trap. Best of all, MOUSE-PRUFE, used as directed, is safe to use around children and household pets, yet is guaranteed to keep your place mouse-free—or your money back! Mice hungrily eat MOUSE-PRUFE—can't resist the special, patented-process formula, eat themselves to death—painlessly. Get d-CON MOUSE-PRUFE!

never imbibed before so crocked they couldn't walk—yet the breathalyzer showed them well below the .15 mark. We needed something that would show a jury the condition of a suspect when he was picked up—and also show the truth to the suspect himself."

The movies generally do make a deep impression on the suspect once he has sobered up. In one case, a woman suspect was so moved that she insisted on bringing her two teenage sons in to see the films. "See what drinking did to your mother," she told the shocked boys. "Let that be a lesson to you."

Although some attorneys and suspects contend the tests are unfair ("I couldn't walk that way even if I hadn't been drinking," is a favorite wail), police maintain they are careful of suspects' rights. In about 1 in 20 cases, the movies even clear the suspect. One man with a .38 per cent alcohol blood content appeared well co-ordinated and lucid on film. And suspects always have the right to refuse to co-operate.

CAMERA INCREASES CONVICTIONS

However, Police Chief Harold Dill is pleased with the effects of the new system. In Denver, drunken driving has doubled in four years, but with the camera crews at work, convictions have gone up, too. Out of 20 arrested, 19 are now convicted and fined, jailed or have their licenses lifted. The system is also employed in San Bernardino and Fresno, Calif., and Waterloo, Iowa. In the eyes of Denver police, every bit of movie footage may be saving a life.

Co-ordination test is given before cameras. Eyes closed, suspect must touch nose.

Poker chip test measures motor skills. The suspect must pick up one chip at a time.

PARADE'S SPECIAL

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

BANK ROBBERIES. Bank robberies in this country have jumped 30% in the past 8 months. Why? Because banks are moving to the suburbs and robbery in the suburbs is easier. According to the FBI, "By the very nature of their location such facilities are considerably more vulnerable to robberies than regular banking establishments. Suburban or shopping center buildings have few security features...less police protection...escape routes are usually better."

TRAFFIC ADVICE. From the Washington, D. C., traffic safety department: "Ladies, many accidents can be traced to the disgruntled disposition of the driver, brought on by irritation before getting into his car. Kiss your husband good-by as though you are crazy about him. It will make him a much safer driver."

DIAL LOCKS. How would you like to stop carrying keys? If Eigel Neorremark of Copenhagen has his way, that's what will happen in a few years. Neorremark has invented a telephone dial type of lock which he claims is more secure than many door locks now in use. Instead of using a key, the home-owner merely dials a telephone-type combination of figures, and the lock opens. Neorremark's dial, which carries numbers from 1 to 7, offers an almost infinite number of possible combinations. The lock is made of 20 parts without screws or weldings. The Danish police have tried to "break" the combinations, to date have not succeeded.

TV FOR NEWLYWEDS. Great Britain's commercial television network, Independent Television (ITV), is producing a new series, All About Marriage, for newlyweds, on such subjects as honeymoons, sexual intercourse, birth control, infidelity and divorce. The first programs in the series are entitled, "Is a Honeymoon a Good Idea?" "What is Normal Sex Life?" "Sexual Difficulties Found in Females and Males."

FOOD FACT. Favorite food of American schoolchildren is still the hamburger. Coming up strong, however, is pizza. So declared school lunch supervisors who met recently in Atlantic City.

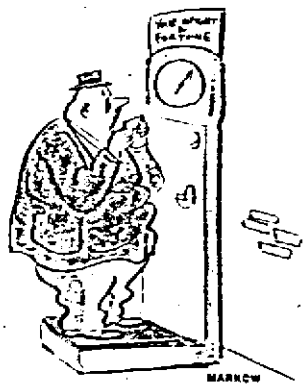

WHICH ARE YOU? Some people do their best work in the morning, others in the afternoon. According to Dr. W. P. Colquhoun, a Cambridge University psychologist, it generally has to do with whether you're an introvert or extrovert. After much testing, Dr. Colquhoun believes introverts are much more efficient in the morning, extroverts in the afternoon.

SUB ROCKETS. Submarines' equipped with rockets for emergency use -- wouldn't that be a good idea? Suppose a sub were sinking rapidly because of some accident. The rocket motors would be fired, shooting the sub to the surface. Thiokol has come up with a study of solid propellants for use in emergencies by disabled subs.

ATOM SPY. Klaus Fuchs, the German-born atom spy who worked for England and relayed key atomic secrets to the Soviet Union, hopes to visit England again, but the allied military authorities will not give him travel permission. Western authorities in West Berlin control East German travel to Britain, France and the U.S. They are refusing travel permits to East Germans in reprisal for the Berlin Wall. Fuchs, now 52, left England in 1959 after serving 9 years of a 14-year term for betraying nuclear secrets to the Russians. At present he is in charge of the Nuclear Research Institute at Dresden.

In only one day, GERITOL-iron is working in your bloodstream, carrying strength and energy to every part of your body!

Proved By Medical Tests: Patients diagnosed with iron-deficiency frequently were pale, nervous, irritable and easily tired. After patients took GERITOL daily, doctors reported definite clinical improvement.

It costs a whale of a lot to be laid up by an accident — any kind of accident. When the family bread-winner is hurt and can't work, his income is usually reduced or stopped entirely. Result? The family savings are drained so much that it may take years to recover from the high accident costs.

Bills for medical treatments, X-rays, hospital rooms, wheel chairs and a dozen other unexpected expenses take a big chunk out of anyone's hard earned savings.

This insurance is designed to help you solve the Accident Expense Problem. You may find it hard to believe, BUT this policy — at a cost of little more than a penny a day does pay the benefits shown below, for accidents at work, at home, in your automobile, on the street, and even at play.

Hundreds of claims are paid every week to men and women, like yourself, who never expected to be hurt. But they realized that, since one American in every 12 gets hurt each year, they just couldn't afford to be without this low cost protection.
